3 & 4 2468. United States Circuit Court, Western District of Missouri, Western Division. Guardian Trust Co. vs. Cambria Steel Co., et al. Citation. Filed August 24, 1910. Adelaide Uiter, Clerk.

5 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, sct:

Be it remembered, that heretofore, to-wit, on the 6th day of September, A. D. 1900, there was filed in the office of the clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, a bill of complaint wherein Cambria Steel Company is complainant and The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company and Northern Town-site Company are defendants.

Said bill of complaint is in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

In the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, In Equity.

CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY, Complainant,
vs.
THE KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY, THE Union Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Town-site Company, Defendants.

Original Bill of Complaint.

To the Judges of the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, in the Eighth Circuit, Sitting in Equity:

Your orator, the Cambria Steel Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania and a citizen of said State, brings this its Bill of Complaint against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Kansas City and Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Town-site Company, each and all of them corporations organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of Missouri and citizens and residents of said State, and each of them having their principal office and place of business at Kansas City in said State, and an inhabitant of the Western Division of the Western District thereof, and against The Union Terminal Railroad Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the state of Kansas and a citizen and resident of said state, having its principal office and place of business at the city of Kansas City in said State, and an inhabitant of the First Division of the District of Kansas.

And thereupon your orator complains and says that your orator is a corporation duly organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, having its principal office in said state and is a citizen and resident of said state; that the defendants, The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Belt Company), the Kansas City and Independence Air Line (hereinafter called the Air Line), the Guardian Trust Company (hereinafter called the Trust Company), the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company (hereinafter called the Elevator Company), the Central Improvement Company (hereinafter called the Central Company), the Second Street Improvement Company (hereinafter called the Second Street Company), the Fairmount Amusement Company (hereinafter called the Amusement Company), and the Northern Town-site Company (hereinafter called the Town-site Company), are each and all of them corporations organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the state of Missouri; that each of them has its principal office in Kansas City in said State, and that each of them is a citizen and resident of said state of Missouri and an inhabitant of the Western Division of the Western District thereof, and that the defendant, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, (hereinafter called the Union Company) is a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the state of Kansas, has its principal office in the City of Kansas City in the county of Wyandotte in said state of Kansas, and is a citizen and resident of said state of Kansas and an inhabitant of the First Division of the District of Kansas.

Your orator further shows that from the date of its incorporation about the year 1885, or prior thereto, until about the month of June, 1899, the name of the said Guardian Trust Company was "Missouri Kansas and Texas Trust Company," and that in or about said month of June, 1899, the said Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust Company, did, in accordance with the provisions of the statutes of Missouri in such cases made and provided, change its name to Guardian Trust Company.

Your orator further shows that at various times between the first day of November, 1897, and the first day of March, 1898, the Belt Company became indebted to your orator for steel rails purchased, to the amount of about One Hundred Thousand ($100,000) Dollars, and that the larger part of said indebtedness being unpaid, your orator thereupon brought suit in this Honorable Court against the said Belt Company upon the obligations given to evidence the balance then due upon said indebtedness, and in said suit did recover a judgment of this Honorable Court against the said Belt Company, to-wit: on the 6th day of September, 1900, for the sum of $100962.91, no part of which has been paid, but all of which remains due to your orator: that having so recovered said judgment, your orator caused a writ of execution to be issued thereon directed to the Marshal of the United States for the Western District of Missouri and against the said Belt Company, and the said Marshal, prior to the filing of this bill, did return the said execution wholly unsatisfied for want of property of the said Belt Company upon which to levy the same: and that the said Belt Company is utterly insolvent and has no property subject to be reached by legal process to be issued against it upon the judgment so recovered by your orator as aforesaid.

Your orator further shows that prior to the year 1887 the said Trust Company conceived and entered upon the plan and purpose to cause to be constructed a large number of railroads in and about Kansas City in the state of Missouri and leading from or to said city: that it was a part of the said plan and purpose of the said Trust Company to cause said railroads to be built, constructed and operated by various corporations to be organized by the said Trust Company and to elect various officers, agents and representatives of the said Trust Company to be the officers and directors of the said several railroad companies, so as at all times to absolutely dominate and control the actions of the said railroad companies and their several directors and officers; that it was still further a part of said plan and purposes of said Trust Company to organize a large number of auxiliary corporations, either in the way of construction companies to construct and build said several lines of railroad or in the way of companies to hold the legal title to lands, buildings, and other structures necessary to be used by the said railroad companies in their operations or for purposes incident thereto, and to also cause various officers, agents, employees and other representatives of said Trust Company to become the officers and directors of each 8 and all of the said last mentioned construction and auxiliary companies so as thereby to be enabled to completely dominate and control the actions of the said construction and auxiliary companies and of their several officers and directors; and that it was also a part of the plans and purposes of the said Trust Company to utilize and employ some one or more of the said railroad companies or auxiliary companies to act for and on behalf of the said Trust Company in carrying out various portions of the above said general plan and purpose of the said Trust Company, so as to gather unto said Trust Company all the profits and other advantages accruing in the premises and with the purpose and intent on its part to undertake to foist upon the said railroad company or auxiliary company so utilized, and upon those (other than said Trust Company) who might become interested in said railroad companies or auxiliary companies, or any of them, particularly by becoming creditors thereof, any and all losses, [burdend*s*], or other liabilities which might result in the premises; and that in carrying out its said plans and purposes, the said Trust Company did assume the position and duty of trustee and agent in managing and disposing of the bonds, stocks, funds and other assets of said railroad companies and auxiliary companies in trust and for the use and benefit of the parties who might become concerned or interested therein; and that consequently the relation of the said Trust Company to each and all of the said railroad companies and auxiliary companies, so far as the said Trust Company might employ the same, or either of them as agents and instrumentalities to further its own plans and purposes, was that of principal bound and charged with a duty to i-demnify and protect the railroad Company or auxiliary company so employed and utilized in any particular transaction, against any and all losses, burdens and liabilities arising in the premises, and that so far as persons becoming interested in the said railroad companies and auxiliary companies, or either of them, as creditors or otherwise, it became and was the duty of the said Trust Company, as trustee, having charge of the management, disposition and control of the stocks, bonds, funds and other assets of said railroad companies and auxiliary companies, or either of them, to so handle, manage and dispose of the same for the use and benefit of the persons interested, or who might become interested, in the said railroad companies and auxiliary companies, or either of them, including particularly creditors thereof and your orator.

Your orator further shows that in pursuance of the plans and purposes so conceived and entered upon by the said Trust Company as aforesaid, the said Trust Company did on or about the first day of January, 1887, cause a corporation to be formed 9 under the laws of the state of Missouri known as the "Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company" (hereinafter called the Suburban Company) for the stated and avowed purpose of building a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas, and that it did thereupon cause said Suburban Company to build a portion of said projected line, namely; from a point at or near Second Street and Broadway in Kansas City, Missouri, eastwardly and southwardly to a point at or near the mouth of Brush Creek, in Jackson County, Missouri; that it did also cause the said Suburban Company to place a mortgage upon its property, then held and to be thereafter acquired, to secure an issue of its bonds aggregating One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.) and to issue and deliver the said bonds to the said Trust Company; that as your orator is informed and believes, the said Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and dispose of the said bonds and all of the same are now outstanding; and that default having been made in the payment of interest heretofore accruing upon the said bonds, the principal thereof has been reclared to be due and payable according to the terms and provisions of the mortgage securing the said bonds, and that a bill to foreclose said mortgage has been filed and is now pending in this Court; and that the said Trust Company likewise caused various of its officers, agents and employees to be elected and constituted the officers and directors of the said Suburban Company and by means thereof did absolutely dominate and control the affairs and and actions of the said Suburban Company continuously until its consolidation as hereinafter stated; that subsequently, to-wit; on or about the 21st day of May, 1891, the said Trust Company, instead of carrying out and completing the projects and purposes for which the said Suburban Company was stated to have been formed, and in order to benefit itself in the premises, did cause the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company (hereinafter called the Terminal Company) to be incorporated under the provisions of the laws of the state of Missouri for the purpose, as stated in its articles of incorporation, of likewise constructing and building a line of railroad to encircle the said cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City Kansas; that thereupon the said Trust Company did cause the said Terminal Company to place a mortgage upon all its property, constructed and to be constructed, owned and to be acquired, to secure an issue of its bonds aggregating $750,000, and to issue and deliver the said bonds to the said Trust Company; that the said Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and dispose of the said bonds and the same are now outstanding; that de-10 fault having occurred in the payment of various installments of interest heretofore accruing upon said bonds, the principal of said bonds, as your orator is informed and believes, has been declared to be due and payable in accordance with the terms and provisions of said mortgage and a suit has been brought and is now pending in this court to foreclose the said mortgage; that the said Trust Company caused various of its officers, agents and employees to be elected as the officers and directors of the said Terminal Company and thereupon proceeded to absolutely dominate and control the actions and doings of the said company and its officers and directors continuously until its consolidation as hereinafter stated; and that instead of completing the line of railroad of said Terminal Company specified and mentioned in its articles of incorporation, said Trust Company caused only a part thereof to be built, to-wit; commencing at or about the said Western terminus of said Suburban Company above specified and running thence westwardly through Kansas City, Missouri to the state line between the states of Missouri and Kansas; that in further pursuance of its plans and purposes, the said Trust Company did on or about the 30th day of December, 1891, cause the defendant, The Union Terminal Railroad Company to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Kansas for the purpose of building that part of the belt railroad mentioned and outlined in the articles of association of the said Suburban Company and Terminal Company which would lie in and encircle the city of Kansas City in the state of Kansas, and did thereupon cause the said Union Company to place a mortgage upon the railroad proposed to be built by it and upon its property then owned or to be thereafter acquired, to secure an issue of bonds aggregating Two Million Dollars, and to issue and deliver said bonds to the said Trust Company and to cause the said Union Company to build a part of the line specified in its articles of association, to-wit: beginning at the western terminus of the line so built by the said Terminal Company as aforesaid: namely: at the said line between the states of Missouri and Kansas, and running thence to the city—Argentine in the State of Kansas; that as your orator is informed and believes the said Trust Company did thereupon sell and dispose of all of said bonds and all of the same are now outstanding; that default having occurred in the payment of various installments of interest heretofore accruing upon said bonds, the principal has been declared to be due and payable according to the terms and provisions of said mortgage and a suit to foreclose said mortgage has been brought and is now pending in this court; that the said Trust Company caused various of its officers, agents and employees to be elected as the officers and directors of the said Union Com-11 pany, and by means thereof did continuously, until about the month of April, 1900, dominate and control the actions and affairs of said Union Company and its officers and directors; that by means of its control and domination as aforesaid the said Trust Company did cause the said Suburban Company to endorse upon each of the bonds so issued by the said Terminal Company and said Union Company, its guaranty for the payment of the principal and interest thereof; and that the said Trust Company, by reason of its domination and control as aforesaid, did on or about the 25th day of July, 1892, cause the said Suburban Company and said Terminal Company to be consolidated in accordance with the provisions of the statute of the state of Missouri in such cases made and provided and thereby to form the defendant Belt Company; and that the said Trust Company caused various of its officers, agents and employees to be elected as the officers and directors of said Belt Company and by means thereof did continuously, until about the month of April, 1900, completely dominate and control the actions and affairs of said Belt Company and its officers and directors; and that in further pursuance of its plans and purposes as aforesaid the said Trust Company did cause the said Air Line to be incorporated under the laws of the state of Missouri on or about the 23rd day of January, 1891, for the purpose of building a line of railroad from and connecting with the line of the said Suburban Company to the city of Independence in the state of Missouri, and did cause the said Air Line to place a mortgage upon its property, then owned or to be thereafter acquired, to secure an issue of bonds aggregating Three Hundred Thousand ($300,000) dollars and to issue and deliver the said bonds to the said Trust Company; that the said Trust Company thereupon sold and disposed of the said bonds and the same are now outstanding; that default having occurred in the payment of various installments of interest heretofore accruing on said bonds, the principal thereof has been declared to be due and payable according to the terms and provisions of the mortgage securing the same and suit to foreclose the said mortgage has been brought and is now pending in this court; that the said Trust Company likewise caused various of its officers, agents and employees to be elected as the officers and directors of the said Air Line so as to absolutely dominate and control the affairs of the said company and the actions of its said officers and directors; and that by means of its said domination and control the said Trust Company did cause the various lines of railroad of the said Suburban, Union Terminal and Belt Companies, respectively, and of the said Air Line to be operated as constituting one entire, allied, continuous system of railroad. And that at all times, up to said month of April, 1900, the said Trust Company caused all or substantially all of the shares of the 12 capital stock of said several railroad companies to be issued to and held and voted, either by some one or more of the railroad companies so controlled or dominated by it as aforesaid, or by and in its own name, or by and in the name of some one or more of its officers, agents and employees for and on its behalf and so as to serve its aforesaid plans and purposes and to enable it to effectuate the same and its absolute control of and dominion over said several railroad companies and each of them and their respective properties, actions and affairs.

Your orator is informed and believes that a total cost of the lines of said Suburban and Terminal companies consolidated into the Belt Company, as aforesaid, did not cost to exceed One Million Seven Hundred Thousand Dollars, and that there were issued and delivered to the said Trust Company, by the said three last named railroad companies, bonds and stocks aggregating, as your orator is informed and believes, over Five Million Dollars, and that the said Trust Company claims that it has applied the excess of said securities over the actual cost of said properties, in payment of its own commissions and services in the premises and by way of allowance of certain discounts in the sale and disposal of said securities; your orator is informed and believes that the cost of the railroad and other property of the said Union Company did not exceed Eight Hundred and Sixty Five Thousand Dollars, and that the said Trust Company received into its possession the bonds and stocks of the said Union Company to the amount of Four Million Dollars and claims that it has applied the excess of the amount of said bonds and stocks over the said cost of said road in payment of its own services and commissions in the premises, and in the way of an allowance of discounts in the sale and disposal of said securities; and that your orator is informed and believes that the cost of said Air Line did not exceed Two Hundred Thousand Dollars, and that said Trust Company received into its possession bonds and stocks of the said Air Line to the amount of Eight Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars and claims that it has applied the excess of said securities over the cost of said railroads, in payment of its own services and commissions in the premises, and in the allowance of certain discounts in the sale and disposal of said securities. Your orator is informed and believes that the said Trust Company has often been requested to make a true and correct accounting of its trusteesship in respect of the sale and disposal of such bonds and stocks, but has hitherto failed and still fails and refuses to make such accounting; that the facts in respect of the sale and disposal of the said securities and the application of the proceeds thereof, are 13 peculiarly and solely within the knowledge of said Trust Company, and your orator is unable to state the said account, or how much is due by the said Trust Company, by reason of the premises, but alleges that upon a correct and proper accounting between the parties the said Trust Company owes the said Belt Company a large amount, by reason of the premises last mentioned, all of which is justly and equitably applicable to the payment of your orator's aforesaid judgment against the said Belt Company.

Your orator further shows that in pursuance of its aforesaid plans and purposes to organize auxiliary companies for the purpose of taking and holding the legal title to property necessary to be used in connection with the railroads of the said several railroad companies above mentioned or incidental thereto, and with the fraudulent intent and purpose of preventing the properties so taken in the names of said auxiliary companies, respectively, from being reached by the creditors of said railroad companies or either of them and particularly by the creditors of the said Belt Company, said Trust Company did contrive the formation of the said Elevator, Amusement, Central Second Street and Town-site companies, respectively; that the said Trust Company did cause various of its officers, agents and employees to be selected as the incorporators, stockholders, officers and directors of the said several auxiliary companies, and by means thereof, did at all times dominate and control the management of the said several auxiliary companies and the actions of the stockholders and boards of directors thereof; that, as your orator is informed and believes, all or substantially all, of the moneys invested in the purchase, improvement and acquisition of the several properties of the said auxiliary companies and each of them, was paid and supplied by the said Belt Company, and each and every one of the said auxiliary companies was a mere device or "dummy" contrived and provided by the said Trust Company as a means for taking and holding the naked legal title to such properties as might be vested in the said auxiliary companies, respectively, for the use and benefit of the said Belt Company, and that, as to the creditors of the said Belt Company and particularly as to your orator, the properties and shares of stock of each and every of the said auxiliary companies in equity belongs to the said Belt Company and are chargeable with the lien and payment of your orator's aforesaid judgment against the said Belt Company; a list of real estate in the name of the auxiliary companies so far as known to complainant, is attached hereto as "exhibit 2".

Your orator further shows that during the year 1897, the said Trust Company entered into contracts for the purpose of 14 gaining large benefits and advantages therefrom, with several railroad companies owning and operating lines of railroad in Northwestern Missouri and in Southwestern Iowa, to-wit; the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad Company and the Quincy, Omaha

& Kansas City Railroad Company, and the Omaha, Kansas City and Eastern Railroad Company, by which the said Trust Company agreed and bound itself to provide for each of the said last mentioned railroad companies a railroad connection with an entrance to Kansas City, Mo.; that such connection and entrance necessitated the construction on behalf of said Trust Company of a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to the town of Pattonsburg in said state; that said trust Company being desirous to gain and reap unto itself all the benefits and advantages of said contracts, and of relieving itself of all burdens, obligations and losses by reason thereof, did, by means of its domination and control of the said Belt Company and of its officers and directors, conclude and contrive that it would cause the said Belt Company to enter into a pretended contract for the construction of said line of railroad from said Kansas City to said Pattonsburg; that said Trust Company did, thereupon, cause to be formed a corporation under the laws of the state of Missouri, known as the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Northern Connecting Company), for the purpose of holding the title of said last mentioned link or line of railroad, and did cause certain of its officers, directors and agents to become the officers and directors of the said Northern Connecting Company, so as to absolutely dominate and control its management and affairs and the action of its officers and directors, and that, in pursuance of its said plans and to accomplish its aforesaid purposes and designs, the said Trust Company thereupon did cause the said Belt Company, as aforesaid, so dominated and controlled by it as aforesaid, on or about the — day of ——, 1896, to go through the form of entering into a contract with the said Northern Connecting Company, so dominated and controlled by the said Trust Company as aforesaid, for the construction in the name of said Belt Company, but as agent and for the use and benefit of said Trust Company of the said link or line of railroad as aforesaid; that the said Trust Company did cause the said Northern Connecting Company to issue its certain bonds and stocks for the purpose of paying for said construction, and the said Trust Company did cause the said stocks and bonds to be delivered partly into its own possession and control, and party into the possession and control of the said Belt Company, so controlled and dominated by its as aforesaid; that in pursuance of its plans aforesaid, the said Trust Company did undertake to charge to the account of the said Belt Company all moneys expended by the said Trust Company for the purpose of constructing the said link or line of railroad of the said Northern Connecting Company, and went through the form of giving said Belt Company credit for the proceeds of all securities of the said Northern Connecting Company sold and disposed of by the said Trust Company, less such charges as the Trust Company saw fit to make in the premises for its own services and commissions in making said sale, and for such discounts as the said Trust Company saw fit to claim it had allowed in making said sale and disposition. That the result of the construction of said link or line of the Northern Connecting Company was a loss of over Three Hundred Thousand Dollars, which amount your orator avers is justly and properly chargeable to the said Guardian Trust Company, and should be borne by it, but which the said Guardian Trust Company wrongfully claims constitutes a liability on the part of said Belt Company to it. Your orator says that the said Belt Company was without lawful power either to make said contract for the construction of the railroad of the said Northern Connecting Company, and that said contract was ultra vires the powers of the said Belt Company under its charter and the laws of the State of Missouri, all of which the said Trust Company well knew; and you rorator further charges that by reason of the fact hereinabove alleged, the said Belt Line Company was a mere instrumentality and agency, designated and used by the said Trust Company in and about the construction by the said Trust Company, as principal, of the said link or line of railroad of the said Northern Connecting Company, and that, therefore, the said Trust Company was and is bound to assume and make good out of its own funds any and all losses resulting from the construction of said Northern Connecting Company, and that the act of the said Trust Company in undertaking to charge the said loss to the said Belt Company, and in claiming the same as a liability in its favor against the said Belt Company, was, as to the creditors of the said Belt Company, fraudulent in fact and in law.

Your orator further shows that in pursuance of its general plans and purposes hereinbefore outlined, the said Trust Company did also cause to be organized a corporation under the laws of the state of Missouri under the name of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, for the purpose of constructing and operating a line of railroad, for the use and benefit of said Trust Company, from Kansas City in the state of Missouri, to a point on the Gulf of Mexico at or near Port Arthur in the state of Texas, and caused 16 the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf railroad Company to make a mortgage to secure an issue of bonds therein specified; that prior to the first day of April, 1899, there were issued, and there were then outstanding bonds of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, so secured by the mortgage aforesaid, aggregating the principal of Twenty Three Million Dollars; that on the first day of April, 1899, default was made in payment of an installment of interest due on said bonds, and the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company was wholly insolvent; that a bill to foreclose the said mortgage was thereupon filed and the property of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company passed into the hands of receivers appointed by this Honorable Court and thereupon such proceedings were had that a decree of foreclosure was entered in said cause on or about the fifth day of February, 1900, and the property of said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company sold under the terms thereof.

Your orator further shows that for some months prior to said first day of April, 1899, and all times thereafter, the said Trust Company was aware and had knowledge of the fact that said default, receivership, foreclosure and sale of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg

& Gulf Railroad company were inevitable and was also aware and had knowledge of the fact that such default, receivership, foreclosure and sale would necessarily and inevitably cause and result in default in the payment of installments of interest accruing on the said several mortgages of the said Suburban, Terminal, Union and Belt Companies, of the said Air Line, and of the said Northern Connecting Company, and would cause each and all of the said companies, and also the aforesaid auxiliary companies, and each of them, to become insolvent and to be unable to continue their respective operations and to pay their liabilities as the same matured; and that being aware and having knowledge of the facts aforesaid, the said Trust Company contrived and planned to gather and appropriate unto itself all of the stocks, bonds and other assets and property of the said railroad and auxiliary companies last mentioned, and particularly those of the defendant Belt Company, and to cause the same, under various pretenses and because of various false and unfounded claims and demands advanced by said Trust Company to be delivered to the said Trust Company, to be held by it as alleged collateral security for various pretended claims and demands which it fraudulently asserted to exist in its favor as against said Belt Company, and for the purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors of the said Belt Company in the collection of their respective demands, and particularly your orator in the collection of its demands hereinbefore mentioned.

17 Your orator further shows that in pursuance of said last mentioned plan, the said Trust Company, so dominating and controlling the officers and directors of the said Belt Company as aforesaid, did cause the said Belt Line Company to go through the form, at various dates between the thirty-first day of March, 1899, and the ninth day of February, 1900, of executing to the said Trust Company a number of pretended negotiable promissory notes of the said Belt Company for amounts aggregating as your orator is informed and believes, about the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, and that for the pretended purpose of securing the payment of said pretended promissory notes, the said Trust Company, so dominating and controlling the said Belt Company and its officers and directors, did cause the latter to go through a form of delivering to the said Trust Company, to be held by it for the purpose of securing the said promissory notes, so in form made to it by the said Belt Company as aforesaid, all of the bonds, stocks and and other securities, and all of the movable personal property and other assets of the said Belt Company.

Your orator is informed and believes that among the pretended notes so fraudulently caused to be made, in form, by said Belt Company to said Trust Company and among the stocks of the said Belt Company so fraudulently caused to be delivered, in form, by said Belt Company to said Trust Company, and which are now claimed to be held by said Trust Company, are the following, to-wit:

Note dated March 31st, 1899, due July 2nd, 1899, for $50,000 with interest at the rate of 6% per annum from said date. On this note was credited on June 14th, 1900, $12,500.

Note dated November 7th, 1899, due January 9th, 1900, for $50,000 with six per cent interest per annum from said date. On this note is a credit of June 14th, 1900, of $12,500.

Note dated February 8th, 1900, due May 12th, 1900, for $109,500 with interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum from maturity.

Note dated July 26th, 1899 on demand for $203,900 with interest at the rate of six per cent per annum from date. On this note is a credit of June 11th, 1900, of $9,996.65.

A note dated September 21st, 1899, due on demand for $23,056.48 with interest thereon from date at the rate of eight per cent per annum.

A note dated October 23rd, 1899, due on demand for $7,162.40, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent per annum from date.

18 338 first mortgage thirty year 5% gold bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company of the denomination of $1,000 dated January 1st, 1897, being bonds numbered 1467, 1769 to 1773 both inclusive; 1799 to 1818 both inclusive; 1324 to 1331 both inclusive; 1756 to 1768 both inclusive; 1184 to 1216 both inclusive; 1466, 1369 to 1400, both inclusive; 1431 to 1440 both inclusive; 1609 to 1658 both inclusive; 1659 to 1708 both inclusive; 1819 to 1851 both inclusive; 1774 to 1798 both inclusive; 1301 to 1323 both inclusive.

67.9 second mortgage thirty year five per cent income bonds of the Kansas City Northern Connecting Railroad Company of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.) each dated January first, 1897, being bonds numbered 1064 to 1098 both inclusive; 1149 to 1157 both inclusive; 1162 1173 both inclusive; 1192 to 1202 both inclusive; also certificate numbered 229 entitling the holder to 250/1000 of said mortgage income bonds and certificate No. 227 entitling the holder to 250/1000 of said second mortgage income bonds; and certificate No. 220 entitling the holder to 150/1000 of said second mortgage income bonds.

25 shares of the capital stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company of the par value of $100 each as evidenced by certificates numbered 9, 6, 5 and 4.

1120 shares of the capital stock of the Central Improvement Company of the par value of $100 each as evidenced by certificates numbered 148, 149, 147.

439 shares of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company of the par value of $100 each as evidenced by certificate No. 11; and 425 shares of the capital stock of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company of the par value of $100 each as evidenced by certificates numbered 36, 34, 37, 40 and 38.

Your orator is informed and believes that said Trust Company as part and parcel of the scheme contrived by it as aforesaid has caused the said Belt Company to go through the form of fraudulently making to it certain other and further pretended promissory notes and has fraudulently caused said Belt Company to go through the form of delivering to it certain other personal property for the pretended purpose of securing said fraudulent and alleged promissory notes of said Belt Company. Your orator is unable to give or obtain a description of said other alleged notes, but alleges that they aggregate a large sum, to-wit: more than $100,000.00. And your orator further shows that among the further property of the 19 Belt Company which the said Trust Company so fraudulently caused to be delivered to it, as aforesaid, was and is the following, to-wit:

19,997 shares of the 20,000 shares constituting the capital stock of the said The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and 4,994 shares out of the 5,000 shares constituting the capital stock of the said Kansas City & Independence Air Line, all of which shares the said Trust Company as your orator is informed and believes has heretofore undertaken to sell and dispose of, also, about 600 tons of the new steel rails heretofore purchased from your orator as hereinbefore averred, by and then belonging to said Belt Company and on store in its yards, which the said Trust Company has likewise sold and disposed of; also $76,000 in first mortgage bonds and $15,000 in second mortgage bonds of the Northern Connecting Company which are still held by or for said Trust Company. And your orator charges that in some way unknown to it, the said Trust Company has also appropriated fraudulently unto itself and for its advantage and without consideration or right, all the shares of the capital stock of the Second Street Improvement Company and a large number of the shares of stock of the Central Improvement Company, constituting, in connection with the 1120 shares above mentioned, all, or substantially all, of the capital stock of the said Central Improvement Company; and also a large number of the shares of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company, constituting, in connection with the 139 shares above mentioned, all, or substantially all, of the capital stock of the last named company; and also a large amount of other property of said Belt Company, consisting of other stocks and bonds, and of notes, claims and demands in favor of said Belt Company, and of various items of personal assets, a particular description of which is unknown to your orator and concealed by said Trust Company. Your orator charges that each and all of the aforesaid shares of stock, assets and other personal property so passing into the possession of the said Trust Company, constitute assets and property of the said Belt Company, equitably and justly chargeable with the lien and payments of your orator's aforesaid judgment, and that the said shares of stock and other property were fraudulently taken into the possession of said Trust company without consideration moving from the said Trust Company, and that said Trust Company has no right to such possession or title to any part of said stocks, or property.

Your orator further shows that the said Trust Company is totally insolvent; that it has outstanding a large number of matured obligations, the holders of which are pressing the said Trust Company for payment thereof, and that the said Trust Company is wholly process of liquidation; that the said Trust Company is threatening to proceed to sell the negotiable promissory notes which it so fraudulently caused the said Belt Line Company to go through the form of executing to it as aforesaid and the various shares of stock and other property which it claims to hold as collateral thereto, all to the end that the creditors of said Belt Company, and particularly your orator, may be hindered, delayed and defrauded of their just rights and remedies in the premises; and your orator verily believes that unless enjoined fom doing so, as hereinafter prayed, the said Trust Company will carry its said threats into execution.

And your orator is informed and believes that on or about the first day of September, 1900, by a notice, a copy of which is hereto attached as "Exhibit 1", the said Trust Company undertook to declare and advise said Belt Company that it, the said Trust Company, would without any reservation, proceed, on the 7th day of September, 1900, at twelve o'clock, noon, to sell to the highest bidder, at public auction the said 338 first mortgage bonds, 67.9 second mortgage bonds and three certificates of the Northern Connecting Company hereinbefore described; and, also, the 25 shares of the Amusement Company's stock, the 1120 shares of the Central Company's stock, the 439 shares of the Townsite Company's stock, and the 425 shares of the Elevator Company's stock hereinbefore described; all under the pretence that it was entitled so to do by virtue of the said alleged notes and alleged delivery of said securities which the said Trust Company so fraudulently caused the said Belt Company to go through the form of making to it as aforesaid.

Your orator further shows that the property held in the name of the Elevator Company, a corporation contrived by the said Trust Company as aforesaid, as a device and dummy to take and hold the legal title to said property for and on behalf of the Belt Company, and which property is equitably and justly chargeable with the debts and liabilities of the said Belt Company, consists, among other things, of three (3) elevators known respectively as the "Star", "Eclipse", and "Diamond" Elevators, which are located in the Northeastern part of Kansas City, Missouri, and adjacent to the railroad of said Belt Company, and that the same are necessary and indispensable to a proper operation of said Belt Company's property; that the property held in the name of said Central Company consists, among other things, of various tracts of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, acquired for the use of the said Belt Line 21 and necessary and indispensable to such use, for station grounds, yards, switches, side tracks and necessary buildings, and that said property as hereinbefore alleged, is in equity the property of the said Belt Line, the said Central Company being a mere device and dummy contrived by the said Trust Company to hold and carry the legal title thereto for the use and benefit of the said Belt Line and its creditors; that the property held in the name of the said Second Street Company consists, among other things, of certain tracts of real estate in or near Kansas City, Missouri, and used and indispensably necessary to be used by the said Belt Company for depot grounds, neccessary buildings, right of way, yards, freight houses and machine shops; that the said Second Street Company was contrived by the said Trust Company as aforesaid, as a mere device and dummy to take and hold the legal title to said property for the use and benefit of said Belt Company, and that the said property in equity belongs to the said Belt Company and is chargeable with the debts and liabilities thereof, including the judgment of your orator as aforesaid; that the property and assets, the legal title to which is held by the said Amusement and the said Townsite Companies, respectively, are likewise essential and indispensably necessary to the successful operation of the property of the said Belt Line, and that the said two last mentioned companies are likewise devices and dummies contrived by the said Trust Company for the purpose of taking and holding the legal title to said assets and properties for the use and benefit of said Belt Company as the equitable owner thereof, and that such assets and property so held are equitably and justly chargeable with the claims and demands of the creditors of the said Belt Company, and particularly the judgment so obtained by your orator as aforesaid. Your orator further shows that the management and control of the assets and property of said auxiliary companies is still in the hands and under the domination and control of the said Trust Company by means of its various officers, agents and representatives acting as officers and directors of said auxiliary companies, and that by reason of holding possession of the said shares of stock in the said companies respectively, by means of the transactions as aforesaid, the said Trust Company is still [enable-] to and does control and dominate the management of the said several companies and the actions and doings of their respective officers and directors. Your orator further shows that it is necessary to the protection of the interests of the creditors of the Belt Company, and particularly of your orator, 22 in the premises that a receiver or receivers be appointed of and for all of the property and assets held by or in the name of or for the use and benefit of or in trust for the defendants Belt Company, Elevator Company, Amusement Company, Central Company, Second Street Company and Townsite Company and of and for the several shares of stock in the said five last named companies held by or standing in the name of the said Trust Company, and also of and for the bonds of the said Northern Connecting Company so in the possession of the said Trust Company as aforesaid, and also for and of any and all other properties or assets passing from the said Belt Company to the said Trust Company by means of the transactions occurring between said thirty-first day of March, 1899, and ninth day of February, 1900, hereinabove set forth; and further that such receivership shall be extended to and made to cover the railroads and — of the other properties of the said Belt Company, Union Company, and Air Line respectively, as an entirety, so that the same may be operated as an allied and continuous system. Your orator further shows that the control and domination of the affairs of said Belt Company by said Trust Company hereinabove set forth, ceased during the month of April, 1900, when, by reason of an election held by the then stockholders of said Belt Company the officers, agents and representative- theretofore controlling and managing the affairs and property of said Belt Company were displaced.

Your orator brings this bill as well for itself, as for the benefit of all other creditors and persons interested in said Belt Company, similarly situated, and willing to become parties to this action and to contribute to the expense thereof.

In consideration whereof, and forasmuch as your orator is remediless in the premises at and by the strict rules of the common law and in relievable in a court of equity where matters of this kind are properly cognizable and relievable, your orator therefore prays the aid of this Honorable Court:

(a) That an accounting be taken of the various transactions and dealings between the said Trust Company and the said Belt Company, or by the said Trust Company for the use and benefit of and as trustee and agent for the said Belt Company, and that the said Trust Company be required to pay from the balance found to be due by it upon such accounting, and that in taking such accounting all claims and demands alleged or pretended by the said Trust Company to exist in its favor against the said Belt Company by reason of transactions in which the said Belt Company was used as an agency or instrumentality of the said Trust Company, be charged to and against the said Trust Company, and that the said Trust Company be decreed to make good any and all losses
23 defrayed or incurred in such transactions out of the assets or other property of said Belt Company.

(b) That the said Trust Company be decreed to hold the shares of stock hereinbefore described respectively in the Elevator Company, the Amusement Company, the Central Company, the Second Street Company and the Townsite Company, and the aforesaid bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, in trust for the use and benefit of the creditors of said Belt Company, and particularly of your orator, and that said Trust Company be decreed to account for the value of all other assets or property of said Belt Company which have come into its possession or control.

(c) That the property and assets, the legal title to which is held, respectively, by the said Elevator Company, Amusement Company, Central Company, Second Street Company, and Townsite Company be declared to be in equity the property of the said Belt Company and chargeable with the lien and payment of the debts and liabilities of the said Belt Company, and, particularly, the judgment aforesaid of your orator.

(d) That the assets and property of the said Belt Company, real, personal or mixed, and wheresoever situated, including all rights of action, legal or equitable, be marshalled for the benefit and protection of all persons concerned therein;

(e) That the rights and interests of all persons in and to the said assets of the said Belt Company, be ascertained, adjudicated and decreed.

(f) That the said assets and property, and each and every part thereof, be sold and the proceeds thereof, after paying the costs and expenses of this proceeding and all allowances which may be made therein, be distributed among those found to be entitled thereto; and (g) That your orator may have such further and other relief in the premises as the nature of this case may require and to this Court shall seem meet.

And your orator further prays that a receiver or receivers be appointed according to the course of practice in this Court, with the usual powers of receivers in like cases, of and for all the property, equitable interests, choses in action, effects, money, receipts, earnings rights, privileges, franchises, immunities; stocks; bonds; and securities of said Belt Company, all the stocks and bonds respectively, of the said Elevator Company, Amusement Company, Central Company, Second Street Company, Townsite Company
24 and Northern Connecting Company so passing in the hands of the said Trust Company, as hereinbefore alleged, and every part thereof, and of and for the property and assets, real, personal or mixed, the legal title to which is held, respectively, by the said Elevator Company, Amusement Company, Central Company, Second Street Company, and Townsite Company and that said receivers be authorized and directed by and with the consent of the court of appropriate ancillary jurisdiction, to assume also the operation and maintenance of the railroads and other property of said Union Company, and that said receivers be authorized and directed to institute all proper proceedings for the recovery of all assets and demands belonging to or existing in favor of the said Belt Company, and generally with powers and directions to take such steps as may be necessary for the full protection of all persons concerned and interested in the said Belt Company.

And your orator further prays that a writ of injunction may be issued out of and under the seal of this Honorable Court, or issued by one of your Honors, directing, commanding, enjoining and restraining the said defendants and each of them and all other persons from interfering with, transferring, selling or disposing of any of the property hereinbefore mentioned, and particularly that the said Trust Company and all other persons may be enjoined and restrained from selling or disposing of any part of the said negotiable promissory notes of the said Belt Company, so made to it as hereinbefore alleged, or of the stocks, bonds, or other securities claimed by the Trust Company to have been delievered to it as collateral security for the said notes, and likewise that the Elevator Company, Amusement Company, Central Company, Second Street Company, and Townsite Company, and all others be enjoined and restrained from in any wise incumbering, selling or disposing of any part of the property or assets, the legal title to which is held in the name of said companies respectively, and such other injunctions, orders and decrees as to the Court may seem meet and proper for the protection of the interests concerned.

And may it please your Honor to grant unto your orator the subpœna of the United States of America, issuing out of and under the seal of this Honorable Court, directed to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Company, The Union Terminal Railway Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, the defendants herein respectively, therein and thereby commanding them on a day certain therein to be made, and under a certain penalty, to be and appear before this Honorable Court then and there to answer (but not under oath, an answer under oath being hereby expressly waived) all and singular the premises and to stand to and perform and abide by such orders, directions or decrees as may be made against them in the premises and as shall seem meet and agreeable to equity and good conscience.

And your orator, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

L. C. KRAUTHOFF,
Of Counsel.

STATE OF MISSOURI,
County of Jackson, ss:

Frank Hagerman, being first duly sworn, deposes and says that he is one of the solicitors and of counsel for the complainant in the foregoing bill of complaint; that he has read said bill of complaint and knows the contents thereof; that the allegations therein contained are true so far as they relate to his own acts and the acts of the complainant; and as far as they relate to the acts of others, he believes them to be true; that the reason this verification is not made by said Cambria Steel Company is that the said complainant is a corporation of the State of Pennsylvania having its principal office in said State, and that no officer or director thereof, competent to make this verification on behalf of said corporation, is within this jurisdiction.

Afterwards, to-wit on the 5th day of November 1900, the Guardian Trust Company filed its answer to the original bill of complaint of the Cambria Steel Company.

Said answer is in words and figures as follows:

In the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri.

In Equity.

CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY, Complainant,
vs.
KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY, THE UNION Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, Defendants.

Answer of the Defendant, Guardian Trust Company, to the Bill of Complaint of the Cambria Steel Company, Complainant.

40 This defendant now and at all times hereafter saving and reserving to itself all benefit and advantage of exceptions which can or may be had or taken to the many errors and uncertainties and other imperfections in the said bill contained, for answer thereto, or to so much and such portions thereof as this defendant is advised it is material or necessary for it to answer unto, answering says:

That this defendant admits that the complainant is a corporation and citizen of the state of Pennsylvania, and that the defendants are all corporations and are all citizens of the state of Missouri,
41 and inhabitants of the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, as alleged in the bill of complaint, except the defendant, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, which is a citizen of Kansas, and an inhabitant of the First Division of the District of Kansas, as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant admits that its name was "Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company," from the date of its incorporation until about June, 1899, when it was duly changed to that of "Guardian Trust Company," as alleged in the bill of complaint; but this defendant denies that the date of its incorporation was about the year 1885.

This defendant admits that the defendant, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, became indebted to the complainant prior to the institution of this suit in a large sum, for steel rails purchased by said Belt Company from the complainant, but this defendant has not sufficient knowledge or information to enable it to form a belief as to whether or not the amount of said indebtedness was about One Hundred Thousand Dollars, nor as to whether the said steel rails were so purchased by the said Belt Company between the first day of November, 1897, and the first day of March 1898, as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant admits that a suit was brought in the name of the complainant, upon the obligation given it by the said Belt Company evidencing the balance due upon said indebtedness, and this defendant avers the fact to be that said obligation consisted of a promissory note executed and delivered by the defendant, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company to the complainant, on January, 15th, 1900, for Ninety Eight Thousand, Seven Hundred and Forty Four and 23/100 Dollars ($98,744.23), which note was a renewal in whole or in part of former notes executed by the said Belt Company to the complainant, for the purchase price of steel rails.

This defendant admits that a judgment was recovered in this Honorable Court on the said note in the name of the complainant on the sixth day of September, 1900, against the said Belt Company for the sum of One Hundred Thousand, Nine Hundred, and Sixty Two and 91/100 Dollars ($100,962.91), but this defendant has no knowledge or information sufficient to enable it to form a belief as to whether or not any part of said judgment has been paid, hence demands proof of the complainant's allegation that no part of the same has been paid.

This defendant admits that an execution was issued on said judgment, directed to the Marshal of the Western District of 42 Missouri, and against said Belt Company, and that the said Marshal did make return of said execution, which return as written, shows upon its face that the execution was wholly unsatisfied for want of property of the said Belt Company upon which to levy the same, but this defendant states and avers the fact to be that said suit on said note was instituted in this Honorable Court on the said sixth day of September, 1900; that by a prearrangement the said defendant, Belt Company, entered its appearance on the same day and consented to said judgment's being rendered against it, which was done on the same day and hour, and that counsel appearing as the attorneys for the complainant in that suit, without any purpose or desire of collecting said judgment, did, on the same day go through the form of causing an execution to be issued on said judgment, and wrote a pretended return of nulla bona thereon, and placed said execution in the hands of said Marshal, solely for the purpose of having him sign the said pretended return which had been so written and prepared for him, and the said Marshal, without making any search for property on which to levy said execution, and without making any demand on the said Belt Company for the payment thereof, and without in any way attempting to collect the same, did on the same day, at the request and direction of those persons who appeared as attorneys for the plaintiff in said execution, through one of his deputies, sign said pretended return of nulla bona which had been previously written and prepared for his signature, as aforesaid.

This defendant denies that the said defendant, Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company was or is insolvent, and denies that it had or has no property subject to be reached by legal process to be issued upon the said judgment so secured by the complainant, as aforesaid, as aileged in the bill of complaint; but this defendant states and shows that on the contrary the truth is that the said Belt Company then had and still has ample money and means provided and at its command to pay the said debt of the complainant and all its other liabilities which was fully known to the complainant prior to and at the time of the institution of the said suit on said note, and at all times since.

This defendant further states and shows to the Court that in addition to the fact that the said Belt Company had and has ample money and means provided and at its command to pay the complainant's said debt, as aforesaid, the complainant itself ever since the execution of the said note, has held and still holds in its own hands a large amount of valuable property of the said Belt Company as collateral security to secure the payment of the said
43 note, duly pledged by the said Belt Company to complainant for that purpose. This defendant does not know the exact amount or description of the said personal property so pledged to and held as collateral security by the complainant, but avers that it was and is of sufficient value upon foreclosure to pay a large part, if not the whole of the complainant's said debt; that a part of said collateral security consists of one hundred and fifty four (154) First Mortgage, Thirty Year, Five Per Cent Gold Bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) each, which are secured by a first lien on about one hundred miles of first class, standard gauge railroad, between Kansas City and Pattonsburg, Missouri, at the rate of Twenty Thousand Dollars in bonds to each mile of said railroad; that said bonds could have been and can now easily be subjected to the payment of the complainant's debt and to the satisfaction of a large part thereof, but the complainant has made no attempt whatever to collect its debt in any way, but has failed and refused to even appropriate, as it lawfully might and could have done, that part of the Belt Company's property which was and is in its own hands for that express purpose.

This defendant further answering unto that part of the complainant's bill of complaint which refers to the recovery of the said alleged judgment against the said Belt Company and the alleged issuance and return of execution thereon, states and and shows that the said suit was not instituted and the said judgment was not recovered, and the said execution was not issued in good faith for the purpose of collecting the complainant's said debt, but that upon the contrary, the said Belt Company, and its attorneys, agents and officers, and The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, who completely dominates and controls them, and certain other persons having the charge and control of some of its business and financial affairs, hereinafter called the Philadelphia Committee, whose personnel and connection with the Belt Company and its affairs will be more definitely hereinafter stated, unlawfully conceived the fraudulent purpose and design of hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors of the said Belt Company, including this defendant, in the collection of their just debts by procuring the appointment of receivers at the hands of this Honorable Court to take possession of all of the property of the said Belt Company, and by procuring restraining orders and injunctions from this Honorable Court, preventing such creditors, except the complainant, from in any way subjecting any of the assets or property of the Belt Company to the payment of their debts, upon the false and fraudulent pretense that the appointment of receivers and the granting of said restrain-44 ing orders and injunctions against such creditors were necessary to the protection of the interests of said creditors, and further by seeking to foreclose certain mortgages on separate parts of the Belt Company's property on the false and fraudulent pretense that there had been a demand for and default in the payment of certain installments of interest thereon, so as to cut out by foreclosure and defeat, the unsecured creditors of said Belt Company, including this defendant in the collection of their debts; that in pursuance of said fraudulent purpose and design the said Belt Company in connection with and through the said Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the said Philadelphia Committee, approached the complainant and requested it to allow them to bring a suit in its name on said note and recover a judgment thereon against the Belt Company and afterwards to allow them to bring this suit, in its name, so as to make it falsely appear that a bona fide judgment creditor was diligently and in good faith attempting to enforce the collection of its debt through the instrumentality of this creditor's bill and its accompanying receivership, whilst in truth and reality it would be and was intended to be in substance and effect the Belt Company suing for and obtaining a judgment and execution against itself, and procuring the appointment of receivers for its own property for the fraudulent purpose aforesaid.

That this defendant is informed and believes, and upon such information and belief avers the fact to be that the said Belt Company, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the said Philadelphia Committee promised and agreed with the complainant that if it would allow them to bring the said suit in its name, they would see to it that its debt was fully paid, and would indemnify and save it harmless against any and all costs and expenses on account of said suits so to be conducted in its name; that the complainant, with full knowledge of the said fraudulent purpose and design, and participating therein, for the purpose of carrying the same out, did consent that they might institute, conduct and prosecute in its name the said suits; that the said Belt Company and the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company and the said Philadelphia Committee then employed counsel, whether in their own name or not or in the name of the complainant, this defendant does not know, and has no present means of ascertaining, to institute and prosecute the said suit on said note to judgment and execution and to present this bill of complaint based thereon; but whatever form may have been used in the employment of said counsel, that the fact is that the said Belt Company, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company and the said Philadelphia
45 Committee are the real employers and are by agreement to bear the expense thereof.

That in the further prosecution of their said fraudulent purpose and design of hindering, delaying and defrauding the unsecured creditors of the said Belt Company, they, the said Belt Company, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the said Philadelphia Committee, requested and procured the Provident Life & Trust Company of Philadelphia, who, at their instigation was and still is claiming and asserting itself to be the trustee in four certain mortgages which are liens or apparent liens on separate portions of the property heretofore operated by the Belt Company, but now operated by the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, to institute four suits for the foreclosure of said mortgages in this Honorable Court, on the false pretense that there had been a default in the payment of the interest on the bonds in said mortgages described. That the person who owns and holds all or substantially all of the bonds described in all of the said mortgages, to-wit, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, is the same person who controls and directs the business and affairs of all the companies that executed said mortgages, and who owns and holds all or substantially all, of the Capital Stock of all of said Companies, and is the same person who has the possession and management of the property of all the property of all of said companies, and who controls and operates all of the railroads covered by said mortgages, and who collects and receives all the earnings and income thereof, so that the same person who holds or owns substantially all of said bonds, is the same person who is equitably charged with the duty of paying whatever may be lawfully due on any of said bonds, if anything.

That said foreclosure suits were brought at the instance and request of those persons only who are so responsible for the alleged default and were fraudulently and collusively brought to sell said property for the fraudulent purpose aforesaid of cutting out and defeating the unsecured creditors, and not for the purpose of enforcing the payment of said bonds.

That the said suit in the name of the complainant to recover judgment on said note, and this bill of complaint in this cause, and each of said four suits brought in the name of the Provident Life & Trust Company to foreclose said mortgages, were all brought against the Belt Company, and its property, at the solicitation and request of the Belt Company, and of those said persons who dominate and control its action; that they were all drawn and prepared 46 simultaneously by the same counsel, and were all instituted at the same time; by the same counsel, and the Belt Company, together with all of the other defendants which it controls were present in Court at the time of the filing of all of the said suits, and voluntarily entered their appearance therein, and fradulently and collusively consented to the relief sought in each case, but the defendants who were not controlled by the said Belt Company, were not present and were not notified that each and all of the said suits are parts of one and the same transaction, collusively and fraudulently contrived and instituted by the Belt Company and those said persons who control its action, with the fraudulent purpose and intent of hindering, delaying and defrauding all of its unsecured creditors excepting the complainant.

This defendant prays leave to refer to and use upon any hearing of this cause, any and all of the files and records in any and all of said causes, as fully as if they were set out herein and made a part of the record in this cause.

This defendant further states and shows that on April, 1st, 1899, and prior thereto, the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, a Missouri corporation, was operating a railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Port Arthur, Texas, and under a rental contract was using the lines, tracks, station houses, yards and depots of the said Belt Company and its associated lines as its Kansas City Terminals, and was using the canal of the Port Arthur Channel & Dock Company in Texas as its southern terminals, so as to get its freight to and from the open sea.

That on April 1st, 1899, the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company defaulted in the payment of the interest on its mortgage bonds and a suit to foreclose its mortgage on account of said default was instituted in this Honorable Court on the 6th day of April, 1899, and receivers were appointed and operated the railroad pending the foreclosure.

That a certain number of persons about that time got together and appointed themselves as a committee herein called the Philadelphia Committee to reorganize the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and readjust its securities so that it would be thereafter burdened with a less interest charge and one clearly within its ability to earn.

That said Philadelphia Committee, after some resignations and substitutions was composed of Wm. F. Harrity, A. Heckscher, Herman Sielcken, William Edenborn, Max Pam, Samuel R. Shipley, Silas Petitt and Winthrop Smith.

47 That the said Philadelphia Committee, in pursuance of said purpose, adopted and published a plan and agreement for the reorganization of the said Kansas City Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and the said Terminal Companies, which provided among other things, for the formation of a new railroad company, which would issue its bonds and stocks in exchange for the bonds and stocks of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and in exchange for the stock and bonds of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company of Kansas City, the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, and the Port Arthur Channel & Dock Company, in order, as stated in said published plan, "to merge these three corporate managements into one so that the system shall be capable of operation as a whole under one management, from Kansas City to the ship's side at Port Arthur," so that said new railroad company which would after the reorganization own the main line and property of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, would also own the bonds and capital stock of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and its operated lines at Kansas City, and of the Port Arthur Channel &

Dock Company in Texas and that hereby "all three parties would be under one corporate ownership, management and control."

That the Provident Life & Trust Company, complainant in said four foreclosure suits filed simultaneously with this suit, was a party to the said plan and agreement of reorganization, and its president, Samuel R. Shipley, was a member of the said Philadelphia Committee.

That the said Philadelphia Committee, in furtherance of its said plan of reorganization, caused the proposed new railroad to be incorporated under the laws of the state of Missouri under the name of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and placed three of its members on the Board of Directors of said New Company, and two others of its members, one of whom is the said Samuel R. Shipley, President of the said Provident Life & Trust Company, as aforesaid, on a Board of Voting Trustees, who were to be and are vested with the absolute and unlimited power of voting all of the stock of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company for the next five years.

That the said Philadelphia Committee, for and on behalf of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, as well as on its own account, did invite and request the owners and holders of the stock and bonds of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Rail-48 road Company, the Port Arthur Channel & Dock Company, and the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its operated lines at Kansas City, to deposit their said stock and bonds with the said Provident Life & Trust Company and to receive in payment therefor the stocks and bonds of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, at a ratio prescribed in said ·b-lished plan.

That in response to said invitation and request, the respective owners and holders of the stock and bonds of all of the said companies, and particularly of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its operated lines at Kansas City, for the purpose of converting them into the stock and bonds of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, to the end that the said purposes of said reorganization plan might be carried out, did deposit all or substantially all of their stocks and bonds so as to enable the said Philadelphia Committee to consummate its said plan of reorganization, and the same was thereupon declared effective and carried out as proposed.

That after the said plan of reorganization had been declared effective, and the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company had thereby acquired substantially all of the stocks and bonds of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and its operated lines at Kansas City, to-wit, on or about the first day of April, 1900, a majority of the then directors and officers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company resigned their respective offices, and persons who were directors, officers and agents of the said The Kansis City Southern Railway Company, were chosen in their stead so that from that time ever since the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company and the said Philadelphia Committee have had and exercised full and unrestrained control, direction and management of all of the corporate affairs of the said defendant, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company.

That on or about the said first day of April, 1900, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company in furtherance of said plan of reorganization, took actual possession of all of the railroad, tracks, shops, depots, station houses, rolling stock, and other equipment and appurtenances, and appliances of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its operated lines at Kansas City, and has ever since that time been and still is managing, controlling and operating the same and receiving and collecting all of the earnings and income thereof.

That it was a part of the said plan and agreement of reorganization that the said Philadelphia Committee should cause a syndicate of capitalists to be formed who would buy enough of the stock
49 and bonds of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company which would not be needed to retire and convert the stock and bonds of the old companies sought to be unified, to pay off and discharge all of the floating debts and other unsecured obligations of all of the old companies, including those of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company. That said syndicate was formed and enough of the securities of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company were sold to said syndicate to provide money to satisfy and discharge all of the floating and unsecured debts and obligations of all of said companies so sought to be united under the ownership and control of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, including those of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the said Philadelphia Committee, and the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which it controls, have wrongfully withheld said money and have unlawfully and fraudulently failed and refused to apply the same to the purposes for which it was raised, to-wit, to the payment of the floating and unsecured debts and obligations of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and the other old companies so amalgamated as aforesaid under said plan of reorganization.

This defendant further states and shows that one Max Pam, of Chicago, Illinois, was and is a member of the said Philadelphia Committee, and was and is also a member of the Board of Directors of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and a member of its Executive Committee; that said Max Pam was and is the General Counsel and legal adviser of the said Philadelphia Committee and the General Counsel and legal adviser of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company, and as such had and has the general supervision, direction and control of the affairs and legal proceedings of the said Philadelphia Committee and of all of the said last named railroad companies, including the question as to which of their debts, if any, they should pay, and which of their debts they should avoid or escape the payment of, and of the legal proceedings necessary to accomplish the avoidance and escaping of the payment of such debts.

That C. W. Lucas, who entered the appearance of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line in this cause, and who on their behalf consented to the appointment of receivers for their properties, is an appointee of the said Max Pam, as an assistant attorney for the said Kansas City Southern Railway Company and for all of the other said railroad companies, and his salary is fixed by and is dependent upon the wishes and word of the said Pam, and that his said action in appearing for the said defendants and consenting to the appointment of receivers was in obedience to the direction of the said Max Pam, and in accordance with the wishes, and for the furtherance of the fraudulent purpose wrongfully and wickedly conceived by the said Philadelphia Committee and the said Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company whom they control to avoid and escape the payment of the unsecured debts of the said Belt Company by means of the said four foreclosure suits, and by means of this suit so simultaneously and collusively instituted as aforesaid.

This defendant denies that prior to the year 1887, or at any other time, it conceived or entered upon the plan and purpose to construct, or cause to be constructed a large number of railroads in and about Kansas City, as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that it was a part of its plan and purpose to cause railroads to be constructed and operated by various corporations to be organized by this defendant and officered by its agents and representatives so as to absolutely dominate and control the actions of said railroad companies and their directors and officers, as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that it was a part of any such plan of this defendant to organize a large number of auxiliary corporations either in the way of construction companies to build railroads or companies to hold legal titles to lands, buildings or other structures necessary to be used by such railroad companies, as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that it so officered such construction and auxiliary companies with its own officers and agents so as thereby to enable it to dominate the actions of such construction and auxiliary companies, and of their several officers and directors, as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that it was a part of any plan or purpose of this defendant to utilize and employ any one or more of such railroad companies or auxiliary companies to act for or on behalf of this defendant in carrying out the various portions of the general plan as alleged in the bill of complaint, or for the purpose or plan of carrying out any other plan or purpose, so as to gather to itself the profits and advantages accruing from any of their transactions. Denies that this defendant at any time organized any railroad corporation or other corporation, with the purpose and intent on its part to un-

poration, or upon those who might become interested therein as creditors or otherwise any loss, burden or other liability which might result from any of their transactions as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that in carrying out any of its plans and purposes as alleged in the bill of complaint the defendant assumed the position and duty of trustee and agent in managing and disposing of the bonds, stocks, funds and other assets of said railroad companies and auxiliary companies in trust, and for the use and benefit of the parties who might become interested therein, as alleged in the bill of complaint; and denies that as a consequence of any such alleged position the relation of this defendant to any of such railroad companies and auxiliary companies in any wise became or was as principal bound and charged with the duty to indemnify or protect any such railroad or auxiliary company in any transaction against any loss, burden or liability, as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that it became the duty of the defendant, as to persons becoming interested in any of said railroad companies or auxiliary companies as creditors, to dispose of the stock, bonds funds or other assets of any such railroad companies or auxiliary companies for the use and benefit of the persons interested therein, or who might become interested therein as creditors or otherwise, as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant further answering states and shows that in the management and discharge of its business as a trust company it accepted the trusteeship in a number of mortgages given by some of said railroad companies to secure bonds issued by them, and as such trustee did certify the bonds, and in some cases did underwrite and purchase some of said bonds, and in some cases did act as agent for said railroad companies in the sale and disposition of their bonds to others, and in some cases acted as the agent of said railroad companies, and other companies, in the sale and disposition of their stocks, and in some cases subscribed to some of the stocks of other corporations, all of which, in so far as it affects the matters and things referred to in the bill of complaint will be more definitely and particularly hereinafter stated

The defendant denies that in pursuance of the alleged plans and purposes, or otherwise, it did, on or about the first day of January, 1887, or at any other time, cause the corporation to be formed known as the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company for the stated and avowed purpose of building a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri and Kansas City, Kansas, as alleged in the bill of complaint, or for any other purpose. Denies that it caused said Suburban Com-52 pany to build a portion of its projected line, as alleged in the bill of complaint, and denies that it caused the said Suburban Belt Company to place a mortgage upon its property to secure an issue of its bonds aggregating a million dollars, and to issue and deliver the sa-d bonds to this defendant as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that it thereupon proceeded to sell and dispose of the said bonds as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that there has been, or is, any default in the payment of any interest heretofore accruing upon any of said bonds, and denies that the principal of any of the said bonds has been declared to be due and payable according to the terms and provisions of the mortgages securing the same, as alleged in the bill of complaint. It admits that a bill to foreclose said mortgage has been filed and is now pending in this court.

This defendant states and shows that all, or substantially all, of the said bonds have been taken up and are now in the possession of and held by the persons who own and control all the stock of said Suburban Company, and who have possession and management of its property, and who control and operate its property and railroad and receive all of the income and earnings thereof, and that said persons have attempted and pretended to make a default in the payment of the interest on said bonds and have attempted and pretended, by reason of said fictitious default to declare the principal of said bonds due, and have caused the said foreclosure suit to be instituted, which alleged default and pretended declaring of the principal due on account thereof, and the suit to foreclose the mortgage by reason thereof, were all made, done and instigated by the persons whose duty it was to pay whatever might be due on any of said bonds for the fraudulent purpose of cutting out all the unsecured creditors of said Belt Company, by means of such foreclosure.

This defendant denies that it caused various of its officers, agents and employes to be elected and constituted the officers and directors of the said Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and denies that by means thereof it did dominate and control the affairs and actions of the said Suburban Belt Company continuously until its consolidation, as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that instead of carrying out and completing the projects and purposes for which the said Suburban Company is alleged in the bill of complaint, to have been formed, and in order to benefit this defendant, it caused the consolidated Terminal Railway Company to be incorporated for the purposes stated in the bill of complaint, or for any other purpose whatever. Denies that it caused the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company to place a mortgage upon its prop-

53 erty, as alleged in the bill of complaint, to secure the issue of its bonds aggregating Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars. Denies that it caused said company to issue and deliver said bonds, or any of them, to this defendant.

The said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company did execute and deliver to this defendant, as trustee, a mortgage on its said road and property to secure an issue of bonds aggregating Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars, but this defendant denies that it at any time proceeded to sell or dispose of any of said bonds except as agent for the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, as will hereafter be more particularly stated, and denies that said bonds are now outstanding. Denies that default having occurred in the payment of installments of interest heretofore accuring upon said bonds, the principal of said bonds has been declared to be due and payable in accordance with the terms and provisions of said mortgage.

This defendant states and shows to the court that all or substantially all of the said bonds have been taken up and are now held by the persons who own all of the stock of the said Consolidated Terminal Company, and who own, manage, control and operate all of its property, including its railroad, and who collect and receive all of the earnings and income thereof, and who are charged with the duty of paying whatever may be due on any of said bonds; that the said persons assert and claim that there has been a default in the payment of inter-st on the said bonds and have pretended to have the principal of said bonds, declared due on account of such fictitious default, and have procured a foreclosure suit to be brought which is now pending in this court, but this defendant states and shows that the alleged default, and the pretended declaring of the principal due on account thereof, and the subsequent institution of the foreclosure suit, were all made, done and instigated by the persons who own said bonds, and who practically own the property which is mortgaged to secure them and who are chargeable with the duty of paying whatever may be due on any of said bonds, and that the said foreclosure suit was brought at their instigation for the fraudulent purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding the unsecured creditors of the Belt Company, particularly this defendant.

This defendant denies that it caused various of its officers, agents and employes to be elected as officers and directors of the said Terminal Company, and denies that it thereupon proceeded to 54 dominate and control the action of said company and its officers and directors continuously until its consolidation as alleged in the bill of complaint, and denies that instead of completing the said line of railroad of said Terminal Company specified and mentioned in its articles of incorporation, this defendant caused only a part thereof to be built, as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that in further pursuance of its alleged plans and purposes, or in any other way, it did, on [of] about the 30th day of December, 1891, or at any other time, cause the Union Terminal Railroad Company to be incorporated as alleged in the bill of complaint, and for the purposes stated in the bill of complaint or for any other purpose whatever. Denies that it thereupon caused the said Union Terminal Company to place a mortgage upon the railroad proposed to be built by it, and upon its property, to secure an issue of bonds, aggregating Two Million Dollars, as alleged in the bill of complaint, and denies that it caused the said Union Terminal Company to issue and deliver the said bonds to this defendant. Denies that it caused the said Union Company to build a part of the line specified in the articles of association, as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that this defendant did thereupon sell and dispose of said bonds, and denies that the same are now outstanding. Denies that default having occurred in the payment of various installments of interest heretofore accruing upon said bonds, the principal has been declared to be due and payable according to the terms and provisions of said mortgage. Admits that a suit to foreclose said mortgage has been brought and is now pending in this Court. Denies that it caused various of its officers, agents and employes to be elected as the officers and directors of said Union Company, and denies that by means thereof it did continuously until about the month of April, 1900, dominate and control the action and affairs of said Union Terminal Company and its officers and directors. Denies that by means of such alleged control and domination or otherwise, this defendant caused the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company to endorse upon each of the bonds of the Union Company its guaranty for the payment of principal and interest thereof and denies that by reason of its domination and control, as alleged, did, on or about the 25th day of July, 1892, or at any time, cause the said Suburban Company, and the said Terminal Company, to be consolidated in accordance with the provisions of the statutes of the State of Missouri, as alleged in the bill of complaint. This defendant states that it is true that the said Suburban Company and the said Terminal Company were duly consolidated in accordance with the statutes of the State of Missouri, but that such consolidation was not the result of any domination or control on the part of 55 this defendant, and denies that this defendant caused various of its officers, agents and employes to be elected as the officers and directors of the said Belt Company, and by means thereof, continuously until the month of April, 1900, completely dominated and controlled the actions and affairs of said Belt Company and its officers and directors.

This defendant states and shows that the Union Terminal Railroad Company did duly execute and deliver to this defendant, as trustee, a mortgage upon the railroad proposed to be built by it, to secure an issue of bonds aggregating Two Million Dollars; that all, or substantially all, of the said bonds have been taken up and are now held and owned by the same persons who own and hold all of the stock of The Union Terminal Railroad Company and who own, control and manage its property, and who control and operate its railroad, and collect and receive all the earnings and income thereof, and who are charged with the duty of paying anything that may be due on any of said bonds. The said persons have pretended that there was a default in the payment to them of some of said interest, and on account of said fictitious default have undertaken to declare the principal of said bonds due, and have procured a foreclosure suit to be brought in this court on account thereof, but this defendant states and shows that the alleged default and pretended declaring of the principal due on account thereof, and the institution of said foreclosure suit were all made, done and instigated by the said persons who practically own the property sought to be foreclosed, for the fraudulent purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding unsecured creditors of the Belt Company and particularly this defendant.

This defendant denies that in furtherance of its alleged plans and purposes, it caused the Kansas City & Independence Air Line to be incorporated on or about the 23rd day of January, 1891, or at any other time, for the purpose of building a line of railroad described in the bill of complaint, or for any other purpose. Denies that it caused said Air Line to place a mortgage upon its property to secure an issue of bonds aggregating Three Hundred Thousand Dollars, and to issue and deliver the said bonds to this defendant. Denies that it thereupon sold and disposed of the said bonds, and denies that the same are now outstanding. Denies that default having occurred in the payment of various installments of interest heretofore accruing upon said bonds, the principal thereof has been declared to be due and payable according to the [term-] and provisions of the mortgage securing the same. Admits that a suit to foreclose said mortgage has been brought and is now pending in this Court. Denies that it caused various of its officers, 56 agents and employes to be elected as officers and directors of the said Air Line, so to absolutely dominate and control the affairs of said company, and the actions of its officers and directors, and denies that this defendant did cause the various lines of railroad of said Suburban, Union Terminal and Belt Companies, respectively, and of the said Air Line, to be operated as constituting one entire allied continuous system of railroad. It is true that that said railroads were so operated as constituting on- entire allied continuous system of railroad, but it was not the result of the domination, direction or control of this defendant.

This defendant states and shows that said Air Line Company did execute and deliver to this defendant, as trustee, a mortgage on its property to secure an issue of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars of bonds; that all, or substantially all, of said bonds have been taken up and are now held and owned by the same persons who hold and own all of the stock of said company, and who have the possession, management and control of all of the property of said company, and who manage and operate the railroad of said company, and collect and receive all of the income and earnings thereof, and who are chargeable with the duty of paying anything that may be due upon any of said bonds; that the said persons have pretended to assert that there was a default in the payment of some of the interest on said bonds, and have pretended to have the principal of said bonds declared due on account of such alleged and fictitious default of interest, and have procured the said foreclosure suit to be brought on account thereof, and this defendant states and shows that the said alleged default and pretended declaring of the principal to be due and the institution of said foreclosure suit, were all made, done and instigated by the persons who own, possess, control and manage the property covered by the said mortgage, and which is sought by said suit to be foreclosed for the fraudulent purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding unsecured creditors of the Belt Company, particularly this defendant.

This defendant denies that at all times until the said month of April, 1900, or during any part of said time, it caused all, or substantially all of the shares of the capital stock of the said several railroad companies to be issued to and held and voted either by some one or more of said railroad companies so alleged to be controlled or dominated by it, or by or in its own name, or by or in the name of some one or more of its officers, agents and employes, for and on its behalf, so as to serve its alleged plans and purposes and to enable it to effectuate the same, and its absolute control of 57 and domination over said railroad companies, and each of them, and their respective properties, actions and affairs as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant denies that the total cost of the lines of the said Suburban and Terminal Companies, consolidated into the Belt Company as aforesaid, was not to exceed $1,700,000.00. Denies that there were issued and delivered to this defendant by the said last named railroad companies bonds and stocks aggregating over Five Million Dollars, and denies that this defendant claims that it has applied the excess of such securities over the actual cost of such properties in the payment of its own commissions and services in the premises, and by way of allowance of said discounts in the sale and disposal of said securities as alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that the cost of the railroad and other property of the said Union Terminal Company did not exceed $865,000.00 and denies that this defendant received into its possession the bonds and stocks of said Union Company to the amount of Four Million Dollars, as alleged in the bill of complaint, and denies that it claims that it has applied the excess of the amount of said bonds and stocks over the said cost, in payment of its own services and commissions in the premises and in the way of an allowance of discounts in the sale and disposal of said securities as alleged in the bill of complaint, and denies that the cost of said Air Line did not exceed $200,000.00 and denies that this defendant received into its possession bonds and stocks of the said Air Line to the amount of $850,000.00 and denies that it claims that it has applied the excess of said securities over the cost of said railroad in payment of its own services and commissions in the premises, and in the allowance of discounts in the sale and disposal of said securities as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant denies that it has ever been requested to make an accounting of its alleged trusteeship in respect to the sale and disposal of any of said bonds and stocks, and has hitherto failed and still fails and refuses to make such accounting, as alleged in the bill of complainant, and denies that the complainant, or any of the persons representing it, or any of the persons who brought and are prosecuting this suit in its name, as aforesaid, ever had any information or belief that any such request for an accounting had been made and refused as alleged; and denies that the facts in respect to the sale and disposal of said securities, and the application of the proceeds thereof are peculiarly and solely within the knowledge of this defendant, and denies that the complainant was or is unable to state the account between this defendant and the said Belt Com-58 pany. Denies that upon a correct and proper accounting between the parties this defendant owes said Belt Company a large sum of money, or any amount whatever, and states that even if this defendant did owe the Belt Company anything on an accounting, the complainant is not entitled in this proceeding to subject the same to the payment of its said judgment, for the reason that this suit is not brought in good faith for that purpose, but is collusive and brought for the fraudulent purpose aforesaid.

This defendant further states and shows that at all times since the beginning of its connection with the affairs of said Belt Company, up to the time that the securities of the Belt Company and its property changed hands by reason of the reorganization herein referred to, being a period of over ten years, commencing in 1889, and ending about April, 1900, the said Belt Company and all of its officers, directors and stockholders had full knowledge and information as to everything which this defendant then was doing or had done in respect to any of said bonds or stocks, and as to the true state of the account between the Belt Company and this defendant, and at all times fully approved of, consented to and ratified the same, and that the said Belt Company, and also all of its present officers, directors and stockholders, who brought and are now prosecuting this suit in the name of the complainant, as aforesaid, since they succeeded to the powers, duties and rights of their predecessors and assignors, by reason of such reorganization, have at all times since about the first day of April, 1900, had the means and the full opportunity of knowing all about all of the transactions between this defendant and the said Belt Company, during the said ten years, and have on divers occasions by their expert accountants fully examined all of the papers, books and accounts in any way bearing upon any and all of such transactions, including the books and papers of this defendant, and after such examination, and after having full information and knowledge as to the true condition of the said account, have admitted that the said Belt Company justly owed this defendant large sums of money, aggregating Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, and more, and frequently promised to pay the same.

That this defendant never had any knowledge or information that there was any claim or pretense in any quarter that this defendant owed said Belt Company anything, or that the said Belt Company did not owe this defendant the large sums of money claimed by it, until after the filing of the bill of complaint in this cause. Notwithstanding the fact that the said Belt Company has at all times had full and true accounts and knowledge of all the transactions between it and this defendant as aforesaid; yet, 59 if, for any reason, it desires further accounting or information as to any of the said matters or things, this defendant is ready and willing and hereby offers again to render a full and true account and to furnish all such information, whenever thereunto lawfully and properly requested. But this defendant denies that the complainant under the facts and circumstances of this case, as hereinbefore and hereinafter set out, is entitled to the accounting prayed for, and denies that the complainant either in good faith desires or needs any such accounting in order to collect its said judgment.

This defendant denies that it contrived the formation of the said Elevator, Amusement, Central and Second Street and Townsite Companies, or either of them, for the uses and purposes, or with the intent alleged in the bill of complaint; and denies that it caused various of its officers, agents and employes to be selected as the incorporators, stockholders, officers and directors of the said so-called auxiliary companies; and denies that it by means thereof dominated and controlled the management of the said so-called auxiliary companies and the actions of the stockholders and Boards of Directors thereof; denies that all or substantially all of the moneys invested in the purchase, improvement or acquisition of the several properties of the said so-called auxiliary companies, or either of them, was paid or supplied by the Belt Company; denies that all of any of the said Companies were mere devices or dummies contrived and provided by this defendant as a means for taking title to such property as might be vested in them for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, and denies that the properties and shares of stock of the said so-called auxiliary companies in equity belong to the Belt Company and are therefore chargeable with the lien of the complainant's said judgment as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant denies that it at any time entered into any contract with the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad Company, the Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City Railroad Company, or the Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad Company whereby — agreed or bound itself to furnish to either of said companies an entrance into Kansas City, or which in any way necessitated the construction on behalf of this defendant of a line of road from Kansas City to Pattonsburg. Denies that being desirous to gain and reap unto itself the profits and advantages of said alleged contracts, and of relieving itself of the burdens, obligations and losses by reason thereof, did, by means of the alleged domination and control, or by any other means, conclude and contrive that it would cause the said Belt Company to enter into a contract for the construction of said line of railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg as alleged in the bill of complaint.

60 Denies that this defendant did cause to be formed the corporation known as the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company for the purpose of holding title to said last mentioned line of road, or for any other purpose. Denies that it caused certain of its officers, directors, and agents to become officers and directors of the said Northern Connecting Company so as to dominate and control its management and affairs, and of the action of its officers and directors, as alleged in the bill of complaint.

Denies that in pursuance of said alleged plans and to accomplish the alleged purpose and designs of this company, it caused the said Belt Company, on or about the — day of — 1896, or at any other time, to go through the form of entering into a contract, or to make a contract, with the said Northern Connecting Company for the construction, in the name of said Belt Company, but as agent for the use and benefit of this defendant, of the said line of railroad to Pattonsburg, and denies that it dominated and controlled the said Connecting Company and the said Belt Company in and about the making of any such contract with the intent and for the purposes alleged in the said bill of complaint, or for any other purpose or intent. Denies that it caused the Northern Connecting Company to issue its certain bonds and stocks for the purpose of paying for the said construction, though it is true that the said Northern Connecting Company did issue its certain bonds and stocks for the purpose of paying for the construction of its said railroad. Denies that this defendant caused the said stocks and bonds to be delivered partly into its possession and control, and partly into the possession and control of the Belt Company, but on the contrary states that the said Northern Connecting Company did deliver all of its said stock and bonds to the said Belt Company in payment for the construction and completion of its said line of railroad. It is true that this defendant did undertake to charge, and did charge to the account of the Belt Company all the money expended by this defendant by way of advance to the Belt Company for the purpose of constructing the said line of railroad, and did give the said Belt Company credit for all property and moneys which came into the hands of this defendant as the proceeds of the sale of any of said stocks and bonds of said Northern Connecting Company, or of any other property of the Belt Company, less proper and reasonable commissions for this defendant's services in the premises, as hereinafter will be more particularly stated. That the making of said charges, and the giving of said credits were in no sense mere matters of form and pretense, as alleged in the bill, but represented actual and proper transactions. This defendant denies that the result of the 61 construction of said Northern Connecting Railroad was a loss of over $300,000.00, or of any other sum. Denies that there was any loss incurred by the Belt Company in carrying out its contract for the building of said road. Denies that this defendant in any way, in fact or in law, became principal in the building of said Northern Connecting Road through the instrumentality of the Belt Company, as its agent or otherwise, or that this defendant in any way became liable for any losses that might have occurred, or entitled to any profits that accrued from the building of said road, but that upon the contrary whatever losses might have been incurred would have been properly chargeable to the Belt Company and all profits belonged to it alone.

This defendant denies that the said Belt Company was without lawful power to make the said contract with the Northern Connecting Company for the building of the latter's road. Denies that the same was without the power of the Belt Company, under its charter and laws of the state.

This defendant states and shows that the Belt Company purchased all the steel rails which it put into the Northern Connecting road from the complainant, and the complainants sold the said rails to the Belt Company knowing the uses and purposes for which they were bought, and to which they would be put; that the note on which the complainant procured its said judgment was given by the Belt Company for part of the purchase price of said rails; that the complainant ought not to be allowed to claim that the contract of the Belt Company with it for the purchase of rails necessary to carry out its said contract is valid and binding, and at the same time assert that the contract which the Belt was carrying out with the knowledge and consent of the complainant was invalid because ultra vires. If the making of the contract to build the road was ultra vires, the purchasing of material to fulfill the contract would also be ultra vires, but this defendant states and shows that the said contract was within the power of the Belt Company and that it was entered into and fully carried out without any loss, and that the said contract has long since been fully executed, carried out and completed by both of the parties thereto.

This defendant further answering denies that in pursuance of any of the general plans or purposes alleged in the bill of complaint, or otherwise, it caused to be organized the corporation known as the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, for the purpose of constructing a road from Kansas City to the Gulf of Mexico, for the use and benefit of this defendant, as alleged in the bill
62 of complaint. It is true that the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company did make a mortgage to secure an issue of bonds therein specified, but the defendant denies that it caused the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company to make said mortgage. It is true that there were issued and outstanding prior to the first day of April, 1899, Twenty Three Million Dollars of bonds of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company secured by its said mortgage; that default was made in the payment of the interest due on said bonds, and that the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company became and was insolvent. It is true that a bill to foreclose the said mortgage was thereupon filed, and that the property of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company passed in to the hands of receivers appointed by this Honorable Court. It is true that such proceedings were thereafter had, which upon their face appear to show that a foreclosure of such mortgage was decreed and the property of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company sold under the terms thereof.

This defendant denies that it was at any time aware, or had knowledge of the fact that the default, receivership and foreclosure of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company's property would cause or result in the default of the payment of any of the installments of interest accruing on the several mortgages of the Belt Railroad and its operated lines, or of the said Northern Connecting Company, or that it would cause any of the said companies or any of the said auxiliary companies, to become insolvent or to be unable to conduct their respective operations and pay their liabilities as the same matured; that upon the contrary thereof said default, receivership and foreclosure of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company's property had no such effect. Denies that this defendant on account of such alleged knowledge contrived and planned to gather unto itself the stocks and bonds and other assets of the property of the said railroad and auxiliary companies, including the Belt Company, with any such intent or for any such purposes, as are alleged in the bill of complaint. Denies that this defendant under any fraudulent pretense caused to be delivered to it any of the securities or property of any of said companies, or of said Belt Company, for the purpose of securing any alleged false and unfounded claim made and advanced by this defendant, but it states and shows that it did receive from the Belt Company certain property and securities as collateral security to secure the payment of the just demands which this company had and still has against the Belt Company.

63 That the execution and delivery by the Belt Company to this defendant of the promissory note mentioned in the bill of complaint, and the pledge by the Belt Company of the stocks and bonds and property as collateral security for the payment of said notes, were all done in good faith for the purpose of evidencing and securing just debts due to this defendant from the Belt Company, and were not made or pledged for the fraudulent purposes alleged in the bill of complaint, or for any other purpose than that of justly evidencing and securing this defendant's debt due it from the Belt Company. Denies that the defendant dominated and controlled the Belt Company to go through the form of executing the said notes and delivering said collateral security for the purpose of hindering and delaying the complainant in the collection of its debt, for the purpose of hindering or delaying any other creditor of the Belt Company, or for any other unlawful or fraudulent purpose, but that the Belt Company, as in justice and good conscience it ought to have done, did execute and deliver the said notes and pledge the said collateral to this defendant in all respects as it did execute and deliver to the complainant during the same time, and pledge property as security therefor, the promissory note which the complainant has made the basis of this suit, namely for the purpose of properly securing its creditors, and not otherwise. This defendant admits that the bill of complaint in so far as it undertakes to definitely specify the notes executed by the Belt Company to this defendant has correctly stated them, but states that some of them had been sold and rediscounted prior to the institution of this suit, and that one of them has since been paid, and that in addition to the notes specifically mentioned and described in the bill of complaint, this defendant holds two other notes executed and delivered by the Belt Company to it, one of which is dated on the 11th day of June, 1900, for the sum of $10,400.00 due October 11th, 1900, the other of which notes was dated on the 25th day of May, 1900, due on the 25th day of September, 1900, for $25,000.00; that both of these notes had been sold and rediscounted by this defendant prior to the institution of this suit.

This defendant further answering states that it is true that the Belt Company delivered to this defendant as collateral security for the payment of said indebtedness, among other things, 19,997 shares of capital stock of The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and

4,994 shares of the capital stock of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line but denies that this defendant has heretofore undertaken to sell and dispose of the said last named securities, although it had the lawful right to do so had it chosen, but this defendant states and shows that it, on the 14th day of June, 1900, released the said shares of stock of The Union Terminal Company, and the 64 said shares of stock of the said Air Line Company to the Belt Company upon its request and upon the payment to this defendant of $25,000.00 which was duly credited on said note, and the said Belt Company now still has and holds such shares of stock. This defendant admits that the Belt Company assigned to it as a collateral security for the said indebtedness a quantity of new steel rails to-wit, about Three Hundred and Forty Four tons, and not Six Hundred tons as alleged in the bill of complaint, and it is true that this defendant has sold said Three Hundred and Forty Four tons of steel rails and credited the proceeds of the sale upon the Belt Company's said indebtedness to it. This defendant denies that it has appropriated fraudulently or otherwise, unto itself, without consideration or right, all or any of the capital stock of the Second Street Improvement Company or a large number of, or any, of the shares of stock of the Central Improvement Company or all or any of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company, or all or any of the other property, stocks, bonds, notes, claims or choses in action of the Belt Company, as alleged in the bill of complaint. That this defendant has in its possession and under its control none of the stocks and bonds and property of the said Belt Company except as hereinbefore stated, which it holds as collateral security duly pledged for the Belt Company's indebtedness to it, as aforesaid.

This defendant, further answering, denies that it was, or is insolvent; denies that it has outstanding a large number of matured obligations, the holders of which are pressing this defendant for payment. Denies that this defendant is unable to meet all of the demands against it. Denies that this defendant has ceased the active conduct of business and denies that its affairs are in process of liquidation, but on the contrary states and shows to the court that it is worth Two Million Dollars and more over and above its debts and liabilities, that it has no outstanding matured obligations whose holders are pressing for payment; and none which are not amply and satisfactorily secured; that this defendant is actively engaged in the prosecution of its legitimate and proper business for which it was incorporated, and is perfectly solvent and able to meet and satisfy any judgment which the Belt Company or the complainant might obtain against it by reason of the facts set out in the bill of complaint.

This defendant denies that it was or is threatening to sell the said notes which it holds against the Belt Company, or the property which it holds as collateral thereto, to the end or for the purpose
65 that the creditors of the Belt Company, including the complainant, might be hindered, delayed or defrauded in their just rights and remedies, as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant further answering states that it is true that on or before the first day of September, 1900, this defendant served notice upon the Belt Company that it would at a time therein specified sell certain of the said collateral securities, a copy of which said notice is filed with the bill of complaint and marked "Exhibit 1", all of which this defendant was in law and equity entitled to do.

This defendant further answering admits that the property held in the name of the Elevator Company consists among other things, of three elevators, known as the Star, Eclipse and Diamond, but denies that said elevators, or any other property in the name of the Elevator Company is held for and on behalf of the Belt Company, except in so far as the Belt Company holds stock of the Elevator Company which is represented by certificates duly issued to it. This defendant denies that the property of the said Elevator Company, or any part of it, is indispensable or even convenient in the operation of the Belt Company's property, though it is true that the proximity of said elevators to the line of the Belt Railroad enables the Belt Company to make greater earnings than it would otherwise do.

This defendant admits that the property held in the name of the Central Improvement Company consists of various [tracks] of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, some of which are convenient and necessary for the use of the Belt Company, and which are now being occupied and used by it; but denies that any of the property standing in the name of the Central Improvement Company is held in trust for the Belt Company, and denies that the Belt Company has any interest therein except as a stockholder, as aforesaid, by certificates of stock duly issued to it by the said Central Improvement Company, and except as before stated, the said Belt Company is occupying and using a part of the lands of the said Central Improvement Company, but inasmuch as this defendant holds and owns three promissory notes aggregating the principal sum of Five Thousand Dollars, which are secured by a deed of trust in the nature of a mortgage on some of the property of the said Central Improvement Company, to-wit: Lots 31, 47 and 48 in Hurck's Subdivision of Guinotte Bluff, an addition to Kansas City, on which notes the Central Improvement Company fails and refuses to pay interest long since due, and in as much as this defendant holds promissory notes of the said Missouri, Elevator & Terminal Company, aggre-66 gating the sum of $32,000.00, which are secured by separate deeds of trust on the said three elevators and property pertaining thereto, on which said notes the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company refused to pay interest long since due and payable; and in as much as this defendant also holds a majority of the stock of the said Central Improvement Company, and the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company as collateral security duly pledged to it as such for the securing of debts other than the said notes last above mentioned, and in as much as the said Belt Company is not paying any rent for the use of the property of the said Central Improvement Company, so occupied and used by it, this defendant does not object to the appointment of a receiver for the property of the said defendants the Central Improvement Company and the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, provided an impartial receiver, not in any way connected with or influenced by the said Belt Company, or by the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company be appointed, and when appointed shall be directed by this Court to collect rents from all companies or persons who occupy or use any of the lands or property of the said Central Improvement Company and the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company and hold the same to be paid out under the order of this Court to whomsoever may be found to be entitled thereto.

This defendant admits that the property held in the name of the Second Street Improvement Company consists of certain tracts of real estate in or near Kansas City, Missouri. Denies that the said Second Street Improvement Company holds title to any of its property in trust for or for the use and benefit of the Belt Company. Denies that the Belt Company has any interest in any of the property of the Second Street Improvement Company, as a stockholder or otherwise, except that it occupies and uses certain tracts of land as a lessee and others as a licensee of said Second Street Improvement Company. This defendant denies that the property and assets the title to which is held by the said Fairmount Amusement Company and the said Townsite Company are in any way essential or necessary to the successful operation of the property of the said Belt Company and denies that the said Belt Company has or ever had any other rights or interest in any of said property, except such as arises from the fact that it is a stockholder in each of said companies, together with other stockholders, except that the said Townsite Company holds the title to certain tracts of land for the Belt Company as stated in the answer of said Townsite Company filed herein. This defendant denies that it is necessary to the protection of the interests of the complainant, or of any of the creditors of the Belt Company for the alleged reasons assigned in the bill of com-67 plaint to appoint a receiver for any of the said auxiliary companies, or to restrain this defendant as prayed for in the bill, but admits that a receiver might properly be appointed for the property of the Central Improvement Company and the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company.

This defendant further answering, denies that the officers, agents and representatives of the Belt Company prior to the month of April, 1900, were in this month displaced by reason of the election then held by the stockholders of the Belt Company as alleged in the bill of complaint, but avers and shows that upon the taking effect of the said plan of reorganization, whereby the present owners of the stock and bonds of the Belt Company became entitled to the possession of its railroad and to the management and control thereof enough of the former directors and officers of the Belt Company voluntarily resigned and persons representing the present owners and holders of the stock of said Belt Company were chosen by the remaining directors to fill the vacancies thus occasioned

larly situated, and states and shows that the said bill of complaint was collusively brought in the name of the complainant at the instance and request of the said Belt Company and of the persons in charge and control thereof, for their own benefit and purposes as aforesaid. That this defendant is informed and believes and upon such information and belief states and avers the fact to be that the Belt Company since its reorganization has paid off and satisfied all its notes and bills payable and debts which were given and created prior to its said reorganization except those of this defendant and that of the complainant, and that the Belt Company was ready and able to pay the complainant's said note, and would have done so but for the fact that the complainant collusively consented to allow its said note to be used as a basis for this proceeding, for the fraudulent purpose aforesaid, and that the complainant can still collect and receive the full amount of its said debt, whenever it in good faith insists upon the payment thereof by the Belt Company.

This defendant denies that the complainant was without an adequate remedy at law, for the collection of its said debt, inasmuch as it could lawfully have sold the property of the Belt Company which was in its hands as collateral therefor, as aforesaid, and inasmuch as it could and would have received payment of its debt if it had in good faith demanded the payment thereof by the Belt Com-
68 pany; so that this defendant says that the complainant should not be allowed to use a Court of Equity in the collection of its said debt when it has an adequate remedy at law to collect the same.

Further answering unto the said bill of complaint, and to the several parts thereof, to the end that this Honorable Court may have a connected statement of the substantive and controlling facts which constitute the history of the various transactions extending over a period of ten years, which are now sought to be called in question by the bill of complaint, this defendant states and shows:

That it had nothing whatever, either directly or indirectly to do with the creation or incorporation of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company; that the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company was formed and incorporated more than two years before the formation and incorporation of this defendant. That said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company was incorporated under the laws of the state of Missouri on the 8th day of January, 1887, with a capital stock of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, and with nine directors, for the purpose of building a belt railroad around Kansas City, to be used as a switching and terminal road; that is to say, for the purpose of transferring cars, loaded and empty, from one trunk line to another and from the several trunk lines entering said city to the various warehouses, elevators, factories and other industries in the city and back again, for the usual switching charges, and also to furnish to such of the trunk lines then reaching Kansas City as might desire to avail themselves of it, improved terminal facilities and to others which might afterwards come the means of getting into the business portions of the city under favorable conditions for a compensatory rental.

That the said proposed use of the said Belt Railroad was of such a nature that in order to reap the fullest fruits of the enterprise it would be desirable to so build its road as to connect directly with all of the trunk lines entering the City, and also to have its tracks reach all of the important warehouses, elevators, factories and other industries that received and discharged their commodities in car load lots, and to aid and encourage the construction of other roads that would use its tracks and terminal facilities and pay rental therefor.

That the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company has at all times covered by the transactions referred to in the bill of complaint been directly interested in so building and extending its roads and branches as to meet these conditions and in inducing other lines to use its tracks either by building out to meet 69 them or by aiding them to build in, and that some of the railroad companies which are charged in the bill of complaint to have been created and dominated by this defendant for its own profit, use and benefit, namely, the Consolidated Terminal and the Northern Connecting Company, were in truth and in fact created and controlled by officers of the Belt Company for its profit, use and benefit, so as to extend its usefulness and increase its earnings, and the said Belt Company afterwards became as it was originally intended it should become, the owner of all of the capital stock of each of the said companies and still owns and holds the same, and also became the owner and holder of the most of the bonds of the said companies, most, if not all of which it subsequently sold and disposed of.

This defendant has an authorized capital stock of Two Million, Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, and was incorporated on February 14th, 1889, with twenty-one directors, under the laws of the state of Missouri providing for the incorporation of Trust Companies, and as such had the power to buy and sell stock and bonds and other commercial securities either on its own account or as agent for others, and to act as trustee and financial agent for others.

That the said Suburban Belt Company for the first two years of its existence had done considerable preliminary work in the way of procuring franchises to use certain streets of Kansas City along which to build its railroad, making surveys and locating its line, and did some work in the way of constructing its roadbed, but it had been unable to make any arrangement whereby it could dispose of its securities or otherwise raise money to build and complete its road or any considerable portion of it; being in that condition, it did, about April or May, 1889, apply to A. E. Stilwell, who was one of the Vice-Presidents of this defendant Trust Company, and who then did not have and never prior thereto had had any connection with or interest whatever in the said Suburban Belt Company, but who had an extended and favorable acquaintance with men of capital and had great skill in soliciting and procuring capitalists to subscribe to and invest in ventures which he would propose, and who had but recently procured all of the subscribers to all of the large capital stock of this defendant and procured its incorporation, all of which was known to the said Belt Company, its officers and managers.

Knowing these things the said Belt Company did about April or May, 1889, apply to the said Stilwell and request him to use his efforts to procure the money with which to build the said Belt Railroad from a point on Second Street near Broadway in Kansas 70 City to Cecil Station on the Missouri Pacific Railway, a distance of about four and one-half miles. That negotiations were then had [be-en] the said Belt Company and the said Stilwell which resulted in a contract between the said Belt Company and the said Stilwell, whereby the said Belt Company agreed to issue and deliver to said Stilwell Four Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars of its first mortgage bonds, out of the total issue then contemplated of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, and Nine Hundred Thousand Dollars of its capital stock, if the said Stilwell would build or cause to be built the said portion of the said railroad; that the said contract was duly authorized by the Board of Directors of the Belt Company at a meeting lawfully called, and by its stockholders at a stockholders' meeting duly called and convened on May 31st, 1889.

That at the time of making the said contract, none of the directors or stockholders of the said Suburban Belt Company except E. L. Martin had any connection with or interest in this defendant, and none of the directors, officers or stockholders of this defendant, except E. L. Martin, had any interest in or connection with the said Suburban Belt Railroad Company. That the said contract was made at arms' length between the said parties, free of any domination, direction or control whatever on the part of this defendant.

That a large majority of the Board of Directors of the said Suburban Belt Company continued to be composed of persons wholly disconnected with this defendant until the said portion of said railroad was completed and paid for in accordance with the terms of said contract.

That the said Stilwell thereupon procured subscribers to the stock of and the incorporation of a Construction Company, known as the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, under the laws of the State of Missouri, which did the work of carrying out said contract which the said Belt Company made with the said Stilwell.

That upon the completion of said contract the said Four Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars of bonds and Nine Hundred Thousand Dollars of stock were delivered to the said Construction Company and distributed by it to its stockholders in proportion to their holdings therein, and that then and thereby the persons who were stockholders in the said Construction Company became the owners and holders of the said Four Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars of bonds and the said Nine Hundred Thousand Dollars of stock, which was a majority of the stock of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and afterwards, as such stockholders, they, together with their fellow stockholders, elected directors of 71 their own choice, as they had a right to do, which choice fell upon persons, a majority of whom were also directors of this defendant; but it is in no sense true, as alleged in the bill of complaint, that this defendant caused its directors and officers to be chosen as directors and officers of the Belt Company, but they were chosen by the stockholders of the Belt Company, as aforesaid, without any domination, control or influence on the part of this defendant, and were so chosen because the persons who had subscribed to the stock of said Construction Company and had thereby become stockholders in the Belt Company, had previously become stockholders in this defendant, and were willing to trust the persons so chosen by them as Directors of the Belt Company, to look after and properly care for their interests as stockholders thereof.

This defendant is informed and believes, and upon such information and belief states the fact to be that the said Suburban Belt Company delivered to its old directors and Officers, or to some of them, Fifty Thousand Dollars of its said Bonds, and Eighty Four Thousand, Five Hundred Dollars or more of its capital stock in compensation and payment for their services rendered in and about its business and for moneys expended by them in its behalf prior to the time of the making of the said contract with said Stilwell. That during the progress of the work covered by the said contract with said Stilwell, the said Suburban Belt Company determined upon immediate extension of its said line of road some six miles further to the South.

That after paying its said contract price to said Stilwell, and compensating its former officers and directors for moneys laid out and expended by them as aforesaid, the said Belt Company had in its Treasury, Five Hundred Thousand Dollars of an increased bonded indebtedness, and Five Hundred Thousand Dollars of its increased capital stock, with which to build its said extension to Brush Creek; that the Belt Company did this work itself, and requested this defendant to sell and dispose of the said Five Hundred Thousand Dollars in bonds to raise the money for building the same; that on account of the incomplete condition of the property and the uncertainty of its outcome this defendant was unable at that time to sell and dispose of the said bonds without great sacrifice, and this defendant, having faith in the enterprise bought the said Five Hundred Thousand Dollars of Bonds from the Suburban Belt Company and paid it therefor at the rate of Nine Hundred and Thirty Dollars for each One Thousand Dollar bond, which was a full, fair 72 and liberal price therefor; that this defendant held said bonds for two or three years without being able to sell them at a profit, and did finally sell them at the same price which it paid therefor.

That the Belt Company thus exhausted all of its one million dollars of bonds and stock in the building of its railroad from a point on Second Street near Broadway, to a point South of Kansas City, on the Missouri Pacific, now known as Belt Junction.

That the Belt Company found it necessary in order to increase its business and its earnings to extend its road from Second and Wyandotte Streets into what is known as the West Bottoms, so as to reach the packing houses and other large industries in that locality; it had no money with which to do it, and had already encumbered its property with a mortgage for one million dollars, hence that company conceived the idea of organizing a new company to be called the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company to build a railroad from a point on Second Street near Walnut in Kansas City, Missouri, in a Westerly direction to the State Line, between Kansas and Missouri. This corporation was organized on the 16th day of May, 1891, with a capital stock of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars, and eight directors, a majority of whom were at that time directors of the said Suburban Belt Company; that said Consolidated Company was conceived and organized by the Suburban Belt Company and for its purposes, for the purpose of the building what was practically an extension of the Suburban Belt Company's railroad which it was unable to build without the organization of a new company. That the said Consolidated Terminal Company afterwards authorized the issuance of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars in bonds and secured the same by a mortgage made to this defendant, as Trustee; that at the request of the Belt Company this defendant undertook to sell and dispose of said bonds and of the capital stock of the said Consolidated Terminal Company for the purpose of raising money with which to build the said extension of road, and to act as its financial agent in financeering the building of its extension, and to assist in procuring the necessary franchises for the use of public highways; and the Belt Company promised to pay this defendant therefor a sum equal to twelve per cent of such of the said Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars of bonds as this defendant might sell, three fifths of which amount was to be paid in cash out of the proceeds of such sales, and the other two fifths to be paid in the stock and bonds of the said company at the same price at which they were disposed of by this defendant to other people;

73 that this defendant did sell seven hundred of the bonds of the said Consolidated Company at and for the price of eight hundred dollars each with eight shares of stock as a bonus to each bond. That the price at which the said bonds were sold was the best that could be obtained after persistent and diligent efforts to sell them, and the commissions which the Belt Company promised to pay this defendant for its services in that behalf out of the proceeds of the sale of the said securities was a just, fair and reasonable commission and compensation, but this defendant did not receive the full commission and compensation promised, but received less than six per cent of the par value of the securities so sold by it.

That the complainant sold to the said Suburban Belt Company, and to the said Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, prior to the time of their consolidation, nearly all, if not all, of the rails and other steel used in the construction of their respective roads in the years 1889, 1890 and 1891, and the complainant was fully paid therefor.

That all of the transactions of whatsoever nature had between this defendant and the said Suburban Belt Company, and between this defendant and the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company, including the transactions concerning the sale and disposition of their respective stocks and bonds, and the application of the proceeds thereof, and the compensation and commission paid this defendant therefor, were fair, open and public and were fully known and consented to and ratified and approved by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of each and both of said companies, more than eight years prior to the institution of this suit, hence by the statute of limitations of the state of Missouri any attempt to inquire into the same is barred, and this defendant now pleads said statute in bar of the complainant's suit.

That in July, 1892, after the railroad of the Suburban Belt Company had been completed from Second & Broadway to Belt Junction, on the Missouri Pacific Railway, a distance of about twelve miles, and after the road of the said Consolidated Terminal Railroad had been completed from Second and Walnut Streets to the State Line between Missouri and Kansas, a distance of about two miles, and after all of the transactions between this defendant and each of said companies had been fully completed, approved and ratified as aforesaid, the said Suburban Belt Company and the said Consolidated Company, without any domination or direction by this defendant, duly united themselves together by a formal consolidation under the statutes of the State of Missouri, thereby forming a new company under the name of the Kansas City Suburban 74 Belt Railroad Company, called in the bill of complaint the Belt Company; that it was this new, or resulting company which five years afterwards became indebted to the complainant for steel rails purchased to be used in the building of said Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad, which indebtedness is made the basis of the creditors bill in this cause.

That the building of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg by the said Belt Company in 1897 and 1898, in connection with which the complainant became a creditor of the said Belt Company, was not contemplated or thought of by this defendant, or any one else, prior to the time of the said consolidation of the said two constituent companies in 1892, so that there was and could have been no intent or purpose on the part of this defendant in connection with any of its said transactions with either of the said two constituent companies to hinder, delay or defraud the complainant in respect of its said debt, which was contracted more than five years thereafter, and in connection with a matter that was then thought of or contemplated as aforesaid. That at the time of said consolidation the complainant had no interest in or connection with, either of the said constituent companies, as a creditor or otherwise, and has had none since. So this defendant says that the complainant's attempt to inquire into said transactions had between this defendant and either of said constituent companies, and to compel this defendant to render an account thereof, is an unwarranted and impertinent meddling with affairs in which the complainant has no legitimate or proper concern and is collusively made for the fraudulent purpose of hindering, delaying or defrauding this defendant in the collection of its said debt from the said Belt Company as aforesaid.

That on December 29th, 1891, at the suggestion and by the procurement of the said Suburban Belt Railroad Company, the said The Union Terminal Railroad Company was duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Kansas with a capital stock of Two Million Dollars, and with nine directors, a majority of whom were also directors and officers of the said Suburban Belt Company, for the purpose of building an extension from the State Line between Missouri and Kansas, where the said road built by the said Consolidated Railroad Company ended, through Kansas City, Kansas, and on to Argentine, in said State of Kansas, so as to connect with the trunk lines coming in from the West, and so as to reach the packing houses, foundries, factories, elevators and other like industries located in the Kaw Valley, to be used when built as an extension of the Suburban Belt road. The organization of The Union Terminal Railroad Company was necessitated by the fact that none but a 75 Kansas corporation could exercise the power of eminent domain within the state of Kansas.

That the said the Union Terminal Railroad Company did issue its bonds to the amount of Two Million Dollars, and secured the same upon its road by a mortgage which was executed to this defendant and another as trustees, that this defendant accepted the trust and was employed by said Union Terminal Company to sell and dispose of its said bonds and stock, or enough thereof to build its said road; that this defendant, for and on behalf of said Union Terminal Company, did afterwards from time to time sell certain of the stock and bonds of said company, aggregating at the par value thereof, about Two Million Dollars and did duly account to said company for the proceeds thereof, less proper and reasonable charges and commissions for its services, which were agreed upon, and which aggregated less than six per cent for the par value of the said securities so sold; that any and all sales which this defendant made of any of the securities of the said Union Terminal Company were made at a fair and at the best obtainable price, and the commissions and compensation which this defendant charged therefor were reasonable and fair, and all of the transactions between this defendant and the said The Union Terminal Railroad Company, of whatsoever nature, including all acts and transactions concerning the sale and disposition of any of the stocks and bonds of said company, the application of the proceeds thereof, and the compensation and commissions paid this defendant, therefor, were open, public and fair, and were fully known and perfectly satisfactory to, and were ratified and approved by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Union Terminal Company and were fully carried out, completed, settled and fully known, ratified and approved as aforesaid more than five years before the institution of this suit and hence any attempt by any one who might otherwise have been entitled to ask for an accounting in respect thereof is barred now by the statute of limitations of both the states of Missouri and the State of Kansas, which statutes the defendant now pleads in bar of this suit.

That whilst it is a fact that the complainant sold to the Union Terminal Railroad Company all, or nearly all, of the rails and steel used in the construction of its said road, yet it is also a fact that the said company long since fully paid the complainant therefor, and the complainant never since has had any connection with the said Union Terminal Company as creditor or otherwise, nor has it any interest therein now as a creditor of otherwise, and its attempt to criticise and inquire into any of its transactions, business or affairs in connection with this defendant, or any one else, 76 is purely gratuitous and without any right or claim of right, but is impertinently made in collusion with the said Belt Company and those who control its affairs for the collusive and fraudulent purposes aforesaid.

That on the 23rd day of January, 1891, at the suggestion and by the procurement of the said Suburban Belt Company the Kansas City and Independence Air Line Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, with a capital stock of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and with eleven directors, a majority of whom were directors of the said Suburban Belt Company, for the purpose of building a railroad from a point on the line of the Suburban Belt Company's road near the mouth of Blue River in Jackson County, to the City of Independence, a distance of some six or eight miles; that the said Air Line Company soon afterwards increased its capital stock to Three Hundred Thousand Dollars and issued its bonds to the amount of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars and secured the same by a mortgage to this defendant, as Trustee; that the said Independence Air Line afterwards entered into a contract with the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company for the building and completion of its said road, the terms of which contract were fair and reasonable and that said road was fully built and completed by the said Construction Company.

That this defendant acted as the financial agent and Trustee for said Air Line and rendered it valuable services in procuring franchises for using public highways for its tracks and received in full compensation therefor stocks and bonds of said Air Line of the then value of $13,100.00 which was a fair and reasonable charge.

That all of the transactions between the said Air Line and the said Construction Company, and between the Air Line Company and this defendant, were fair, open and public, and were all known to, and ratified and approved by, all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Air Line Company more than eight years prior to the institution of this suit; hence any attempt to inquire into the same is barred by the statute of limitations of the state of Missouri, which statute this defendant now pleads in bar of this suit.

That whilst it is true that the complainant did sell to the said Construction Company, all, or nearly all, of the rails which were used in the construction of the said Air Line road, yet it is also true that the complainant was fully paid therefor; that the complainant is not, and never has been, interested in the said Air Line Company, as a creditor or otherwise; that its attempt to 77 inquire into the transactions between this company and said Air Line Company is without right or claim of right, and is an unwarranted meddling with the affairs in which the complainant has no legitimate or proper concern, but is collusively made for the fraudulent purposes aforesaid.

That, as hereinbefore stated, it is untrue, as alleged in the bill of complaint, that this defendant entered into a contract with the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad Company, the Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City Railroad Company, and the Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad Company whereby this defendant bound itself to furnish those railroads an entrance into Kansas City, by building a railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, Missouri.

This defendant states and shows that the facts connected with the building of the said railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg known as the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad, were and are as follows:

Prior to 1895, the Omaha & St. Louis Railway extended from Council Bluffs, Iowa, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, and the Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City Railroad extended from Quincy, Illinois, to Trenton, Missouri, so that the building of a railroad from the Western terminus of the Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City Railroad at said town of Trenton, to the eastern terminus of the Omaha & St. Louis Railway at the said town of Pattonsburg, a distance of about thirty miles, would make a continuous line of railroad from Quincy, Illinois, to Council Bluffs, Iowa.

That a syndicate was formed, composed of Gilman, Son & Company of New York, this defendant and its associates, and John Lowber Welsh and E. T. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, the said Welsh and Stotesbury between them taking one third interest in said syndicate, for the purpose of acquiring, uniting and improving the said properties and the said syndicate entered into contracts which entitled them to become the owner of the said Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City Railroad, and they then caused a corporation to be formed under the laws of the state of New York, with a capital stock of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars, called the Missouri Railway Construction Company, to buy the Omaha & St. Louis Railway, and to build in the link of thirty miles between Trenton and Pattonsburg; that said John Lowber Welsh and the said E. T. Stotesbury between them took one third of the capital stock of the said Missouri Railway Construction Company, the said Gilman, Son & Company taking one third, and this defendant and its associates taking the remainder thereof.

78 That the said Missouri Railway Construction Company then made a contract with the said Omaha & St. Louis Railway Company which entitled said Construction Company to become the owner of and entitled to a conveyance to a railroad company to be formed by it, of all of the property of the said Omaha & St. Louis Railway Company, and also entered into a contract to build and equip the thirty miles of railroad between Trenton and Pattonsburg with the Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad Company which it caused to be formed for the purpose of taking the legal title thereto, and did build and equip the said thirty miles of railroad in pursuance of said contract and took all of the stock and bonds of the said Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad Company in payment therefor, so that by reason of said contracts of the said syndicate and of the said Missouri Railway Construction Company, the said John Lowber Welsh and the said E. T. Stotesbury practically became the owners of or entitled to the ownership of a one third interest in all of the property of the said three railroad companies, and of their united and continuous lines of railroad from Quincy, Illinois, to Council Bluffs, Iowa, a distance of something over three hundred miles.

That it was largely to the interest of the owners of the said line of railroad from Quincy to Council Bluffs, that the said Road should have a direct connection with and an entrance into Kansas City.

That the said Missouri Railway Construction Company by its said contract with the said Omaha & St. Louis Railway Company, and as a part thereof did promise, bind and obligate itself to build or cause to be built a railroad which would furnish such an entrance into Kansas City, which necessitated the construction of the said Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad from Pattonsburg to Kansas City.

That during the time covered by the making and carrying out of the said contracts of said syndicate and the said construction company, and in the building of the said Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad, the said John Lowber Welsh was and still is a large stockholder in and a director and Vice President of the complainant, the Cambria Steel Company, and as such was and is actively engaged in the management, direction and control of its business and affairs, and the said E. T. Stotesbury then was and still is a large stockholder in and a director of the said complainant, and as one of the managers of the large banking house of Drexel & Company, or Drexel, Morgan & Company of Philadelphia and New York, was and is the financial adviser and banker of the said complainant, and that the said E. T. Stotesbury was during all 79 of the said time and still is a director of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company against whom the complainant collusively obtained its said judgment and execution as aforesaid; that the said John Lowber Welsh and the said E. T. Stotesbury were during said time the holders of a large amount of the stock and bonds of the said Belt Company and of its said allied and operated lines and they and the complainant were largely interested in having the said Belt Company make profits and increase its earnings.

That with the consent of the said Missouri Railway Construction Company and with the knowledge and consent of the complainant, the said Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Compa-y, was, on May 28th, 1895, at the instance and by the procurement of the said Belt Company duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, with power to build the said railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, with seven directors, a majority of whom were directors and officers of the said Belt Company.

That it was to the interest of the said Belt Company to have the said Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company so located and built that it would when completed connect with the tracks of the Belt Company and use its said tracks and terminal facilities, as an entrance into Kansas City, and thereby largely increase the earnings of the Belt Company by way of rentals and switching charges.

That it was also supposed that the Belt Company would make a large profit by building the said Northern road and taking its stock and bonds in payment therefor.

That afterwards, to-wit, on or about the 30th day of June, 1896, for the purpose of reaping the said profits and permanently increasing its income and earnings, the said Belt Company with the full knowledge of the complainant, duly entered into a contract with the said Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company to build and complete the said road from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, in consideration of the stock and bonds of the said Northern Connecting Company, a copy of which contract is herewith filed and marked "Exhibit A"; and also entered into a contract whereby the Northern Connecting Company bound itself when built to use the Belt Company's tracks as its Kansas City Terminals, and to pay a very profitable rental therefor.

That the said Northern Connecting Company then issued its first mortgage bonds to the extent of Twenty Thousand Dollars per mile of its said road, and secured the same by a mortgage to this defendant, as Trustee and also issued its second mortgage 80 income bonds, to the extent of Fifteen Thousand Dollars per mile of its said road, and secured the same by a second mortgage to this defendant as Trustee.

That the said complainant with full knowledge of all of the facts aforesaid, and for the purpose of enabling the said Belt Company to carry out its said contract for the building of the said Northern Connecting Road, and with full knowledge of this defendant's connection with the said Northern Connecting Company, and with the said Belt Company, in respect to the building of said road, did sell to the said Belt Company all of the rails and other steel necessary to be used in the construction of said Northern Connecting Road, well knowing the purpose for which they were sold and where and under what contract they were to be used; that in selling the said rails and other steel to the said Belt Company, the said complainant gave credit to the said Belt Company alone, and that the said Belt Company afterwards paid to the complainant by far the larger part of the purchase price of the said rails and other steel and gave the complainant its note for the balance thereof, which is the note on which the complainant recovered a judgment as aforesaid in this court, which judgment is now made the basis of its bill of complaint in this cause.

That the said contract between the said Northern Connecting Company and the said Belt Company for the building of the said road had long prior to the filing of the bill of complaint herein been fully carried out and consummated by both of the parties thereto.

That at the request of the said Northern Connecting Company and the said Belt Company, this defendant acted as their financial agent in the sale and disposition of so much of the said stock and bonds of the said Northern Connecting Company as was necessary to supply the Belt Company with the money needed to build and complete the said road under its said contract; that as said financial agent this defendant did sell and dispose, of approximately Two Million, Five Hundred and Fifty Two Thousand Dollars of the first and second mortgage bonds of the said Northern Connecting Company, and charged and received as its commissions therefor and in compensation for other services as financial agent and Trustee, $70,803.55, being less than three per cent of the par value of the securities so sold and disposed of by and through this defendant. That the said bonds and stocks were sold and disposed of at and for the price and sum of Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars for each first mortgage bond, and that with each said first mortgage bond were sold Three Hundred and Fifty Dollars of second mortgage bonds, and five shares of stock. That the price at which said 81 securities were so disposed of was the best obtainable price, after the exercise of due diligence by this defendant to sell them, and no greater amount could have been procured therefor, and this defendant duly and fully accounted to the said Northern Connecting Company and to the said Belt Company therefor, and the remainder of said stock and bonds were duly delivered to the said Belt Company all of which was duly ratified and approved by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Belt Company long prior to the institution of this suit, and all of which was fully known to and acquiesced in by the complainant.

That the said Belt Company did not sustain any loss in carrying its said contract for the building of the said Northern Connecting Railroad to completion; that its profits therein were not as much as expected at the time of making the said contract, but this was due to the fact that the stock and bonds which it received were greatly depreciated in their market value by the happening of subsequent events which were not and could not have been foreseen.

That the said Belt Company has been since the completion of the said contract and still is receiving largely increased earnings on account thereof, to-wit Fifteen Hundred Dollars and more per month, by way of rentals and switching charges from the said Northern Connecting Railroad Company and other railroads now using its tracks as an entrance into Kansas City.

This defendant further states and shows that the said John Lowber Welsh, and the said E. T. Stotesbury, being connected with and interested in the complainant, the Cambria Steel Company, as aforesaid, in order to better secure for the complainant large and valuable contracts for the sale and furnishing of rails and other steel for the said Belt Company and its operated lines, and for the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company, and for the purpose of keeping the complainant at all times advised as to the business and financial condition of each and all of said railroad companies, caused the said E. T. Stotesbury to be elected as director of the said Belt Company, and the said John Lowber Welsh, and the said E. T. Stotesbury as directors of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, and that said Stotesbury and Welsh were directors in said companies respectively, for six years and more prior to the institution of this suit, and still are directors in each of said companies.

That said Stotesbury and said Welsh are intimately connected in various business enterprises and meet together and consult several times every day, and by reason of their connection with the said Belt Company, and the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf
82 Railroad Company, they secured for the complainant, the Cambria Steel Company, contracts for the sale of rails, and other steel that went into the various railroads hereinbefore named, of the amount and value of several millions of dollars. That by reason of their said connection with said railroads, the said complainant, the Cambria Steel Company, was at all times fully informed as to all of the contracts and business of the said Belt Company, and of all the transactions and dealings of this defendant with said company and consented thereto.

This defendant further states and shows that from and after the first day of January, 1898, continuously up to the first of April, 1900, at divers and frequent times, this defendant loaned and advanced to the said Belt Company, at its instance and request, large sums of money, aggregating more than half a million dollars, for the purpose of making necessary improvements on its road and paying its operating expenses, and meeting its interest charges and also for the purpose of encouraging and securing the location of industries along its line to the end that its earnings and income might be increased; that all of said facts were fully known to the complainant at the time, and acquiesced in by it.

That the said Belt Company from time to time repaid to this defendant parts of the money loaned and advanced by it as aforesaid, but left unpaid about five hundred thousand dollars thereof, for which the said notes which this defendant now holds against the said Belt Company were duly given, and secured by the collateral deposits aforesaid. That the said notes were all given for so much money loaned and advanced by this defendant to said Belt Company, since the first day of January, 1898.

This defendant further states and shows that it is ready and willing, if in the judgment of this court it ought and should do so, to render a full, true and correct accounting of all of its transactions with any and all of the said companies; but this defendant says that by reason of the premises, this defendant should not now be compelled to make such an accounting at the instance and suit of said complainant.

All of which matters and things hereinbefore stated this defendant is ready to aver, maintain and prove as this Honorable Court shall direct, and hereby prays that the temporary restraining order heretofore issued against this defendant in this cause be dissolved, and that the receivers appointed herein by this court of the property of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, said The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the said Kansas City
& Independence Air Line be discharged, and that this de-

83 fendant be dismissed with its reasonable costs and charges in that behalf most wrongfully sustained.

EXHIBIT "A".

This Agreement, made and entered into this 30th day of June A. D. 1896, by and between the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the state of Missouri, and hereinafter called the Northern Company, party of the first part, and the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, a railroad corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the state of Missouri, and hereinafter called the Belt Company, party of the second part,

Witnesseth: That whereas, the Northern Company is authorized under and by virtue of its articles of association and charter to build, construct, complete, equip and operate a line of railroad from a point at or near Kansas City, Missouri, in a general northerly direction to and into the state of Iowa, and is desirous at the present time of constructing, or causing to be constructed, so much of its railroad as extends from a point at or near Kansas City, Missouri, in a general northerly direction to a point at or near Pattonsburg, Missouri, a distance of about seventy (7-) miles, and

84 Whereas, the said Northern Company has not in its treasury sufficient funds with which to build, construct and operate said portion of its road, and proposes, for the purpose of said construction, to issue its first mortgage five per cent gold bonds on its railroad, at the rate of twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) per mile for each mile of main line and yard tracks, its second mortgage five per cent gold bonds at the rate of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) per mile for each mile of its main line and yard tracks, and to issue its capital stock at the rate of thirty-five thousand dollars ($35,000) per mile; and

Whereas, the Belt Company, the party of the second part, has, through its officers, made a proposition to procure all of the right of way, pay the costs of organization, attorney's fees and fully construct, at its own expense, the first party's railroad for a distance of not less than seventy (70) miles at and for $20,000 of the first mortgage bonds, $15,000 of the second mortgage bonds and $35,000 in capital stock each per mile for each and every mile of main line and yard tracks by it constructed for the said Northern Company; and

Whereas, the directors of the parties hereto, at special meetings held for that purpose on June 27th, 1896, duly authorized the respective presidents and secretaries of both of said parties to execute a contract substantially upon the above and foregoing terms.

Now, therefore, it is hereby agreed between the parties hereto, as follows:

Article 1. First. In consideration of the sum of one dollar to the Northern Company paid by the said Belt Company, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and in consideration of the promises and agreements of the said Belt Company to furnish and supply all money for said Northern Company which may be needed to procure the right of way and to construct, complete and improve said portion of said Northern Company's railroad, the said Northern Company has this day sold, assigned and set over unto the Belt Company, its successors and assigns, and does hereby sell, assign and set over unto the Belt Company, its successors and assigns, for each and every mile of main line and yard track, so constructed by said Belt Company, three hundred and fifty shares, subject to the deduction hereinafter stated, of the said Northern Company's capital stock each of the par value of one hundred dollars ($100) and without any liability for calls and assessments and hereby agrees to cause proper certificates of stock to be issued for said shares and delivered to the said Belt Company, its successors or assigns, whenever demanded, so as to give the absolute evidence of ownership of said stock in said Belt Company, its successors and assigns, with the right, however, reserved to exchange share for share the stock of the Northern Company for the stock of a new company to be formed by the consolidation of the Quincy, Omaha and Kansas City Railway, the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad Company and the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Consolidated Company. It is understood, however that there shall be deducted from the total amount of shares of stock due the Belt Company, under the provisions hereof, the entire amount of capital stock already outstanding and issued to officers and others for services in organizing said Northern Company.

Second. For the consideration aforesaid, the said Northern Company has this day sold, assigned and set over and does hereby sell, assign and set over unto the said Belt Company, its successors and assigns, all the right, title and interest which the said Northern Company now has and such as it may hereafter acquire, in and to any and all moneys, lands, bonds, chattels, choses in action and donations donated or granted to the Northern Company or to any other person or persons for it, for its projected railroad, except such land and grants as may be needed and used for depot grounds, shops, switch yards, and rights of way for the said railroad, and the Northern Company does hereby sell and assign to the Belt Company, its successors and assigns all its rights of action, which have accrued, as well, as also, those which may yet accrue, arising out of any of said donations or grants, so the Belt Company may institute and maintain suits to enforce the performance of any or all contracts or promises made by any person or persons with the Northern Company, to give, donate or grant to it any money, lands, property, bonds, or other thing in aid of said projected railroad, or bring and maintain suits to recover damages for the breach of any of said contracts or promises, either in the name of the Northern Company or in the name of the Belt Company, as may be by law required. It is the intention of this agreement to fully assign, transfer, and convey to the Belt Company, its successors and assigns, all the land, choses in action, bonds, grants and donations of whatever kind, character or description, that have been granted, made or promised, and which may hereafter be granted, made or promised, to the Northern Company, or any other person or persons for it in aid of said projected railroad, as fully as if each grant, chose in action and donation were separately and specifically described (except the right of way, lands for depots, shops and yards, as aforesaid) and it is the intention of this agreement to fully authorize and 86 empower the Belt Company, its successors and assigns, to sue for, receive and receipt for any and all lands, choses in action, and donations as fully as the Northern Company could or might do, and when recovered and received to have and to hold the same unto it, the said Belt Company, its succesors and assigns forever.

3rd. And for the consideration herein stated and set forth the said Northern Company has this day sold, assigned and set over and agreed to deliver, and does hereby sell, assign and set over and agree to deliver, as soon as executed, unto the said Belt Company, for each and every mile of main line and yard track constructed by said Belt Company, twenty of its first mortgage coupon bonds, payable thirty years from the date thereof, at the financial agency of the company wherever it may be established, each bond to be of the denomination of one thousand dollars ($1,000) and to bear interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, as per semi-annual coupons attached, secured by a first mortgage on all the property and franchises of said Northern Company now owned, or which may hereafter be owned by it, as more fully set forth or to be set forth in said mortgage to which reference is hereby made for further description of said bonds and mortgage; said bonds, however, being subject to the right of retirement on the part of the Northern Company by exchanging them and each of them for an equal amount of like bonds in the Consolidated Company.

And as a further consideration, the said Northern Company has this day sold, assigned, set over and agreed to deliver unto, and does hereby sell, assign, set over and agree to deliver unto said Belt Company, for each and every mile of main line and yard track so constructed by it, fifteen of its second mortgage coupon bonds, numbered from one consecutively, bear- date of January 1st, 1897, and payable thirty years after date thereof, at the financial agency of the Northern Company, wherever it may be established, each of the denomination of one thousand dollars ($1,000) bearing interest at the rate of five per cent per annum, as per semi-annual coupons attached, and secured by a second mortgage on all the property and franchises of said Northern Company now owned or which may hereafter be owned by it, as more fully set forth in said second mortgage to which reference is hereby made for a further description of said bonds and mortgage, with the right, however, to retire or exchange said bonds for an equal amount of the bonds of said Consolidated Company.

Article II. In consideration of the said shares of stock so, as aforesaid sold, assigned, transferred and to be delivered by 87 said Northern Company to the said Belt Company, and of the sale, transfer and assignment of said grants, donations, lands and bonds hereinbefore set forth, and of the sale and transfer of of the said first and second mortgage bonds by said Northern Company, to said Belt Company, and of the other promises and agreements of the Northern Company herein set forth, the said Belt Company has this day promised, agreed and covenanted, and does hereby undertake, promise, agree and covenant to and with said Northern Company as follows:

First. To furnish and supply to said Northern Company, at the cost of said Belt Company, and without any further liability on the part of said Northern Company, all moneys necessary to procure a right of way for said Northern Company's said line of railroad from a point at or near Kansas City, Missouri, on the north bank of the Missouri River, to Pattonsburg, in the state of Missouri, and such ground as may be necessary for the depots, station houses, side tracks, and yard and terminal tracks.

Second. To build and construct, or cause to be built and constructed, at its own cost and expense, and without an further liability on the part of the said Northern Company, a first class, single track standard gauge railroad over the whole line of said railroad from a point on the north bank of the Missouri River, at or near Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, together with the necessary side and yard tracks, and to furnish at its own cost and expense, and without any further liability on the part of the said Northern Company all the labor and material necessary to construct and complete the same ready of operation, including all tunneling and bridging between the points mentioned.

Third. To build or cause to be built, at its own cost and expense and without any further liability on the part of the said Northern Company, all depots, bridges, station houses, and round houses, which may be necesary along the line of said Northern Company.

Fourth. To release and fully discharge the said Northern Company from all obligations and liabilities arising from advancements made or obligated to be made by it, the said Northern Company, on account of debts and obligations incurred by said Northern Company, in and since its incorporation.

Fifth. To assume the payment of and pay and discharge all the obligations and liabilities incurred by the said Northern Company in the preparation, issuance and recording of the said first and second mortgage bonds of said Northern Company, and the mortgages given to secure the same.

88 Article III. The work of building the said railroad shall begin and continue in such manner and to such extent from time to time as the said Northern Company may advise and notify said Belt Company, in writing, and the said Belt Company may sublet or assign such portions of said work and this contract as it may see fit.

Article IV. To the end that the said Northern Company may be fully and effectually secured in the performance by said Belt Company, its successors and assigns, of its promises, undertakings and agreements herein set forth, and each and all of them, it is hereby expressly agreed and covenanted that the said Belt Company shall only be entitled to the delivery of said stock and bonds upon the completion of said railroad or portions thereof, as may be properly certified as having been fully completed, by the chief engineer of the said Northern Company, said delivery of stock and bonds to be made in the following manner.

First. The trustee or trustees in the first and second mortgages upon the statement and certificate from time to time of the Northern Company, executed by its president or vice-president, and chief engineer, that said Belt Company has completed the number of miles or fractional parts thereof, of single main or yard track, which may be designated in said statement or certificate, shall certify and deliver to the Belt Company, an amount of bonds equal to twenty first mortgage bonds and fifteen second mortgage bonds for each and every mile of main line and yard track so certified to have been completed. The bonds to be delivered from time to time as aforesaid by said trustee or trustees, shall be in regular and numerical order beginning with the lowest number of said bonds, as aforesaid.

Second. In case said Belt Company, at the request of the Northern Company, shall legally acquire or purchase, (instead of constructing any part or portion of said Northern Company's railroad, which right is hereby given to said Belt Company at the request of the Northern Company), then and in that case, the said trustee or trustees shall deliver such an amount of said bonds to said Belt Company or to such other person or corporation, as may be designated upon the statement and certificate of said Northern Company, executed by its president, or vice-president and chief engineer, as aforesaid, as would be apportioned to the number of miles so acquired and purchased by it, instead of being constructed, subject, however to the same restrictions and limitations as in said division first of this article as to the number of bonds per mile; or in case said certificate and statement request the delivery of such bonds to persons or corporations, other than the said Belt Company, then the said 89 statement, certificate and request shall be approved by the said Belt Company, in writing, such approval to be executed by the president or vice-president of the said Belt Company.

Third. Whenever, or as often as the said Belt Company shall have completed ten miles of railroad in accordance with its contract with the said Northern Company, it shall be entitled to receive all of the first and second mortgage bonds apportioned to said ten miles, as well as for each and every mile so constructed and so completed and so certified by the chief engineer of the Northern Company, $35,000 par value of the common stock, less the present outstanding and issued stock of said Northern Company.

Article VI. Said Belt Company may assign this contract or any part thereof, to any other person or corporation, and thereafter the assignee of this contract or portion thereof, shall be entitled to the same rights and benefits and to receive said bonds and stock from said Northern Company and any trustee in said mortgage under like circumstances and conditions as herein provided, with respect to said Belt Company, party of the second part.

In witness whereof, the said Northern Company and Belt Company have caused their respective names to be hereunto signed by their respective presidents and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, attested by their respective secretaries, or assistant secretaries, the day and year first above written.

KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY,

By E. L. MARTIN, President.

Afterwards, to-wit, on the 5th day of November, 1900, the Answer of Central Improvement Company was filed. Said Answer is in words and figures as follows:

In the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri.

90 2468. In Equity.

CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY, Complainant,
vs.
KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY, THE UNION Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, Defendants.

Answer of the Defendant, Central Improvement Company, to the Bill of Complaint of the Cambria Steel Company, Complainant.

This defendant, now and at all times hereafter, saving and reserving to itself all benefit and advantage of exceptions which can or may be had or taken to the many errors and uncertainties and other imperfections in the said bill contained, for answer thereto, or to so much and such portions thereof as this defendant is advised it is material or necessary for it to answer unto, answering says:

That this defendant admits that the complainant is a corporation and citizen of the state of Pennsylvania, and that the defendants are all corporations and are all citizens of the state of Missouri, and inhabitants of the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, as alleged in the bill of complaint, except the defendant, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, which is a citizen of Kansas, and an inhabitant of the First Division of the District of Kansas, as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant admits that the defendant, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, became indebted to the complainant, prior to the institution of this suit in a large sum, for steel rails purchased by said Belt Company from the complainant, but this defendant has not sufficient knowledge or information to enable it to form a belief as to whether or not the amount of said indebtedness was about One Hundred Thousand Dollars, nor as to whether the said steel rails were so purchased by the said Belt Company between the first day of November, 1897, and the first day of March, 1898, as alleged in the bill of complaint.

This defendant admits that a suit was brought in the name of the complainant, upon the obligation given it by the said Belt Company evidencing the balance due upon said indebtedness, and this defendant avers the fact to be that said obligation consisted of a promissory note executed and delivered by the defendant, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company to the com-91 plainant, on January 15th, 1900, for Ninety Eight Thousand, Seven hundred and Forty Four and 23/100 Dollars ($98,744.23) which note was a renewal in whole or in part of former notes executed by the said Belt Company to the complainant, for the purchase price of steel rails.

This defendant admits that a judgment was recovered in this Honorable Court, on the said note, in the name of the complainant, on the sixth day of September, 1900, against the said Belt Company, for the sum of One Hundred Thousand, Nine Hundred and Sixty Two and 91/100 Dollars ($100,962.91) but this defendant has no knowledge or information sufficient to enable it to form a belief as to whether or not any part of said judgment has been paid, hence demands proof of the complainant's allegation that no part of the same has been paid.

This defendant admits that an execution was issued on said judgment, directed to the Marshal of the Western District of Missouri, and against said Belt Company, and that the said Marshal did make return of said execution, which return, as written, shows upon its face that the execution was wholly unsatisfied for want of property of the said Belt Company upon which to levy the same, but this defendant state and avers the fact to be that suit on said note was instituted in this Honorable Court on the said sixth day of September, 1900; that by a prearrangement the said defendant Belt Company entered its appearance on the same day and consented to said judgments being rendered against it, which was done on the same day and hour, and that counsel appearing as the attorneys for the complainant in that suit, without any purpose, or desire of collecting said judgment, did, on the same day, go through the form of causing an execution to be issued on said judgment, and wrote a pretended return of nulla bona thereon, and placed said execution in the hands of said Marshal, solely for the purpose of having him sign the said pretended return which had been so written for and prepared for him, and the said Marshal, without making any search for property on which to levy said execution, and without making any demand on the said Belt Company for the payment thereof, and without in any way attempting to collect the same, did on the same day, without leaving his office, at the request and direction of those persons who appeared as attorneys for the plaintiff in said execution, through one of his deputies, sign said pretended return of nulla bona which had been previously written and prepared for his signature, as aforesaid.

This defendant denies that the said defendant, Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company was or is insolvent, and denies that it had or has no property subject to be reached by legal 92 process to be issued upon the said judgment so secured by the complainant, as aforesaid, as alleged in the bill of complaint; but this defendant states and shows that on the contrary the truth is that the Belt Company then had and still has ample money and means provided and at its command to pay the said debt of the complainant and all its other liabilities, which was fully known to the complainant prior to and at the time of the institution of the said suit on said note, and at all times since.

money and means provided and at its command to pay the complainant's said debt, as aforesaid, the complainant, itself, ever since the execution of the said note, has held and still holds in its own hands a large amount of valuable property of the said Belt Company as collateral security to secure the payment of the said note, duly pledged by the said Belt Company to the complainant for that purpose. This defendant does not know the exact amount or description of the said personal property so pledged to and held as collateral security by the complainant, but avers that it was and is of sufficient value upon foreclosure to pay a large part, if not the whole of the complainant's said debt; that a part of said collateral security consists of one hundred and fifty-four (154) First Mortgage, Thirty Year, Five Per cent Gold Bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company, of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, which are secured by a first lien on about one hundred miles of first class, standard guage railroad, between Kansas City and Pattonsburg, Missouri, at the rate of Twenty Thousand Dollars in bonds to each mile of said railroad; that said bonds could have been and can now easily be subjected to the payment of the complainant's debt and to the satisfaction of a large part thereof, but the complainant has made no attempt whatever to collect its debt in any way, but has failed and refused to even appropriate, as it lawfully might and could have done, that part of the Belt Company's property which was and is in its own hands for that express purpose.

This defendant further answering unto that part of the complainant's bill of complaint which refers to the recovery of the said alleged judgment against the said Belt Company, and the alleged issuance and return of execution thereon, states and shows that the said suit was not instituted and the said judgment was not recovered, and the said execution was not issued in good faith for the purpose of collecting the complainant's said debt, but that upon the contrary,

93 the said Belt Company, and its attorneys, agents and officers, and The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, who completely dominates and controls them, and certain other persons having the charge and control of some of its business and financial affairs, hereinafter called the Philadelphia Committee, whose personnel and connection with the Belt Company and its affairs will be more definitely hereinafter stated, unlawfully conceived the fraudulent purpose and design of hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors of the said Belt Company in the collection of their just debts by procuring the appointment of receivers at the hands of this Honorable Court, to take possession of all of the property of the said Belt Company, and by procuring restraining orders and injunctions from this Honorable Court preventing such creditors, except the complainant from in any way subjecting any of the assets or property of the Belt Company to the payment of their debts, upon the false and fraudulent pretense that the appointment of receivers and the granting of said restraining orders and injunctions against such creditors, were necessary to the protection of the interests of said creditors, and further by seeking to foreclose certain mortgages on separate parts of the Belt Company's property on the false and fraudulent pretense that there had been a demand for and default in the payment of certain installments of interest thereon, so as to cut out by foreclosure and defeat the unsecured creditors of said Belt Company, in the collection of their debts; that in pursuance of said fraudulent purpose and design, the said Belt Company in connection with and through the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company and the said Philadelphia Committee, approached the complainant and requested it to allow them to bring a suit in its name on said note and recover a judgment thereon against the Belt Company and afterwards to allow them to bring this suit, in its name, so as to make it falsely appear that a bona fide judgment creditor was diligently and in good faith attempting to enforce the collection of its debt through the instrumentality of this creditor's bill and its accompanying receivership or receiverships, whilst in truth and reality it would be and was intended to be in substance and effect the Belt Company suing for and obtaining a judgment and execution against itself, and procuring the appointment of receivers for its own property for the fraudulent purpose aforesaid.

That this defendant is informed and believes, and upon such information and belief avers the fact to be that the said Belt Company, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the said Philadelphia Committee promised and agreed with the complainant that if it would allow them to bring the said suit in its name, they would see to it that its debt was fully paid, and would indemnify and save it harmless against any and all
94 costs and expenses on account of said suits so to be conducted in its name; that the complainant, with full knowledge of the said fraudulent purpose and design, and participating therein, for the purpose of carrying the same out, did consent that they might institute, conduct and prosecute in its name the said suits; that the said Belt Company and the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company and the said Philadelphia Committee then employed counsel, whether in their own name or not or in the name of the complainant, this defendant does not know, and has no pre-sent means of ascertaining, to institute and prosecute the said suit on said note to judgment and execution and to present this bill of complaint based thereon; but whatever form may have been used in the employment of said counsel, that the fact is that the said Belt Company, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company and the said Philadelphia Committee are the real employers and are by agreement to bear the expense thereof.

That in the further prosecution of their said fraudulent purpose and design of hindering, delaying and defrauding the unsecured creditors of the said Belt Company, they, the said Belt Company, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the said Philadelphia Committee, requested and procured the Provident Life & Trust Company of Philadelphia, who, at their instigation was and still is claiming and asserting itself to be the trustee in four certain mortgages which are liens or apparent liens on separate portions of the property heretofore operated by the Belt Company, but now operated by the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, to institute four suits for the foreclosure of the said mortgages in this Honorable Court, on the false pretense that there had been a default in the payment of the interest on the bonds in said mortgages described. That the person who owns and holds all or substantially all of the bonds described in all of the said mortgages, to-wit, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, is the same person who controls and directs the business and affairs of all the companies that executed said mortgages and who owns and holds all or substantially all, of the capital stock of all of said companies, and is the same person who has the possession and management of the property of all of said companies, and who controls and operates all of the railroads covered by said mortgages, and who collects and receives all of the earnings and income thereof, so that the same person who holds or owns substantially all of said bonds, is the same person who is equitably charged with the duty of paying whatever may be lawfully due on any of said bonds, if anything.

95 That said foreclosure suits were brought at the instance and request of those persons only who are so responsible for the alleged default and were fraudulently and collusively brought to sell said property for the fraudulent purpose aforesaid of cutting out and defeating the unsecured creditors and not for the purpose of enforcing the payment of said bonds.

That the said suit in the name of the complainant to recover judgment on said note, and this bill of complaint in this cause, and each of the said four suits brought in the name of the Provident Life & Trust Company to foreclose said mortgages, were all brought against the Belt Company, and its property, at the solicitation and request of the Belt Company, and of those said persons who dominate and control its action; that they were all drawn and prepared simultaneously by the same counsel and were all instituted at the same time by the same counsel, and the Belt Company, together with all of the other defendants which it controls were present in court at the time of the filing of all of the said suits and voluntarily entered their appearance therein, and fraudulently and collusively consented to the relief sought in each case, but the defendants who were not controlled by the said Belt Company were not present and were not notified. That each and all of the said suits are parts of one and the same transaction, collusively and fraudulently contrived and instituted by the Belt Company and those said persons who control its action, with the fraudulent purpose and intent of hindering, delaying and defrauding all of its unsecured creditors excepting the complainant.

This defendant prays leave to refer to and use upon any hearing of this cause, any and all of the files and records in any and all of said causes as fully as if they were set out herein and made a part of the record in this cause.

This defendant further states and shows that on April 1st, 1899, and prior thereto, the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, a Missouri corporation, was operating a railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Port Arthur, Texas, and under a rental contract was using the lines, tracks, station houses, yards and depots of the said Belt Company and its associated lines as its Kansas City terminals, and was using the canal of the Port Arthur Channel & Dock Company in Texas as its southern terminals, so as to get its freight to and from the open sea.

That on April 1st, 1899, the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company defaulted in the payment of the interest on its mortgage bonds and a suit to foreclose its mortgage on 96 account of said default was instituted in this Honorable Court on the 6th day of April, 1899, and receivers were appointed and operated the railroad pending the foreclosure.

That a certain number of persons about that time got together and appointed themselves as a committee herein called the Philadelphia Committee to reorganize the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and readjust its securities so that it would be thereafter burdened with a less interest charge and one clearly within its ability to earn.

That said Philadelphia Committee, after some resignations, and substitutions was composed of Wm. F. Harrity, A. Heckscher, Herman Sielcken, William Edonborn, Max Pam, Samuel R. Shipley, Silas Pettit and Winthrop Smith.

That the said Philadelphia Committee in pursuance of said purpose, adopted and published a plan and agreement for the reorganization of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and the said Terminal Companies, which provided, among other things, for the formation of a new railroad company which would issue its bonds and stocks in exchange for the bonds and stocks of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and in exchange for the stock and bonds of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City, the Kansas City & Independence Air Line and the Port Arthur Channel & Dock Company, in order, as stated in said published plan, "to merge these three corporate managements into one so that the system shall be capable of operation as a whole, under one management, from Kansas City to the ships' side at Port Arthur," so that said new railroad company which would after the reorganization own the main line and property of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, and also own the bonds and capital stock of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its operated lines at Kansas City, and of the Port Arthur Channel & Dock Company, in Texas, and that thereby "all three properties would be under one corporate ownership, management and control."

That the Provident Life & Trust Company, complainant in said four foreclosure suits filed simultaneously with this suit, was a party to the said plan and agreement of reorganization, and its President, Samuel R. Shipley, was a member of the said Philadelphia Committee.

97 That the said Philadelphia Committee in furtherance of its said plan of reorganization, caused the proposed new railroad company to be incorporated under the laws of the state of Missouri, under the name of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company and placed three of its members on the Board of Directors of said new company, and two others of its members, one of whom is the said Samuel R. Shipley, President of the said Provident Life & Trust Company, as aforesaid, on a Board of Voting Trustees, who were to be and are vested with the absolute and unlimited power of voting all of the stock of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company for the next five years.

That the said Philadelphia Committee, for and on behalf of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, as well as on its own account, did invite and request the owners and holders of the stock and bonds of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, the Port Arthur Channel & Dock Company, and the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and its operated lines at Kansas City, to deposit their said stock and bonds with the said Provident Life & Trust Company and to receive in payment therefor the stock and bonds of said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company at a ratio prescribed in said published plan.

That in response to said invitation and request, the respective owners and holders of the stock and bonds of all of the said companies, and particularly of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its operated lines at Kansas City, for the purpose of converting them into the stock and bonds of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, to the end that the said purposes of said reorganization plan might be carried out, did deposit all or substantially all of their stock and bonds so as to enable the said Philadelphia Committee to consummate its said plan of reorganization, and the same was thereupon declared effective and carried out as proposed.

That after the said plan of reorganization had been declared effective, and the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company had thereby acquired substantially all of the stocks and bonds of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and its operated lines at Kansas City, to-wit, on or about the first day of April, 1900, a majority of the then directors and officers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company resigned their respective offices and persons who were then directors, officers and agents of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company were chosen in their stead, so that from that time ever since, the said The 98 Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the said Philadelphia Committee have had and exercised full and unrestrained control, direction and management of all of the corporate affairs of the said defendant, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company.

That on or about the said first day of April, 1900, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company in furtherance of said plan of reorganization took actual possession of all of the railroad, tracks, shops, depots, station houses, rolling stock and other equipment and appurtenances of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its operated lines at Kansas City, and has ever since that time been and still is managing, controlling and operating the same and receiving and collecting all of the earnings and income thereof.

That it was a part of the said plan and agreement of reorganization that the said Philadelphia Committee should cause a syndicate of capitalists to be formed who would buy enough of the stock and bonds of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company which would not be needed to retire and convert the stock and bonds of the old companies sought to be unified, to pay off and discharge all of the floating debts and other unsecured obligations of all of the old companies, including those of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company. That said syndicate was formed and enough of the securities of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company were sold to said syndicate to provide money to satisfy and discharge all of the floating and unsecured debts and obligations of all of said companies so sought to be united under the ownership and control of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, including those of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and the said Philadelphia Committee and the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which it controls have wrongfully withheld said money and have unlawfully and fraudulently failed and refused to apply the same to the purposes for which it was raised, to-wit, to the payment of the floating and unsecured debts and obligations of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and the other old companies so [analoga-ted] as aforesaid under the said plan of reorganization.

This defendant further states and shows that one Max Pam, of Chicago, Illinois, was and is a member of the said Philadelphia Committee, and was and is also a member of the Board of Directors of the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and a member of its Executive Committee; that said Max Pam was and is the General Counsel and legal adviser of the said Philadelphia
99 Committee, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, and the General Counsel and legal adviser of the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company, and as such had and has the general supervision, direction and control of the affairs and legal proceedings of the said Philadelphia Committee, and of all of the said last named railroad companies, including the question as to which of their debts, if any, they should pay, and which of their debts they should avoid or escape the payment of, and of the legal proceedings necessary to accomplish the avoidance and escaping of the payment of such debts.

That C. W. Lucas, who entered the appearance of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal

Railroad Company, the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line in this cause, and who on their behalf consented to the appointment of receivers for their properties, is an appointee of the said Max Pam, as an assistant attorney for the said Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and for all of the other said railroad companies, and his salary is fixed by and is dependent upon the wishes and word of the said Pam, and that his said action in appearing for the said defendants and consenting to the appointment of receivers, was in obedience to the direction of the said Pam, and in accordance with his wishes, and for the furtherance of the fraudulent purpose and wrongfully and wickedly conceived by the said Philadelphia Committee and the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company which they control, to avoid and escape the payment of the unsecured debts of the said Belt Company by means of the said four foreclosure suits, and by means of this suit so simultaneously and collusively instituted as aforesaid.

This defendant further answering avers the fact to be that the railroads of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line extend in and around Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas, and in and to the city of Independence, Missouri, and are what are known as terminal railroads; that they depend largely for their revenue upon charges received for switching cars from one railroad to another and from and to industries along their lines to and from other railroads which have a connection with the roads of said company. That their business increased from year to year and in order to accomplish the purposes for which they were respectively organized it was necessary that they acquire from time to time additional terminals and lands upon which to place terminal tracks.

That afterwards the said Belt Railroad Company, and The Union Terminal Railroad Company caused to be incorporated this company, the Central Improvement Company, for the purpose of purchasing and holding lands which might be desired for various railroad companies hereinbefore mentioned, and also for the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, whose property has now been acquired by The Kansas City Southern Railway Company. That in purchasing said lands it was necessary in many instances to give to the sellers, deeds of trust back upon the lands for part of the purchase price for the reason that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company did not have funds in its treasury with which to buy all of the additional lands that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and said The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line might desire to carry on their business; that the Central Improvement Company was thereupon organized at the instance of the Kansas City Southern Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, with a capital stock of One Hundred Thousand Dollars; that subsequently, the capital stock thereof was increased to Two Hundred Thousand Dollars, but all of the capital stock was not paid in on said increase, and the Guardian Trust Company was requested by the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company to act as Trustee for the stock which had not been taken by the various railroad companies hereinabove mentioned.

That the method of conducting the business of the said Central Improvement Company, was as follows:

Whenever the said railroad companies, or either of them desired to purchase a tract of land, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company would advance the money with which to purchase and pay for a sufficient number of shares of stock of this company to enable it to purchase the land, and this company would issue to the said Belt Company, fully paid stock of the Central Improvement Company, or it would furnish the said money for the purchase of said stock and have it issued to The Union Terminal Railroad Company, or the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, whenever the land purchased with the proceeds of the said stock was located 101 along the line of those roads, and that this defendant avers and admits, as stated in the bill of complaint, that all of the money for said stock issued to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line was furnished by the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and that the stock is actually the stock of Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company.

This defendant in further answering states that in following out the said plan, there has been issued to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company 810 shares of the stock of the Central Improvement Company, and to the Kansas City & Independence Air Line 22 shares of the stock of said Company, and to The Union Terminal Railroad Company 334 shares of stock of the said Central Improvement Company, and that it, the said Central Improvement Company holds said lands so purchased for the benefit of the stockholders in said Central Improvement Company.

And the defendant, the Central Improvement Company, in further answering states that among the properties so held by the Central Improvement Company are several tracts of land in Jackson County, Missouri, and Wyandotte County, Kansas, more particularly described and set forth in Exhibit "A" a copy of which is hereto attached and made a part hereof.

This [a] defendant further states that all of the said Two Hundred Thousand Dollars of capital stock has been issued except Fifty Eight Thousand, Six Hundred Dollars, or 586 shares thereof, which is still held by a Trustee and which in accordance with the arrangements and custom of doing the business as hereinabove described will be issued to the several railroad companies as fast as they advance money for stock the proceeds of which is to be used to pay for lands already purchased or to be purchased.

This defendant further answering avers and states that there has been served upon said company a notice by the Guardian Trust Company that it holds 1120 shares of the capital stock of said company as collateral security for the payment of the indebtedness due the said Guardian Trust Company by the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the said Guardian Trust Company has requested the said Central Improvement Company to at once demand from the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, as well as The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, that they and each of them shall pay into the treasury of the Central Improvement Company large sums of money that are due the said Central Improvement Company for rentals of 102 lands already earned, and that they be requested and compelled to pay rental for the use of land used by said railroad companies and belonging to this defendant.

This defendant further answering states that all of the books of the said Central Improvement Company, and all of its property are now unlawfully in the possession and under the control of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, the Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, and their receivers the Honorable S. R. Knott, and E. F. Swinney, and that the said railroad companies and the said receivers have been requested to surrender the books of said company to the proper officers thereof, and have refused, and that they and each of them have so refused to surrender the books and property of the said Central Improvement Company to the officers thereof, and that they, the said railroad companies, and the receivers thereof, have refused to pay into the treasury of the said Central Improvement Company, and to the officers thereof any rent or money for the use of said lands and property so owned by this defendant.

And further answering this defendant state that it is advised that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company denies the right of the said Guardian Trust Company, co-defendant herein, to hold said stock as collateral security, and avers that it is necessary for the interests of the stockholders of this defendant and the creditors thereof, that all of the property and the books of this company be taken out of the possession of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, and the receivers of said companies, and that an impartial receiver who shall have no connection whatever with any of said railroad companies or with any party interested in or connected with said companies, be appointed by this Honorable Court, to take possession of all of the said property and to demand and collect all moneys that may be due this defendant from said railroad companies or any other person, and under and pursuant to the orders of this court, to sell to said railroad companies, or to other persons, the real estate of said company, and to convert all of its property into cash, and pay the same to the stockholders thereof, or to the persons who may be entitled thereto.

This defendant further answering denies that it and its officers are controlled and dominated by the Guardian Trust Company, and denies that it, as a corporation, was a dummy contrived and provided by the said Guardian Trust Company. And fur-103 ther answering avers the fact to be that the said Central Improvement Company owes certain amounts of money to various persons from whom it purchased portions of said land, the payment of which is secured by deeds of trust upon said property; that the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, and the receivers thereof, although using said lands and all of the same for their own individual benefit, have refused to pay the taxes due on said lands, or to pay the amounts due on the various tracts of land, although the fair rental value of said property would be much more than sufficient to pay all of the taxes and incumbrances as they fall due, and further answering this defendant avers that the fair rental value of the of the said lands is at least the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars per annum.

This defendant further answering denies any and all manner of unlawful combinations, domination or control, over its affairs with or by the said Guardian Trust Company, wherewith this defendant is by said bill of complaint charged, without this, that there is any other matter or thing in said complainant's bill of complaint contained relating to this defendant and material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto and not herein or hereby well and sufficient- answered, confessed, or traversed and avoided, or denied, is true, to the knowledge or belief of this defendant, all of which matters and things this defendant is willing to aver, maintain and prove, as this Honorable Court shall direct, and humbly prays that a receiver may be appointed for the reasons set forth in this answer and herein contained.

Ancillary Bill.

Ancillary Bill of Complaint.

To the Judges of the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, in the Eighth Circuit, sitting in equity.

Your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, bring this their ancillary bill of complaint against the Guardian Trust Company and Francis M. Black, its receiver, Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, and Wash Adams, its receiver, Central Improvement Company, and Wash Adams, its receiver, Second Street Improvement Company, and Fairmount Amusement — each and all of which said corporations, both complainant and defendants, are corporations organized under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri, and citizens and residents of said state, and each of them having their principal office and place of business at Kansas City in said state, and each of them being an inhabitant of the Western Division of the Western District thereof except the Cambria Steel Company, which is a corporation duly created and existing under the laws of the state of — and a non-resident of the state of Missouri.

117 Your orators state that on November 30th, 1900, in the suit of W. W. Bierce, et al., complainants, against the Guardian Trust Company, defendant, then pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of Missouri, Francis M. Black was appointed receiver of the defendant Guardian Trust Company; and is now the duly qualified and acting receiver of said Company; that, in this suit, Wash Adams has heretofore been appointed receiver for the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, and also receiver for the Central Improvement Company, and he is now the duly qualified and acting receiver of said companies; that said Francis M. Black and Wash Adams are each a citizen and resident of the Western Division of the State of Missouri.

And, thereupon, your orators complain and say that the above-named complainant, the Cambria Steel Company, heretofore exhibited to this Honorable Court its bill of complaint against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, a defendant, and the other corporation defendant above named, in and by which said bill of complaint said Cambria Steel Company, as such complainant, set up the recovery of a judgment by it against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company for the sum of One Hundred Thousand Nine Hundred Sixty-two 91-100 Dollars, and the issuance and delivery and return unsatisfied of an execution thereon, and in and by said bill of complaint sought to subject to the payment and satisfaction of said judgment certain rights, properties and assets belonging to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the other defendants above named.

Your orators further show that prior to the filing of said bill of complaint by said Cambria Steel Company, four certain bills of complaint were duly filed in this court by the Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia, two of said bills being filed against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, as the sole defendant; another of said bills was filed against The Union Terminal Railroad Company, a Kansas corporation, and the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company as defendants, and the other of said bills was filed against the Kansas City and Independence Air Line, a Missouri corporation, and the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company. Each of said bills sought the foreclosure of a first mortgage upon the certain railroad property described in the said bills of complaint respectively, and which said several described pieces of railroad property, together for a long time have been operated by the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company as a continuous and allied system, said Kansas City Suburban Belt

118 Railroad Company being also the beneficial owner of said properties by reason of owning the capital stock of said several companies. Upon the same date upon which the said bills of complaint were filed, an application was made for the appointment of a receiver of all the property of said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and on the same day, to-wit: on the 6th day of September, A. D. 1900, an order was duly entered of record in each of said causes, as well as in the above-entitled cause, appointing your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as receivers of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and vesting your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers, with all the rights, title, estate, property and interests of the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and authorizing and directing your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers to proceed to take such steps and institute such proceedings, legal or otherwise, as might be necessary or requisite to compel a restoration to said the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as its receivers, of any property rights belonging to it and to compel an accounting from any and all persons, firms or corporations, from whom the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company might be entitled to such accounting; and that your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney as such receivers, were also authorized to appear in any and all suits theretofore or thereafter instituted against the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, in its name or in the names of your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as the receivers, to defend any and all such suits. Your orators further show unto the court that under and by virtue of the powers and authorities so vested in them as aforesaid, your orators, for and on behalf of said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company which is made a defendant to the bill of complaint in the above entitled cause, have appeared and filed their answer to said bill of complaint as will appear of record herein, and having so filed said answer, your orators bring this, their ancillary bill of complaint against the defendants hereinabove named.

Your orators further show unto the court that immediately upon the appointment of your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers, they took and have ever since held possession of each and all the property of the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and under and pursuant to the orders of the court so appointing them, have been ever since, and are now, operating the railroad and property of said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company.

119 And your orators further charge and aver that the matters and things mentioned and set forth in this, your orators' bill of complaint, are ancillary to the said suits so pending in this court wherein your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney were appointed as such receivers, and are properly cognizable in this court, which has possession of each and all of the property of said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company. For convenience, The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company will be hereinafter referred to as the Belt Company; the Guardian Trust Company will hereinafter be referred to, for convenience, as the Trust Company, the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company will be hereafter referred to, for convenience, as the Elevator Company, The Central Improvement Company will hereinafter for convenience be referred to as the Central Company, and Second Street Improvement Company will hereinafter for convenience, be referred to as the Second Street Company; the Fairmount Amusement Company will hereinafter, for convenience, be referred to as the Amusement Company.

Your orators show unto the court that the Trust Company was incorporated under and by virtue of the laws of the state of Missouri, in or about the year 1883, and that until on or about the month of June, 1899, the name of said Trust Company was Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust Company; but that at said latter date, such proceedings were taken as are provided by the statutes of the state of Missouri in such case made and provided, so that its name was changed to Guardian Trust Company.

Your orators, upon information and belief, further show unto the court that, on or about the first day of January A. D. 1887, a corporation was formed under the laws of the state of Missouri, known as Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter for convenience, called the Suburban Company, for the purpose of building a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas. That, as your orators are informed and believe, and so charge the facts to be, said Suburban Company was organized by the said Trust Company, and the servants and employees of said Trust Company were elected as its officers and directors, so that said Trust Company, at all time dominated and controlled the said Suburban Company. That, as your orators are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, the said Trust Company, so dominating and controlling said Suburban Company by virtue of holding possession of the offices of its board of directors and officers, caused the said Suburban 120 Company to issue and deliver to it, said Trust Company, each and all of the capital stock of said Suburban Company and also caused said Suburban Company to execute its bonds, secured by a first mortgage upon all of its corporate property then held and to be hereafter acquired, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of One Million Dollars, and that said bonds in like manner, by virtue of the domination and control of said Trust Company, were delivered to said Trust Company, and that said Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and otherwise dispose of said bonds and stock and to apply the proceeds thereof, as claimed by it, for the corporate purposes of said Suburban Company, in the construction and operation of its road; but said Trust Company, although often requested so to do, did not at any time, and never has accounted to said Suburban Company for the proceeds realized by it from said bonds and stock, or the manner in which it so expended the same.

Thereafter, as your orators are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, the said Trust Company caused to be formed under the laws of the state of Missouri, a corporation known as the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company, for the purpose of building a line of road to connect with the line of road constructed, or proposed to be constructed, by said Suburban Company, although said Suburban Company had full power under its charter to have constructed the said road itself. Said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company is hereinafter referred to, for convenience, as the Consolidated Company. That, as your orators are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, said Consolidated Company was formed in the same manner as said Suburban Company by said Trust Company electing as its officers and directors, the servants and employees of said Trust Company, so that it at all times dominated and controlled said Consolidated Company, and that said Trust Company thereupon caused said Consolidated Company to issue and deliver to it its entire capital stock, and also bonds secured by a first mortgage upon its corporate property, then and to be thereafter acquired, aggregating the sum of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars, and caused all of said bonds to be delivered to said Trust Company, and that said Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and dispose of said bonds and stock of said Consolidated Company, so delivered to it as aforesaid, and to apply the proceeds thereof, as alleged by it, for the corporate purposes of said Consolidated Company, in the construction and operation of its road; but the said Trust Company, although often requested so to do, did not and never has accounted to the said Consolidated Company 121 for the disposition made by it of said bonds and stock so delivered as aforesaid, and the proceeds derived therefrom and the purposes for which said proceeds were applied.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be that thereafter and on or about the 25th day of July A. D. 1892, the said Consolidated Company and the said Suburban Company, as authorized by the statutes of the State of Missouri, entered into articles of consolidation, whereby the said two companies became one consolidated corporation thereafter known as the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, of which your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney were appointed receivers, as aforesaid, and under and by virtue of said articles of consolidation, as well as the statutes of the state of Missouri, in such case made and provided, the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as its receivers, have succeeded to each and all of the rights of both said Suburban Company and said Consolidated Company.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the facts to be, that at the time of the consolidation of said two companies, as aforesaid, the said Trust Company caused its officers and employes to be elected to the position of officers and directors of said consolidated company, and continued such persons in such positions respectively continuously until about the month of April, 1900, whereby said Trust Company, at all times up to said last mentioned date, completely dominated and controlled the actions of said Belt Company.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the facts to be, that some time prior to the said consolidation, and on or about the 30th day of December, 1891, it was found advisable in the course of the construction of the line of road of said Suburban Company to have a corporation formed under the laws of the State of Kansas, for the purpose of building and holding the title to that portion of the line of road of said Suburban Company, lying within the state of Kansas, and for that purpose, the Union Terminal Railroad Company, hereafter referred to as the Union Company, for the sake of convenience, was by said Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the state of Kansas, and the said Trust Company, as in the other instances, caused its officers and employes to be elected the officers and directors of said Union Company, and that said Union Company was a 122 corporation organized for the sole purpose of holding the title to the said property of said Suburban Company or Belt Company in the state of Kansas; that the said Trust Company thereupon caused all of the stock of said Union Company to be issued to said Suburban or Belt Company, and also caused said Union Company to execute its first mortgage bonds in the amount of Two Million Dollars, and said bonds were secured by a first mortgage upon all of the property of said Union Company then and to be thereafter acquired; that said bonds were thereupon issued and delivered to said Trust Company for the use and benefit of said Suburban Belt Company; that said Trust Company thereupon immediately proceeded to sell or otherwise dispose of the said bonds and the stock of said Union Company, which had been theretofore delivered to it by said Belt Company, and to apply the proceeds derived from such sale in part to the construction and operation of the road so built for said Belt Company, but held and operated in the name of said Union Company; that said Trust Company thereupon became liable to account to the said Belt Company for the proceeds and disposition of the same derived from all of the said bonds and stock, but although often requested so to do, it always has failed and refused to account to the said Belt Company for the disposition made by it of said bonds, the proceeds derived from such disposition and the manner in which said proceeds were disposed of.

said Trust Company caused the said Belt Company to acquire each and all of the bonds and stock of said Air Line, the said 123 Belt Company in fact constructing the railroad property of said Air Line, and acquiring the said bonds and stock in consideration therefor; that the said Trust Company thereupon caused the said Belt Company to deliver the said bonds and stock to it, the said Trust Company, and it proceeded to dispose of the same and to apply the proceeds, as it alleged, for the corporate purposes of said Belt Company; but the said Trust Company, although often requested so to do, has never at any time accounted to said Belt Company for the disposition made by it of the said bonds and the proceeds realized by it therefrom.

Your orators further show that they are informed and believe, and so charge the facts to be, that the said Trust Company at all times up to about the month of April, 1900, absolutely and completely dominated and controlled the affairs of said Belt Company, by reason of the fact that the officers and employes of said Trust Company were elected officers and directors of said Belt Company at the behest of said Trust Company, and were simply "dummies" acting as the agents of said Trust Company, that the said Trust Company itself attended to the disbursement of all the moneys which were realized from the sale of the bonds and stock of the several companies hereinabove named, and itself attended to the disbursement of the moneys which were used in the construction and building of the lines of road of said different companies. That your orators are informed and believe, and on such information and belief, state that the total cost of the lines of all of the said companies did not exceed the sum of about Two Million Dollars, but that there was actually delivered to and disposed of by said Trust Company secured bonds and stock aggregating more than Five Million Dollars, and that said Trust Company, nor its said Receiver, has never at any time, but at all times refused to account to said Belt Company or to your orators for the proceeds derived by it from the sale of the said bonds and the disposition made by it of such proceeds, and fraudulently pretends and claims that it is retaining any and all sums of money above the actual cost of said several railroad properties for the purpose of paying for its commissions and services in the matter of the sale and disposition of said bonds and stock.

Your orators further, upon information and belief, charge and aver that on or about the 30th day of June, 1896, the said Trust Company, either in its own name, or in the name of some of its officers or some corporation controlled by it, had entered into a contract whereby it was obligated to construct a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, for the pur-124 pose of connecting at that point with the Omaha and St. Louis Railroad Company, and the Omaha, Kansas City and Eastern Railroad Company; that the said Trust Company thereupon caused to be incorporated under the laws of the state of Missouri, a corporation known as the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company, hereinafter for convenience called the Connect- Company, and caused certain of its officers and employes to be elected officers and directors of said Connecting Company and by virtue thereof at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of said Connecting Company; that said Trust Company, being under the obligation to construct said road as aforesaid, set about to discover a way in which it could cause said railroad to be constructed without incurring any liability itself, and without making itself liable for the possibility of a loss in such construction; that it thereupon conceived the idea of having the said Belt Company undertake the construction of said railroad, in consideration of the issuance of bonds and stock of said Connecting Company; that thereupon, by virtue of the domination and control which said Trust Company exercised over the affairs of both said Belt Company and said Connecting Company, the said Trust Company caused a contract to be entered into between said Belt Company and said Connecting Company, whereby the said Belt Company agreed to construct and did construct said line of railroad for said Connecting Company in consideration among other things, of the issuance to said Belt Company of certain first and second mortgage bonds and stock of said Connecting Company more fully specified in said contract; that said contract so entered into as aforesaid, is set up in exhibit "A" to the answer of the said Trust Company filed in the above entitled cause, to which reference is hereby made. The said line of railroad so built as aforesaid was constructed for the sole use and benefit of said Trust Company and for the purpose of enabling it to comply with its obligation to so furnish the said railroad; that the said railroad so furnished as aforesaid, was not and never has been of any value whatsoever to the Belt Company, and was not necessary or useful to its corporate purposes; that the construction of such road, as aforesaid, by said Belt Company, was the result of said Trust Company, by reason of its said domination of said Belt Company utilizing the said Belt Company to further and consummate its own purposes and ends, and for its own benefit; and the said contract for the construction of said railroad of said Connecting Company was so entered into by it as aforesaid solely by the domination and control exercised over said Belt Company by said 125 Trust Company, and the said Trust Company, in so constructing the said railroad as aforesaid, simply used the said Belt Company as an unwilling agency in the building of the same, and occupied towards said Belt Company the relation of principal; that each and all of the moneys paid out by said Belt Company for the construction of said connecting road, passed through the hands of said Trust Company, and all the bonds and stock which were to have been delivered to said Belt Company under the terms of said pretended contract, in like manner, passed through the hands of said Trust Company and said Trust Company proceeded to sell or otherwise dispose of the same; that said Trust Company never at any time accounted to the said Belt Company for the amount realized by it from said bonds and stock, but has pretended that the construction of said road by said Belt Company resulted in a loss to said Belt Company of about three Hundred Thousand Dollars. Your orators particularly charge and aver that the said Trust Company in so using the said Belt Company in the construction of said line, is charged in law and equity with the amount of the said loss so claimed to have resulted to said Belt Company, and should be held accountable therefor.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, that, during the time said Trust Company so dominated and controlled the affairs of said Belt Company it at various times had said Belt Company advance to it, or take out of the earnings and assets of said Belt Company, large sums of money which it pretended to expend for and on behalf of said Belt Company; that by reason of the fact that said Trust Company at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of said Belt Company, and had its own employees and servants elected as officers and directors of said Belt Company, your orators are unable to state the amount of money so appropriated by said Trust Company, and belonging to said Belt Company; and which said Trust Company alleges it expended for the corporate purposes of said Belt Company; but upon information and belief your orators charge and aver that said amount aggregates upward of Five Thousand Dollars; and that the said Trust Company has never at any time accounted for the said money so received by it, nor the manner in which it was expended, although often requested so to do, and that said Trust Company is in law and equity liable to account to your orators therefor.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, that during the times hereinbefore mentioned, the said Trust Company took upon itself the business of paying out practically all the moneys which were 126 paid out for the benefit of said Belt Company, and of buying for said Belt Company practically all of the property which said Belt Company needed to acquire in its business of operating said road and used the moneys of said Belt Company for that purpose, but instead of taking the title of the property so purchased in the name of said Belt Company, the said Trust Company caused other corporations to be formed -or the purpose of holding the naked legal title to said respective properties, and caused the capital stock of said corporations, so organized as aforesaid, to be issued to said Belt Company and then turned over to said Trust Company, or to be issued to said Trust Company direct, in trust for the use and benefit of the said Belt Company; and that the Trust Company caused its own servants, agents and employes to be elected and continued as the officers of such companies respectively, at all times down to the month of April, 1900, so that said Trust Company in the same manner that it controlled the affairs of said Belt Company, dominated and controlled the actions and affairs of said subsidiary companies, that among the companies so organized by the said Trust Company, in the manner aforesaid, is the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, with a capital stock of One Hundred Thousand Dollars, of which forty-two Thousand Dollars has been issued and all of which in truth and in fact belongs to the said Kansas City Suburban Belt railroad Company; that the said company owns two certain elevators in Kansas City along the line of said Belt Company; and that said Trust Company caused the construction of said elevators, and one other elevator, which has since been destroyed by fire, and in the construction of the same, used the money of the said Belt Company; said money being paid out to said Trust Company upon its request; that no accounting has ever been had between the said Trust Company and the said Belt Company as to the amount of money which it actually expended for the construction of said elevators, or of the manner in which it disposed of the funds received by it from the said Belt Company for the alleged purpose of undertaking such construction, although requests for such accounting have frequently been made upon the officers of said Trust Company; that the said Trust Company caused the said Belt Company to assume all the outstanding debts and liabilities of the said Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company and upon said outstanding debts and liabilities the said Belt Company has paid large sums of money, for which said Belt Company has never been reimbursed; that upon the 8th day of November A. D. 1900, one Wash Adams, Esq., was appointed receiver — the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company;

127 that at all times subsequent thereto the said Wash Adams has held possession of the property of the said Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, all of which in truth and fact belong to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company; that the said Trust Company also caused to be organized the Central Improvement Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Missouri, with a capital stock of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars, of which, One Hundred and Forty-one Thousand Five Hundred Dolars, has been issued; that said Company was organized for the purpose of holding the title to various pieces of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, and elsewhere, purchased for the use and benefit of the said Belt Company, and the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, another Missouri railroad corporation; that the said Improvement Company elected and continued its own servants and employes as officers and directors of the said Improvement Company, down until about the month of April, 1900; that certain pieces of real estate which are of vital importance to said Belt Company are held in the name of the said Improvement Company; and that property upon which is located a portion of the depot buildings belonging to the said Belt Company, is held in the name of the Second Street Improvement Company; that the said Trust Company took upon itself the duty of purchasing the said prices of property, and using for that purpose funds of the Belt Company; and various sums of money were, during the period above mentioned, paid out by the said Belt Company to the said Trust Company, for the purpose of purchasing such pieces of real estate, but the said Trust Company has never accounted to the said Belt Company, although often requested so to do, for the sums of money so received by it, and the disposition made by it of such sums of money; that certain shares of stock of the said Central Improvement Company were also, although belonging to said Belt Company, issued to said Trust Company, and it has disposed of the same; but although frequently requested so to do, it has never accounted to the said Belt Company therefor; that a large amount of property was purchased with money advanced by the said Belt Company, the title to which property, however, was taken in the name of the Central Improvement Company; that all of said property in truth and fact belongs to the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company; that said Belt Company has never been reimbursed for the money so advanced as aforesaid; that upon the 8th day of November A. D. 1900, one Wash Adams, Esq., was appointed receiver of the Central Improvement Company, that at all times subsequent thereto said Wash Adams has held possession of the property of the Central Improvement Company, all of which in truth and fact belongs to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company that another subsidiary company organ-128 ized by the said Trust Company was the Fairmount Amusement Company, with a total capital of Twenty-five Hundred Dollars, all of which belongs to the said Belt Company; that said Company was organized, dominated and controlled in the same manner by the said Trust Company as the other corporations hereinabove set forth; that all of the moneys expended by said Fairmount Amusement Company were moneys supplied by the said Belt Company, or supplied by the said Trust Company and charged to the said Belt Company; and the said Trust Company took upon itself the duty of disbursing all of the said funds; that large sums of money were paid by said Belt Company to said Trust Company for that purpose, but said Trust Company has never at any time accounted to said Belt Company for said money so received by it, or the manner in which it expended the same, although often requested to do so; that said Fairmount Amusement Company was organized for the purpose of operating what is commonly known as Fairmount Park along the line of the Kansas City and Independence Air Line road; that during the time that the said Trust Company so dominated and controlled the said Belt Company, it caused said Belt Company to advance to it large sums of money for the purpose of fitting up said Fairmount Park; that the said Trust Company took upon itself the duty of expending said sums of money for the purpose of fitting up said Fairmount Park; that, as your orators are informed and believe, upwards of Three Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars was thus supplied to said Trust Company for the purpose of fitting up said Fairmount Park; that said Trust Company has never at any time accounted to said Belt Company for the manner in which it expended said sums of money, although frequently requested so to [—]; that another company, organized by said Trust Company was the Northern Townsite Company a Missouri corporation with an authorized capital of One Hundred Thousand Dollars, of which, Ninety-two Thousand Eight Hundred has been issued. The said Company was organized by the said Trust Company in connection with the construction of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad for the purpose of acquiring property at and near townsites along the line of said road; that said Trust Company in the same manner as it dominated the other corporations above named, caused it- own servants and employes to be elected and maintained as officers and directors of said townsite company, and at all times dominated and controlled and still does dominate and control the affairs of the said townsite company, that the said Trust Company caused the said Belt Company to advance to it upwards of Five Thousand Dollars, which it used in the purchase of property which was taken in the name of the said Townsite Company; and your orators are 129 informed and believe, and on such information and belief, state, that substantially all the money with which the property of said Townsite Company was acquired was money advanced by the said Belt Company, and that the said Trust Company, instead of issuing to the said Belt Company all of the capital stock of the said Townsite Company, issued large portions of it to itself or to other persons for its use and benefit, or otherwise disposed of the same; that the said Trust Company has never accounted to the said Belt Company at any time for the money so received by it for the purposes of the said Townsite Company from the said Belt Company, or the manner in which it expended the same, although frequently requested so to do.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, that the said Trust Company also caused to be organized under the laws of the State of Missouri a corporation known as the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, for the purpose of constructing a line of railroad from Kansas City to Gulf of Mexico; and that the said railroad was so constructed under the direction of the said Trust Company acting through the said railroad corporation, and for the purpose of acquiring funds with which to construct the said railroad, the said Railroad Company issued its first mortgage, to secure the issue of bonds herein specified, and on or about the first day of April, 1899, there were issued and outstanding bonds to the amount of twenty-three million dollars; that at that time a default was made in the payment of an installment of interest due on the said bonds, and a bill was forthwith filed for the foreclosure thereof, and receivers of said railroad were appointed, and thereafter such proceedings were had that the said railroad was sold under the foreclosure decree.

130 mortgages upon the property foreclosed; that the said Trust Company by reason of the domination and control which it exercised over the affairs of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, well knew at and for some time prior to the first day of April, 1889, that said Company would make default in the payment of the installment of interest due on that date, and that such default would inevitably result in the filing of a bill to foreclose the mortgage and the appointment of a receiver for the said road; and that the said Trust Company thereupon set about to contrive a scheme whereby it might appropriate to itself, before the said Belt Company passed beyond its control, all of the remaining property and assets of the said Belt Company which were in such shape that they could by any possibility be transferred to the said Trust Company; that the said Trust Company thereupon caused to be exhibited to its own officers and employes who were holding the positions of officers and directors of the said Belt Company, various claims and demands which if alleged were due and owing by the said Belt Company to it, and caused such of its own officers and employes who were holding the positions of officers and directors of the said Belt Company to pass upon and approve the said claim and demands; and thereupon caused its own officers and employes so holding the positions of officers and directors in the said Belt Company, between the 31st day of March, 1899, and the 9th day of February, 1900, to execute to said Trust Company various pretended promissory notes and other negotiable instruments, for the alleged purpose of securing to the said Trust Company the payment of the said pretended claims which it held against the said Belt Company, and caused its own officers and employes, so holding the positions of officers and directors of the said Belt Company, to cause to be delivered or transferred to it, various stocks, bonds and accounts and other personal property belonging to the said Belt Company as collateral security for the said pretended indebtedness of the said Belt Company [Company] to the said Trust Company.

Your orators further charge and aver upon information and belief that the notes so fraudulently caused to be made in form by the said Belt Company to the said Trust Company, are as follows:

Note dated March 31, 1889, payable on July 2nd, 1899, for $50,000, with interest at the rate of 6% per annum.

Note dated July 26, 1899, payable on demand with 6% interest, for $203,900.

Note dated Sept. 21, 1899, payable on demand, with 8% interest, for $23,056.48.

131 Note dated Oct. 23, 1899, payable on demand, with 8% interest for $7162.40.

Note dated November 7, 1899, due January 9, 1900, with 8% interest, for $25,000.

Note dated Jan. 21, 1900, due May 25, 1900, with 8% interest, for $25,000.

Note dated February 8, 1900, due May 12, 1900, with 8% interest, for $109,500.

Note dated Feb. 9, 1900, due June 11, 1900, with 8% interest for $10,400.

The stocks, bonds and other property which the said Trust Company fraudulently caused its own officers and employes as officers and directors of the said Belt Company to turn over to it, for the purpose of securing the payment of the said pretended notes, as aforesaid, is as follows:

338 First Mortgage, 30 year 5% gold bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company of the denomination of $1000, dated January 1, 1897, being bonds numbered 1467, 1769 to 1733, both inclusive; 1799 to 1818 both inclusive; 1324 to 1331 both inclusive, 1756 to 1768, both inclusive, 1184 to 1215, both inclusive; 1455, 1359 to 1400, both inclusive; 1431 to 1440, both inclusive; 1609 to 1658, both inclusive, 1659 to 1708, both inclusive; 1819 to 1851 both inclusive; 1774 to 1798, both inclusive; 1301 to 1323, both inclusive, and 76 of said bonds, the numbers of which are not known to your orators.

67 and 9-10 second mortgage, 30 year 5% income bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company, of the denomination of $1000, each dated January 1st, 1897, being bonds numbered 1064 to 1098, both inclusive; 1149 to 1157, both inclusive; 1162 to 1173, both inclusive, 1192 to 1202, both inclusive.

Certificate No. 229, entitling the holder to 250-1000 of said mortgage income bonds.

Certificate No. 227, entitling the holder to 250-1000 of said mortgage income bonds.

Certificate No. 220, entitling the holder to 150-1000 of said second mortgage income bonds.

25 shares of the capital stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company of the par value of $100 each, as evidenced by certificates Nos. 9, 6, 5 and 4.

132 1120 shares of the capital stock of the Central Improvement Company, of the par value of $100, each, as evidenced by certificate- No. 148, 149 and 147.

439 shares of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company of the par value of $100, each, as evidenced by certificate No. 11.

425 shares of the capital stock of the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, of the par value of $100, each, as evidenced by certain certificates Nos. 36, 34, 37, 40 and 38.

19,997 shares of the 20,000 shares constituting the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company.

4994 shares of the capital stock of the Kansas City and Independence Air Line.

15 Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Co.'s second mortgage income bonds.

About 600 tons of new steel rails, theretofore purchased by, and then belonging to said Belt Company, and being stored in its yards.

Your orators further charge that the Trust Company also caused the Belt Company to assign to it an account against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, in an amount of about $130,000, to secure said alleged indebtedness.

Your orators further charge and aver, upon information and belief, that the said notes were executed, and said account assigned, and the said property above described given as collateral security solely under and by virtue of the domination and control of the said Trust Company over the said Belt Company, and at the time the said action was pretended to have been taken by the said Belt Company the officers and directors of the said Belt Company so causing said Belt Company to take such action, were either officers and directors, or servants and employes of the said Trust Company, and as such officers and directors, or servants and employes of the said Trust Company, were personally interested in securing to the said Trust Company, all the available assets of the said Belt Company, and that the execution of said Promissory notes and the delivery of the said collateral security under such circumstances, was fraudulent and void as against the said Belt Company, and in law and equity ought to be set aside.

Your orators further charge and aver upon information and belief that the said Trust Company continued to keep its own officers, servants and employes filling the positions of officers and di-133 rectors of the said Belt Company down to about the month of April, 1900, when the said Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, having been sold under foreclosure decree, and a reorganization of said property joined with said Belt Company having been undertaken, the control of the said Belt Company passed into other hands, and that during all the time until said month of April, 1900, the said Trust Co[illegible]y continuously kept its own officers and employes in the positions of officers and directors of the said Belt Company, so that at no time were there any persons holding the positions of officers and directors of said Belt Company, who were not personally interested in said Trust Company, and desirous of assisting the said Trust Company in every possible way; and at no time was there ever any accounting had between the said Trust Company and the said Belt Company, for or by reason of any of the matters and things hereinabove set — except such an accounting as the officers and employes of the Trust Company, so holding the positions of officers and directors of the said Belt Company pretended to make in looking over and going through the form of approving the accounts and statements rendered to said Belt Company by said Trust Company.

Your orators further show unto the court that ever since the control of the said Belt Company passed out of the hands of said Trust Company, the said Belt Company prior to the appointment of your orators as receivers, endeavored to procure from the said Trust Company an accounting for and by reason of the matters and things hereinabove set forth, for the purpose of determining the true state of accounts between the said Belt Company and the said Trust Company; but all such demands of the Belt Company have been refused by the said Trust Company.

Your orators further charge and aver that the elevator properties owned by the said Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, hereinabove described, are situated along the line of the road now being operated by your orators; that the said elevator properties are necessary and essential to the operation of the said road, and that it is indispensible to the operation of the said road that the said elevator properties be retained for the use and benefit of the said road. That the said property of the said elevator company is in truth and in fact as your orators are informed and believe, the property of the said Belt Company, the said Elevator Company being a mere dummy holding the naked title.

That as your orators are informed and believe there is standing in the name of the said Central Improvement Company much 134 valuable property necessary to the operation of the said road; that the said property belongs in truth and in fact to the said Belt Company, and the naked title is held in the name of the said Central Improvement Company.

In consideration whereof, and for as much as your orators are remediless in the premises, except in a court of equity, your orators therefore pray the aid of this court;

(a) That an accounting be taken of the various transactions and dealings between the said Trust Company and its receiver, and the said Belt Company; or by the said Trust Company and its receiver for the use and benefit of and as trustee and agent for said Belt Company, and that the said Trust Company and its receiver be required to pay the balance found to be due by it, if any upon such accounting.

That in taking such accounting all claims and demands alleged to be held by the said Trust Company and its receiver against the said Belt Company in Kansas and Missouri where the said Trust Company used the said Belt Company simply as an instrumentality and agency for its own use and benefit, be charged against the said Trust Company, and it be held liable for all losses incurred or claimed to have been incurred by said Belt Company about the same.

(b) That the said notes hereinabove described may be found and decreed by this court to have been executed in the fraudulent manner and for the fraudulent purposes above set forth, and without consideration; and that said notes may be by this court directed to be surrendered up and canceled, and that each and all of the stocks, bonds and other securities, including the assigned account above mentioned, fraudulently delivered to the said Trust Company by its own officers and employes in the manner hereinabove set forth, may be ordered by this court surrendered and delivered up or reassigned to said Belt Company.

(c) That each and all the property purchased with the money of the said Belt Company and belonging in equity to it, the legal title to which is held in the name of any of the companies hereinabove set forth, may be required by the decree of this honorable court to be conveyed to the said Belt Company, or to its receivers for it.

Your orators further pray that a writ of injunction may issue herein against the said Guardian Trust Company, its agents, servants and employees, and Francis M. Black, its Receiver, restraining and enjoining them and each of them from selling, transferring or in any wise disposing of the said notes above mentioned, and so 135 executed by the said Belt Company to the said Trust Company, and from selling, transferring or in anywise disposing of the said bonds, stocks, accounts and other property hereinabove described, delivered to said Trust Company as collateral security for said notes.

And may it please your Honors to grant unto your orators the subpœna of the United States of America issuing out of and under the seal of this Honorable Court, directed to the Guardian Trust Company and to Francis M. Black, its Receiver, the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company and to Wash Adams, its Receiver, the Fairmount Amusement Company, the Central Improvement Company and Wash Adams, its Receiver, the Second Street Improvement Company, the defendants herein respectively, therein and thereby commanding them on a day certain therein to be made, and under a certain penalty, to be and appear before this Honorable Court then and there to answer (but not under oath, an answer under oath being hereby expressly waived) all and singular, the premises to stand and perform and abide by such orders, directions or decrees as may be made in the premises and as shall seem meet and agreeable to equity and good conscience.

And your orators will ever pray.

138 Ancillary Bill.

Separate Answer of the Defendants Guardian Trust Company and Francis M. Black, Its Receiver, to the Bill Called "Ancillary Bill of Complaint," Filed by Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, as Complainants.

Now come the defendants, the Guardian Trust Company and Francis M. Black, its Receiver, and now, and at all times hereafter, saving and reserving to themselves all benefit and advantage of exceptions which can or may — had or taken to the many errors, uncertainties and other imperfections in the said bill contained, for their separate answer thereto, or to so much thereof and such portions thereof as these defendants are advised it is necessary or essential for them to answer unto, answering say:

1. That it is true, as alleged in the said ancillary bill, that Francis M. Black was appointed receiver for the Guardian Trust Company, and that he has qualified and is now acting as such receiver and that the residence and citizenship of the various parties are correctly stated in the said ancillary bill.

2. These defendants admit that the Cambria Steel Company heretofore filed its original bill of complaint in this court against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the several other defendants named, setting up a judgment which it had on the same day obtained against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, seeking to subject certain alleged rights, properties and assets belonging to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and some of the other defendants, to the payment of its said judgment.

These defendants, further answering, state that it is true that four certain other bills of complaint were duly filed in this court, each by The Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia against the various railroad companies named in the ancillary bill of complaint; the alleged purpose of which said bills of complaint was to foreclose certain mortgages on railroad properties therein described; but this defendant states and shows to the court that the said original bill of complaint of the Cambria Steel Company, and the said four bills of complaint so brought by the said The Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia, were each and all filed at one and the same time by the same counsel, and as separate parts of one and the same transaction, and that all of the said four suits by the Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia, and also the 139 said suit of the Cambria Steel Company, were instituted at the solicitation and request and by collusion with the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, for the fraudulent purpose of hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and particularly the defendant, the Guardian Trust Company, which was one of said creditors.

It is also true that on the same day on which all of said suits were filed, the said Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney were appointed in all of said causes, as receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, with the rights, powers and duties alleged in the said ancillary bill.

These defendants deny that the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company has ever filed any answer to the said original bill of complaint of the said Cambria Steel Company, and state that if it should file any such answer, the same will be collusive and fraudulent, for the purpose of carrying out the purposes of said suit in hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company.

3. Further answering these defendants state that the Guardian Trust Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, in the year 1889, and not in the year 1883, as alleged in the said ancillary bill; that the said Trust Company was originally incorporated under the name of the "Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, but afterwards changed its name in the manner provided by statute to "Guardian Trust Company."

4. These defendants state that it is true that in the month of January, 1887, a corporation was formed under the laws of the State of Missouri, known as The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, which is afterwards referred to in the ancillary bill as the "Suburban Company," for the purpose of building a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas. These defendants say that it is untrue, and hence they deny that the said Suburban Company was organized by the defendant the Trust Company, but aver the fact to be that the said Suburban Company was organized and incorporated some two years before the said defendant Trust Company was created, and the Trust Company had nothing to do with the organization of the said Suburban Company.

It is also untrue that the servants, employes, officers or directors of the Trust Company in any way became or were the officers or directors of the Suburban Company, for several years after the latter company's incorporation, and it is untrue that the Trust 140 Company at all times or at any time dominated and controlled the said Suburban Company.

These defendants deny that the Suburban Company, by reason of the alleged domination, or for any reason whatever, caused the Suburban Company to issue and deliver to the Trust Company all of its Capital Stock, and deny that the Trust Company caused the said Suburban Company to execute its bonds, in the sum of One Million Dollars, or any other amount, and deny that the Trust Company caused said bonds to be delivered to it, and deny that the Trust Company proceeded to sell or otherwise dispose of said bonds and stock, and to apply the proceeds thereof, except as hereinafter stated. And these defendants deny that the said Trust Company has ever refused or failed to fully account to the said Suburban Company for any property, choses in action, moneys or other things of the said Suburban Company, which may have come into its hands at any time and by any means, but state that the contrary is true, that the Trust Company has frequently, from time to time fully accounted to the Suburban Company for all moneys, property, effects and assets which may, in any way have come into the hands of the said Trust Company, belonging to the said Suburban Company.

These defendants further answering the said ancillary bill concerning the connection of the Trust Company with the said Suburban Company, state and show to the court as follows:

The said Suburban Company was incorporated in January, 1887; that it soon after said date authorized the issuance of $1,500,000.00 of its capital stock; and said Suburban Company for the first two years of its existence had done considerable preliminary work in the way of procuring franchises to use certain streets in Kansas City, along which to build its railroad from a point near Second and Broadway Streets in Kansas City, Missouri, in an easterly direction to a point near Cecil Station on the Missouri Pacific Railway, in what is known as the East Bottoms, being a distance of about four and one half miles; and had also done considerable work in making surveys and locating its said line, and in the way of constructing a portion of its roadbed; but it had been unable to make any arrangements whereby it could dispose of its securities or otherwise raise money with which to build and complete its road or any considerable portion of it being in that condition it did, about

April or May 1899, apply to A. E. Stillwell, who was then one of the Vice Presidents of the defendant Trust Company, and who then did not have and never prior thereto had had any connection with or interest whatever in the said Suburban Company, but who had an extended and favorable acquaintance with men of 141 capital, and was recognized as having skill in soliciting and procuring capitalists to subscribe to and invest in such enterprises. And the said Suburban Company at said time requested him, the said Stillwell, to use his efforts to procure the money with which to build and complete the said portion of its road from Second and Broadway Streets to Cecil Station.

That negotiations were then had between the said Stilwell and the said Suburban Company, which resulted in a contract between the said Suburban Company and the said Stilwell, whereby the said Suburban Company agreed to issue and deliver to the said Stilwell $450,000.00 of its first mortgage bonds, out of a total issue, as then contemplated of $500,000.00, and $900,000.00 of its capital stock if the said Stilwell would build or cause to be built the said portion of the said railroad. That said contract was duly authorized by the Board of Directors of the Suburban Company at a meeting lawfully called, and by its stockholders at a meeting duly called and convened on May 31st, 1889. That at the time of the making of said contract, none of the directors or stockholders of the Suburban Company except E. L. Martin, had any connection with or interest in the Trust Company, and none of the Directors, Officers, and stockholders of the Trust Company, except E. L. Martin, had any interest in or connection with said Suburban Company. That said contract was made at arm's length between said parties, free from any domination, direction or control whatever on the part of the Trust Company, and that a large majority of the Board of Directors of the said Suburban Company continued to be composed of persons wholly disconnected with the Trust Company, until the said portion of said railroad was completed and paid for in accordance with the terms of said contract.

That the said Stilwell thereupon procured subscribers to the stock of and the incorporation of a construction company, known as the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, under the laws of the State of Missouri, which did the work of carrying out the said contract which the said Suburban Company had made with him, the said Stilwell.

That, in order to comply with the said construction contract on its part, and to build additional portions of its road, the said Suburban Company duly authorized the issue of $1,000,000.00 of bonds and authorized the execution of a mortgage upon all of its property then owned or subsequently to be acquired, to secure the payment of said bonds, and appointed the defendant as Trustee under said mortgage.

That upon the completion of the said contract for the con-
142 struction of the said portion of said road between Second and Broadway Streets and Cecil Station, the Suburban Company caused to be issued and certified by the Trust Company as Trustee $500,000, of its said first mortgage bonds, all of which the said Suburban Company used in paying the said construction company for its work in building the said portion of said road, and in compensating some of its officers and directors for services rendered and money advanced and expended by them theretofore; but the said Trust Company had nothing to do with or any connection with the said $500,000.00 of bonds except to certify them as Trustee, at the request of the Suburban Company, and to deliver them on its direction. That at the same time, the said Suburban Company issued and delivered to the said construction company and to its said officers and promoters, for their said labor and services 7,000 shares of its capital stock, which capital stock then had no value; but the defendant Trust Company had nothing to do, either directly or indirectly with the disposition of said $500,000.00 in bonds, or the said 7,000 shares of stock.

That when the said Kansas City Terminal Construction Company received said shares of stock, 6,000 in number, under its said contract, as aforesaid, it then held and owned a majority of the outstanding stock of the Suburban Company, and it, the said construction Company distributed the said stock to its own stockholders by way of dividends or as a distribution of its assets, whereby the stockholders of the said construction company became stockholders, and the holders of a large majority of the outstanding stock of the Suburban Company, and thereafter, as such stockholders, they elected directors of the Suburban Company of their own choice, which choice fell upon persons who were mainly either directors, officers or employes of the Trust Company, but it is untrue, as alleged in the said ancillary bill, that the Trust Company had anything to do with causing its officers, directors or employes to be elected as the officers or directors of the said Suburban Company, but the stockholders of the said Suburban Company chose their own directors, and the Trust Company held but little, if any stock of the Suburban Company, and had but little, if any, voice in the choice of such directors. It was in this way, as above stated that the persons who were directors and officers of the Trust Company came to be directors and officers of the Suburban Company, and not othe-wise.

After the Suburban Company had thus disposed of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars of its bonds and 7,000 shares of its stock, it had remaining in its treasury undisposed of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars in bonds, and 8,000 shares of stock, with which to build an extension of its road from said Cecil Station to Brush
143 Creek, Jackson County, Missouri. The Suburban Company desired to build and did build this extension itself, without the intervention of a contractor; and the Suburban Company requested the Trust Company to sell and dispose of the said $500,000.00 of bonds remaining in its treasury and so much of the said stock as might be necessary in order to raise the money for the purpose of building the said extension. That said stock was wholly without any value, and could not be sold for anything, and that on account of the incomplete condition of the property and the uncertainty of its outcome, the Trust Company was unable at that time to sell and dispose of said bonds without great sacrifice, and, having faith in the enterprise and in its future value, the Trust Company bought the said Five Hundred Thousand Dollars of bonds from the said Suburban Company, at and for a price named at ninety-three per cent, or $930.00 for each $1,000.00 bond, with the understanding and agreement, however that the Trust Company was to have a discount from said price of three per cent on the face of said bonds. The reason of this was that the Suburban Company was perfectly willing to dispose of its bonds at 93 per cent and give to any one who would sell them a commission therefor of 3 per cent, and to give a large amount of stock in addition thereto as a bonus, to any purchaser, because said stock was then without value, and inasmuch as the Trust Company could not find purchasers for the bonds, it was agreed that the Trust Company might itself take the bonds at a price named as 93 per cent, with the said discount of 3 per cent.

That the Trust Company thereupon, for the purpose of enabling the Suburban Company to proceed promptly with its work, did take said bonds at said price, with 2,200 shares of the capital stock of said Suburban Company as a bonus.

That the Trust Company fully paid and accounted to the said Suburban Company for -he total purchase price of said $500,000.00 of bonds and 2,200 shares of stock. That the price paid therefor by the Trust Company was a full and a fair price, and more than could have been obtained from other sources at that time.

The Trust Company carried these bonds for several years, before it was able to sell them, and then sold them at various times and in various amounts and quantities, at about the same price that it had paid for them.

The facts as above stated constitute all of the business transactions by and between the said Suburban Company and the said Trust Company in respect of said stock and bonds prior to and 144 up to the time that the said Suburban Company consolidated with the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City, as stated in the said ancillary bill.

That all of said transactions above referred to occurred more than ten years prior to the filing of this ancillary bill; that all of the facts and transactions above referred to were public, open and were known to, acquiesced in, and ratified and approved by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Suburban Company, more than ten years ago. Wherefore these defendants plead the statutes of limitations, and say that the complainants should not now be allowed to inquire into the transactions closed and approved so long ago.

That about the time or soon after the consolidation above mentioned, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company increased its capital stock to $—.

Several years afterwards, and after the consolidation above referred to, and after a large portion of the railroad of said Belt Company had been completed and was in operation, and had begun to show that it had or soon would have some value as a money earner, the Trust Company bought from the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, referred to in the ancillary bill as the "Belt Company," from time to time, certain of its shares of stock, for the purpose of supplying the Belt Company with needed money, and afterwards, from time to time sold, for and on account of the said Belt Company, certain other shares of its capital stock, and the details thereof, are as follows:

On August 29th, 1894, the Trust Company bought from the Belt Company 200 shares of its capital stock, at the price of $18.00 per share, and paid therefor that amount, which the Belt Company received.

On October 10th, 1894, the Trust Company sold to others for and on account of the Belt Company 500 shares of its stock at $19.00 per share, and charged no commission for its services, and the full selling price of said 500 shares of stock was paid to the Belt Company and it received the same.

On December 22nd, 1894, the Trust Company sold to others for and on account of the Belt Company 4000 shares of its capital stock, at $20.00 per share, and charged the Belt Company as a commission therefor $1.00 per share, and paid to the Belt Company the net proceeds of said sale, after deducting said commission, and the Belt Company received the same.

On February 26th, 1895, the Trust Company bought from the Belt Company 221 and a fraction shares of its stock, at $22.00
145 per share and paid the full amount of the purchase price of the Belt Company, and the Belt Company received the same.

On March 5th, 1895, the Trust Company bought from the Belt Company 529 shares of its stock at $27.00 per share, and paid the full purchase price thereof to the Belt Company, which the Belt Company received.

On April 20th, 1895, the Trust Company bought from the Belt Company 1900 shares of its capital stock at $32.00 per share and paid the full purchase price thereof to the Belt Company, which the Belt Company received.

That the price for which the Trust Company bought said stock of the Belt Company, and the price for which the Trust Company sold said stock for and o naccount of the Belt Company as above set forth, and enumerated, were fair and reasonable, and all that the stock was worth, and that the commission charged by the Trust Company for its services in selling portions of said stock, as above stated, was a fair and reasonable commission, and all of said transactions were known to, acquiesced in and ratified by the officers, directors and stockholders of the Belt Company from time to time as the same were had and done.

5. These defendants further answering deny that the Trust Company caused a corporation known as the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City, to be formed for the purposes alleged in said ancillary bill, or for any purpose whatever, and deny that the Trust Company had anything to do with the formation or organization of the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company had anything to do with electing or causing to be elected its servants and employees as the officers and directors of the said Consolidated Company, and deny that the Trust Company at all times or at any time dominated or controlled the Consolidated Company; deny that the Trust Company caused the Consolidated Company to issue and deliver to it its entire capital stock, or any part of it, or its bonds aggregating the sum of $750,000.00, or any other amount, and deny that the Trust Company at any time proceeded to sell and dispose of the bonds and stock of the said Consolidated Company, and to apply the proceeds thereof in any manner or to any extent, except as hereinafter stated. And the defendants deny that the Trust Company ever failed or refused to fully and fairly account to the Consolidated Company for any of the property, assets or choses
146 in action of the Consolidated Company which came into the hands of the Trust Company, or for the disposition made thereof by the Trust Company, but state the contrary to be true, that the Trust Company at all times when requested, and without request, fully and fairly accounted to the Consolidated Company for everything that the Trust Company received in which the Consolidated Company had any interest.

These defendants further answering state that the facts concerning the affairs of the said Consolidated Company, so far as these defendants or either of them know or had any concern or connection with, are as follows:

After the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company had caused its said One Million Dollars of bonds to be exhausted in building and equipping its road from Second and Broadway to Brush Creek, it was without means to build any other extensions or additions to its road; whilst it is true that it had the lawful power, under its charter, to build and construct an extension of its road from Second and Broadway westward to the state line between Kansas and Missouri, yet it did not have the financial ability to do so, and inasmuch as its mortgage previously given covered all property which it then had or might afterwards acquire, it could not in its own name issue any new mortgage on any extension which would be a first lien thereon. For these reasons and because the Belt Company saw it was necessary to extend its road to and connect it with the packing houses and other large shipping industries in the West Bottoms, it found it necessary to extend its road from Second and Broadway to the State Line between Missouri and Kansas, and in order to do this, the Belt Company, itself, through its officers and agents, caused the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City to be formed and incorporated, and caused it to issue $750,000.00 of stock and $750,000.00 of first mortgage bonds, and to give a mortgage which was a first lien upon all of its property then owned or afterwards to be acquired, to secure said bonds, and made the defendant Trust Company its

Trustee under said mortgage, and caused the officers and employes of the Belt Company to be chosen as the Directors and Officers of the Consolidated Company. That the said Consolidated Company was simply an artificial arm of the Belt Company itself, created for its own purposes, and to build extensions and additions to its road. That the Belt Company was wholly without means to defray the expenses of building said extension or any part thereof and that its only means of raising the necessary money therefor was to dispose of the stock and bonds which it had caused the Con-
147 solidated Company to authorize and issue, and at the instance and request of the Belt Company, the Trust Company undertook to act as the agent of the Belt Company in procuring the necessary franchises and rights of way and in placing the said bonds and stock of said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company, and in advancing money to defray the expenses of the said extension of said road to the State Line.

That the stock which the Consolidated Company was authorized to issue was, of course, without any value at that time, and the said Company authorized the Trust Company to give the said stock to purchasers of the bonds as a bonus, at the ratio of 8 shares of stock with each bond, and the Belt Company promised to pay to the Trust Company in consideration of its services in selling and disposing of the said bonds and stocks and acting as such financial agent for the Belt Company in respect to such bonds and stocks, a sum equal to twelve per cent of such of said $750,000.00 of bonds as the Trust Company might sell, three-fifths of which amount was to be paid in cash out of the proceeds of such sales, and the other two-fifths was to be paid in stocks and bonds of the said company at the same price at which others of said bonds and stock could be disposed of by the Trust Company to other people; which was a fair and reasonable commission and one which the said company could well afford to pay, under the circumstances, in order to raise the money it needed.

That the Trust Company then proceeded to sell said bonds, with said stock as a bonus, and from time to time was able to find purchasers for some of said bonds at that price, but, being unable to sell them fast enough to supply the money necessary to defray the costs and expenses of procuring the right of way and constructing the road, as the same was from time to time needed, it was agreed by and between the said Consolidated Company, and the Suburban Company and the Trust Company, that the Trust Company should itself buy such of said bonds as it was willing to buy, at the same price, namely, at 80 per cent of their face value, with 8 shares of stock with each bond as a bonus, and should in paying and settling therefor, be entitled to deduct twelve per cent of the face of said bonds from the purchase price, and in this way should account to the railroad company for the bonds which the Trust Company might buy in the same way and on the same terms that it was to account for bonds sold by it to others.

That the Trust Company from time to time sold to others 504 of said bonds, at $800.00 each, with which went 3932 shares of said stock as a bonus, which was 8 shares of stock for each of said bonds, the details of which sales are as follows:

148 (The dates given below are the dates when the first payment was made on each sale of bonds. The Trust Company kept no record of the exact date when the sale was made. The Trust Company is unable to give the date of the first sale named below, but the bond record of the Consolidated Company, in the possession of the complainants in this ancillary bill, will show.)

Dec. 17th, 1891 The Trust Company bought 31 bonds, at 80 with 248 shares of stock as a bonus.

Nov. 7th, 1892. The Trust Company bought 15 bonds at 85 with 120 shares of stock as a bonus.

Dec. 8th, 1892. The Trust Company bought 167 bonds at 80 with 238 shares of stock as a bonus.

Total 213 Bonds. 756 shares.

The Trust Company in November 1891, took in part payment on its said commission and services 33 of said bonds at 80 with 240 shares of said stock as a bonus.

The above accounts for all of the 750 bonds and 4928 shares of the stock of the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City. The Trust Company never received or had anything to do with the remaining 2572 shares of the stock of said company, but is informed and believes that the same were converted into stock of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company after its amalgamation with the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company.

In addition to taking the said 33 bonds as aforesaid, in part payment for its said commissions, services and advancements, the Trust Company charged to the account of the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company therefor, further sums, at divers times, as follows:

October 27th, 1891.....	$30,000.00
December 17th, 1891.....	6,000.00
April 4th, 1892.....	6,000.00
April 25th, 1892.....	7,000.00

That after deducting from the commissions so charged for its said services, by the Trust Company, the amount of advance-150 ments made by it, the remainder was much less than 12 per cent of the face value of the bonds so disposed of by and purchased by the Trust Company.

That the Trust Company from time to time paid to and paid out for the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City, all of the proceeds of the sale of said bonds and stock, less such charges for services, commissions and expenditures and the said Consolidated Company accepted and received the benefit thereof, as these defendants have frequently shown, and are now ready and willing to again show to this Honorable Court, in so far as the same may be required.

That all of the charges made by said Trust Company were fair and reasonable, and all of the transactions had between the Trust Company and the said Consolidated Company and the Suburban Company, in relation to the said bonds and stock of said Consolidated Company, as well as in connection with any and all other business between them were fully known to, approved by, acquiesced in and ratified by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Consolidated Company, and of its successor the said Belt Company more than five years prior to the institution of this suit, and these defendants plead the statute of limitations of the state of Missouri in bar of the complainant's suit.

6. These defendants further answering state that it is true that as alleged in said ancillary bill, on or about the 25th day of July, 1892, the said Consolidated Company and the said Suburban Company, entered into Articles of Consolidation under the statutes of the state of Missouri, whereby the said two companies became one consolidated corporation and was thereafter known as the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and called in the ancillary bill the "Belt Company".

These defendants deny that at the time of the consolidation of said two companies, or at any other time, the said Trust Company caused its officers and employes to be elected to the positions of officers and directors of the said consolidated company, but state that the stockholders of the said two companies after their consolidation elected their own officers and directors, without any interference or influence on the part of the Trust Company. It is true, however, that certain persons who were connected with the Trust Company were chosen as some of the directors and officers of the said consolidated company; but these defendants deny that the Trust Company at any time, as alleged in the ancillary bill, dominated or controlled the actions of the Belt Company.

7. These defendants, further answering, admit, as stated in the ancillary bill of complaint, that it was found advisable about 151 the 30th day of December, 1891, to have a corporation formed under the laws of the State of Kansas, for the purpose of building and holding the title to a further extension of the said belt railroad system from the state line westward to Argentine, in the State of Kansas; but these defendants deny that the Trust Company caused the said The Union Terminal Railroad Company to be organized for that purpose or any other purpose, but state the fact to be that the said The Union Terminal Railroad Company was organized for that purpose by the Belt Company.

And these defendants deny that the Trust Company cause its officers and employes to be elected as the officers and directors of the said Union Company, but state that the Belt Company caused the officers and directors of the said Union Company to be elected, without any interference or domination whatever on the part of the Trust Company.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company caused all of the stock, or any of the stock of the said Union Company to be issued to the said Suburban Company or Belt Company, and deny that the Trust Company caused the said Union Company to execute its first mortgage bonds in the amount of $2,000,000.00 or any other amount; but they admit that the said Union Company did authorize the issuance of $2,000,000.00 of bonds, and executed its first mortgage to secure the same, and made the said Trust Company its Trustee in said mortgage. The said Union Company though being in fact an independent corporate entity, was really organized by the Belt Company for its use and benefit and for the purpose of building the said extension to said belt railroad.

These defendants deny that the said bonds were issued and delivered to the Trust Company for the use and benefit of the Suburban or Belt Company, except as hereinafter stated.

These defendats deny that the Trust Company ever failed or refused, when requested, to fully and fairly account to the said Union Company and the Belt Company for any and all disposition made by it of any of the bonds, stocks or property of either of said companies; but state that upon the contrary, the Trust Company has frequently accounted to both the Union Company and the Belt Company for all property, choses in action, money or assets of whatever nature which came into its hands in which either of said companies had any interest.

That the said Union Company and the said Belt Company were obliged to dispose of the said bonds and stock of the said Union Company for the purpose of raising the money with which 152 to acquire and construct the said extension into the state of Kansas, as they had no other means of raising the money for that purpose. That at the special instance and request of the said Union Company and said Belt Company, the Trust Company undertook and agreed to act as the Trustee and financial agent for them in and about the matter of disposing of said stocks and bonds of the Union Company, and financing said enterprise, and to render such services and advance such moneys as might be necessary to procure the necessary franchises therefor, and to establish, and put in operation warehouses, factories and other like industries along the line of the said Belt Railroad; and the said Suburban Company and the said Union Company agreed to pay the Trust Company a reasonable compensation for its services, advances and responsibilities in that behalf.

That it was impossible to find purchasers for said bonds at a greater price than 82 per cent of their face value, and only then provided considerable quantities of the stock of the said Union Company should go with the bonds as a bonus; but said stock, as a matter of fact, at that time, and for several years after, was without any value. That the Trust Company immediately after the organization of the said Union Company, in pursuance of the request and agreement above stated, proceeded to finance the said Union Company, and to sell its said bonds and stock, or to buy them when other purchasers could not be found in time to supply the needed money, and to render important and valuable services in connection with the securing of franchises for the building of the road, and advance, from time to time, such moneys as might be needed therefor; and the Trust Company continued to act as such financial agent and to render such services until the said extension of such road of the Union Company was completed, which extended over a period of several years.

That is was understood and agreed between the Trust Company and the said Union Company and the Belt Company, that in case the Trust Company could not find purchasers for said bonds fast enough to supply money needed for the construction of said road, that the Trust Company might itself buy such of said bonds as it was willing to buy, at the same price that like bonds were being sold to other persons, and to deduct from the price thereof a sum equal to what would be a fair commission for selling the bonds to others; that is to say, the Trust Company in case it bought any of said bonds, was to account to the Union Company or the Belt Company for the price of said bonds, in the same manner and upon the same terms as it was to account to them for bonds sold to other people.

153 That the Trust Company from time to time, for and on behalf of the said Union Company and Belt Company, sold to other persons 444 of the bonds of said Union Company, and 3096 shares of its stock, at the times, and upon the terms as shown in the following detailed statement; that is to say the Trust Company sold to others.

In August,	1892,	50 bonds at	82	with 400 shares of stock as a bonus.
In September,	1892,	132 bonds at	82	with 1056 shares of stock as a bonus.
In October,	1892,	36 bonds at	82	with 288 shares of stock as a bonus.
In November,	1892,	12 bonds at	82	with 96 shares of stock as a bonus.
In December,	1892,	22 bonds at	82	with 176 shares of stock as a bonus.
In January,	1893,	10 bonds at	82	with 80 shares of stock as a bonus.
In October,	1897,	82 bonds at	100	with no shares as a bonus.
In August,	1898,	10 bonds at	95	with no shares as bonus.
In September,	1898,	10 bonds at	95	with no shares as bonus.
In October,	1898,	30 bonds at	92½	with no shares as bonus.
In December,	1898,	1 bonds at	92½	with no shares as bonus.
In January,	1899,	11 bonds at	92½	with no shares as bonus.
In February,	1899,	10 bonds at	92½	with no shares as bonus.
In February,	1899,	28 bonds at	90	with no shares as bonus.
July, 23rd,	1894,		1000	shares at $17.50 per share.
Total,		444 bonds	3096	shares of stock.

That being unable to sell and dispose of said bonds to others fast enough to provide the money as it was needed, the Trust Company, under the agreement and arrangement before stated, from time to time, purchased 1496 of said bonds, and 4554 shares of stock of the said Union Company, the dates, prices and details of which appear from the following itemized statement; that is to say the Trust Company bought

Jan. 7th, 1893.	300 bonds at	82	with	2400 shares of stock as bonus.
Jan. 23rd, 1893.	128 bonds at	82	with	504 shares of stock as bonus.
Apl. 5th, 1893.	250 bonds at	95	with	1000 shares of stock as bonus.
Nov. 27th, 1893.	31 bonds at	80	with	300 shares of stock as bonus.

July 6, 1894.	108 bonds at	75	with	no stock as bonus.
July 16, 1894.	39 bonds at	70	with	no stock as bonus.
Aug. 3rd, 1894.	1 bond at	70	with	no stock as bonus.
Nov. 23rd, 1894.	84 bonds at	75	with	no stock as bonus.
July 22, 1896.	50 bonds at	90	with	no stock as bonus.
June 3, 1897.	18 bonds at	66	with	no stock as bonus.
Nov. 3rd, 1898.	350 bonds at	100	with	no stock as bonus.
Feb. 17th, 1899.	100 bonds at	95	with	no stock as bonus.
Total,	1496 bonds			4554 shares of stock.

On October 21st, 1892, the Trust Company took 60 of said bonds at 82, and 1500 shares of said stock in part payment for its commissions and services rendered in and about the matters aforesaid.

154 On September 25th, 1893, the Trust Company purchased from the Belt Company 200 first mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, hereinafter referred to, and in order to induce the Trust Company to purchase said bonds, the Belt Company gave to the Trust Company as a bonus to said bonds 2500 shares of the stock of the said Union Company.

On February 13th, 1894, the Trust Company held promissory notes aggregating $5,000.00, with some accumulated interest, for money expended by it in the establishment of what was known as the Kansas City Fruit Auction Company, on the line of the said Belt Company, all of which was done at the request of the Belt Company and for its use and benefit, and on that lay, to-wit, February 13th, 1894,the Belt Company delivered to the Trust Company in satisfaction of said indebtedness and in payment for the services of the Trust Company in establishing said fruit auction plant, 286 shares of the said Union Company.

The transactions above referred to account for all of the bonds of the said Union Company, and 11,936 shares of its stock. That the Trust Company never had anything to do or any connection with the remaining 8064 shares of stock of said Union Company, but it is informed and believes that 1,000 shares thereof were, early in the history of the company distributed among a number of persons for the benefit of the Union and Belt companies in the promotion of the said enterprise, and that the remaining 7064 shares were converted into stock of the Belt Company.

That in addition to the taking of the said 60 bonds and the said 1,500 shares of stock in part payment for its said commissions and services and advances, the Trust Company from time to time charged to the account of the said Union Company and Belt Company therefor, divers amounts as follows:

January 13th, 1893	$30,000.00
January 26th, 1893	15,000.00
February 16th, 1893	12,800.00
April 5th, 1893	25,000.00
September 16th, 1898	50.00
October 6th, 1898	100.00
October 18th, 1898	50.00
January 17th, 1899	231.25
January 17th, 1899	277.50

That the Trust Company, from time to time, paid to and paid out for the said Union Company and Belt Company all of the proceeds of the sale or purchase price of said bonds and stock, less 155 said charges for commissions, services and expenditures, and the said Union Company and Belt Company received the benefit thereof, as these defendants have frequently shown and are now ready and willing to again show to this Honorable Court in so far as the same may be required.

That all of the charges made by the said Trust Company for its said services and commissions were fair and reasonable, and all of the transactions had between the Trust Company and the said Union Company and Belt Company with relation to the said bonds and stock of said Union Company, as well as in connection with any and all other business between them, were fully known to, approved by, acquiesced in and ratified by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Union Company and said Belt Company.

8. These defendants further answering deny that the Trust Company on the 23rd day of January, 1891, or at any other time caused a corporation known as the Kansas City & Independence Air Line to be incorporated or formed. Said Air Line was incorporated, however, for the purpose of building a line of railroad connecting with the line of the said Suburban Company and running to the City of Independence, Missouri, the capital stock of said company was after being increased, fixed at $500,000.00. These defendants deny that the Trust Company at any time caused its officers and employes to be elected as the directors and officers of the said Air Line, and deny that the Trust Company caused said Air Line to issue its first mortgage bonds to the amount of $300,000.00, or any other amount, but state that the Air Line did issue its first mortgage bonds to that amount, and secured [bye] same by a first mortgage upon all of its corporate property, and made the Trust Company its Trustee under said mortgage. These defendants deny that the Trust Company, at any time dominated or controlled the said Air Line; deny that the said Trust Company caused the said Belt Company to acquire all, or any, of the bonds and stocks of the Air Line, and deny that the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to deliver the said bonds and stock to it, the said Trust Company, and deny that the Trust Company proceeded to dispose of the same and to apply the proceeds thereof, for the corporate purposes of the Belt Company, or for any other purpose except as hereinafter stated; deny that the Trust Company has ever refused upon request to account to said Belt Company for the disposition made by it of any of said bonds or the proceeds realized therefrom, but upon contrary, states the fact to be that the Trust Company has frequently fully and truly accounted to the Belt Company and to the Air 156 Line company for the disposition of all of the properties, assets or chooses in action of either of said companies which in any way came into the hands or under the control of the Trust Company.

These defendants, further answering, state that the facts concerning the Air Line Company and its connection with the Belt Company and the Trust Company are as follows:

That on the 23rd day of January, 1901, at the suggestion and by the procurement of the Suburban Belt Company, the Air Line Company was incorporated with a capital stock of $150,000.00, and with eleven directors, a majority of whom were directors of the said Suburban Company, for the purpose of building a railroad from a point on the line of the Suburban Company's road, to the city of Independence, Missouri, a distance of some six or eight miles, for the use and benefit of the said Suburban Company. That the said Air Line Company soon after increased its capital stock to $500,000.00 and issued its bonds, as aforesaid, to the amount of $300,000.00.

That the said Air Line afterwards entered into a contract with the construction company known as the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, for the building and completion of its said road, whereby it promised to pay to the said construction company, in consideration of the construction of said road, $250,000.00 of its first mortgage bonds, and 2,000 shares of its capital stock. That said road was built and completed by said construction company under said contract.

That at the request of the Air Line, and said Suburban Company, the Trust Company rendered valuable services in procuring franchises for using public highways for said railroad, and acting as the financial agent and Trustee for said Air Line, and in from time to time advancing it money and selling certain of its bonds and stocks, and in purcha-ing certain other of its bonds and stocks, in order to furnish the money with which to do the work of building the said railroad. That said bonds were not reasonably worth more than 80 per cent of their face value, and the said stock had no market or other value at all.

That when the said Air Line Company came to settle with the said Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, the said construction company accepted in full payment for its work under said contract, a less amount of stock and bonds than was specified in the contract as drawn, that is to say, the construction company accepted $227,375.00 of said first mortgage bonds, and 1,819 shares of stock, which said bonds and stock were delivered to the said con-157 struction company. This left still in the treasury of the Air Line Company $72,625.00 of its first mortgage bonds, and 3,181 shares of its said stock. That at the special instance and request of the said Air Line and the said Suburban Company, the Trust Company sold for them and for their account $13,000.00 of said bonds, and 104 shares of said stock of said Air Line, at the times and for the prices as follows, to-wit:

Mch. 16th, 1892.	1¾	bonds at	80 with	14 shares of stock as bonus.
Mch. 21st, 1892.	6¼	bonds at	80 with	50 shares of stock as bonus.
Apr. 5th, 1892.	4	bonds at	80 with	32 shares of stock as bonus.
May 27th, 1892.	1	bond at	80 with	8 shares of stock as bonus.
Total,	13	bonds,		104 shares of stock.

That the Trust Company, at the special instance and request of said Air Line and said Suburban Company, from time to time, by reason of the fact that it was unable to sell said bonds and stock to others fast enough to supply money that the said Air Line and the Belt Company needed in connection with the building of said road, bought certain of said bonds and stock for the purpose of furnishing said money, to-wit: $46,625 of said bonds, and 77 shares of said stock, at the times and for the prices as follows:

June 25th, 1892.	9.625	bonds at	80 with 77 shares of stock as bonus.
July 6th, 1892.	15	bonds at	80 with no shares of stock as bonus.
Dec. 8th, 1892.	22	bonds at	80 with no stock as bonus.
Total,	46.625	bonds and	77 shares of stock.

That the said Air Line Company and the Suburban Company delivered to the Trust Company in full for its services as financial agent in connection with said matter, and in procuring franchises and for commissions in the sale of said bonds and stocks, 13 of said bonds at 80, with 500 shares of said stock, which said stock, as aforesaid, was worthless, and of no value.

The facts stated above account for all of the said $300,000.00 of bonds of the said Air Line Company, and 2,500 shares of its stock. The Trust Company never had anything whatever to do with any of the remaining 2,500 shares of stock, and never received the same, nor acquired any interest in or control over the same, or any part thereof; but these defendants are informed and believe that 500 of said shares were used for the purposes of promotion by being distributed where it was supposed they would do the most good, and that the remaining 2,000 shares of said stock were issued to the Suburban Company and converted into the stock of the Belt Company.

That the Trust Company from time to time paid to and paid out for and on account of the said Air Line and Suburban Com-158 pany, all of the proceeds of all of the said bonds and stock so sold by it, and also all of the purchase price of all of said bonds and stock so purchased by it, and the said Air Line and Suburban Company accepted and received the benefit thereof, as these defendants have frequently shown, and are now ready and willing to again show to this Honorable Court, in so far as the same may be required.

That the compensation paid to the Trust Company for its said services in connection with said Air Line Company matter, was fair and reasonable, and that, together with all of the transactions had between the Trust Company and the said Air Line and Suburban Company in relation to the stock and bonds any moneys of the said Air Line, as well as any connection with all other business between them, were fully known to, approved by, acquiesced in and ratified by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Air Line Company and of the said Suburban Company, and its successor the said Belt Company, more than five years prior to the institution of this suit, and these defendants plead the statute of limitations of the state of Missouri in bar of the complainants' suit.

9. These defendants, further answering, deny that the Trust Company at all times up to and about the month of April, 1900, or at any other time, in any way dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company by reason of the alleged facts in said ancillary bill, or by any other reason or means whatever; deny that the Trust Company caused its officers, directors and employes to be elected as the officers and directors of the Belt Company, or in any way induced or influenced the stockholders of said Belt Company to choose such persons as its officers or directors; deny that the officers and directors of the Belt Company were mere dummies acting as the agents of the Trust Company, but state that they were chosen by the stockholders of the Belt Company and were acting independently for and on behalf of the Belt Company at all times.

These defendants admit that the Trust Company attended to the disbursement of a large amount of the moneys which were realized from the sale of the bonds and stocks of the said several companies hereinabove mentioned, but deny that they attended to the disbursement of all of said moneys, and state that whatever disbursements of such moneys were made by the Trust Company, were made at the special instance and request of the Belt Company, and for its use and benefit, and were fairly done and fairly and fully accounted for.

These defendants do not know what the total cost of the lines of all of the said railway companies hereinabove named amounted to, and have no means now of ascertaining the same, as all of 159 the books and papers connected therewith are in the possession of the complainants in the said ancillary bill, and have been for nearly two years.

These defendants deny that there was actually delivered to and disposed of by the Trust Company secured stocks and bonds of said companies aggregating in value more than $5,000,000.00 as alleged in the ancillary bill, (or to any other amount or of any other value than as hereinbefore stated); deny that the Trust Company or its receiver have ever at any time refused to account to the said Belt Company or to its receivers for the proceeds derived by said Trust Company from the sale of any of the said bonds and stocks, or for the disposition made by it of any of the proceeds thereof; but, upon the contrary, state that they have frequently, and at all times duly and fully accounted for all of said stocks and bonds, and for all of the proceeds thereof which came into the hands of the Trust Company, or over which it had any control. The defendants deny that they or either of them pretend or claim that they are retaining any money above the actual cost of the said several railroad properties for the purpose of paying for the commissions and services of the Trust Company in the matter of the sale and disposition of said bonds or stock, or any of them, except as hereinbefore particularly stated, and these defendants again state that each and every of said transactions, and each and all of said charges for commissions and services were fair, reasonable, fully accounted for and satisfactory to the Belt Company and acquiesced in and approved by all of its officers, directors and stockholders, many years prior to the institution of this suit.

10. These defendants further answering, deny that on or about the 30th day of June, 1896, or at any other time prior or subsequent thereto, the Trust Company, either in its own name, or in the name of any of its officers, or in the name of any corporation controlled by it, or in any other manner whatever, had entered into any contract whereby it was obligated to construct a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri to Pattonsburg, Missouri, for the purposes alleged in the ancillary bill, or for any other purpose; but state that the Trust Company was never in any way obligated or bound to build the said railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, or any part thereof, and never assumed any obligation in connection therewith.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company at any time ever caused the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company to be incorporated, and deny that it caused certain of its officers and employes to be elected as officers and directors of the said Connecting Company, and deny that the Trust Com-160 pany at all times, or at any time, dominated and controlled the affairs of the said Connecting Company; deny that the Trust Company set about to discover a way in which it could cause the said railroad to be constructed without incurring any liability itself; deny that it had anything to do with the construction of the said railroad except as the Trustee and financial agent of the Belt Company, as hereinafter stated. They deny that the Trust Company conceived the idea or purpose of having the Belt Company undertake the construction of the said railroad; deny that the Trust Company by any means whatever caused or attempted to cause a contract to be entered into between the said Belt Company and the said Connecting Company, whereby the Belt Company agreed to construct the said railroad for the Connecting Company.

These defendants admit that the Belt Company did enter into a contract with the Connecting Company whereby the Belt Company agreed to build said railroad for said Connecting Company from Kansas City, Missouri to Pattonsburg, Missouri, and that the Exhibit A, heretofore filed by the Trust Company in its answer to the original bill of the Cambria Steel Company in this cause, is a true copy of the said contract between said Belt Company and the said Connecting Company.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company had anything whatever to do with the making of the said contract, or that it in any way controlled or dominated or in any way influenced either of the parties thereto to enter into the same. These defendants deny that the said connecting railroad was constructed in any way for the use and benefit of the Trust Company; deny that said Trust Company had any interest whatever in the building of the same; deny that the said connecting railroad has been of any benefit or value to the Trust Company; deny that the said connecting railroad has been of no benefit or advantage to the Belt Company, but, upon the contrary, state that it has been of large benefit to said Belt Company, and that it was necessary and useful for the corporate uses and purposes of the said Belt Company, and deny that the said railroad was built for the purposes and ends of the Trust Company, or that it had any interest whatever in the same.

These defendants deny that all of the money paid out by the Belt Company for the construction of the said connecting railroad passed through the hands of the Trust Company, but state, however, that much of said money did pass through the hands of the Trust Company, for the reasons and to the extent hereinafter stated, but not otherwise; they deny that all of the bonds and stock which 161 were to have been delivered to the said Belt Company under the terms of the said contract, passed through the hands of the said Trust Company, but state that some of said bonds and stock did pass through the hands of the Trust Company, for the purposes and to the amount hereinafter stated, and not otherwise.

The defendants admit that the Trust Company proceeded to sell and dispose of some of the said bonds and stock as hereinafter stated but the same was at the special instance and request of the Belt Company and as the financial agent of the said Belt Company, and not otherwise.

These defendants deny that the said Trust Company ever at any time when requested, failed to account to the said Belt Company for the amount realized by it from the sale of any of said bonds and stock; deny that the Trust Company has stated or pretended that the construction of the said road by said Belt Company resulted in a loss to that company of about $300,000.00 or any other sum;

but these defendants state that the Trust Company, frequently, at all times when requested, fully accounted to the said Belt Company for the proceeds of all of said bonds and stock which passed through the hands of the Trust Company and for any and all moneys which came into the hands of the Trust Company or under its control belonging to the said Belt Company, or in which the Belt Company had any interest.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company is, or ought to be in any way chargeable with the amount of any loss which may have resulted to the Belt Company, if any did result, on account of its contract in building the said connecting railroad; deny that the Trust Company is in any way responsible therefor, or should be held accountable therefor.

These defendants further answering, state that the facts connected with the building of the said connecting road are as follows:

The business of the Belt Company was not that of a trunk line, but consists in switching for trunk lines and for industries situated along its line, and in furnishing terminal facilities for other railroads that might want to enter Kansas City, and had no terminal facilities of their own; hence it was to the advantage and interest of the Belt Company to encourage and assist as many industries as possible to locate along its line; and also to assist and encourage other trunk lines of railroad to enter Kansas City, and to use 162 the terminals of the said Belt Company for the purpose of entering, either by aiding said trunk lines to build in to Kansas City, or by building out to meet them.

That in 1896, although all of the several portions of the said Belt Company's railroad system had been constructed and operated for several years, yet the Belt Company found that it had been and still was unable to earn enough from its business to pay its operating expenses and the interest on its bonds; hence it conceived the idea of building a railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, there to meet the Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad, and the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad, and at an intervening point to meet the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, and thereby to furnish to those three railroad companies an entrance into Kansas City, which railroads would use the tracks and other terminal facilities of the Belt Company and pay a large and profitable switching business to the Belt Company. It was also thought by the Belt Company that it could make a large profit in constructing the Northern Connecting Railroad on its own account, so it was that the Belt Company caused the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company to be organized, without any suggestion or domination by the Trust Company whatever, and the Connecting Company was organized for the purpose of building a railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, for the reasons above stated. The Belt Company caused some of its directors, officers, employes and stockholders to be chosen as the directors and officers of the Connecting Company, and the Connecting Company afterwards authorized the issuance of first mortgage bonds to the extent of $20,000.00 per mile of the road to be built, and second mortgage income bonds to the amount of $15,000.00 per mile for each mile of road to be built, and made the Trust Company its Trustee under both of the mortgages securing such bonds, and authorized the issuance — shares of capital stock.

The Belt Company had no means whatever with which to carry out its contract for constructing the said railroad, except such as it might be able to realize from the sale of the bonds and stock of the Connecting Company, and at the special instance and request of the Belt Company and the Connecting Company, the Trust Company undertook to act as their financial agent in the sale and disposition of such of the bonds and stock of the said Connecting Company as it could find purchasers for, and at such price as it might be able to obtain. That the said second mortgage income bonds had 163 no market value, and only in one or two exceptional cases was the Trust Company able to sell any of the said second mortgage income bonds for any money, but found it necessary in selling the first mortgage bonds to deliver to the purchaser some of the second mortgage bonds as a bonus. The capital stock of the connecting company had no market or other value.

The Connecting Company issued in all 1851.8 of its first mortgage bonds, 1388 of its second mortgage income bonds, and 30,000 shares of its Capital Stock. That the Trust Company, for and on account of the said Belt Company and Connecting Company, and at their special instance and request, from time to time sold 882 of the said first mortgage bonds, and 791.7 of the said second mortgage bonds, and 19,180 shares of said stock, at the times and at the prices as follows, which were the highest and best prices which could be obtained therefor, and which was all they were worth:

July,	1896.	12 bonds at 80	with
		4.2 seconds and	60 shares of stock as bonus.
August,	1896.	154 bonds at 80	with

Dec.	1897.	3 bonds at 85	with

Dec.	1897.	10 bonds at 75	with

Aug.	1898.	18 bonds at 85 with 6.3 seconds and	90 shares of stock as bonus.

164
Nov.	1898.	25 bonds at 72 with 8.750 seconds and	125 shares of stock as bonus.
Dec.	1898.	5 bonds at 75 with 1.750 seconds and	25 shares of stock as bonus.
Oct.	1897.	483. seconds at 45.
July,	1896.		850 shares of stock at $1.00 per share.
October,	1899.		13920 shares of stock at $1.42-6/7 per share.
	Totals,	882 bonds. 791.00 seconds, and	19180 shares of stock.

That the Trust Company was unable to find purchasers for said stock and bonds as fast as the money was needed by the Belt Company and Connecting Company to meet their demands in the construction of said Northern Connecting Railroad, and it was understood and agreed between them and the Trust Company, that the Trust Company might purchase as many of said bonds as it was willing to buy at the prices hereinafter named, and might deduct from the purchase price thereof in settlement an amount equal to what would be a fair commission in case such bonds had been sold by the Trust Company to other persons.

That in pursuance of said understanding, and for the purpose of furnishing and supplying money to the Connecting Company and the Belt Company for the building of the said Northern Connecting Road, the Trust Company did, from time to time, buy 414 of said first mortgage bonds, 277.9 of said second mortgage bonds, and 10,370 shares of said stock, at the times and for the prices as follows, which prices were fair and reasonable and fully as much as the said bonds and stock were worth:

July,	1896.	400 bonds at 75 with 140. seconds and	2000 shares of stock and bonus.
Sept.	1896.	14 bonds at 75 with 4.9 seconds and	70 shares of stock as bonus.
Dec.	1896.	16. seconds at 45.
Oct.	1897.	117. seconds at 45.
July,	1896.		2006 shares of stock at $1.00 per share.
July,	1896.		6250 shares of stock at $6.00 per share.

March, 1897. 50 shares of stock at $1.00 per share.

Totals, 414 First Mtg. Bonds.
277.9 Second Mortgage Bonds, and 10370 shares of stock.

The above purchases and sales account for the disposition of 1296 of the said first mortgage bonds, and 1069.6 of the second mortgage bonds, and 29,550 shares of said stock.

165 The remainder of said bonds and stock were delivered to and disposed of by the Belt Company, as these defendants are informed and believe, as follows:

Delivered by the Belt Company to the A. & P. Roberts Company, in part payment of indebtedness due from the Belt Company to said A. & P. Roberts Company.

10 first mtg. bonds, 3.5 second mortgage bonds.

Deposited with the Trust Company as collateral security for indebtedness of the Belt Company held by the Trust Company.

414 first mtg. bonds, 82.9 second mortgage bonds.

Deposited with Cambria Steel Company by the Belt Company, as collateral security to secure indebtedness from the Belt Company to the Cambria Steel Company, 131 first mtg. bonds.

That the remaining .8 of a first mortgage bond, and the remaining 232. of the second mortgage bonds still remain, as these defendants are informed and believe in the treasury of the Belt Company, and are still owned and held by it.

Of the remaining 450 shares of stock of said Connecting Company, 350 shares thereof were distributed to the directors of the said Connecting Company to qualify them and in compensation for their services, and 100 shares of said stock were issued to A. S. Potter on account of promotion.

That the Trust Company from time to time paid to and paid out for and on account of the said Connecting Company and the said Belt Company all of the proceeds of all of the said bonds and stock so sold by it, and also all of the purchase price of all of the said bonds and stock so purchased by it, except the charges hereinafter referred to for its commissions and services, and the said Connecting Company and the said Belt Company accepted and received the benefit thereof, as these defendants have frequently shown, and are now ready and willing to show again to this Honorable Court in so far as the same may be required.

That the Trust Company from time to time charged the account of the Belt Company and the Connecting Company for its services in acting as such financial agent, and in and about the matter of the said Connecting Company, and for its commissions in selling and disposing of the said bonds and stock, and for its serv-

166 ices in advancing money to the Belt Company for the purpose of building the said connecting road, the following amounts:

December 10th, 1896	$11,262.00
October 4th, 1897	50.00
December 23rd, 1897	65,791.55
February 10th, 1898	250.00
February 25th, 1898	300.00
September 8th, 1898	950.00
December 27th, 1898	250.00
Total	$78,853.55

all of which were fair and reasonable charges for the said services and commissions, and which is less than three per cent of the face value of such of the said bonds and stocks as were sold by the Trust Company or bought by it for cash, saying nothing about the bonds and stocks that were given as bonus.

That about the first of April, 1900, there was an entire change in the officers and management of the Belt Company, and the persons who were at that time chosen as its officers and directors were in no way connected with or interested in the Trust Company, but were hostile to it.

That the said Belt Company received and accepted the proceeds of the contract for the building of the said Northern Connecting Railroad and that since the change in the management of the Belt Company, as well as prior thereto, the Belt Company had claimed the stocks and bonds payable under the said construction contract as its property and they and the Belt Company, both prior to and since the said change in its management have continued and still continue to exercise acts of ownership and control over such of said bonds and stock as remain in the treasury of the said Belt Company, as aforesaid.

Wherefore these defendants say that the Belt Company is estopped now to claim that the said contract for the construction of the Northern Connecting Railroad, was in fact the contract of the Trust Company, and not of the Belt Company, and are estopped to claim that the Trust Company should in any way be held responsible for any loss that arose, if any, on account of the carrying out of the said contract by the Belt Company.

11. These defendants, further answering, deny that the Belt Company at any time advanced any money to the Trust Company, 167 or that the Trust Company took out of the earnings or assets of the Belt Company any sums of money whatever, which it pretended to expend for and on behalf of the Belt Company, or otherwise; they deny that the Belt Company ever advanced or delivered to the Trust Company any money, at any time, or times, except such as it was able, from time to time, to deliver to the Trust Company, in part payment of the indebtedness which the Belt Company from time to time owed to the Trust Company. The fact is that the Belt Company never had any money to advance to anybody; it needed all the money it had and more, too, to pay its current indebtedness, and instead of the Belt Company's advance any money to the Trust Company for any purpose whatever, the contrary is true, that the Trust Company from time to time, advanced to the Belt Company to keep said Belt Company from bankruptcy and to keep it as a going concern.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company was ever requested by the Belt Company, or by anyone else, to account for any money alleged to have been so advanced or so taken out of the treasury of the Belt Company by the Trust Company; that, as a matter of fact, there never was any ground or basis for supposing that the Trust Company had ever gotten any of the Belt Company's money.

12. These defendants in further answering, deny that during the times hereinbefore mentioned, or at any time or times the Trust Company took upon itself the business of paying out practically all of the moneys which were paid out for the benefit of the said Belt Company, but state that the Trust Company did, from its own funds, frequently, and at various times advance large sums of money to and for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, because the said Belt Company had no money itself with which to meet demands that from time to time were pressing, and to make improvements and betterments that were absolutely necessary for its success as a money earning institution.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of buying for the Belt Company practically all or any of the property which the said Belt Company needed to acquire in its business of operating said railroad, and deny that it used any money of the Belt Company for any such purpose; deny that the Trust Company caused other corporations to be formed for the purpose of holding the legal title to any properties purchased for the use and benefit of the Belt Company; deny that the Trust Company caused the capital stock of any such corporations to be issued to the Belt Company and then turned over to the said Trust Company, or to be issued to the said Trust Company direct, or otherwise, for any purpose whatever; deny that the Trust Com-168 pany caused its own servants, agents and employes to be elected and continued as the officers and directors of any such companies, at any time; deny that the Trust Company, in the manner alleged in the ancillary bill, or in any other manner, controlled the affairs of the Belt Company, or controlled the actions and affairs of any of the said subsidiary companies; deny that the Trust Company caused the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company to be incorporated for the purpose alleged in the ancillary bill or for any other purpose.

These defendants state that the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company was organized by the procurement of the Belt Company for the purpose of acquiring and erecting grain elevators along the line of the Belt Company, so as to furnish such facilities as would increase the business and earnings of the Belt Company. That said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company acquired certain lands in what is known as the East Bottoms of Kansas City, Missouri, and caused to be erected thereon three elevators, one of which has since been destroyed by fire. That the Trust Company advanced to the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, large sums of money for the erection of said elevators, and received from the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company three mortgages or deeds of trust, one on each of said elevators, one for $12,000.00, one for $12,000.00 and one for $8,000.00. That one of the said elevators was consumed by fire, and the amount of the insurance thereon, was collected by Wash Adams, the receiver of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company and was paid by him to the Trust Company and its receiver, and was duly credited upon the note which was secured by the mortgage on that elevator, leaving a balance still due on account of that mortgage of $4,251.50; that on the remaining two mortgages, one for $12,000.00 and the other for $8,000.00 nothing has been paid, and the interest on all of them has been long in default, and the Trust Company still holds said mortgages on said property.

The said Belt Company, from time to time, advanced some money to the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, which went into the construction of the said elevators, and received therefor 425 shares of the capital stock of the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company of the par value of $100.00 each, which is all or practically all of the stock which the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company has issued. It is true that the said elevator property was purchased and the said elevators built for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, but it is untrue that it was done by the Trust Company, and inasmuch as the Belt Company
169 is the owner of all or substantially all of the outstanding stock of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, it is in this sense true that all of the property of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company belongs to the Belt Company, subject, however, to the lien of the mortgages thereon to the Trust Company, as before stated.

The Trust Company has not and never had any interest in any of the property standing in the name of the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, except as the holder of the said mortgages.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company ever failed or refused to account to the Belt Company for all of the transactions of the Trust Company in connection with the said Missouri Elevator & Termial Company's property, and these defendants deny again that the Trust Company ever received any funds from the Belt Company, for the purpose of constructing said elevators; deny that the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to assume all of the outstanding debts and liabilities of the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, but state that if the Belt Company did assume such outstanding debts and liabilities, it was a proper thing for it to do, as it is, by reason of its being the sole stockholder in the said company, the beneficial owner of all of the property subject to the said debts and liabilities, and there is no reason, in law or equity, why the Belt Company should be reimbursed for paying its own debts, or discharging obligations upon its own property, if it did discharge any such obligations. These defendants admit that Wash Adams, Esquire, was appointed receiver of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, as alleged in the ancillary bill, and still had and holds possession of its property.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company caused the Central Improvement Company to be organized for the purpose of holding the legal title to various pieces of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, or elsewhere, purchased for the use and benefit of the said Belt Company, and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, or either of them, or for any other purpose; they deny that the Trust Company caused its servants and employes to be elected as the officers and directors of the said Central Improvement Company; they deny that any money whatever was at any time paid out by the Belt Company to the Trust Company, for the purpose of purchasing any pieces of real estate to be held by the said Central Improvement Company; deny that any shares of stock of the Central Improvement Company were ever at any time issued to the said Trust Company; deny that the Trust 170 Company ever had any interest in or owned any of the stock of the Central Improvement Company; deny that any request or demand has ever been made by the Belt Company or anyone else, on the Trust Company for an accounting for any funds alleged to have been advanced to the Trust Company by the Belt Company for the purpose of buying land for the Central Improvement Company, or for an accounting for the alleged disposition of any of the stock of the said Central Improvement Company.

It is true that a corporation known as the Central Improvement Company was organized, but it was done at the instance and by the procurement of the Belt Company and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, for the purpose of securing and acquiring title to various tracts of land in and about Kansas City, which were needed for the use of the said railroad companies. It is true that the Suburban Belt Railroad Company furnished some of the money to be paid upon the purchase price of the lands bought by the Central Improvement Company; it is also true that the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company advanced some money for the same purpose; upon such money being furnished by the said railroad companies, the said Central Improvement Company issued to the Belt Company 1,120 shares of its capital stock, and also issued certain shares of its stock to the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, on account of the money furnished by it; all or practically all outstanding stock of the Central Improvement Company has been issued to and is held by the Belt Company and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, or their assigns. That by reason of the fact that the Belt Company and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, or their assigns, hold all of the stock of the Central Improvement Company, they are in equity the beneficial owners of all of the property of the Central Improvement Company, subject, however to any liens thereon for unpaid portions of the purchase price thereof. That the Trust Company has not now and never has had any interest in the property of the Central Improvement Company, except that it holds a mortgage on a certain piece of the property owned by the said Central Improvement Company, to secure certain promissory notes aggregating the principal sum of $5,000.00, which mortgage was a subsisting lien upon the property at the time the Central Improvement Company bought it, and which mortgage was subsequently purchased and is now held by the Trust Company.

These defendants deny that any part of the lands upon which the depot of the Belt Company is situated, which stands in the name of the Second Street Improvement Company, belongs to 171 the Belt Company; deny that the said Belt Company has any interest whatever in any of the property standing in the name of the Second Street Improvement Company, except as lessee; deny that the Belt Company ever advanced or furnished any of the money which went into the purchase or improvement of the property now standing in the name of the Second Street Improvement Company.

These defendants admit that Wash Adams, Esquire, was appointed as receiver of the said Central Improvement Company, and that he now has possession and control of its property, as alleged in the said ancillary bill.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company caused the Fairmount Amusement Company to be organized, or to be dominated or controlled by it, as alleged in the ancillary bill; deny that the Belt Company ever advanced any money to the Trust Company for the purpose of purchasing or improving the property of the Fairmount Amusement Company. The defendants admit that all of the capital stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company belongs to the Belt Company, subject, however to the lien of the Trust Company upon it as a pledge for the security of certain indebtedness of the Belt Company to the Trust Company, as hereinafter shown. These defendants state that they do not know what moneys, if any, the Fairmount Amusement Company ever expended, if any, and do not know who furnished the money; but they deny that the Belt Company ever supplied the Trust Company with any money to be used in furthering the ends or purposes of the Fairmount Amusement Company; deny that the Trust Company ever took upon itself the duty of disposing of or disbursing any money for the Belt Company for any such purpose; deny that large sums of money, or any sums of money were ever paid by the Belt Company to the Trust Company for that purpose; deny that the Belt Company or anyone else has ever asked the Trust Company for an accounting on account of any such money alleged to have been furnished to the Trust Company for any such purpose.

It is true that the Fairmount Amusement Company was organized for the purpose of operating what is commonly known as Fairmount Park, along the line of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, but it is untrue that the Trust Company at any time caused said Belt Company to advance to it large sums of money for the purpose of fiitting up Fairmount Park; it is true, however, that the Trust Company itself did advance at the special instance and request of the Air Line and the Belt Company, from time to time, large sums of money in the fitting up of Fairmount Park, and that it charged the same to the Kansas City & Independence Air 172 Line, and afterwards to the Belt Company when the account of the Air Line was merged in that of the Belt Company; but the defendants deny that the Belt Company ever supplied the Trust Company with any money for that purpose; deny that the Belt Company or any one else ever requested the Trust Company to account for any money alleged to have been advanced to it by the Belt Company in fitting up said Fairmount Park, but state that no such money was furnished; all of the money which the Trust Company advanced towards fitting up Fairmount Park, was charged, as aforesaid to the Air Line or to the Belt Company, and due and proper accounts were rendered thereof from month to month as the work progressed, and were duly audited and approved; the originals of such bills and accounts so rendered are now in the possession of the Belt Company and its receivers.

That all of the transactions of whatever nature between the Trust Company and the Air Line or the Belt Company in reference to Fairmount Park were fully accounted for, known to and ratified and approved by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the Air Line Company and the Belt Company, more than five years ago, and these defendants plead the statutes of limitations of the State of Missouri, in bar of this suit in reference thereto.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company caused to be organized what is known as the Northern Townsite Company; deny that the Trust Company dominated or controlled the affairs of the said Northern Townsite Company; deny that the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to advance to the Trust Company upwards of $5,000.00, or any other sum which was used by the Trust Company in the purchase of property which was taken in the name of the said Northern Townsite Company; deny that all or substantially all of the money that was used for the purpose of acquiring the property of the Northern Townsite Company was money advanced by the Belt Company; and deny that the said Trust Company, instead of issuing to the said Belt Company all of the capital stock of the said Northern Townsite Company, issued large portions thereof to itself, or to other persons for its use and benefit; or that it otherwise disposed of the same, except as hereinafter stated. The defendants deny that the Belt Company, or any one else has ever requested the Trust Company to account for any money alleged to have been received by the Trust Company from the Belt Company for the purposes of the Northern Townsite Company.

It is true that the Northern Townsite Company was organized for the purpose of acquiring real estate along the line of the 173 Northern Connecting Railroad; the facts are that the Trust Company and the Belt Company supplied all of the money that was used in purchasing lands by the Northern Townsite Company. The Belt Company paid into the treasury of the Northern Townsite Company $6,286.57, and received therefor 439 shares of the capital stock of the said Northern Townsite Company of the par value of $100.00 each, and the Trust Company paid into the treasury of the Northern Townsite Company $6,720.07, and received 489 shares of the capital stock of said Northern Townsite Company, of the par value of $100.00 each; that said shares so issued to the Belt Company and to the Trust Company, were issued in proper proportion to the amount of money paid in by each, and that the amount of money paid into the treasury of the said Northern Townsite Company by the Trust Company and the Belt Company was equivalent to about $14.32 on each share of stock so issued to them respectively. That 24 shares of said stock were issued to each of the following named parties, A. E. Stilwell, C. A. Braley and J. T. Nolthenius, in compensation for their services as directors and officers of the Northern Townsite Company, and that no other stock of the said Northern Townsite Company has been issued to anyone.

That the Trust Company owes the Belt Company nothing on account of the Northern Townsite Company's affairs, and there is nothing to call for any accounting by the Trust Company to the Belt Company in connection therewith.

13. These defendants deny that the Trust Company caused the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company to be formed, and these defendants admit, however, that the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company was formed for the purposes stated in the said ancillary bill, and that it issued the bonds to the amount therein stated; that the default therein stated was made, and that the foreclosure proceedings stated therein were had.

These defendants deny that either the Belt Company, the Terminal or Air Line Companies were largely dependent upon the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company for their earnings; they admit that an operating contract was in existence between the Belt Company and the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, but they deny that it was well known to the Trust Company that if the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company went into the hands of receivers, it would result in the insolvency of the Belt and other companies before named or that it would necessitate their ultimately being thrown into the hands of receivers, and the mortgages upon their respective properties foreclosed.

174 These defendants deny that the Trust Company at any time set about to contrive a scheme whereby it might appropriate to itself before the Belt Company should pass beyond its control, any of the property or assets of the Belt Company; deny that the Trust Company caused to be exhibited to its own officers and directors who were holding the positions of officers or directors of the Belt Company, various claims and demands which it alleged were due and owing by the Belt Company to it; deny that the Trust Company caused such of its own officers and employes who were holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company to pass upon and approve such claims and demands; deny that the Trust Company caused its own officers and employes who were holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company to execute to the said Trust Company various pretended promissory notes and other negotiable instruments for the alleged purpose of securing to the Trust Company the payment of such pretended claims, as alleged in the ancillary bill; deny that the Trust Company caused to be delivered and transferred to its various stocks, bonds and accounts and other personal property belonging to the Belt Company as collateral security for the said pretended indebtedness by the means or for the purposes alleged in the ancillary bill.

These defendants state, however, that the said Belt Company did duly execute and deliver to the Trust Company the certain negotiable promissory notes named in the ancillary bill of complaint, except that the note appearing in the ancillary bill as of date November 7th, 1899 was for $50,000.00, instead of $25,000.00 as alleged in the said ancillary bill, and that the belt company assigned and pledged to the Trust Company as collateral security for the payment of the said promissory notes and other indebtedness held by the Trust Company against the Belt Company, the stocks, bonds and property stated in the ancillary bill of complaint, except that the item of property stated in the said ancillary bill as being 600 tons of new steel rails, was in fact about 344 tons of steel rails and about 17 tons of fastenings.

These defendants deny that the said notes were executed or that the said stocks, bonds and property were given as collateral security by reason of or through any domination or control of the said Trust Company over the Belt Company. It is true that at the time the said notes were given and the said property assigned as collateral security that a majority of the officers and directors of the Belt Company were connected with the Trust Company, either as its officers, directors or employes, but these defendants deny that any of the officers or directors of the Belt Company were personally interested in securing to the said Trust Company any of 175 the assets of the Belt Company which in equity or good conscience ought not to have been secured and deny that the execution of said promissory notes, or either of them or the delivery of the said collateral security or any part thereof was fraudulent or void for any reason whatever.

On the contrary these defendants state and show to the court that the Belt Company was justly indebted to this defendant the Trust Company at and prior to the time of the execution and delivery of the said promissory notes respectively for moneys from time to time loaned to the said Belt Company, or advanced by the Trust Company and paid out to and for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, all subsequent to the first day of January, 1898; that each and all of said notes were given for the purpose of evidencing a bona fide indebtedness to the amount specified in said notes. That said notes were executed and delivered and the said collateral security assigned and pledged in good faith for the purpose of evidencing and securing the payment of debts justly and equitably due and not otherwise. That all of said notes were given for so much money loaned and advanced by the Trust Company to the Belt Company, subsequent to the first day of January, 1898, as aforesaid.

These defendants deny that the Trust Company kept its officers and directors; or caused its officers and directors to be continued as the officers and directors of the Belt Company during the time stated in the ancilary bill, or at any time. It is true, however, that many of the officers and directors of the Belt Company were also officers and directors of the Trust Company, but that condition was occasioned by the fact that the stockholders of the Belt Company, who were persons other than the Trust Company elected certain officers, directors and employes of the Trust Company as officers and directors of the Belt Company, and it was not occasioned by any domination or control of the Trust Company, or by any influence whatever exerted by or on behalf of the Trust Company, and there never was, at any time, any officer, director or employe of the Trust Company, who was also an officer or employe of the Belt Company who desired or wished the Trust Company in any way to have or acquire any undue advantage whatever of the Belt Company, and there was at all times open and careful accounting had between the Belt Company and the Trust Company of all transactions in which they had any mutual connection; and although the Trust Company has at all times made full and accurate accountings for all of its business transactions with the Belt Company, all of which have been fully ratified and approved by 176 all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the Belt Company, as before stated, yet the Trust Company has at all times stood ready and is still ready and willing to make any such further accounting thereof, as may by the court be required.

These defendants deny that since the Belt Company passed into the control of other hands, it has ever been refused any accounting or information of any character concerning the past relations between the Trust Company and the Belt Company at any and all times when requested, but state, upon the contrary that the Trust Company has frequently rendered full, true and accurate accounts to the Belt Company, and to other persons, at its instance and request, of all of the transactions between the Trust Company and the Belt Company. That it has at all times offered every opportunity for the examination of its books and accounts; that at its invitation the Belt Company has had its own experts examine the books and accounts of the Trust Company. The Trust Company has always been anxious to have its accounts examined, and the balance due it settled and paid, and has insisted upon this from time to time.

14. These defendants further state and show that from and after the first day of January, 1898, continuously up until the first of April 1900, at divers and frequent times, the Trust Company loaned and advanced to the said Belt Company, at its instance and request, large sums of money, aggregating more than half a million of dollars, for the purpose of making necessary improvements in the said Belt Company's road and paying its operating expenses and meeting its interest charges, and also for the purpose of encouraging and securing the location of industries along its line, to the end that its earnings and income might be increased. That the said Belt Company from time to time repaid to said Trust Company parts of the money so loaned and advanced by it as aforesaid, but left unpaid a very large portion thereof, for a part of which balance the said promissory notes were duly executed and delivered by the Belt Company to the Trust Company, and to secure which the said stocks, bonds and property were pledged as collateral security as aforesaid. That the said Belt Company since it passed into the hands of its present management, has frequently recognized the said indebtedness of the Trust Company as valid and just and has frequently promised to pay the same. That on the Month of June, 1900, the Belt Company, then being in the hands of its present management, paid, on account of some of the said promissory notes, large sums of money, which were duly credited thereon, as hereinafter shown, and promised to pay the remainder of said notes and other indebtedness.

177 15. That the Trust Company and its receiver now own and hold the following promissory notes duly executed and delivered, as aforesaid, by the said Belt Company, all of which are long past due and remain unpaid, to-wit:

One note dated March 31st, 1899, due July 2nd, 1899, for $50,000.00 with interest from date at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, on which there has been paid and credited on June 14th, 1900, $12,500.00.

One note dated July 26th, 1899, due on demand for $203,900.00 with interest at 6 per cent per annum from date, upon which there was paid and credited on June 11th, 1900 $9,996.65.

One note dated September 21st, 1899, due on demand for $23,056.48 with interest at 8 per cent per annum from date.

One note dated October 23rd, 1899, due on demand, for $7,162.40 with interest at 8 per cent per annum from date.

One note dated November 7th, 1899, due January 9th, 1900, for $50,000.00 with interest after maturity at 8 per cent per annum upon which there was paid and credited June 14th, 1900 $12,500.00.

One note dated January 25th, 1900, due May 25th, 1900 for $25,000.00, with interest after maturity at 6 per cent per annum.

One note dated February 8th, 1900, due May 12th, 1900, for $109,500.00 with interest from maturity at 8 per cent per annum, on which there was paid and credited October 23rd, 1900 as proceeds of sale of collateral made by the National Bank of Commerce $110,250.00, leaving a balance due on October 23rd, 1900 of $3,240.66.

One note dated February 9th, 1900, due June 11th, 1900, for $10,400.00, with interest from maturity at 6 per cent — annum.

In addition to the above stated promissory notes, the Belt Company is justly indebted to the said Trust Company and its receiver, on an open book account for so much money at various times and in divers sums advanced to and paid out for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, at its special instance and request, parts of which were by the said Belt Company from time to time repaid and truly credited, all of which sums of money so advanced and paid out to and for the use and benefit of the said Belt Company, together with the payments and credits thereon, are fully and truly set out and appear from the itemized statement of account, which, ac-178 count shows the balance due to the Trust Company on said account on September 26th, 1900, of $43,713.32, and which account is in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

That the Trust Company, and its receiver now hold certain stocks, bonds, accounts and property, which are the property of the Belt Company, and which have heretofore been duly transferred and pledged to the Trust Company as collateral security for the payment of the said indebtedness of the Belt Company to the Trust Company, including all of the said promissory notes and the said open book account, and the said Trust Company and its receiver now hold the said stocks, bonds, accounts and property as such collateral security; the said stocks, Bonds, accounts and property so held by the Trust Company and its receiver as such collateral security, are as follows:

82.9 Second Mortgage Income Bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company.

25 shares of the capital stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company.

439 shares of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company.

1120 shares of the capital stock of the Central Improvement Company.

425 shares of the capital stock of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company.

A certain account and claim of the Belt Company against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, consisting

181 of charges for material furnished, labor performed, switching charges and terminal rentals due from Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company to the said Belt Company, which account on its face amounts to $133,805.44.

343-1940-2240 tons of steel rails.

That the Trust Company has heretofore been temporarily enjoined at the suit of the Cambria Steel Company in the above entitled original cause from selling or otherwise subjecting the above named stocks and bonds, so held as collateral security, toward the payment of the indebtedness of the Belt Company to the Trust Company; and the said claim and account of the Belt Company against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, so assigned to and held by the Trust Company, as collateral security for said indebtedness, has heretofore been by the Trust Company made the matter of an intervening petition in the suit of the State Trust Company complainant against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, et al., defendants in the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, and the said intervening petition is still there pending and undetermined.

That notwithstanding the Belt Company had assigned the said steel rails and fastenings to the Trust Company as collateral security, it afterwards refused to actually deliver the same to the Trust Company, and the Trust Company was therefore compelled to bring a suit in replevin therefor, which suit was brought in the State Court of Jackson County, Missouri, where the same is still pending and undetermined.

That whilst it is true as these defendants have hereinbefore stated, that the Trust Company had and has no interest in the property standing in the name of the Central Improvement Company, or of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, or of the Fairmount Amusement Company except that it holds liens upon certain portions thereof, as hereinbefore stated, and that the Trust Company had and has no interest in the property of the Northern Townsite Company, except that it is a stockholder therein, as hereinbefore stated, yet it is also true as these defendants state and show to the court, that the Trust Company has and holds 25 shares of the capital stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company of the par value of $100.00 each.

1120 shares of the capital stock of the Central Improvement Company of the par value of $100.00 each, and

182 425 shares of the capital stock of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company of the par value of $100.00 each, and also 439 other shares of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company of the par value of $100.00 each, as collateral security duly deposited and pledged with the Trust Company by the Belt Company to secure the payment of the said indebtedness hereinbefore stated due and owing by the Belt Company to the said Trust Company.

These defendants further state and show that they are ready and willing, if in the judgment of this court, they ought and should do so, to render a fuller accounting of any and all of the transactions of the Trust Company with any and all of said companies, in such manner and at such times as the Court may direct.

These defendants further state and show that the Trust Company has heretofore frequently made demand upon the Belt Company for the payment of each and all of said promissory notes and said book account, and that the said Trust Company, on the first day of April, 1900, in due manner made special demand upon the said Belt Company for the payment of each of said promissory notes which are payable on demand, and also on that date made due demand on the said Belt Company for the payment of the said open book account. That the Belt Company has failed and refused to pay the said notes or account, or any part thereof.

All of which matters and things hereinbefore stated these defendants are ready to aver, maintain and prove as this Honorable Court may direct, and hereby pray that judgment may be rendered by this Court against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its said receivers, in favor of the Guardian Trust Company and its receiver, for the amount of each and all of the said promissory notes, together with interest thereon, and for the amount of the said book account, with interest thereon from the 1st day of April, 1900, and that the said Trust Company and its receiver may have judgment against the said Belt Company, and its receivers, for any all further sums or amounts that may be found due the said Trust Company or its receiver, upon the accounting which may be had in this cause; that the court may by proper orders protect and enforce the interest of the Trust Company and its receiver in and to the stocks, bonds, accounts and property so deposited with and held by it as collateral security, as aforesaid, and that the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and its receivers may be ordered and directed to pay to the Guardian Trust Company and its receiver, whatever sums of money the Trust Company or its receiver may be found entitled to upon such accounting, and that these de-183 fendants also have judgment for their reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully expended and sustained.

Afterwards, to-wit, on the 16th day of December, 1901, an answer of Cambria Steel Company was filed in cause No. 2616. Said Answer is in words and figures as follows:

In the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, at Kansas City.

CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY, Complainant,
vs.
THE KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY et al., Defendants.

Original Bill.

STUART R. KNOTT and EDWARD F. SWINNEY, as Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Complainants,
vs.
CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY, et al., Defendants.

Ancillary Bill.

The Answer of the Cambria Steel Company to the Ancillary Bill of Complaint of Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Co.

This defendant saving and reserving to itself, now and at all times hereafter, all and all manner of benefit and advantage of exception which can or may be had or taken to the said complainants' said ancillary bill of complaint, for answer thereto, and to so much thereof as this defendant is advised is in any wise material or necessary for it to make answer unto, answers and says:

Upon information and belief it avers that all the matters and things stated in said bill up to the prayer thereof are true; that heretofore, on September 6th, 1900, this defendant recovered a judgment against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company hereinafter called the Belt Company, for $100,962.91, no part of which has been paid but all of which is still due. Having recovered such judgment, this defendant caused a writ of execution to be issued thereon directed to the marshal of this district, who 184 upon the same day, returned the said execution wholly unsatisfied for want of property upon which to levy the same. That said Belt Company was wholly insolvent and had no property subject to be reached by legal process which might be issued against it upon the judgment so recovered by this defendant; whereupon defendant filed in this court case number 2468, which was a bill in equity upon its behalf against said Belt Company, the Union Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company and Northern Townsite Company, the purpose and object of which was to have an accounting as between the said Belt Company and the Guardian Trust Company and to subject to the payment of its judgment all the property which the said Belt Company owned excepting that covered by its railroad mortgages, and particularly all the collateral pledged to secure the notes mentioned in the said ancillary bill of complaint. Said cause is pending and still undetermined. This defendant begs leave to refer to said bill of complaint and all the proceedings in said cause the same as if copied herein, and respectfully shows that when an account is taken of the various transactions between the Guardian Trust Company and its receiver and the Belt Company or its receivers, as in and by said ancillary bill claimed, the sums found due the receivers of the Belt Company should be subjected to the payment of the judgment of this defendant, which is the first, prior and paramount lien thereon, and no action should be taken in this cause in any manner interfering with the rights of this defendant in said bill for an accounting. And this defendant denies all and all manner of unlawful combination and confederacy, wherewith it is by the said bill charged; without this, that there is any other matter, cause or thing in the said bill of complaint contained (material or necessary for this defendant to make answer unto; and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently answered, confessed, traversed, avoided or denied) which is true, to the belief of this defendant; all which matters and things this defendant is ready and willing to aver, maintain and prove, as this honorable court shall direct, and humbly prays to be hence dismissed with its reasonable costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

Exceptions Taken by the Complainants Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company to the Separate Answer of the Defendants Guardian Trust Company and Francis M. Black, Its Receiver.

1. For that the following allegation contained in paragraph No. 2 of said Answer is impertinent, irrelevant and immaterial and contains no defense to the complainants' allegation and is insufficient: "But this defendant states and shows to the Court that the said original bill of complaint of the Cambria Steel Company and the said four bills of complaint so brought by the said The Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia were each and all filed at one and the same time by the same counsel and as separate parts of one and the same transaction, and that all of the said four suits by the Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia and also the said suit of the Cambria Steel Company were instituted at the solicitation and request and by collusion with the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company for the fraudulent purpose
186 of hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and particularly the defendant the Guardian Trust Company, which was one of said creditors."

2. For that the following allegation contained in paragraph No. 2 of said Answer is impertinent, irrelevant and immaterial and contains no defense to the complainants' allegations and is insufficient: "These defendants deny that the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company has ever filed any answer to the said original bill of complaint of the said Cambria Steel Company and state that if it should file any such answer the same will be collusive and fraudulent for the purpose of carrying out the purposes of said suit in hindering, delaying and defrauding the creditors to the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Company."

Wherefore, the complainants come and in all particulars aforesaid except to the answer of the said defendants Guardian Trust Company and Francis M. Black, its Receiver, on the ground alleged that the same is irrelevant, impertinent and insufficient; and humbly pray that the said defendants may be compelled to put a full, complete and sufficient answer thereto and have such other relief in the premises as to the Court may seem proper.

195 Intervening Petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

To the Judges of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri:

The Intervenor, the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, respectfully shows:

1. The intervenor is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri as a railway corporation, having been duly incorporated according to law in March, 1900.

2. That the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, one of the defendants herein, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, and being about to construct and equip a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, did, on or about May 1, 1890, execute and deliver its deed of trust to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein) as Trustee, in which said mortgage or deed of trust it is recited that the said mortgage or deed of trust shall be a first mortgage and paramount lien upon said railroad and upon all the property and rights of property of the railroad company of every name, nature and description then held or that might be thereafter acquired including all the privileges and franchises thereto appertaining; that in and by said mortgage or deed of trust there was conveyed to said trustee to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said railroad company in the principal sum of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00) all and singular the double track standard gauge railroad of the company (meaning thereby the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company) constructed and to be constructed from a point at the intersection of Second and Broadway Streets in Kansas City in Jackson County, Missouri; thence in an easterly direction on and along said Second Street to its point of intersection with Harrison Street in said city; thence in a north-easterly direction to a point near Randolph Avenue in said city; thence east for a distance of about one and one-half miles; thence in a southeasterly and southerly direction to the southern limits of said city; thence in a general southwesterly direction to a point at or near the mouth of Brush Creek in said county of Jackson, being about twelve (12) miles of double track railroad, about ten (10) miles of which are within the corporate limits of Kansas City; also all the lands, tenements, easements and hereditaments acquired or appropriated or which shall be thereafter acquired or appropriated for the purpose of a right of way for said rail-
196 road or for its tracks or switches; also all railroad tracks, railways and rights of way, depot grounds, station grounds and other structures, depots, station houses, engine houses, car houses, fuel houses, warehouses, machine shops and other shops, water tanks, turn tables, superstructures, erections, fixtures, rolling stock, furniture, fuel, tools, implements, machinery, machinery and appliances and other facilities for maintaining and operating said railroad, as well such as are then owned and held by the company as also such as the company might thereafter construct or acquire for use in connection with its said railroad; also all the terminals, terminal rights, privileges, contracts, leases, connections and appliances which the company then owned and held and which it might thereafter own and hold for use in connection with its said railroad; also all of certain described lots, tracts and parcels of land situated in Kansas City in the County of Jackson, State of Missouri, more specifically described in said mortgage or deed of trust; also all and singular the rents, tolls, income, issues and profits of the said railroad, premises and property; and also all the estate, right, title and interest, legal and equitable and present and future of the company in and to the same and every part thereof; and also all the corporate and other rights, privileges, liberties and franchises of the company connected with or pertaining to the said railroad or the construction, acquisition, maintenance or use thereof as well as those thereafter to be acquired as those then held.

That default was made in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust and, on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said mortgage or deed of trust in the circuit court of the United States for the western division of the western district of Missouri; that the defendant Guardian Trust Company was a party to said proceedings.

The intervenor further states that the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, one of the defendants herein, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri and being about to construct and equip a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, did, on or about March 1, 1892, execute and deliver its deed of trust to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein) as Trustee, in which said mortgage or deed of trust it is recited that the said mortgage or deed of trust shall be a first mortgage and paramount lien upon 197 the railroad of said company and upon all its property and rights of property of every name, nature and description then held or that might thereafter be acquired, including all the privileges and franchises thereto appertaining; that in and by said mortgage or deed of trust there was conveyed to said trustee to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said railroad company in the principal sum of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000.00), all and singular the standard gauge railroad of the company (meaning the Kansas City & Independence Air Line) constructed and to be constructed from a point on the line of the Kansas City Suburban Belt railroad at or near the southeast corner of section twenty-five (25) township fifty (50), Range Thirty — (33) west, in Jackson County, Missouri; thence in a general easterly direction to the city of Independence in said County of Jackson, in the State of Missouri, being about six (6) miles of standard gauge railroad and lying wholly within the said county of Jackson and State of Missouri; also all the lands, tenements, easements and hereditaments acquired or appropriated, for the purpose of a right of way for said railroad or for its side tracks or switches; also all railroad tracks, railways, ways and rights of way, depot ground, station grounds and other grounds, bridges, viaducts, culverts and other structures, depots, station houses, engine houses, car houses, fuel houses, warehouses, machine shops and other shops, water tanks, turn-tables, superstructures, erections, fixtures rolling stock, furniture, fuel, tools, implements, machinery and appliances and other facilities for maintaining and operating said railroad, as well such as the company

then owned or held as also such as the company thereafter may construct or acquire and own for use in connection with its said railroad; also all the terminals, terminal rights, privileges, contracts, leases, connections and appliances which the company then owned and held and which it might thereafter hold and own for use in connection with its said railroad; also all and singular the rents, tolls, income, issues and profits — the said railroad, premises and property; and also all the estate, right, title and interest, legal and equitable and present and future of the company in and to the same and every part thereof; and also all the corporate and other rights, privileges, liberties and franchises of the company connected with or pertaining to the said railroad or the construction, acquisition, maintenance or use thereof as well those thereafter to be acquired as those then held; that default was made in the payments required by said mortgage or deed of trust and on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of the said mortgage or deed of trust in the Circuit Court of the United States within and for the western division of the western district 198 of Missouri; that the defendant Guardian Trust Company was a party to said proceedings.

That such proceedings were held in the two foreclosure suits above mentioned that the said causes were consolidated, and upon the 6th day of November, 1901, there was entered by said court a final decree of foreclosure and sale adjudging and decreeing that default had been made in the payment of the principal and interest upon the bonds secured by the mortgages aforesaid and that the railroads, properties and franchises embraced in each of said mortgages should be sold as in and by the said decree provided, reference being hereby made thereto and to the record in said causes; that pursuant to said decree a commissioner was appointed to make said sale and the said commissioner did on December 31, 1901, at the place in the said decree specified duly sell at public auction to the intervenor, The Kaias City Southern Railway Company, it being the highest and best bidder at said sale, all and singular the railroads, property and franchises in said decree mentioned and directed to be sold and in said mortgages described as heretofore set forth, due notice of the time and place of said sales having been published pursuant to said decree, and the said decree was complied with in all things relating to said sales; that said commissioner did duly make and file his report of said sales on December 31, 1901, in the above entitled causes and court, which said report and sales were, after notice given, duly confirmed and made absolute, and the said commissioner did thereafter as directed by said court and on or about January 4, 1902, duly convey by commissioner's deed all and singular the railroads, franchises and property of every kind and description theretofore belonging to the said railroad companies and set forth and described in said mortgages including the property held by the said companies respectively at the date of said mortgages and also the property thereafter acquired by them and each of them, to your intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which is now the lawful owner thereof.

3. Your Intervenor further shows that the Union Terminal Railroad Company, one of the defendants herein, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Kansas, and being about to construct and equip a line of railroad in Wyandotte County, in the State of Kansas, did, on or about February 1, 1893, execute and deliver its deed of trust to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein) and the Provident Life & Trust Company of Philadelphia, as 199 Trustees, in which said mortgage or deed of trust it was recited that said mortgage or deed of trust should be a lien upon the railroad of said company and upon all the property and rights of property of the said company of every name, nature and description then held or that might thereafter be acquired including all the privileges and franchises thereto appertaining; that in and by said mortgage or deed of trust there was conveyed to the said trustees all and singular the standard gauge railroad of the said Union Terminal Company constructed and to be constructed from a point in the City of Argentine, in the County of Wyandotte, in the State of Kansas, to a point on the north side of the Kansas River opposite the said city of Argentine; thence in a northwesterly direction by the most convenient and practical route, to a point at or near the Missouri River; thence along and down the valley of the Missouri and up the valley of the Kansas river to the place of beginning, so as to substantially encircle the city of Kansas City, Kansas, in said County of Wyandotte; also such branch or branches and spur or spurs as may be necessary to enable it to connect with the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company's railway at the state line between Missouri and Kansas where the said railway intersects said state line on or near the south bank of the Missouri river; the main line of the railway of the Union Terminal Railroad Company being about twenty-two miles in length and lying wholly within the said County of Wyandotte and State of Kansas; also all the lands, tenements, easements and hereditaments acquired or appropriated, for the purpose of a right of way for said railroad, or for its side tracks or switches; also all railroad tracks, railways, ways and rights of way, depot grounds, station grounds, and other grounds, bridges, viaducts, culverts, and other structures, depots, station houses, engine houses, car houses, fuel houses, warehouses, machine shops and other shops, water tanks, ties, rails, furniture, fuel, tools, implements, machinery supplies and appliances, and other facilities for maintaining and operating said railroad, as well such as were then owned or held by the company as also such as the company might thereafter construct or acquire and own for use in connection with its said railroad, and also the terminal, terminal rights, privileges, contracts, leases and connections and appliances which the company then owned and held and which it should thereafter own and hold for use in connection with its said railroad; also all and singular the rents, tolls, income, issues and profits of the said railroad, premises and property; and also all the estate, legal and equitable and present and future of the company in and to the same and every part

200 liberties and franchises of the company connected with or pertaining to the said railroad or the construction, acquisition, maintenance or use thereof, as well those thereafter to be acquired as those then held; that default was made in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust and on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said mortgage and deed of trust in the circuit court of the United States for the district of Kansas, first division; that such proceedings were had in said foreclosure suit; that upon the 6th day of November, 1901, there was entered by the said court a decree of foreclosure and sale, adjudging and decreeing that default had been made in the payment of the principal and interest upon the bonds secured by the mortgage aforesaid and that the railroad properties and franchises embraced in said mortgage should be sold as in and by the said decree provided, reference being hereby made thereto and to the record in said cause; that pursuant to said decree a commissioner was appointed by the court to make said sale, and the said commisioner did, on December 31, 1901, at the place in the said decree specified, dûly sell at public auction to the intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, it being the highest and best bidder at such sale, all and singular the railroad property and franchises in said decree mentioned and directed to be sold, including all property held by the said railroad company at the time of the execution of said mortgage, as well as property thereafter acquired and held as provided in said mortgage or deed of trust, due notice of the time and place of said sale having been published pursuant to said decree, and the said decree was complied with in all things relating to said sale; that said commissioner did duly make and file his report of said sale on December 31, 1901, in the above entitled cause and court, which said report and sale were, after notice given, duly confirmed and made absolute; and the said commissioner did thereupon and on the 4th day of January, 1902, as directed by said court, duly convey by commissioner's deed all and singular the railroad, franchises and property of every kind and description theretofore belonging to said company at the time of the execution of said mortgage or deed of trust, and also all property therein described thereafter acquired by said company, to your intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which is now the lawful owner thereof.

4. Your intervenor further states that the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, and being engaged in the construction of a line of railroad from a point
201 near Kansas City, Missouri, southwardly to the Gulf of Mexico, did on or about April 1, 1893, execute and deliver its deed of trust to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein) and the State Trust Company of the City of New York, as Trustees, in and by which said mortgage or deed of trust there is conveyed to the trustees therein named all and singular the line of railroad constructed or thereafter constructed or acquired from Kansas City in the State of Missouri, southerly through the counties of Jackson, Cass, Bates and Vernon, and the northwest corner of Barton County, in said State of Missouri to the western line of Barton County in said State of Missouri, and so on to the city of Mena in the State of Arkansas; and all and singular the railroad, ways and rights of way, roadbeds, depot grounds and other lands and all tracks, bridges, viaducts, culverts, fences, depots, stations, station houses, engine houses, car houses, freight houses, wood houses, locomotive shops and other shops, and all other structures and buildings whatsover then held or owned or which should be thereafter in anywise acquired, held or owned by the said railroad company for use in the construction,, maintenance or operation of its line of railroad or any extension, continuation, branch railroad or lines of railroad which it might thereafter purchase, construct or acquire in connection with its main line of railroad; also all locomotives, tenders and passenger, baggage, freight, cattle and other cars, and all other rolling stock and equipment whatsover, and all machinery, tools and implements and all fuel, supplies and materials then or thereafter held, owned or acquired by said railroad company for constructing, maintaining, operating and repairing its said railroad or any extension or branch thereof; also all rights, privileges, powers, immunities and exemptions and all corporate and other franchises then owned, held and enjoyed by the said railroad company with respect to said main line or any part thereof or which should be thereafter owned, acquired, held or enjoyed by or conferred upon said railroad company connected with or relating to the said main line of railroad, its extensions, continuations and branches; also all leases, traffic contracts and arrangements of every kind and character whatsoever which said railroad company had or might thereafter enter into with any other railroad company forming part of the said line; also all and singular any tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances to said railroad or lines of railroad and each and every part thereof acquired and to be acquired, constructed, and to be constructed, then or thereafter belonging or in any wise appertaining; and all the reversion and reversions remainder and remainders, estate, right, title, interest, prop-202 erty, possession, claim and demand whatsoever, as well in law as in equity which the said railroad company then had or was entitled to or which the said railroad company, its successors or assigns should thereafter acquire or become entitled to concerning the said railroad or any extension, continuation or branch thereof or their rights, franchises and each and every part and parcel thereof with the appurtenances. Said mortgage or deed of trust was executed and delivered to said trustees to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said railroad company in the principal sum of Twenty-three Million Dollars ($23,000,000.00); that default was made in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust, and on April 28, 1899, proceedings were instituted in the Circuit Court of the United States for the western division of the western district of Missouri for the foreclosure of the said mortgage or deed of trust; that such proceedings were had in said action that on the 5th day of January, 1900, there was entered by said court a decree of foreclosure and sale adjudging and decreeing that default had been made in the payments of the principal and interest upon the bonds secured by the mortgage or deed of trust aforesaid; and that the railroads, properties and franchises embraced in said mortgage should be sold as in and by the said decree provided, reference being hereby made thereto and the record in said cause; that pursuant to said decree a special master was appointed to make said sale and the said special master did, on March 19, 1900, at the place in said decree specified duly sell to a committee acting for your intervenor, the said committee being the highest and best bidder at said sale, all and singular the railroads, property and franchises in said decree mentioned, including the properties owned and acquired at the time of the execution of said mortgage or deed of trust as well as those thereafter acquired for use in connection with its said railroad, and directed to be sold, due notice of the time and place of said sale having been published pursuant to said decree and sale, and said decree was complied with in all things relating to said sale; that your intervenor by leave and order of court became the substitute bidder in the place of said committee; that said special master did duly make and file his report of said sale on March 20, 1900, in the above entitled cause, which said report and sale were, after notice given, duly confirmed and made absolute, and the said special master did thereupon, as directed by said court, duly convey by master's deed all and singular the railroad, franchises and property of every kind and description belonging to the said railroad company, including not only the properties described in said mortgage or deed of trust as then owned and held by the said railroad company but also the properties thereafter acquired for use in connection with the operation of

The mortgages or deeds of trust mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs are all duly and properly acknowledged and duly and properly recorded in the various counties in which the properties mentioned therein were respectively located at or about the dates of said mortgages or deeds of trust respectively.

5. The intervenor further shows that, about the year 1887, the defendant Guardian Trust Company, hereinafter called the Trust Company, conceived and entered upon the plan and purpose to cause to be constructed a number of railroads in and about Kansas City in the State of Missouri, and Kansas City in the State of Kansas, and leading from or to said city; it was a part of the said plan and purpose of the Trust Company to cause said railroads to be built, constructed and operated by various corporations to be organized by the Trust Company and to elect certain of the officers, agents and representatives of the said Trust Company as the officers and directors of the said several railroad companies so as to at all times to absolutely dominate and control the corporate action of the said railroad companies through their common directors and officers; it was a further part of the plans and purposes of the Trust Company to utilize and employ some one or more of the said railroad companies to act for and on behalf of the Trust Company in building and operating railroads and in the issue of bonds and stocks so as to gather unto the Trust Company all the profits and other advantages accruing in the premises to foist upon the said railroad companies so utilized any and all losses, burdens or other liabilities which might result in the course of their operation; in carrying out its said plans and purposes the Trust Company assumed the position of trustee and agent in constructing and operating said railroad and in managing and disposing of the bonds, stocks, funds and other assets of the said railroad companies and is held to the liability of trustee or agent for the use and benefit of the parties who might and did become concerned or interested therein; and that consequently the relation of the Trust Company to each and all of the said railroad companies and especially those hereafter named so far as the said Trust Company might employ the same, or either of them, as agents and instrumentalities to further its own plans and purposes, was that of a principal bound and charged with the duty to i-demnify and protect such railroad company so employed and utilized in any particular transaction against any and all losses, burdens and liability arising in the premises;

204 moreover the Trust Company was either the sole trustee in the mortgages above mentioned, or when joined as co-trustee with the Provident Life & Trust Company was the active trustee in the charge and management of the trust created by the several mortgages or deeds of trust above described, and as such trustee owed an active duty at all times during the continuance of such relation, to care for and in every way protect the interest of the bondholders secured by said mortgages, as well as to care and protect the interests of the mortgagors themselves; the Trust Company in pursuance of the plans and purposes so conceived and entered upon by it, did acquire the control of the Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Suburban Company, in the year 1899, and caused it to issue the bonds secured by the mortgage afore-said and to issue capital stock in a large amount and to cause said company to construct and thereafter to operate a railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, as described in the mortgage or deed of trust of said company heretofore set forth; the Trust Company, in pursuance of the same plan, did, in 1891, cause to be incorporated the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Consolidated Company) and did cause said Consolidated Company to issue bonds and a mortgage or deed of trust to secure the same, and to issue its capital stock in a large amount, and to construct a railroad in Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, connecting with the railroad of the Suburban Company, the two roads forming a continuous line of railroad from the state line between the states of Kansas and Missouri at a point in the eastern portion of Jackson County known as Belt Junction; that in December, 1891, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Kansas the Union Terminal Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Terminal Company) and did cause it to issue and execute the bonds and mortgage or deed of trust above referred to and issue capital stock in a large amount and did further cause it to construct a railroad beginning at the state line between the states of Kansas and Missouri and extending southwesterly along the left bank of the Kaw, or Kansas, river to a point at or near the town of Argentine, Wyandotte County, Kansas; in Januray, 1891, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, the Kansas City & Independence Air Line (hereinafter referred to as the Air Line) and did cause the Air Line to issue and execute the bonds and mortgage above referred to and issue stock in a large amount and to construct and operate a railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, extending from a point on the line of the Suburban Company known as Air Line Junction to the City of Independence

205 in the State of Missouri. Shortly after the issue of the bonds and stocks of the Consolidated Company the Trust Company caused it to Consolidate with the Suburban Company forming a new company called the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company (hereinafter referred to as the Belt Company); that the Trust Company caused the Terminal Company to execute a lease of all its property, rights and franchises to the Belt Company and thereunder the Belt Company operated the line of the Terminal Company and its own line and continued so to operate the same until the institution of the foreclosure proceedings above referred to; the Trust Company, by virtue of its ownership and control of the capital stock of the Belt Company, Air Line and Terminal Company, did, at all times, cause its officers and directors to be elected as the officers and directors of said lines, and did thereby dominate and control all the affairs and business of said lines and caused them and each of them to do and perform all such corporate acts and things as the Trust Company from time to time deemed to be beneficial to its own interests; that the Trust Company in the year 1893 caused to be incorporated the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Gulf Company, and caused it to issue and execute the bonds and mortgage or deed of trust above referred to and issue stock in a large amount. The Trust Company also caused the Gulf Company to construct and operate a railroad extending generally from a point near Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, to the Gulf of Mexico and did cause the Gulf Company to enter into contracts with the Belt Company for the use of the latter's terminals at Kansas City; the Trust Company also caused its officers and directors to be elected officers and directors of the Gulf Company and at all times by that means did dominate and control the affairs of the Gulf Company and did cause it to perform such corporate acts and things as the Trust Company deemed to be for its benefit and advantage; that by reason of such domination and control of the Trust Company at all times had a complete and intimate knowledge of all the affairs and transactions of all the companies above referred to in all their details, including the transactions hereinafter specifically mentioned.

6. Your intervenor further shows that in the year 1895, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the

State of Missouri the Central Improvement Company (hereinafter called the Central Company) the directors and officers of which were at all times made up from the directors and officers of the Trust Company, and the Central Company was at all times in all of its transactions dominated and controlled by the Trust Company;

206 the purposes of the incorporation of the said Central Company were to hold the legal title to real estate that might be needed and acquired for right of way or other purposes necessary for and in connection with the operation of the various railroad companies so dominated and controlled by the Trust Company, in some instances the purpose being that upon the purchase of property by one of the said railway companies the title should be taken in the name of the Central Company in order that it might be enabled to give back a mortgage or deed of trust to secure a portion of the purchase money, which said mortgage or deed of trust would be a first lien and not subject to the first mortgage or deed of trust lien upon the property of the railway companies respectively. In pursuance of this plan large amounts of money were furnished to the Central Company by the Belt Company, by the Air Line and by the Gulf Company for the purchase of right of way and terminal properties necessary for the use and operation of the said railways respectively, and purchases were accordingly made of properties for the use and operation of said companies, a list of which properties so purchased is hereto attached, marked "Exhibit A"; this statement shows the price paid for each particular piece of property and for which particular railroad company the said property was acquired, and by which company the purchase price was paid; that the titles to said property so acquired were, for convenience merely, placed in the name of the said Central Company; in some instances the money so furnished to pay for such properties was furnished directly by the Belt Company or other companies for whose benefit the purchase was made to the vendors and in other instances the money was furnished direct to the Central Company, which issued to the company so furnishing such funds its capital stock representing approximately the amount of money so furnished. That in this way there were issued by the Central Improvement Company fourteen hundred and seven (1407) shares, of which eight hundred and seventeen shares (817) are now held by the Belt Company, three hundred and thirty four (334) shares are now held by the Union Terminal Company, twenty-two (22) shares are now held by the Air Line and two hundred and thirty four (234) shares are now held by the Gulf Company, such companies having furnished form time to time for the purchase of property for the use and benefit of such companies the following amounts:

Belt Company	$129,673.96
Gulf Company	23,673.89

that no money was ever received by the Central Company except the money so furnished as aforesaid, and it did not have at any time any assets or property except property so purchased as aforesaid;

that the said fourteen hundred and seven (1407) shares of 207 stock were the only shares of stock ever lawfully issued by the Central Company; and by reason of the premises the said Central Company is, and was at all times, a mere trustee holding the legal title to the various properties, in trust, for the said railways, for whose use and benefit said lands were purchased as aforesaid; immediately upon the making of such purchases and the vesting of title in the Central Company the particular railroad company for which such purchase was made became the equitable owner and entitled to a conveyance thereof; the said properties so purchased for the said railroad companies and to which the said railroad companies respectively were entitled to a conveyance were necessary for the use of such railroad company in connection with and in the operation of its railroad and came within the after acquired property clause of the mortgage placed upon said road, so that the equitable liens of said mortgages respectively attached to and became a charge upon the said properties in favor of their bondholders respectively; that sales of some of said properties have been made by the Central Company and by its receiver acting under order of this court and the proceeds thereof are now in the possession of said receiver. By the foreclosure proceedings above mentioned and decrees of sale had thereunder the intervenor acquired the equitable title to all of said properties so held by the Central Company, as aforesaid, and became and is now entitled to a conveyance of the same and to the proceeds of sales thereof now held by the said receiver, but the Trust Company denies the right of the intervenor to said property or to the stock of the Central Company, and pretends to hold the said stock of the Central Company as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, as hereinafter more specifically set forth.

7. Your intervenor further shows that, prior to February 1, 1900, the Belt Company purchased and owned a large quantity of steel rails for use in the construction and repair of its railroad and in connection therewith; there were in the possession of the Belt Company on February 1, 1900, and prior thereto, approximately six hundred (600) tons more or less of said steel rails so owned by the Belt Company and approximately twenty tons of fastenings for use in connection therewith; by virtue of the after acquired property clause above referred to in the mortgage of the Belt Company, the said steel rails and fastenings became charged with a lien to secure the payment of the bonds so issued by the Belt Company, as aforesaid, upon the foreclosure of the said mortgage of the Belt Company and the sale had thereunder the equitable title to said rails passed to and vested in the intervenor, The Kansas City Southern 208 Railway Company, and it became and is now the equitable owner thereof; the Trust Company claims to have acquired said steel rails and fastenings on or about February 1, 1900, as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it and the Trust Company denies the right and claim of your intervenor to said steel rails and fastenings, although it received the same with actual notice of the mortgage lien thereon, the value of said steel rails and fastenings was and is thirty five dollars ($35.-00) per ton and the Trust Company should be required in equity to deliver said property to your intervenor, or if the said property has been sold by the Trust Company then it should be required to account for and pay to your intervenor the proceeds or full value thereof.

8. Your intervenor further states that the railroad of the Terminal Company was a connecting railroad with the line of the Belt Company the two railroads forming a continuous line of railroad and the Belt Company was, therefore, authorized by law to aid the Terminal Company in the construction of its road and to acquire the stock of the Terminal Company in the lawful execution of the corporate purposes of the Belt Company did acquire five thousand (5,000) shares of the capital stock of the Terminal Company and held said stock for the uses and purposes of its railroad as by law duly authorized to do; by virtue of the after acquired property clause in the mortgage executed by the Belt Company as above set forth, the lien of said mortgage in equity attached to said five thousand (5,000) shares of Terminal stock when so acquired by the Belt Company and inured to the benefit of the bondholders of the Belt Company as the Trust Company well knew. The Trust Company acquired possession of said Five Thousand (5,000) shares of Union Terminal stock so covered by said mortgage lien as aforesaid, and claims to hold the same as collateral security for an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, and denies the right of your intervenor to said stock or to the proceeds thereof. On or about June 14, 1900, the Trust Company claims to have sold said five thousand (5,000) shares of Terminal stock at and for the sum of twenty-five thousand ($25,000.00) dollars which sum was the fair value thereof at that time. By virtue of the said mortgage of the Belt Company and the foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder your intervenor became entitled in equity to said five thousand (5,000) shares of Terminal stock, or twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00), the value or proceeds thereof, together with interest thereon at six per cent per annum from said June 14th, 1900, which the Trust Company unlawfully withholds from the intervenor.

209 The Air Line owned and operated a railroad connecting with the railroad from the Belt Line, as hereinbefore stated, and the two formed a continuous line of railroad, and the Belt Company thereby, by virtue of the Statutes of the State of Missouri, became entitled to aid the Air Line in the construction of its road and to purchase and hold the capital stock of the Air Line; prior to June 11, 1900, the Belt Line had acquired and owned 4,994 shares of the capital stock of the Air Line; the Belt Line also at the same time had acquired as aforesaid and held 14,997 shares of the Terminal stock in addition to the five thousand shares above mentioned, that the said Terminal stock and the said Air Line stock were acquired by the Trust Company claiming to hold the same as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Line to it but the said stocks had been acquired by the Belt Company prior thereto and were covered by the after acquired property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company, as the Trust Company well knew, to secure the bonds of the Belt Company; and upon the foreclosure of said mortgage of the Belt Company and the sale thereunder to your intervenor the latter acquired the equitable title to said stock or to the value or proceeds thereof; the Trust Company claims that it did, on or about June 11, 1900, sell said 14,997 shares of Terminal stock and 4,994 shares of the Air Line stock at the sum or price of $9,996.65; and it holds the said stocks or the proceeds thereof and denies the right of your intervenor thereto; that your intervenor in equity is entitled to said stock or, if the same has been sold by the Trust Company, to have the Trust Company account to it for the value or the proceeds thereof together with interest thereon from June 11, 1900, at six per cent.

9. Your intervenor states that in the year 1896, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, called the Kansas City Northern Connecting Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Connecting Company) for the purpose of constructing a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, in order to connect with the railroads at that point running eastwardly to Quincy, Illinois, and northwardly to Council Bluffs, Iowa. The Trust Company, after the incorporation of said railway company, caused it to execute its bonds, secured by mortgage or deed of trust, in a large amount and to issue its capital stock in a large amount, and thereupon caused the Connecting Company and the Belt Company to enter into a contract, by the terms of which the Belt Company undertook to acquire the right of way and to construct the railroad of the Connecting Company, and as a consideration thereof, the Connecting Company agreed to execute, issue and deliver 210 to the Belt Company the bonds and stocks of the Connecting Company; that the proposed line of the Connecting Company formed a direct connection with the line of the Belt Company and the two lines formed a continuous line of railroad; in pursuance of said contract the Belt Company began the construction of the railroad of the Connecting Company and the acquisition of its right of way, and received as a consideration for so doing, a large amount of the first mortgage bonds and of the capital stock of the Connecting Company and held and owned a large amount in value of said stock and bonds, for use in connection with the operation of its railroad on and prior to July 20, 1899; that at various dates the Trust Company took and converted to its own use eleven hundred and thirty (1130) of the first mortgage bonds of the Connecting Company which at that time belonged to the Belt Company and were of the value of eight hundred forty five thousand four hundred and fifteen dollars ($845,415.00); that at the same time the Trust Company took and converted to its own use sixteen (16) of the second mortgage bonds of the Connecting line which were at that time owned by the Belt Company, of the value of seven thousand two hundred dollars ($7,200.00); that at the same time the Trust Company took and converted to its own use six thousand two hundred and fifty (6250) shares of the capital stock of the Connecting Company, which were the property of the Belt Company of the value of thirty-seven thousand five hundred dollars ($37,500.00). On or about July 20, 1899, the Trust Company took from the Belt Company four hundred and fourteen (414) mortgage bonds of the Connecting Company and three thousand nine hundred and twenty (3920) shares of the stock of the Connecting Company, which were at that time the property of the Belt Company, and claimed to hold the same as collateral security for an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it. All of said bonds and stocks came under the after acquired property clause of the mortgage or deed of trust executed by the Belt Company and were charged with an equitable lien to secure the bonds of the Belt Company, as the Trust Company at all times well knew. By the foreclosure proceedings and sale to your intervenor as above referred to the equitable title to said stocks and bonds or to the proceeds thereof, when they had been sold by the Trust Company, vested in your intervenor, which is now in equity the owner thereof. On or about September 30, 1899, the Trust Company claims to have sold said 3920 shares of Northern Connecting stock and to have received therefor the sum of Nineteen thousand eight hundred and eighty-five and 71/100 Dollars ($19,885.71); the Trust Company denies the right 211 of your intervenor to said bonds and stocks, or the value or proceeds thereof, but claims that it has since the acquisition thereof sold all of said first mortgage bonds, including those above referred to as collateral, and to have received therefrom the proceeds thereof in the sum of Nine Hundred Ninety-five Thousand four hundred fifteen Dollars ($995,415.00) and your intervenor is entitled in equity and good conscience to have the proceeds of all of said stocks and bonds above mentioned accounted for and paid to it.

10. Your intervenor further shows that in the month of ——— 1896, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to enter into a terminal contract with the Gulf Company, by the terms of which the Belt Company gave to the Gulf Company an entrance into Kansas City and certain valuable terminal rights and facilities; and the Gulf Company on its part undertook and agreed to pay to the Belt Company certain sums of money as rental for the rights and privileges granted to it in said contract; both parties entered upon the performance of said contract and continued so to do until April 1, 1899, when receivers for the Gulf Company were appointed by the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri. At the time of the appointment of said receivers there was due to the Belt Company from the Gulf Company under and by virtue of the terms of said terminal contract a large sum claimed by the Trust Company to be in excess of One Hundred Thirty Three Thousand Dollars ($133,000.00). That said terminal contract, by virtue of the provisions of the after acquired property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company heretofore set forth became charged in equity with the mortgage lien to secure the bonds issued by said company, and the rents, issues and profits at that time due the Belt Company under said contract also became charged in equity with the mortgage lien of the Belt Company to secure said bonds; that by virtue of the said foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder to your intervenor the latter acquired all equitable right and title to said contract and to the rentals due thereon as the Trust Company at all times well knew. The Belt Company, on or about February 1, 1900, undertook to transfer and assign said account to the Trust Company as collateral security to secure an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it and the Trust Company claims to be the assignee of said account, and refuses to cancel or re-assign said account to your intervenor as in equity and good conscience it should be required to do.

11. Your intervenor further states, that in connection with the contract between the Belt Company and the Connecting Company aforesaid, and as a part of the obligation of the Belt Company under said contract to procure the right of way for the
212 railroad of the Connecting Company, the Belt Company purchased and acquired certain lands along the line of said railroad in addition to the right of way and took the title thereto in a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri called the Northern Townsite Company (hereinafter referred to as the Townsite Company) which corporation was organized by the Trust Company and officered by the officers of the Trust Company. In purchasing land for said right of way it became frequently necessary, in the economical handling of the matter, to purchase larger tracts out of which the right of way would be carved, and also to purchase lands for townsites, and the title to the lands of this character that were purchased was taken in the name of the Townsite Company. All of the money used in purchasing said lands, amounting to the sum of Forty Six Thousand Four Hundred Sixty Three and 75/100 Dollars ($46,463.75) was furnished and provided by the Belt Company, except the sum of $6,288.57, which was furnished and provided by the Trust Company. That the capital stock of the Townsite Company, to the extent of 439 shares, was by it issued to the Belt Company to represent the moneys contributed by it in the purchase of said lands; that the purchase of said lands was incidental to the construction of the railroad of the connecting line; and the title to said lands (except such as may be held to have been purchased with moneys furnished by the Trust Company) in equity belonged to the Belt Company and were covered by the after acquired property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company as aforesaid; that by virtue of the said foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder to your intervenor, the latter became vested with the title to said lands so owned in equity by the Belt Company and became entitled to the capital stock so issued by the Townsite Company to the Belt Company; that the Trust Company denies the right of your intervenor to said lands, or any part thereof, and to said capital stock, and claims to hold the said capital stock as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it. By virtue of the premises your intervenor is entitled in equity and good conscience to a decree requiring the Trust Company to turn over to your intervenor all of the said capital stock representing moneys advanced by the Belt Company, and to the cancellation of any and all of the capital stock of said Townsite Company issued without consideration, or to a conveyance to the Belt Company of all the properties and assets of the Townsite Company upon repayment to the Trust Company by your intervenor of the said sum of $3,288.57, so advanced by the Trust Company to the Townsite Company.

213 12. Your intervenor further shows that, as above stated, the Trust Company at all times fully controlled and dominated all the corporate acts and doings of the Belt Company; that the Trust Company at all times caused its own officers and directors to be the officers and directors of the Belt Company, and was in a position to require, and did require, the said officers and directors of the Belt Company to do and perform the will and behest of the Trust Company in each and every act and deed. The Trust Company, while possessed with this power of domination and control, did not exercise the same for the interest or benefit of the Belt Company or its stockholders or bondholders whose bonds were secured by mortgage on the property of the Belt Company; nor did the Trust Company in any degree or in any way carry out the duties imposed upon it as trustee in said mortgage, but on the contrary the trust company at all times controlled the acts and doings of the Belt Company in the interest and for the benefit of the Trust Company and exercised its powers and duties as trustee in said mortgage in its own interest and in violation of its trust.

On April 1, 1899, the Gulf Company, being then insolvent, defaulted in the payment of a semi-annual installment of interest then due and on the same day all its railroads and properties were placed in the hands of receivers appointed by the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri; and on April 28, 1899, upon bill filed by the State Trust Company all the railroads and property of the Gulf Company were placed in the hands of receivers appointed by the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, the suit and proceedings in the State court being then dismissed. Prior to said default the Trust Company, whose officers and directors were also the officers and directors of the Gulf Company as well as of the Belt Company, knew that a default would occur and that receivers would be appointed, and the Trust Company also knew if the Gulf Company became bankrupt or passed out of its possession and control the other auxiliary companies, to-wit, the Belt Company, the Air Line, the Union Terminal and the Consolidated Terminal, would soon likewise pass out of its control and domination; and the Trust Company, in violation of its duty as trustee in said mortgages and with a view of appropriating to itself whatever of value there was remaining in the possession of the said companies, contrived the plan of requiring said companies to turn over to it all of the personal property owned by said companies, of every nature and description, as and for security for alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it. In

caused the Belt Company to turn over to it Ten thousand 214 five hundred (10,500) shares of the capital stock of the Terminal company to secure an alleged indebtedness; and on July 20, 1899, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to turn over to it, as collateral security to secure said alleged indebtedness, four thousand nine hundred ninety eight (4998) additional shares of stock of the Union Terminal Company, four thousand nine hundred and ninety three (4993) shares of the stock of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, eleven hundred twenty (1120) shares of stock of the Central Improvement Company, four hundred thirty nine (439) shares of stock of the Northern Townsite Company, four hundred and twenty five (425) shares of the stock of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, twenty five (25) shares of the stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company, thirteen thousand nine hundred and twenty (13920) shares of the stock of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Company, sixty seven and nine tenths (67.9) second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, and also the right of the Belt Company to receive eighteen hundred and fifteen (1815) additional shares of the stock of the Northern Connecting Railroad Company; also two hundred and seven and five tenths (207.5) of the second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company. On September 30, 1899, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to sell to it all of the stock of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting — held by the Belt Company at the price of one and three sevenths Dollars ($1 3/7) per share to apply upon the alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to the Trust Company. On February 5, 1900, a decree of foreclosure and sale was rendered in the foreclosure proceedings in the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri in the case of State Trust Company against the Gulf Company; the Trust Company knew some time prior to the rendition of said decree that said decree would be rendered and accordingly on February 1, 1900, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to pretend to hold a meeting of its directors and to specifically turn over all of the afore-mentioned stocks and bonds to the Trust Company to secure said alleged indebtedness, and also to assign and transfer to the Trust Company by bill of sale as collateral security six hundred (600) tons, more or less, of sixty-pound (60-lb.) steel rails owned by the Belt Company and stored in its yards at East Kansas City; and to assign and transfer to the Trust Company an account owned by the Belt Company against the Gulf Company in the sum of One Hundred Thirty Three Thousand and fifty eight and 4/100 Dollars ($133,058.04) as collateral security for the said alleged indebtedness. This transaction com-215 pletely stripped the Belt Company and the other companies of all portable personal property and there was nothing left which could be appropriated by the Trust Company under the guise of taking additional security.

Your intervenor further states that the said acts of the Trust Company in causing the Belt Company to turn over said stocks, bonds and property and account to the Trust Company, were unlawful and void and were solely due to the unlawful domination and control exercised by the Trust Company over the officers and directors of the Belt Company as aforesaid; that the matters and things so done and transacted were not known to or approved by any independent board of directors or to the persons in interest owning the stocks and bonds of the Belt Company.

Your intervenor further states that the Trust Company by reason of its control of the Belt Company had intimate and exact knowledg- of all the affairs and accounts, assets and liabilities of the Belt Company although it was trustee in the mortgage of the Belt Company, and thus bound to a high degree of fidelity to the interests of the Belt Company and its bondholders, yet it used its knowledge of the affairs of the Belt Company to its own advantage in endeavoring and undertaking to protect what it claimed its own indebtedness rather than the other indebtedness of the Belt Company, both floating indebtedness and also that secured by the mortgage aforesaid, all of which was contrary to equity and good conscience and in violation of its duties as trustee; the Trust Company by virtue of its position as trustee in said mortgage and its relation to the bondholders and to the mortgagor is estopped to assert that it took said security to secure its own alleged indebtedness, but it is deemed and held in equity to have received said collateral security above specifically described as trustee under the said mortgage of the Belt Line for the benefit of the outstanding bonds secured thereby. The equities, if any there be, in favor of the Trust Company are inferior and subordinate to the superior equity of your intervenor to the collateral security above described by virtue of the mortgage of the Belt Company and the purchase at foreclosure sale thereunder by your intervenor.

13. Your intervenor further states that, on September 6, 1900, the Cambria Steel Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, exhibited its creditors' bill in this case based upon a judgment and unsati-fied execution against the Belt Company. It is claimed by the said Cambria Company that the collateral security now held by the Trust Company being a part of the collateral security above described, is not 216 covered by the mortgage executed by the Belt Line but that said collateral security so held by the Trust Company may be subjected to the payment of the judgment of the Cambria Company; but your intervenor states that the claims of the Cambria Company under the said creditors' bill are subordinate and inferior to the claims of your intervenor as aforesaid. Your intervenor further shows that, on the -- day of November, 1901, the Belt Company and its receivers filed their ancillary bill against the Cambria Company and the parties defendant herein, claiming that the alleged indebtedness asserted by the Trust Company against the Belt Company was fictitious and that no such indebtedness in fact existed; and further claiming that said indebtedness as well as the notes heretofore executed by the Belt Company to evidence the same, should be cancelled, and that the said collateral security held by the Trust Company should thereupon be returned to the said Belt Company and its receivers. Your intervenor shows that the claims of the Belt Company and its receivers, for the reasons hereinbefore set forth are inferior and subordinate to the claims of your intervenor. An injunction has been issued in this cause by this court restraining the Trust Company from disposing of said collateral until the final order and decree of this court as to all of said collateral security, except as to ninety-nine (99) first mortgage bonds of the Connecting Company which have heretofore been sold and the proceeds thereof, amounting to forty thousand dollars ($40,000.00) are held in lieu of said bonds to await the final judgment and decree of the court.

Wherefore, your intervenor prays:

a. For the judgment, order and decree of this court requiring the Central Improvement Company and its Receiver to convey to your intervenor all the real estate or other property standing in its name and to turn over to your intervenor all the moneys held by the Central Improvement Company, or its Receiver, or owing to it, or them, arising from the sale or the proceeds of said property;

b. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to your intervenor the value of the steel rails and fastenings mentioned in paragraph seven (7), together with interest thereon;

c. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to the intervenor the value of the five thousand (5,000) shares of Union Terminal stock, together with the value of four thousand nine hundred and ninety four (4,994) shares of the capital stock of the Air Line and also the value of 217 the fourteen thousand nine hundred and ninety seven (14,997) shares of the capital stock of the Terminal Company, together with interest thereon.

d. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to your intervenor the value of the bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company mentioned in the preceding paragraph nine.

e. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to assign to your intervenor the account of the Belt Company against the Gulf Company mentioned in the foregoing paragraph ten.

f. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to release to your intervenor all of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company and that said Northern Townsite Company and its receivers be required to convey to your intervenor all of the property held by said Northern Townsite Company and its receivers, together with all the moneys in their possession or owing to them as the proceeds of the property formerly held by said Townsite Company upon repayment to the Trust Company of such sum as the Court may find was contributed by said Trust Company for the purchase of property taken in the name of the Townsite Company and for such further relief as may be equitable and just.

Afterwards, to-wit, on the 7th day of March, A. D. 1905, the Guardian Trust Company filed its answer to the intervening 218 petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company. Said answer is in words and figures as follows:

In the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri.

In Equity.

No. 2468.

CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY, Complainant,
vs.
KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY, UNION TERMINAL Railroad Company, Kansas City and Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, Defendants.

The Answer of Guardian Trust Company to the Intervening Petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

To the Judges of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri:

The Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants in the above entitled cause, and one of the respondents to the intervening petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, for its separate answer to said intervening petition, answering, says:

1. This respondent admits that the said intervenor is a corporation, duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, as a railway corporation, and that it was incorporated, according to law in March, 1902.

2. This respondent admits that on or about March, 1890, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, a railroad corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, executed and delivered its deed of trust to this respondent, as trustee, for the purpose of securing an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said Railroad company in the principal sum of one million ($1,000,000,) dollars; and this respondent admits that the provisions of said trust deed are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition. That default was made in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or trust deed and that on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said mortgage or trust deed, as is alleged in said intervening petition, and that this respondent was a party to said proceedings.

This respondent admits that the Kansas City and Independence Air Line, being a railroad corporation duly organized under 219 the laws of the State of Missouri, did, on or about March 1, 1892, execute its deed of trust to this respondent as trustee to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said last named railroad company in the principal sum of three hundred thousand ($300,000,) dollars, and that the provisions of said trust deed are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition. That default was made in the payments required by said last named mortgage, and that on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said last named mortgage in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, and that this respondent was a party to said proceedings.

This respondent admits that the two foreclosure suits, above mentioned, were consolidated, and that upon the sixth of November, 1901, a final decree of foreclosure and sale was entered in said consolidated suit and the property therein involved decreed to be sold; that pursuant to said decree a sale was made and that the Kansas City Suburban Railway Company was the purchaser at said sale, but this respondent says that said mortgages were foreclosed and said suits were commenced and prosecuted and said sale made pursuant to and in accordance with the plan and scheme hereinafter described and under the circumstances hereinafter stated.

3. This respondent admits that the Union Terminal Railroad Company, being a railroad corporation organized under the laws of the State of Kansas, did on or about February 1, 1893, execute and deliver its deed of trust to this respondent and to the Provident Life and Trust Company, of Philadelphia, as trustees, and that the provisions of said mortgage or deed of trust are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition. That default was made in the payment required by the terms of said mortgage and trust deed and that on February 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said last named mortgage in the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Kansas in the First Division; that such proceedings were had in said suit that upon the sixth day of November, 1901, a decree of foreclosure and sale was entered therein on the property and franchises embraced in said mortgage were decreed to be sold; that a sale was had pursuant to said decree, at which sale the Kansas City Southern Railway Company became the purchaser, but this respondent says that said mortgage was foreclosed and said suit was commenced and prosecuted and said sale made pursuant to and in accordance with the plan and scheme hereinafter described and under the circumstances hereinafter stated.

220 4. This respondent admits that the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, being a railroad corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri did, on or about April 1, 1893, execute and deliver its deed of trust to this respondent and the State Trust Company of the City of New York, as trustees, to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said last named railroad company, in the principal sum of twenty-three million ($23,000,000) dollars; that the provisions in said last named trust deed are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition; that default was made in the payments required by the terms of said last named mortgage or trust deed, and that on April 28, 1899, proceedings were instituted in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, for the foreclosure of said last named mortgage, and that such proceedings were had in that suit that on the fifth day of February, 1900, a decree of foreclosure and sale was entered therein, decreeing that the railroad's properties and franchises embraced in said mortgage should be sold; that pursuant to said decree said railroad's properties and franchises were thereafter sold to said intervenor, but this respondent says that said mortgage was foreclosed and said suits were commenced and prosecuted and said sale made pursuant to and in accordance with the plan and scheme hereinafter described and under the circumstances hereinafter stated.

This respondent admits that the several mortgages hereinabove referred to were all duly and properly acknowledged and recorded in the various counties in which the properties mentioned therein were respectively located at or about the dates of said mortgages respectively.

5. This respondent denies that about the year 1887, or at any other time it conceived and entered upon the plan and purpose to cause to be constructed railroads in and about Kansas City; it denies that it was part of said plan and purpose to cause said railroads to be built, constructed or operated by corporations to be organized by respondent and to elect certain officers, agents and representatives of rspondent as the officers and directors of said railroad companies so as to dominate and control the action of said railroad companies. It denies that it was a part of its plans and purpose to utilize one or more of said railroad companies to act on behalf of respondent in building and operating railroads and in the issue of bonds and stocks, or either of them so as to gather under the Trust Company the profits and other advantages accruing therefrom and to foist upon the railroad companies the losses or liabilities resulting therefrom. It denies that either in building said roads, or in the 221 sale of stocks and bonds of said railroad companies it employed said railroad companies, or any of them, as its agents to further its own plans and purpose, and therefore denies that it was a principal, bound and charged with the duty to indemnify and protect said railroad companies against losses and liability arising in the premises; but admits that it was in some cases sole trustee in the mortgages above mentioned; but denies that in any case it was active trustee therein. It denies that it, in pursuance of said plans and purposes, or for any other reason, or in any other circumstances acquired the control of the Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Suburban Company) in the year 1899, or at any other time. Denies that it caused said Suburban Company to issue bonds, secured by mortgage. Denies that it caused said Suburban Company to issue capital stock in a large amount, or in any amount and denies that it caused said company to construct and operate a railroad. It denies that in 1891, or at any other time it caused to be incorporated the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, (hereinafter called the Consolidated Company); denies that it caused said Consolidated Company to issue bonds and a mortgage or deed of trust to secure the same. Denies that it caused said company to issue capital stock and to construct a railroad.

It denies that in December, 1891, or at any other time, it caused to be incorporated the Union Terminal Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Terminal Company) or that it caused said company to issue and execute bonds and mortgage securing the same and capital stock, or any of them, as is alleged in said intervening petition.

It denies that it caused said company to construct a railroad.

It denies that it caused to be incorporated the Kansas City and Independence Air Line (hereinafter referred to as the Air Line). It denies that it caused the Air Line to execute and issue bonds and mortgage and to issue stock and construct a railroad, as alleged in said petition. On the contrary, this respondent says that each and all of the said corporations were organized in the manner and under the circumstances set forth in the answer of this respondent and Francis N. Black, its receiver, heretofore filed in this cause, to the bill called "Ancillary Bill of Complaint", filed by Stewart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, which said answer is hereby referred to and made a part of the answer to said intervening petition.

222 This respondent denies that it at any time caused the said Consolidated Company to consolidate with the Suburban Company, forming a new company called the "Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company" (hereinafter referred to as the Belt Company) but this respondent says that said companies did, of their own accord and volition affect said consolidation on or about

July 25, 1892, and that the Consolidated Company so formed was called the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company.

Respondent denies that it caused the Terminal Company to execute a lease of all its property, rights and franchises, or any part thereof, to the Belt Company, and that thereunder the Belt Company operated the line of the Terminal Company and its own line. On the contrary, this respondent alleges that said lease was made without the interference of this respondent and wholly at the volition of the parties to said lease.

This respondent denies that by virtue of its ownership and control of the capital stock of the Belt Company, Air Line and Terminal Company, it did at all times, or at any time cause its officers and directors to be elected as the officers and directors of said lines, or any of them. It denies that it dominated and controlled the affairs and business of said lines, or caused them or either of them to perform such corporate acts and things as this respondent deemed beneficial for its own interest. On the contrary this respondent says that the directors and officers of said company were elected by the stockholders of said respective companies in the free exercise of their own judgment, in the same manner as the directors and officers of any other company are elected; that in some instances a part of the officers and directors of said several corporations were also at the same time officers and directors of this respondent, but that in such instances such officers and directors had no personal interest in procuring for this respondent any undue advantage over the other companies.

This respondent denies that in the year 1893, or at any other time, it caused to be incorporated the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Gulf Company) or caused it to issue, and execute bonds, mortgages and stock, or any of them, as is alleged in said intervening petition. It denies that it caused the Gulf Company to construct a railroad from Kansas City to the Gulf of Mexico, or any part thereof. It denies that it caused the Gulf Company to enter into contracts with the Belt Company for the use of the latter's terminals at Kansas City. On the contrary it says that said contract between the Belt Company and said Gulf Company was freely made and entered into 223 by the parties thereto, without any interference on the part of this respondent, and that said contract was made in the manner and under the circumstances stated in said answer to said Ancillary Bill.

This respondent denies that it caused its officers and directors to be elected officers and directors of the Gulf Company, and by that means, or by any other means dominated and controlled the affairs of the Gulf Company and caused it to perform such corporate acts as this respondent deemed to be for its benefit and advantage. On the contrary it says that said Gulf Company was managed and controlled by directors and officers, freely and voluntarily elected by the stockholders thereof in the usual and ordinary manner.

This respondent denies that it had complete and intimate knowledge of all the affairs and transactions of all the said companies, as is alleged in said intervening petition.

6. Respondent denies that in the year 1895, or at any other time in caused to be incorporated the Central Improvement Company. It denies that the directors and officers of said Central Company were at all times made up from the directors and officers of this respondent, or that this respondent, in all or any of the transactions in said Improvement Company dominated and controlled the said Improvement Company. On the contrary, this respondent says that the directors and officers of said Central Company were freely elected by the stockholders of said company and that while some of the directors and officers of the Central Company were also officers and directors of this respondent, yet they had no personal interest in procuring any benefit or advantage for this respondent at the expense of the Central Company, and did not procure any such advantage.

This respondent admits that the Central Improvement Company was organized, but it says that it was organized at the instance and by the procurement of the Belt Company and the Gulf Company, for the purpose of securing and acquiring the title to various tracts of land in and about Kansas City, which was needed for the use of said railroad companies but it is true that the Belt Company furnished some of the money paid for said land bought by the Central Company. It is also true that the Gulf Company advanced some money for the same purpose, but whether or not the list of said properties so purchased by the Central Company is correctly shown on "Exhibit A", attached to said intervening petitions, this respondent is not advised and therefore neither admits nor denies the same. This respondent, however, denies that the titles to said real estate, so purchased, were for mere convenience placed in the name of the Central Company; but says that said Central 224 Company was duly organized for the purpose of acquiring said lands, and that it did acquire title to the same and whatever interest said Belt Company, or said Gulf Company have, or had, in said lands is represented by the stock in said Central Company which was issued to them when said moneys were advanced.

This respondent denies that said Belt Company, or said Gulf Company, or any other company or person advancing money to said Central Company became the equitable owner of the land which was purchased by the money so advanced; but on the contrary says that the interest of the company, or the person so advancing money is represented by the stock issued by the Central Company.

This respondent further shows that the said Belt Company and Gulf Company, or their assigns, hold substantially all of the stock of said Central Company and in that sense they are the beneficial owners of the property of said Central Improvement Company, subject, however, to any liens thereon for unpaid portions of the purchase price thereof, or for other valid liens; but this respondent has not now, and never has had, any interest in the property of the Central Improved Company, except that it holds a mortgage on a certain piece of property owned by said Central Improvement

Company to secure certain promissory notes, aggregating the principal sum of $5000, which mortgage was a subsisting lien upon the property at the time the Central Company bought it, and which mortgage was subsequently purchased and is now held by this respondent.

This respondent denies that the properties so purchased by the Central Company were necessary for the use of said respective railroad companies in connection with the operation of their respective roads, and it denies that such property came within the "After Acquired" property clause of said mortgages, or either of them. It denies that the equitable liens of said mortgages, or either of them, attached to and became a charge upon said properties in favor of the bank holders. It is not advised as to whether any of said properties have been sold by the receiver of said Central Company.

This respondent denies that by the foreclosure proceedings, above mentioned and decrees of sale thereunder, the intervenor acquired the equitable title to all of said properties, or any part thereof so held by the Central Company, and it denies that said intervenor became and is now entitled to the conveyance of the same and to the proceeds of the sale thereof. On the contrary, this respondent says 225 that no part of said property was covered by said mortgages, or any of them; that said property was not in any way appurtenant or necessary to the operation of said railroads, or any of them and that in and by the said foreclosure proceedings said intervenor obtained no title to said lands or any part of the same.

7. This respondent denies that on or about February 1, 1900, the Belt Company had purchased and then had in its possession, approximately 600 tons of steel rails and fasteners. On the contrary, this respondent says that there was less than 361 tons of said rails and fastenings.

This respondent denies that by virtue of the "After Acquired" property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company, said rails and fastenings became charged with a lien to secure the payment of the bonds; and denies that upon the foreclosure of said mortgage and the sale thereunder that the equitable title of said rails passed to and vested in the intervenor, or that it become the equitable owner thereof. On the contrary, respondent says that said intervenor obtained no title whatever, either legal or equitable to said rails by means of said foreclosure proceedings and sale.

This respondent further says that said mortgage did not by its terms cover said rails, and further that said rails were purchased for the consolidation of the said Consolidated Company and the Suburban Company, forming the new company called the Belt Company and long after the execution of said mortgage, and for the further reason that said rails were not appurtenant to the operation of said railroad.

This respondent admits that it formerly held said rails as collateral security to the indebtedness hereinafter referred to from the Belt Company to this respondent, but it denies that the value of said rails and fastenings was of the value stated in said petition, and that such rails and fastenings were subsequently sold by this respondent for the sum of approximately eleven thousand ($11,000.) dollars, and that respondent has credited the net proceeds thereof on its accounts against said Belt Company; that notwithstanding said Company had assigned said rails and fastenings to this respondent as collateral security, said Company afterwards refused to deliver the same to respondents, and respondent was compelled to bring a suit of replevin therefor in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, and said suit was subsequently determined in favor of this respondent; and that such judgment (which was entered on the —— lay of ——) is res judicata and cannot be here inquired into.

8. This respondent admits that the railroad of the Terminal Company was a connecting railroad with the line of the Belt Company and that the Belt Company was authorized to aid in the construction of the line of the Terminal Company. It admits that the Belt Company acquired 5000 shares of the capital stock of the Terminal Company; but denies that by virtue of the "After Acquired" property clause in the Belt Company mortgage that the lien of the mortgage in equity or in any manner attached to the 5000 shares of the Terminal stock so acquired by the Belt Company, or that said lien inured to the benefit of the bondholders of the Belt Company.

Respondent admits that it acquired possession of said 5000 shares of Terminal stock as collateral security, but denies that it was collateral security to an alleged indebtedness, but on the contrary says it was a just and bona fide indebtedness of said Belt Company to this respondent.

Respondent admits that about June 14, 1900, it sold said 5000 shares of stock for $25,000.00, which sum was the fair and full value thereof at that time. Respondent denies that by virtue of said mortgage of the Belt Company and the foreclosure and sale thereunder that the intervenor became entitled in equity to said 5000 shares of stock, or the proceeds thereof, or any part thereof. On the contrary, this respondent says that that said mortgage did not by its terms cover said stock; that said stock was not in any manner appurtenant to the operation of said railroad; that said stock was acquired after the consolidation, as aforesaid, and that the said intervenor, by said foreclosure proceedings acquired no title or interest whatever in and to said stock, or the proceeds thereof.

Respondent admits that the Air Line owned and operated a railroad connecting with the railroad from the Belt Line, and that the two formed a continuous line of railroad, and that the Belt Company became and was entitled to aid the Air Line in the construction of its road and to purchase and hold the stock of the Air Line.

Respondent admits that prior to June 11, 1900, the Belt Company acquired and owned 494 shares of the capital stock of the Air Line, and also 14997 shares of the Terminal Company's stock, in addition to the 5000 shares above mentioned. It denies that it acquired said stock as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Line to it, but on the contrary says that the respondent held said stock as collateral security to a bona fide indebtedness owing from the Belt Company to this respondent. This respondent denies that said stocks, or any part thereof, — recovered by the "After Acquired" property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company and denies that upon the foreclosure of said mortgage and sale there-227 under that the intervenor acquired the equitable title to said stock or to the value of the proceeds thereof. On the contrary this respondent says that no part of said stocks were covered by the terms of said mortgage; that said stocks were in no way appurtenant or necessary to the operation of said railroad and the said stocks were all acquired after the consolidation aforesaid and therefore that said intervenor acquired no right, title, or interest to said stocks, or any part thereof, by means of said foreclosure proceedings.

This respondent admits that on or about June 11, 1900, it sold said 14,997 shares of Terminal stock and 4994 shares of Air Line stock for the sum of $9,995.65, which sum was the full and fair value of said stocks at the time.

9. This respondent denies that in the year 1896, or at any other time, it caused to be incorporated the Kansas City Northern Connecting Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Connecting Company) for the purpose alleged in the intervening petition, or for any other purpose. It admits that said Connecting Company was organized for the purpose of constructing a railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, in order to connect with the railroads at that point running to Quincy, Illinois, and to Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Respondent denies that it caused said Connecting Company to execute bonds, mortgage and stock, or any of them, as alleged in said intervening petition, and denies that it caused said Connecting Company to enter into a contract, under which the Belt Company undertook to carry the right of way for said Connecting Company, and under which said Connecting Company agreed to give the Belt Company its bonds and stocks.

This respondent admits that such a contract was made between said companies, but it was made freely and of their own accord and without the interference of this respondent.

This respondent admits that pursuant to such contract the Belt Company began the construction of a railroad for the Connecting Company and the acquisition of its right of way and received as a consideration for so doing a large amount of the first mortgage bonds and of the capital stock of the Connecting Company, and that the Belt Company so held said stock and bonds on and prior to July 20, 1899.

This respondent denies that at various dates, or at any date it took and converted same to its own use, and denies that it ever at 228 any time converted any bonds or stocks belonging to said Belt Company.

Respondent denies that about July 20, 1899, it took from the Belt Company mortgage bonds and stock in the Connecting Company belonging to the Belt Company as collateral security for an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company, to respondent, but on the contrary says that it did take said bonds and stock as collateral security to a bona fide indebtedness due to it from the Belt Company.

Respondent denies that said bonds or stocks, or any of them, came under the "After Acquired" property clause of the mortgage made by the Belt Company and denies that they, or any of them were charged with an equitable lien to secure the bonds of the Belt Company. It denies that by means of the foreclosure proceedings and sale to the intervenor that the equitable title to said stocks and bonds, or the proceeds thereof, vested in equity in the intervenor. On the contrary this respondent say that said mortgage did not by its terms cover said bonds and stocks, or any part thereof; that said bonds and stocks were not necessary or appurtenant to the operation of said railroad; that all of said stocks and bonds were acquired after the consolidation, as aforesaid, and that said intervenor acquired no right, title or interest of any kind whatsoever in and to said stocks or bonds by means of said foreclosure proceedings.

This respondent admits that on or about September 30, 1899, it sold 13920 (not 3920) shares of Northern Connecting Company's stock, which it at one time had held as collateral, as aforesaid, for the sum of $19,885.70, which sum was the full and fair value of said stock at the time. That prior to said sale this respondent had accepted said stock as part payment on its said indebtedness at the same price for which respondent afterward sold said stock.

10. This respondent denies that in 1896, or at any other time, it caused the Belt Company to enter into a Terminal contract with the Gulf Company, by the terms of which the Belt Company gave to the Gulf Company an entrance into Kansas City and valuable terminal rights and facilities, and whereby the Gulf Company undertook and agreed to pay to the Belt Company certain rentals for such rights as were granted to the Gulf Company in said contract. On the contrary, this respondent says that said contract was entered into by said parties freely and as an act of said companies represented by their independent and adult officers and board of directors.

229 This respondent admits that said parties operated under said contract until April 1, 1899, when receivers for the Gulf Company were appointed; that at said last named time there was due to the Belt Company from the Gulf Company under said contract about the sum of $133,000.00.

This respondent denies that said terminal contract, by virtue of the provisions of the "After Acquired" property clause in the said mortgage of the Belt Company became charged in equity with a mortgage lien to secure the bonds issued by said Belt Company, and denies that the rents, issues and profits, or any part thereof at that time due the Belt Company under said contract became charged in equity with such lien. It denies that by virtue of said foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder to the intervenor that the latter required all equitable right title, or any right and title to said contract and rentals thereon.

Respondent admits that the Belt Company, on or about February 1, 1900, did transfer and assign to it the said account against the said Gulf Company as collateral security to a bona fide indebtedness from the Belt Company to this respondent.

This respondent says that said intervenor acquired no right, title or interest whatever to said contract, or the rentals thereunder by virtue of said foreclosure proceedings, because said contract and rentals thereunder are not covered by the terms of said mortgage, and because it is in no way appurtenant to the operation of said railroad, and because said rentals accrued after the said consolidation, as aforesaid.

11. This respondent denies that the Northern Townsite Company, (hereinafter referred to as Townsite Company) was organized by the officers of the Trust Company. On the contrary, says that said Townsite Company was organized at the behest of said Belt Company for the purpose of acquiring certain lands along the line of the railroad of the Connecting Company.

This respondent admits that all the money used by the Townsite Company in purchasing its lands was furnished by the Belt Company and by this respondent, but it denies that the sum of $46,463.75 was furnished and provided by the Belt Company and this [respondent*m*], but on the contrary says that a much smaller amount was furnished.

Further answering, it says that the total amount of money furnished by the Belt Company for the purchase of said lands was $6286.57, and that the Belt Company received therefor 439 shares of the capital stock of said Townsite Company, at the par value
230 of $100.00 each, and that the total amount of money furnished by this respondent for the same purpose was $6720.07, and that it received 489 shares of the capital stock of said Townsite Company.

This respondent denies that in equity the said lands represented by the money furnished by the Belt Company belong to the Belt Company and were covered by the "After Acquired" property clause in the said mortgage. It denies that by virtue of said foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder to the intervenor that the intervenor became vested with the title to said lands, or any part thereof, and denies that said intervenor thereby became entitled to the capital stock so issued by the said Townsite Company to the Belt Company, or any part thereof.

This respondent denies that it holds the capital stock so issued to the Belt Company as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, but on the contrary says that it holds said stock as collateral security to a bona fide indebtedness from the Belt Company to this respondent. This respondent says that said intervenor is not entitled, either at law or in equity to any interest or title in said lands, or said stock, because the same are not covered by the terms of said mortgage, because they are not appurtenant to the operation of said railroad and because they were acquired after the consolidation, as aforesaid.

12. This respondent denies that it at any time dominated and controlled the acts of the Belt Company, or that it caused its officers and directors to be the officers and directors of the Belt Company. Denies that it required the officers and directors of the Belt Company to perform the will and behest of this respondent in any respect, but on the contrary alleges that the officers and directors of said Belt

Company at all times exercised their independent judgment and acted in good faith for the best interests of the said Belt Company.

This respondent further says that in all respects and at all times it fully and in good faith performed the duty imposed upon it as trustee in said mortgage, and that at no time did it control the acts and doings of the Belt Company in its own interest.

This respondent admits that about April 1, 1899, the Gulf Company was insolvent; that it defaulted in payment of interest and that it was placed in the hands of receivers, as alleged in said petition, but it denies that it knew that a default would occur prior to the time default was made, and denies that it knew that if the Gulf
231 Company became bankrupt that the so-called auxiliary companies would pass out of its control and denies that the so-called auxiliary companies were ever in its control. It denies that there was any violation of its duty as trustee of said mortgages with a view to appropriate to itself whatever value there was remaining in possession of said auxiliary companies it acquired the plan to require said companies to turn over to it all or any part of the personal property of said companies as and for security for an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, but on the contrary it alleges that at all times it acted in good faith and that in procuring the collateral security, as hereinafter stated, it acted in good faith towards the Belt Company and its creditors.

This respondent denies that on March 31, 1899, or at any other time, it caused the Belt Company to turn over to it the collateral, as alleged in said intervening petition, with the exception that said Belt Company did turn over to this respondent as collateral security to a bona fide debt then owing to this respondent from said Belt Company, collateral security as is shown in the said answer to said Ancillary Bill.

This respondent denies that on September 30, 1899, or at any time it caused the Belt Company to sell to it all of the stock of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Company held by the Belt Company, at the price of one and three-sevenths dollars per share to apply upon as alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to this respondent, but on the contrary this respondent says that said stock was a fair and open sale at a full fair value of said stock, and that the indebtedness upon which the same applied was a bona fide indebtedness from the Belt Company to this respondent.

Respondent admits that a foreclosure decree was entered on February 5, 1900, in the case of State Trust Company against the Gulf Company.

Respondent denies that it knew prior to the rendition of said decree that the same would be rendered.

It denies that on February 1, 1900, or at any time it caused the Belt Company to pretend to hold a meeting of its directors and to specifically turn over all of the stocks and bonds, as alleged in said intervening petition, or any part thereof, to secure an alleged indebtedness, and to assign and transfer to respondent the said steel rails, and to assign and transfer to respondent the account owned by the Belt Company against the Gulf Company, as aforesaid, as collateral security for an alleged indebtedness. On the contrary, this respondent says that the meeting of said board of directors of 232 said Belt Company was held at their own volition, and without any interference or direction from this respondent, and that the action of the said board of directors in turning over said collateral security was the free act of the directors of said Belt Company.

Respondent denies that the action of the Belt Company in turning over said stocks, bonds and property to it as collateral was void, and denies that such action was due to the unlawful combination and control exercised by respondent over the officers and directors of the Belt Company, but on the contrary says that said action was the voluntary act of said officers and directors in the exercise of their independent judgment.

This respondent denies that by reason of its control of the Belt Company it had knowledge of the affairs and situation of the Belt Company, but it admits that it did, by reason of its connection with said Belt Company, have considerable knowledge of the affairs and situation of the Belt Company, and denies that it used its knowledge of the affairs of the Belt Company to its own advantage rather than for the purpose of the other indebtedness of said Belt Company, but on the contrary it says that it acted in good faith in protecting its own interests and in doing so did not violate any duty which it owed to the bondholders, or any other creditors of said Belt Company.

This respondent denies that on account of its position as trustee in said mortgage that it is estopped to assert that it took said security to secure its own indebtedness, and denies that it is deemed in equity to have received said collateral as trustee under said mortgages. On the contrary, it says that said mortgages, for the reasons hereinbefore stated, did not cover said security or any part thereof.

Further this respondent says that all of said transactions took place more than five years ago; and it hereby pleads to each and all of such transactions the statutes of limitations of the State of Missouri; that ever since the organization of said intervenor it has had full knowledge of all the facts and circumstances in connection with the taking of said collateral security and has made no protest against the same and has taken no steps to enforce any rights which it has, or claims to have in and to said collateral; that said intervenor has been guilty of laches in the premises and should not now be permitted to come into a court of equity and assert any claim to said property, or any part thereof.

13. This respondent admits that on September 6, 1900, the Cambria Steel Company filed its bill in this case, and that the allegations of said bill are substantially as set forth in said inter-
233 vening petition. That in November, 1901, the Belt Company, by its receivers, filed their Ancillary Bill herein, and that the allegations therein are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition.

This respondent admits that an injunction has been issued in this cause, restraining respondent from disposing of said collateral until the final order and decree of this court as to all of said collateral, except 1899 first mortgage bonds of the Connecting Company, as is alleged in said intervening petition.

This respondent further answering, says that the indebtedness from said Belt Company to this respondent is evidenced by certain promissory notes, executed by said Belt Company, and by an open account, as set forth and fully stated in the said answer to said Ancillary Bill.

14. This respondent, the Guardian Trust Company, further shows that on or about the 14th day of June, A. D. 1899, William F. Harrity, B. M. Baker, August Hecksher, Edward Wagner, Samuel R. Shipley, Silas W. Pettit and Winthrop Smith entered into an agreement for the re-organization of the Kansas City Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company, and the Port Arthur Channel and Dock Company and their so-called subsidiary or auxiliary companies, including said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Union Terminal Railroad Company, Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, and Kansas City and Independence Air Line Railroad Company; that said persons, calling themselves a re-organization committee formed a so-called "plan of re-organization", which was promulgated under date of November 7, 1899, and invited all holders of bonds and stocks of said several companies above named, to deposit the same with said re-organization committee under said plan of re-organization which proposed to organize a new corporation to be known as the Kansas City Southern Railroad Company, which should acquire the properties of all said above named corporations, and issue in payment therefor the bonds and stocks of said re-organized or new corporation in the proportions and on the terms and in the manner set out in the said plan of re-organization, which is hereby referred to and ready to be produced upon the hearing of this cause.

15. That after the promulgation of said plan on November 7, 1899, there was deposited with said re-organization committee the proportion of bonds and stock required by said plan to make the same operative; and on the 20th day of December, 1899, said plan was declared operative; that thereafter said committee caused to be organized and incorporated the Kansas City Southern Rail-
234 road Company under the statutes of the State of Missouri, for the purpose of acquiring title to the properties of said corporations named in the foregoing paragraph, and the stocks and bonds of said new corporation were thereafter exchanged for the stocks and bonds of said several corporations in the proportion and manner set out in said re-organization plan; that by means of said exchange said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company came to be the owner of practically all the bonds and stocks of said corporations above mentioned, and particularly of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and said corporation caused to be elected directors and officers of said Belt Railroad Company, who conducted the same and managed and operated it in the interests of and as a component part of the railroad system of said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company.

16. This respondent further shows that the organization of said

Kansas City Southern Railroad Company and exchange of its stocks and bonds above alleged for the stocks and bonds of said Belt Railroad Company, and the other steps taken in pursuance of said re-organization plan, effected a consolidation of said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company and said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company under the statutes of the State of Missouri; or a consolidation de facto, and that said Kansas City Southern Company is estopped to deny such consolidation, or to claim that the same was not legally complete; and that said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company thereby became and is liable for all the debts incurred by said Belt Railroad Company to the same extent as said last mentioned company, including the debts of this respondent heretofore mentioned and alleged in this answer.

17. Further answering, this respondent shows that said re-organization committee, when working out said plan of re-organization, expressly represented to this respondent that, in consideration of the debt due and owing from said Belt Company to this respondent, said committee would provide for the payment of all debts and obligations due to this respondent from all of said corporations proposed to be included in said re-organization plan, and particularly said Belt Railroad Company, and expressly promised this respondent that said committee would pay or cause to be paid all debts of every character due to this respondent from several corporations proposed to be consolidated, and particularly from said Belt Railroad Company; and that the said new and re-organized company would pay such debts; that certain members of said re-organization com-
235 mittee, constituting a so-called purchasing committee, purchased at the foreclosure sale of said Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company all its assets, right of way, rolling stock, etc., and thereafter assigned said bid to said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company, which said company entered into a contract with said re-organization committee, wherein and whereby it assumed and agreed to complete and carry out all the obligations undertaken and assumed by said re-organization committee; that under and by reason of said agreement and contract said Kansas City Southern became liable and agreed to pay all the obligations of said Belt Railroad Company to this respondent, and is still so liable.

18. That said Kansas City Southern was at the time of the foreclosure and sale of the Belt Company's assets the holder and owner of practically all the bonds and stock of said Belt Company; that, in order to obtain and control the stock of said Belt Company, said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company exchanged its stock in the proportions and in the manner specified in said plan of re-organization, which is hereby referred to, for the stock of said Belt Company, and thereupon proceeded to secure a foreclosure of said bonds of said Belt Company; that said scheme of re-organization and exchange of stocks aforesaid resulted in the stockholders of the Belt Railroad Company securing a large amount of stock of said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company, which was at that time and is yet very valuable, and was at that time and is yet of much greater market value than the total claims of this respondent against said Belt Railroad Company; that said scheme legally implied the payment by said Southern Company of all the claims of this respondent against said Belt Company.

19. This respondent therefore alleges and shows that if said scheme of re-organization and exchange of securities was intended by said re-organization committee and by said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company and its officers to deprive this respondent of all security and opportunity of collecting its said claims against the Belt Railroad Company, while preserving and securing to the stockholders of said Company said advantage and valuable interests through said scheme of transfer of stocks, that said foreclosure of said properties of said Belt Company, would have been a fraudulent scheme, and in that case should be held void and invalid, so far as this relator is concerned, and the property thereby transferred to said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company should be held subject to the debts and claims of this respondent and subjected to 236 their payment, even if it should be held by the Court that a legal consolidation, or actual or de facto consolidation, was not brought about as hereinabove alleged, whereby said Kansas City Southern Railroad Company became legally obligated to pay the claims of this respondent against said Belt Railroad Company.

20. All of which matters and things hereinbefore stated this respondent is ready to aver, maintain and prove as this Honorable Court may direct. Wherefore respondent prays that the so called intervening petition of the said Kansas City Southern Railway Company may be dismissed as without equity, and for its costs in this behalf most wrongfully expended.

237 Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complainants.

To the Judges of the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, in the Eighth Circuit, sitting in equity:

Your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, with leave of court, bring this their amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint against the Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company and Thomas T. Crittenden, its Receiver, Cambria Steel Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, each and all of which said corporations, both complainant and defendants, are corporations organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri and citizens and residents of said state and each of them having their principal office and place of business at Kansas City in said state and each of them being an inhabitant of the Western Division of the Western District thereof, except the Cambria Steel Company, which is a corporation duly created and existing under the laws of the state of Pennsylvania and a non-resident of the State of Missouri.

Your orators state that on November 30, 1900, in the suit of W. W.

Bierce, et al., complainants, against the Guardian Trust Company, defendant, then pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of Missouri, Francis M. Black was appointed receiver of the defendant Guardian Trust Company and was at the time of filing the original ancillary bill herein the duly qualified and acting receiver of said company, but that since the filing of said bill the receiver for the Guardian Trust Company has been discharged and the said Trust Company is now in possession of its corporate property, operating and conducting its own business in connection therewith; that in this suit Wash Adams was heretofore appointed receiver for the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company but the property and assets of the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company had since the filing of the original ancillary bill herein been turned over to the Guardian Trust Company, the mortgagee in certain mortgages covering the property of said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company; that at the time of filing said original ancillary bill Wash Adams was the duly qualified and acting receiver for the Central Improvement Company, since which time the said Adams has resigned and Thomas T. Crittenden has been appointed as his successor and is now the duly qualified and acting receiver of 238 said company; that said Thomas T. Crittenden is a citizen and resident of the Western Division of the Western District of the State of Missouri.

And, thereupon, your orators complain and say that the above-named complainant, the Cambria Steel Company, heretofore exhibited to this Honorable Court its bill of complaint against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, a defendant, and the other corporation defendants above named, in and by which said bill of complaint said Cambria Steel Company, as such complainant, set up the recovery of a judgment by it against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company for the sum of One Hundred Thousand Nine Hundred Sixty-Two and 91-100 Dollars ($100,962.91), and the issuance and delivery, and return unsatisfied of an execution thereon, and in and by said bill of complaint sought to subject to the payment and satisfaction of said judgment certain rights, properties and assets belonging to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the other defendants above named.

Your orators further show that prior to the filing of said bill of complaint by said Cambria Steel Company four certain bills of complaint were duly filed in this court by the Provident Life & Trust Company of Philadelphia, two of said bills being filed against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company as the sole defendant; another of said bills was filed against the Union Terminal Railroad Company, a Kansas corporation, and the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company as defendants; and the other of said bills was filed against the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, a Missouri corporation, and the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company. Each of said bills sought the foreclosure of a first mortgage upon certain railroad property described in the said bills of complaint respectively, and which said several described pieces of railroad property, together for a long time have been operated by the Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company as a continuous and allied system, said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company being also the beneficial owner of said properties by reason of owning the capital stock of said several companies. Upon the same day upon which the said bills of complaint were filed an application was made for the appointment of a receiver of all the property of said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and on the same day, to-wit, on the sixth day of September, 1900, an order was duly entered of record in each of said causes, as well as in the above entitled cause, appointing your orators Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney as Receivers of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, 239 and vesting your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers, with all the rights, title, estate, property and interest of the said the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and authorizing and directing your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers, to proceed to take such steps and institute such proceedings, legal or otherwise, as might be necessary and requisite to compel a restoration to said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as its receivers, of any property rights belonging to it and to com-el an accounting from any and all persons, firms or corporations from whom the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company might be entitled to such accounting; that your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers, were also authorized to appear in any and all suits theretofore or thereafter instituted against the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, in its name or in the names of your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as the receivers, to defend any and all such suits. Your orators further show unto the court that under and by virtue of the powers and authorities so vested in them, as aforesaid, your orators for and on behalf of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, which is made a defendant to the bill of complaint in the above entitled cause, have appeared and filed their answer to said bills of complaint, as will appear of record herein, and having so filed said answer, your orators bring this, their ancillary bill of complaint herein against the defendants above named, and now file this, their amended supplemental ancillary bill of complaint against said defendants.

Your orators further show unto the court that immediately upon the appointment of your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers, they took possession of each and all the property of the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and under and pursuant to the orders of the court so appointing them, and thereafter and until the foreclosure sale hereinafter referred to, did operate the railroad property of the said Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company. That such proceedings were had in the causes above referred to that on the 6th day of November, 1901, decrees of foreclosure and sale were duly rendered directing the sale of the railroad and properties of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company and the Union Terminal Railroad Company, covered by the mortgages upon said railroads and property respectively, and on December 31, 1901, the said properties so covered by said mortgages, as aforesaid, were in pursuance of said decrees of foreclosure and sale duly sold and conveyed to the purchaser, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

240 And our orators further charge and aver that the matters and things mentioned and set forth in this, your orator's amended and supplemental bill of complaint are ancillary to the said suits so pending in this court wherein your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, were appointed as such receivers and are properly cognizable in this court, which has possession of each and all property of the said Suburban Belt Railroad Company, except such as was covered by its mortgage and has been heretofore conveyed as aforesaid. For convenience, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company will be hereinafter referred to as the Belt Company; the Guardian Trust Company will hereinafter be referred to, for convenience, as the Trust Company; the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company will be hereinafter referred to, for convenience, as the Elevator Company; the Central Improvement Company will hereinafter, for convenience, be referred to as the Central Company; the Fairmount Amusement Company will hereinafter, for convenience, be referred to as the Amusement Company.

Your orators show unto the court that the Trust Company was incorporated according to law in and about the year 1883, and that on or about the month of June, 1899, and until on or about the month of June, 1899, the name of the Trust Company was the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, but that at said latter date such proceedings were taken as are provided by the statutes of the State of Missouri in such case made and provided, so that its name was changed to the Guardian Trust Company.

Your orators upon information and belief further show unto the court that on or about the first day of January, 1887, a corporation was formed under the laws of the State of Missouri known as The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter for convenience called the Suburban Company, for the purpose of building a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas. That as your orators are informed and believe and so charge the facts to be the said Suburban Belt Railroad Company was either organized by the said Trust Company, or the control of the Suburban Company passed to the Trust Company shortly after its incorporation, so that the servants and employes of the Trust Company were elected as its officers and directors and the said Trust Company at all times hereinafter mentioned dominated and controlled the said Suburban Company. That as your orators are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be the Trust Company so dominating and controlling the Suburban Company by virtue of holding possession of the offices of its board of directors and

241 officers caused the Suburban Company to issue and deliver to it, the Trust Company, each and all of the capital stock of the Suburban Company, and also caused the Suburban Company to execute its bonds secured by a first mortgage upon all of its corporate porperty then held and to be thereafter acquired amounting in the aggregate to the sum of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00), and that said bonds in like manner, by virtue of the domination and control of the Trust Company were delivered to the Trust Company, and the Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and otherwise dispose of said bonds and stock and to apply the proceeds thereof as claimed by it for the corporate purposes of the Suburban Company in the construction and operation of its road; but the Trust Company although often requested to do so, did not at any time and never has truly accounted to the Suburban Company for the proceeds realized by it from said bonds and stock, and never has accounted in any way for said proceeds or the manner in which it has so expended the same, except as hereinafter stated.

Thereafter, as your orators are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, the Trust Company caused to be formed under the laws of the State of Missouri, a corporation known as the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company, for the purpose of building a line of road to connect with the line of road constructed or proposed to be constructed by the Suburban Company, although the Suburban Company had full power under its charter to have constructed the said road itself. The Consolidated Terminal Railway Company is hereinafter, for convenience, referred to as the Consolidated Company.

That, as your orators are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be, the Consolidated Company was formed and controlled by the Trust Company, electing as its officers and directors the servants and employes of the Trust Company so that at all times it dominated the Consolidated Company, and the Trust Company thereupon caused the Consolidated Company to issue and deliver to it its entire capital stock and also bonds secured by a first mortgage upon its corporate property then and to be thereafter acquired aggregating the sum of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($750,000.00), and caused all said bonds to be delivered to the Trust Company, and the Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and dispose of said bonds and stock of the Consolidated Company so delivered to it as aforesaid and to apply the proceeds thereof as alleged by it for the corporate purposes of the Consolidated Company in the construction and operation of its road; but the Trust Company, although often requested so to do, did not and never has truly accounted to the Consolidated Company for the disposition made by it of said bonds 242 and stock so delivered as aforesaid and the proceeds derived therefrom and the purposes to which said proceeds were applied, and never has accounted in any way therefor, except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, that thereafter and on or about the 25th day of July, 1892, the Consolidated Company and the Suburban Company, as authorized by the Statutes of the State of Missouri, entered into articles of consolidation whereby the said two companies became one consolidated corporation, thereafter known as the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, of which your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, were appointed

Receivers, as aforesaid, and under and by virtue of said articles of consolidation, as well as the statutes of the State of Missouri in such case made and provided, the said the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as its receivers, have succeeded to each and all of the rights of both the Consolidated Company and the Suburban Company.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the facts to be, that at the time of the consolidation of said two companies, as aforesaid, the Trust Company caused its officers and employes to be elected to the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company, the company so formed by said consolidation, and continued such persons in such positions respectively, continuously until about the month of April, 1900, whereby the Trust Company at all times, up to said last mentioned date, completely dominated and controlled the actions of the Belt Company.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the facts to be, that some time prior to said consolidation and on or about the 30th day of December, 1891, it was found advisable in the course of the construction of the line of road of the Suburban Company to have a corporation formed under the laws of the state of Kansas for the purpose of building and holding the title to that portion of the line of road of the Suburban Company lying within the State of Kansas and for that purpose the Union Terminal Railroad Company, hereinafter referred to as the Union Company, for the sake of convenience, was by the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Kansas and the Trust Company, as in the other instances, caused its officers and employes to be elected the officers and directors of the Union
243 Company, and the Union Company was a corporation organized for the sole purpose of holding the title to said property of the Suburban or Belt Company in the State of Kansas; that the Trust Company thereupon caused all of the stock of the Union Company to be issued to the Suburban or Belt Company and also caused the Union Company to execute its first mortgage bonds in the amount of Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00); and said bonds were secured by a first mortgage upon all the property of the Union Company then and to be thereafter acquired; that said bonds were thereupon issued and delivered to the Trust Company for the use and benefit of the Suburban or Belt Company; that the Trust Company immediately proceeded to sell, or otherwise dispose of, the said bonds and stock of the Union Company, which had been theretofore delivered to it by the Belt Company, and to apply the proceeds derived from such sale in part, as alleged by it, the construction and operation of the road so built for the Belt Company and held and operated in the name of the Union Company; that the Trust Company thereupon became liable to account to the Belt Company for the proceeds and disposition of the same derived from the sale of the said bonds and stock, but although often requested so to do it always has failed and refuses to account truly to the Belt Company for the disposition made by it of said bonds and stock, the proceeds derived from such disposition and the manner in which said proceeds were disposed of, and has never accounted therefor in any way except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe and so charge the facts to be that thereafter and on or about the 23d day of January, 1891, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, a corporation known as the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, hereinafter, for convenience, referred to as the Air Line; said company being incorporated for the purpose of building a line of road connecting the line of the Suburban Belt Company and the City of Independence, Missouri; that the capital stock of said company was placed at the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00). The Trust Company immediately caused its officers and employes to be elected directors and officers of the Air Line and thereupon caused the Air Line to issue its first mortgage bonds to the amount of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000.00), secured by a first mortgage upon all of its corporate property then and to be thereafter acquired; and by virtue of the fact that the officers and directors of the Air Line were officers and employes of the Trust Company it at all times dominated and controlled the Air Line up to and until the month of April, 1900; that 244 thereafter the Trust Company acquired each and all of the bonds and stock of the Air Line, the Trust Company in fact constructing the railroad of the Air Line and acquiring said bonds and stock in consideration therefor; afterwards it proceeded to dispose of the same and to apply the proceeds, as it alleged, for the corporate purposes of the Belt Company; but the Trust Company, although often requested so to do, has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for the disposition made by it of the said bonds and stock, and the proceeds realized by it therefrom and has never accounted to the Belt Company in any manner except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show that they are informed and believe and so charge the facts to be that the Trust Company at all times up to and about the month of April, 1900, absolutely and completely dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company by reason of the fact that the officers and employes of the Trust Company were elected officers and directors of the Belt Company at the behest of the Trust Company and were simply dummies acting as the agents of the Trust Company; that the Trust Company itself attended to the disbursement of all the moneys which were realized from the sale of the bonds and stock of the several companies hereinbefore named, and itself attended to the disbursement of the moneys which were used in the construction and building of the lines of road of said different companies. That your orators are informed and believe, and on such information and belief state that the total cost of the lines of all of the said companies did not exceed the sum of about Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00), but that there was actually delivered to and disposed by the Trust Company secured bonds and stock aggregating more than Five Million Dollars ($5,000,000.00), and that the Trust Company has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company or to your orators for the proceeds derived by it from the sale of said bonds and the disposition made by it of such proceeds and has never accounted to the Belt Company in any way, except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators upon information and belief further charge and aver that on or about the 30th day of June, 1896, the Trust Company, either in its own name or in the name of some of its officers, or some corporation controlled by it, had entered into a contract whereby it was obligated to construct a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, for the purpose of connecting at that point with the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad Company and the Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad Company; that the Trust Company thereupon caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri a corporation known as the 245 Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, hereinafter for convenience called the Connecting Company, and caused certain of its officers and employes to be elected officers and directors of the Connecting Company and by virtue thereof at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of the Connecting Company; that the Trust Company being under obligation to construct said road as aforesaid set about to discover a way in which it could cause said railroad to be constructed without incurring any liability itself and without making itself liable for the possibility of a loss in such construction; that it thereupon conceived the idea of having the Belt Company undertake the construction of said railroad on consideration of the issuance of bonds and stock of the Connecting Company that therefore, by virtue of the domination and control which the Trust Company exercised over the affairs of both the Belt Company and the Connecting Company, the Trust Company caused a contract to be entered into between the Belt Company and the Connecting Company whereby the Belt Company agreed to construct and did construct said line of railroad for the Connecting Company in consideration, among others, of the issuance to the Belt Company of certain first and second mortgage bonds and stock of the Connecting Company, more fully specified in said contract; that said contract so entered into as aforesaid is set up in Exhibit A to the answer of the Trust Company filed in this cause to which reference is hereby made. The said line of railroad so built as aforesaid was constructed for the sole use and benefit of the Trust Company and for the purpose of enabling it to comply with its obligations to so furnish the said railroad; that the said railroad so furnished, as aforesaid, was not and never has been of any value whatsoever to the Belt Company; that the construction of said road, as aforesaid, by the Belt Company was the result of the Trust Company's domination and control of the Belt Company, utilizing the Belt Company to further and consummate its own purposes and ends and for its own benefit; and the said contract for the construction of said railroad of the Connecting Company was so entered into by it as aforesaid solely by the domination and control exercised over the Belt Company by the Trust Company, and the Trust Company in so constructing said railroad as aforesaid, simply used the Belt Company as an unwilling agency in the building of the same and occupied towards the Belt Company the relation of principal; that each and all of the moneys paid out by the Belt Company for the construction of said connecting road passed through the hands of the Trust Company and all the bonds and stock which were to have been delivered to the Belt Company under the terms of said pretended con-246 tract in like manner passed through the hands of the Trust Company and the Trust Company proceeded to sell or otherwise dispose of the same; that the Trust Company never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for the amount realized by it from said bonds and stock, and has never accounted in any manner to the Belt Company therefor, except as hereinafter stated. Your orators particularly charge and aver that the Trust Company in so using the Belt Company in the construction of said line is charged in law and equity with the amount of the said loss claimed by the Trust Company to have resulted to the Belt Company and should be held accountable therefor.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be, that, during the time the Trust Company so dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company, it at various times had the Belt Company advance to it or take out of the earnings and assets of the Belt Company large sums of money which it pretended to expend for and on account of the Belt Company; that by reason of the fact that the Trust Company at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company and had its employes and servants elected as officers and directors of the Belt Company; your orators are unable to state the amount of money so appropriated by the Trust Company and belonging to the Belt Company and which the Trust Company alleges was expended for the corporate purposes of the Belt Company, but upon information and belief your orators charge and aver that said amount aggregates upwards of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00); and that the Trust Company has never at any time truly accounted for the said money so received by it, nor the manner in which it was expended, and has never accounted in any manner therefor, except as hereinafter stated.

and then turned over to the Trust Company, or to be issued 247 to the Trust Company direct, in trust, for the use and benefit of the Belt Company; and the Trust Company caused its own servants and agents and employes to be elected and continued as officers and directors of such companies respectively and at all times, down to the month of April, 1900, so that the Trust Company, in the same manner that it controlled the affairs of the Belt Company, dominated and controlled the actions and affairs of the said subsidiary companies; that among the companies so organized by the Trust Company, in the manner aforesaid, is the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, with a capital stock of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00), of which Forty-two Thousand Dollars ($42,000.00) has been issued; that the said company owns two certain elevators in Kansas City, Missouri, along the line of the Belt Company; and that the Trust Company caused the construction of said elevators, and one other elevator, which has since been destroyed by fire, and in the construction of the same used the money of the Belt Company; said money being paid out to the Trust Company upon its request; that no true accounting has ever been had between the Trust Company and the Belt Company as to the amount of money which it actually expended for the construction of said elevators or of the manner in which it disposed of the funds received by it from the Belt Company for the alleged purpose of undertaking such construction, although requests for such accounting have frequently been made upon the officers of the Trust Company, and no accounting has ever been made therefor, except as hereinafter stated. That the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to assume all the outstanding debts and liabilities of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, and upon said outstanding debts and liabilities the Belt Company paid large sums of money, for which said Belt Company has never been reimbursed. That upon the 8th day of November, 1900, one Wash Adams was appointed Receiver of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company; that since that date the court in this cause has made an order turning over to the Trust Company the said properties of the Elevator Company for the collection of the rents therefrom and the application of said rents upon underlying mortgages or encumbrances held by the Trust Company; that the Trust Company also caused to be organized the Central Improvement Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, with a capital stock of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00), of which One Hundred Forty-one Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($141,500.00) par value has been issued; that said company was organized for the purpose of holding the title to various pieces of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, and elsewhere, purchased for the use and benefit of the Belt Com-
248 pany, and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, another Missouri railroad, and other of the companies above mentioned so organized, dominated and controlled by the Trust Company; that the officers and employes of the Central Company, all of whom were the officers, servants or employes of the Trust Company, continued nominally in office and to control and manage such company until about the month of April, 1900; that certain pieces of real estate which are of vital importance to the Belt Company are held in the name of the Central Company; that the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of purchasing the said pieces of property and using for that purpose funds of the Belt Company; that various sums of money were, during the period above mentioned, paid out by the Belt Company to the Trust Company for the purpose of purchasing such pieces of real estate; that the Trust Company has never truly accounted to the Belt Company, although often requested so to do, for the sums of money so received by it and the disposition made by it of such sums of money, and has never accounted at all therefor, except as hereinafter stated. That certain shares of stock of the said Central Improvement Company were also, although belonging to the Belt Company, issued to the Trust Company and it has disposed of the same, and, although frequently requested so to do it has never truly accounted to the Belt Company therefor and has never accounted at all therefor, except as hereinafter stated. That a large amount of property was purchased with money advanced by the Belt Company, the title to which property, however, was taken in the name of the Central Improvement Company; that all of said property in truth and in fact has belonged to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Company; that the Belt Company has never been reimbursed for the money so advanced as aforesaid; that upon the 8th day of November, 1900, one Wash Adams, Esq., was appointed Receiver of the Central Improvement Company; that thereafter said Wash Adams resigned and T. T. Crittenden, Esq., was duly appointed receiver, as the successor of Wash Adams, and the said Crittenden since his appointment has held possession of the property of the Central Improvement Company, all of which in truth and in fact belonged to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and now belongs to it, unless the title thereto has passed from it by virtue of the foreclosure sale of the property covered by its mortgage, as hereinbefore stated; that another subsidiary company organized by the Trust Company was the Fairmount Amusement Company, with a total capital stock of Twenty-Five Hundred Dollars ($2,500.00), all of which belongs to the Belt Company; that said company was organized, dominated and controlled in the same manner by the Trust Company as the other corporations hereinabove set 249 forth; that all of the moneys expended by the Fairmount Amusement Company were moneys supplied by the Belt Company or supplied by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company; and the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of disbursing all of the said funds, and that large sums of money were paid by the Belt Company to the Trust Company for that purpose, but the Trust Company has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for said money so received by it or the manner in which it expended the same, although often requested so to do, and has never accounted in any way therefor, except as hereinafter stated. That said Fairmount Amusement Company was organized for the purpose of operating what is commonly known as Fairmount park, along the line of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line road; that during the time that the Trust Company so dominated and controlled the Belt Company it caused the Belt Company to advance to it large sums of money for the purpose of fitting up said Fairmount Park; that the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of expending said sums of money for the purpose of fitttting up Fairmount Park; that as your orators are informed and believe, upward of Three Hundred and Ffty Thousand Dollars ($35,000.00) was thus supplied to the Trust Company for the purpose of fitting up Fairmount Park; that the Trust Company has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for the manner in which it expended such sums of money, although frequently requested so to do, and has never accounted at all therefor except as hereinafter stated; that another company organized by the Trust Company was the Northern Townsite Company, a Missouri corporation, with an authorized capital of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00), of which Ninety-Two Thousand Eight Hundred Dollars ($92,800.00) has been issued; that the said company was organized by the Trust Company in connection with the construction of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad for the purpose of acquiring property at or near townsites along the line of said road, that the Trust Company in the same manner as it dominated the other corporations above named caused its own servants and employees to be elected and maintained as officers and directors of said Townsite Company and at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of said Townsite Company; and the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to advance to it upwards of Forty-Seven Thousand Dollars ($47,000.00), which it used in the purchase of property which was taken in the name of the Townsite Company; and your orators are informed and believe and on such information and belief state that substantially all the money with which the property of the said Townsite Company was acquired was money advanced by 250 the Belt Company, and that the Trust Company instead of issuing the Belt Company all the capital stock of the Townsite Company issued large portions of it to itself or to other persons for its use and benefit, or otherwise disposed of the same; that the Trust Company has never truly accounted to the Belt Company at any time for the money so received by it for the purpose of said Townsite Company from the Belt Company, or the manner in which it expended the same, although frequently requested so to do, and has never accounted in any manner therefor, except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be that the Trust Company also caused to be organized under the laws of the State of Missouri a corporation known as the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, for the purpose of constructing a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to the Gulf of Mexico; and that the said railroad was so constructed under the direction of the Trust Company acting through the said railroad corporation; and for the purpose of acquiring funds with which to construct the said railroad the said Railroad Company issued its first mortgage to secure the issue of bonds herein specified, and on or about the first day of April, 1899, there were issued and outstanding bonds to the amount of Twenty-Three Million Dollars ($23,000,000.00); that at that time a default was made in the payment of an installment of interest due on the said bonds, and a bill was forthwith filed for the foreclosure thereof and receivers of the said railroad were appointed, and thereafter such proceedings were had that the said railroad was sold under the foreclosure decree.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be that the Suburban Belt Railroad Company, the Union Company and Air Line above named were very largely dependent upon the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Company for their earnings, and an operating contract was in existence between the Belt Company and the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company; so that it was well known to the Trust Company that if the said Kansas City Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company went into the hands of receivers it would necessarily and inevitably result in insolvency of the Belt Co. and other companies hereinbefore named and would necessitate their ultimately being thrown into the hands of receivers and the mortgages upon the property being foreclosed; that the Trust Company by reason of the domination and control which it exercised over the affairs of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company well knew that at and for some time prior to the first day
251 of April, 1899, said company would make default in the payment of the installment of interest due on that date and that such default would inevitably result in the filing of a bill to foreclose the mortgage and for the appointment of receivers for the said road and that the Trust Company thereupon set about to contrive a scheme whereby it might appropriate to itself, before the Belt Company passed beyond its control, all of the remaining property and assets of the Belt Company which were in such shape that they could by any possibility be transferred to the Trust Company. That the Trust Company thereupon caused to be exhibited to its own officers and employes who were holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company various claims and demands which it alleged were due and owed by the Belt Company to it and caused such of its own officers and employes as were holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company to pass upon and approve said claims and demands, and thereupon caused its own officers and employes so holding the positions of officers and directors in the Belt Company between the 31st day of March, 1899, and the 9th day of February, 1900, to execute to the Trust Company various pretended promissory notes and other negotiable instruments for the alleged purpose of securing to the Trust Company the payment of the said pretended claims which it held against the Belt Company, and caused its own officers and employes so holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company to cause to be delivered or transferred to it various stocks, bonds and accounts and other personal property belonging to the Belt Company as collateral security for the said pretended indebtedness of the Belt Company to the Trust Company.

Your orators further charge and aver upon information and belief, that the notes so fraudulently caused to be made by the Belt Company to the Trust Company are as follows:

Note dated March 31st, 1899, payable on July 2d, 1899, for $50,000, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum.

Note dated July 26th, 1899, payable on demand with 6 per cent interest for $203,900.

Note dated Sept. 21st, 1899, payable on demand, with 8 per cent interest, for $23,056.48.

Note dated Oct. 23d, 1899, payable on demand, with 8 per cent interest, for $7162.40.

Note dated November 7th, 1899, due January 9th, 1900, with 8 per cent interest, for $50,000.00.

252 Note dated January 25th, 1900, due May 25th, 1900, with 6 per cent interest, for $25,000.

Note dated February 8th, 1900, due May 12th, 1900, with 6 per cent interest, for $10,400.

Note dated February 9th, 1900, due June 11th, 1900, with 8 per cent interest, for $10,400.

The stocks and bonds and other property which the Trust Company fraudulently caused its own officers and employes as officers and directors of the Belt Company to turn over to it for the purpose of securing the payment of the said pretended notes as aforesaid, are as follows:

338 first mortgage, 30 year 5 per cent gold bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company of the denomination of $1000, dated January 1, 1897, being bonds numbered 1467, 1769 to 1733, both inclusive; 1799 to 1818, both inclusive; 1324 to 1331, both inclusive; 1756 to 1768, both inclusive; 1184 to 1216, both inclusive; 1466, 1369 to 1400, both inclusive; 1431, to 1440, both inclusive; 1609 to 1658, both inclusive; 1659 to 1708, both inclusive; 1819 to 1851, both inclusive; 1774 to 1798, both inclusive; 1301 to 1323, both inclusive, and 76 of said bonds, the numbers of which are not known to your orators.

67 and 9-10 second mortgage, 30 year 5 per cent income bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, of the denomination of $1000 each, dated January 1st, 1897, being bonds numbered 1064 to 1098, both inclusive; 1149 to 1157, both inclusive; 1162 to 1173, both inclusive; 1192 to 1202, both inclusive.

19,997 shares of the 20,000 shares constituting the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company.

4994 shares of the capital stock of the Kansas City and Independence Air Line.

15 Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company's second mortgage income bonds.

About 600 tons of new steel rails, theretofore purchased by, and then belonging to said Belt Company, and being stored in its yards.

Your orators further charge that the Trust Company also caused the Belt Company to assign to it an open account against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company in an amount of One Hundred Thirty-Three Thousand Fifty-Eight and 4-100 Dollars ($133,058.04), to secure said alleged indebtedness.

Your orators further charge and aver upon information and belief that the said notes were executed and the said account assigned and the said property above described given as collater- security solely under and by virtue of the domination and control of the Trust Company over the Belt Company, and at the time the said action was pretended to have been taken by the Belt Company the officers and directors of the Belt Company so causing the Belt Company to take such action were either officers and directors or servants of the Trust Company, and as such officers and directors or servants and employes of the Trust Company were personally interested in securing to the Trust Company all the available assets of the Belt Company, and that the execution of said promissory notes and delivery of said collateral security under such circumstances was fraudulent and void as against the Belt Company, and in law and in equity ought to be set aside.

Your orators further charge and aver upon information and belief that the Trust Company continued to keep its own officers, servants and employes filling the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company down to about the month of April, 1900, when the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company having been sold under foreclosure decree and a re-organization of 254 said property joined with the Belt Company having been undertaken, the control of the said Belt Company passed into other hands, and that during all the time until said month of April, 1900, the said Trust Company continuously kept its own officers and employes in the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company, so that at no time were there any persons holding the positions of officers and directors of said Belt Company, who were not personally interested in said Trust Company, and desirous of assisting the said Trust Company in every possible way; and at no time was there ever any true accounting had between the Trust Company and the Belt Company, for or by reason of the matters and things hereinabove set forth, except such an accounting as the officers and employes of the Trust Company, so holding the positions of officers and directors of the said Belt Company pretended to make in looking over and going through the form of approving the accounts and statements rendered to the Belt Company by the Trust Company.

Your orators further show unto the court that ever since the control of the Belt Company passed out of the hands of the Trust Company the Belt Company prior to the appointment of your orators and receivers, endeavored to procure from the Trust Company a true accounting for and by reason of the matters and things hereinabove set forth, for the purpose of determining the true state of accounts between the Belt Company and the Trust Company; but all such demands of the Belt Company have been refused by the Trust Company.

Your orators further show that, since the filing of the original and ancillary bill herein the Trust Company has prepared and submitted a statement of account which it pretends and claims to be a full and complete statement of account of all the matters and transactions had between it and the Belt Company covering the matters hereinbefore set forth; but your orators charge the fact to be that the said account is insufficient, untrue, and that it does not properly or truly account for the stocks and bonds and other properties received by the Trust Company from, for or on account of the Belt Company; that many of the charges against the Belt Company contained in said account are untrue, illegal, unauthorized and ought not in law or equity to be permitted to stand as charges against the Belt Company; that the Trust Company in making said account has omitted therefrom a large number of credits to which the Belt Company is properly and lawfully entitled; and your orators hereby set forth their objections to said account by reference to specific items and instances, without, however in any degree waiving their right to object to said account as a whole or to insist that no such account has been rendered by the Trust Company as is 255 contemplated and required by law or equity or the equity rules governing such matters.

In the said pretended statement the accounts of the Trust Company against the Union Company, Consolidated Company and Air Line were consolidated with the account of the Belt Company in 1893, so that all charges made against or on account of said lines now appear in the statement of the account of the Belt Company.

1. Your orators further show that the Suburban Company was organized under the laws of the State of Missouri on or about January 8th, 1887; that nothing was done by the Suburban Co. in the way of construction of its road or the issue or sale of its securities until on or about May 31, 1889. Prior to said date Mr. A. E. Stillwell, Vice President of the Trust Company, and his associates among the officers and directors of the Trust Company, came into control of the Suburban Company; and the Trust Company, through them, undertook to promote and finance the Suburban Company and to construct, or cause the construction, of its line of railroad. The plan adopted by the Trust Company for this purpose was to cause the Suburban Company to issue a large amount of securities, consisting of bonds and stocks, to be used in securing money with which to construct the railroad, and for this purpose to organize as its agency a construction company which, directly or through some contractor, should construct the line of the Suburban Company, and nominally take the securities of the Suburban Company in payment therefor. It was the further intention and purpose of the Trust Company, as a part of the same plan to cause securities of the Suburban Company to be issued very largely in excess, in value, of the cost of constructing the line of the Suburban Company, and to cause said securities to pass through the Trust Company, which would exact large and exorbitant amounts (under the guise of commissions and services for promotion and of a similar nature), and to cause such securities finally to be distributed among the stockholders and directors of the Construction Company which was to be organized very largely from the officers and directors of the Trust Company; so that the large profits arising from the enterprise might inure to the Trust Company and its officers, directors and their friends and associates; and in accordance with the aforesaid plan the Trust Company caused the Suburban Company on or about May 31, 1889, to enter into a contract with A. E. Stilwell (said contract being hereinafter referred to as the Stilwell contract) dated June 1, 1889, by the terms of which said Stilwell, or assigns, agreed to organize a construction company within sixty days from the date of said contract, to be called 256 the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, for convenience hereinafter called the Construction Company, and to cause said Construction Company to build the line of railroad of the Suburban Company from Broadway Street in Kansas City, Missouri, and along Second Street to Harrison Street; thence in a northeasterly direction along the recorded survey of said line, as near as may be, to Cecil Station near the Blue River; said road to be double track the entire distance, with not less than sixty-pound steel rails and to be built in all particulars in a first class manner. It was further provided in said contract that the work should begin not later than the first day of September, 1889, and to be completed within twelve months from that date; that the Construction Company should buy such grounds as it might deem necessary for the use of said railroad company for depot purposes and to pay for all rights of way remaining unsecured by the railroad company; that the Construction Company should build a depot of such dimensions and cost and locate same at such a point and equip the road in such manner as it might deem for the best interests of the railroad company, and to pay all and every nature of expense incurred by the building of said road. In consideration for the building of the road, as above stipulated, the Suburban Company agreed in said contract to issue its first mortgage bonds upon that portion of its line above described in the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00), bearing six per cent interest, the bonds to be in such form and of such denomination and to run such length of time as the said Stilwell or his assigns might designate; that of this issue of bonds the Suburban Company should place in escrow with the Trust Company, Four Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($450,000.00) of the same, face value, along with Nine Hundred Thousand Dollars ($900,000.00), face value, of the stock of the Suburban Company, to be delivered by said Trust Company as trustee to the said Stilwell, or his assigns, upon the faithful completion of said road as in said contract provided. On the day of the execution of said contract, to-wit, June 1, 1889, said A. E. Stilwell duly transferred and assigned the said contract to the Trust Company in consideration of the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), and the Trust Company, as the assignee of said Stilwell, thereupon undertook to comply with and perform all the conditions and terms of said contract imposed upon said Stilwell.

Your orators further show that, in pursuance of the duty and obligation cast upon the Trust Company by said contract, it proceeded to and did organize a corporation called the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company; and the Trust Company
257 caused its own stockholders, employes, officers and directors to be elected and appointed officers and directors of the Construction Company, so that the Trust Company by reason thereof at all times absolutely dominated and controlled the Construction Company. The stockholders of the Construction Company were also made up of the stockholders, employes, officers and directors of the Trust Company and such of their friends as they were willing to permit to come in and enjoy the fruits and profits of the plan. The Construction Company thereupon began the construction of the railroad of the Suburban Company between the points above designated as Broadway Street and Cecil Station; and had only partially completed the construction of said road, the acquirement of the right of way and the performance of their duties and obligations required by said contract, when, on or about May 9, 1890, the officers of the Construction Company and of the Suburban Company and of the Trust Company (who were substanitally the same persons and having the same purposes and ends in view), with the intent to secure to themselves large and exorbitant profits through their interest in the Construction Company and the Trust Company, and contracting with themselves as the representatives of the said corporations, caused the Construction Company and the Suburban Company to go through the form of agreement, by the terms of which the Suburban Company agreed to receive and accept the uncompleted railroad so partially constructed by the Construction Company as aforesaid as a full compliance with the requirements of said Stilwell contract and to authorize and direct the Trust Company to turn over to the Construction Company the stocks and bonds described in said Stilwell contract; and accordingly by virtue of such control and domination so exercised by the Trust Company over the Suburban Company, the latter went through the form of accepting the said uncompleted railroad and directing the Trust Company to release the said securities, and the Trust Company did release and turn over to the Construction Company bonds of the

Suburban Company in the amount of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000.00), face value, and stock of the Suburban Company in the amount of Six Hundred Thousand Dollars ($600,000.00), face value, retaining for itself and its officers Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00), par value of the bonds, and Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000.00), par value of the stock, as hereinafter set forth; and said stocks and bonds in the amount of Six Hundred Thousand Dollars ($600,000.00) and Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000.00), respectively, were there-258 upon distributed by the Trust Company and by the Construction Company to the stockholders, employes, officers and directors of said two companies and their friends who had been permitted to participate in the scheme as aforesaid.

Your orators further show that the action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with its terms as and for a full compliance, and in causing said securities to be issued, was contrary to the best interests of the Suburban Company, oppressive, inequitable and was solely by virtue of the said domination and control and to the end that the persons so in control and domination might realize unlawful gains and profits; and the said transaction ought not in equity to be permitted to stand as against parties in interest in the Suburban Company.

(a) Your orators further show that the cost of the road and right of way so constructed and acquired by the Construction Company did not exceed the sum of Two Hundred and Ninety-Two Thousand Dollars ($292,000.00), and that the bonds and stock as aforesaid so turned over to the Trust Company and the Construction Company as the pretended consideration were of the reasonable value of Four Hundred and Eighty Thousand Dollars ($480,000.00), and that the unlawful profits of said transaction amounting to the sum of One Hundred and Eighty-Eight Thousands Dollars ($188,000.00), with interest thereon from May 9th, 1890, at six per cent per annum, ought in equity and good conscience to be accounted for by the Trust Company and paid to your orators, and that the pretended account rendered by the Trust Company omits said item, to which the complainants are properly entitled.

(b) Your orators further show that at the time of issuing the bonds aforesaid there were issued the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00) par value, and that those remaining after delivery of the Trust Comapny to the Construction Company of bonds of par value of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000.00), to-wit, bonds in the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00), par value, were fraudulently, wrongfully and unlawfully taken and appropriated by the Trust Company for its own benefit; and that said bonds so wrongfully taken and appropriated were of the reasonable value of Ninety Thousand Dollars ($90,000.00); that at the same time the capital stock issued by the Suburban Company was of the par value of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00), and that remaining after the delivery by the Trust Company to the Construction Company of Six Hundred Thousand Dollars ($600,000.00), par value, of as aforesaid, to-wit,

259 the sum of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000.00), par value, of said capital stock was fraudulently, wrongfully and unlawfully taken and appropriated by the Trust Company to its own use, and the said stock so wrongfully taken and appropriated was at that time of the reasonable value of Eighty Thousand Dollars ($80,000.00); that your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to have the Trust Company account for and pay over to your orators the value of said stocks and bonds, to-wit, the sum of One Hundred and Seventy Thousand Dollars ($170,000.00), with interest thereon from May 9, 1890, at six per cent per annum, all of which the Trust Company refuses to do and all of which said items are omitted as credits from said pretended statement of the Trust Company.

(e) Your orators further show that by reason of the failure of the Trust Company and its agents to fully complete said contract as provided for under the terms of the said Stilwell contract, the Suburban Company, its successor the Belt Company, one of your orators, as well as the receivers of the Belt Company, who are also your orators, were compelled to and did expend large sums of money to complete the construction of said railroad, and for the purchase of certain right of way which should have been procured and furnished by the Trust Company or by its agent, the Construction Company under said Stilwell contract, and which would have been so furnished but for the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with said contract as and for a full performance thereof; that a partial list of the amounts so expended by the Suburban Company during the year 1890-1891, are as follows:

That your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to a credit upon the pretended account produced by the Trust Company for each and all of the amounts above set forth and interest thereon at six per cent per annum from the dates when said payments were made, all of which have been improperly and unlawfully omitted from the said pretended account by the Trust Company.

(d) Your orators further show that by reason of the failure of the Trust Company to fully comply with the terms of and conditions of the said Stilwell contract and to furnish the right
261 of way and depot required to be furnished by said Trust Company as a part of said contract, it became necessary to secure additional parcels of right of way, all of which the Trust Company was obligated to procure and furnish under the said Stilwell contract, and the Trust Company undertook to procure such right of way for the Suburban Company and did procure the same and in all cases charged the cost thereof, together with interest thereon, to the Belt Company, and the items so charged appear as debits in the pretended statement produced by the Trust Company; that in many instances the Trust Company caused the Suburban or Belt Company to itself purchase said necessary right of way and to execute notes for deferred payments thereon and said notes and the interest payments as they were made from time to time were duly charged to the Belt Company and appeared as debits in said pretended account; that the Trust Company failed to furnish a depot for the Suburban Company as in and by said contract it was obligated to do through itself or through its agent, the Construction Company, and the Trust Company after the pretended completion of said Stilwell contract undertook to and did construct a depot building for the Suburban Company at Second and Wyandotte Streets and charged the cost thereof to the Belt Company, and said charges appear as debits in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company. The amount so expended for right of way aggregates the sum of One Hundred and Twelve Thousand, Two Hundred Thirty-nine and Eighteen-hundredths Dollars ($112,239.18) the itemized statement of which, showing the amounts and dates when the various items were charged to the Belt Company appears upon the itemized statement marked Exhibit "1" under the head of "Right of Way," hereto attached and made a part hereof. The interest paid on right of way notes as aforesaid, the payment of which was made necessary by the Trust Company's failure to comply with said Stilwell contract, aggregates the sum of Forty-three Thousand Sixty-six and 30-100 Dollars ($43,066.30), an itemized statement of which showing the dates, and amounts paid is set forth in the said Exhibit "1" under the head of "Interest on Right of Way notes," herewith attached as aforesaid.

(e) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statement of the Trust Company as so expended for right of way by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company, the Belt Company on or about June 2d, 1893, paid to Louise W. Crane and others, who were then owners of an undivided half interest in lot 124, block 12, of old town, all in Kansas City, Mo., the sum of Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000) as a partial payment for said

262 interest in said lot; that it was the duty of the Trust Company or the duty of its agent the Construction Company, to procure and furnish this tract of land as a part of the right of way called for under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889, the said payment was made necessary because of the failure of the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, to comply with and perform the terms of the said Stilwell contract and because of the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with said Stilwell contract as and for a full performance thereof; that said item of Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000.00) is wholly omitted in the pretended account or statement presented by the Trust Company and that the Belt Company is entitled to and should have credit for said item with interest thereon from the date thereof.

(f) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statement of the Trust Company as so expended for right of way by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company, the Suburban Company on or about April 4, 1890, paid to Thomas J. Emery, who was then the owner of lots 141 and 142 of block fourteen (14), old town, all in Kansas City, Mo., on account of the purchase of said lots the sum of Four Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($4,500), and in addition thereto two notes of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) each were given as the balance of the purchase price of said lots in the manner hereinafter described; that it was the duty of the Trust Company or the duty of its agent, the Construction Company, to procure and furnish this tract of land as a part of the right of way that was called for under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889; and said payment was made necessary because of the failure of the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, to comply with and perform the terms of the said Stilwell contract, and because of the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with said Stilwell contract as and for a full performance thereof; that said item of Four Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($4,500) is wholly omitted in the pretended account or statement presented by the Trust Company and that the Belt Company is entitled to and should have a credit for said item with interest thereon from the date of the payment thereof.

(g) It was the duty of the Trust Company or the duty of its agent, the Construction Company, to procure and furnish to the Suburban Company a right of way across lots ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14), and fifteen (15), block ten (10), of old town, and lot one hundred and one (101),
263 of block ten (10), old town, all in Kansas City, Mo., as a part of the right of way called for under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889; that the right of way of the Suburban Company crosses the said lots and that the said Suburban Company's road, as so built by the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, passes over and upon these said lots; that the Trust Company or its agents, the Construction Company, has omitted and wholly failed to procure and furnish such right of way for and upon said lots as called for and provided under the terms of the said Stilwell contract; that at the time of the institution of this action the reasonable value of the right of way over and upon lots ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14) and fifteen (15), of block ten (10), of old town, so omitted to be provided by the said Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, was Eleven Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($11,250); that at the time of the institution of this action the reasonable value of the right of way over and upon lot one hundred and one (101), block ten (10), old town, so omitted to be provided by the said Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, was Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00); that the reasonable value of the right of way over and upon the said lots, to-wit, Eleven Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($11,250.00) and Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) are wholly omitted in the pretended account or statement presented by the Trust Company, and that the Belt Company is entitled and should have credit for the said items of Eleven Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($11,250.00) and Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) with interest thereon from the date of the omission of said Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, to procure and furnish said right of way.

(h) There was paid by the Trust Company as rental for certain right of way, all of which said right of way the Trust Company was obligated to procure and furnish under the said Stilwell contract, and charged against the Belt Company in the pretended statement, the sum of One Thousand Two Hundred Eighty-three and Twenty-hundredths Dollars ($1,283.20) an itemized statement of which is set forth in said Exhibit "1," under the head of "Rental Paid for Right of Way," hereto attached, which said payment was made necessary because of the failure of the Trust Company to comply with and perform the terms of said Stilwell contract.

(i) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statements of the Trust Company as so expended for right of way and rental thereof, by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company, the Belt Company or its receivers, all of whom are 264 your orators herein, between March, 1897, and January 1, 1902, were compelled to pay to the Pacific Express Company (who was then the owner of lot one hundred and one (101), block ten (10), of old town, all in Kansas City, Mo.), as rental for right of way of said Belt Company across said lot the sum of Fourteen Hundred Seventy-five Dollars ($1,475.00); that the amounts so expended by the Belt Company or its receivers are as follows:

That it was the duty of the Trust Company or the duty of its agent, the Construction Company, to procure and furnish the right of way over said lot as a part of the right of way called for under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889, and said payments were made necessary because of the failure of the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, to comply with and perform the terms of said Stilwell contract and because of the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with said Stilwell contract as and for a full performance thereof; that the said items of rental amounting to Fourteen Hundred and Seventy-five Dollars ($1,475.00) are wholly omitted in the pretended account or statement presented by the Trust Company and that the Belt Company and its receivers (your orators herein) are entitled to and should have credit for said items with interest thereon from date of payment thereof.

(j) There was expended by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company as appears in the said pretended statement the sum of Fifty-nine Thousand Two Hundred Sixty-five and Sixty-two-One-Hundredths Dollars ($59,256.62) as the cost of the depot building at Second and Wyandotte Streets in Kansas City, Missouri,
266 which said building should have been constructed by the Trust Company, or its agent, the Construction Company, under and in pursuance of the terms of said Stilwell contract; an itemized statement of the items composing the charge of Fifty-nine Thousand Two Hundred Sixty-five and 62/100 Dollars ($59,265.62) is set forth in said Exhibit "1," under the heading "Second and Wyandotte Depots," hereto attached.

(k) There was expended by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company, as appears in the said pretended statement, the sum of Twenty-two Thousand One Hundred Fifty-eight and Seventy-five Hundredths Dollars ($22,158.75) as the cost of other station depots, platforms, sand house, round house and labor and material furnished, all of which should have been constructed, procured and furnished by the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, under and in pursuance of the terms of the said Stilwell contract. An itemized statement of the items composing this charge of $22,158.75 is set forth in said Exhibit "1" hereto attached, under the head of "Other Buildings."

Your orators further say that all the foregoing matters, which appear (and are set forth in said exhibit) as debits in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company are unlawful and unjust and represent matters for which the Trust Company and not the Belt Company was and is responsible; that all of said items should be eliminated from said account and the Belt Company should be credited with interest thereon from the respective dates when said charges were made; that all of the foregoing matters not appearing upon the pretended statement or items which the Trust Company has unlawfully and improperly omitted therefrom and with which the Belt Company, in equity, should be credited.

(l) Your orators further show that, by reason of the failure of the Trust Company and its agents to fully complete said construction contract, it became necessary for the Suburban Company, or its successor, the Belt Company, one of your orators herein, to acquire ground for right of way and switching yards in Kansas City, Missouri, upon the line of its road, which should have been furnished and provided by the Trust Company, or its agent, the Construction Company, under and in pursuance of the said Stillwell contract; that accordingly the Trust Company caused the Second Street Improvement Company, which was also one of its auxiliary companies created and officered by it, to execute a lease from it to the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company covering a strip of land in section twenty-five (25), township fifty (50), range thirty-three (33), in Jackson County, Missouri, containing twenty-eight (28)
267 acres, which land adjoined the right of way and railroad tracks of the Suburban Company running parallel to such tracks at a distance of 4,809.8 feet. It was provided in said lease that the lessee should pay a yearly rental of Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000.00) and that the lessee should also have an option of purchase of said property on certain terms therein specified. Your orators duly paid said rent as it accrued from year to year, amounting to the aggregate sum of Twenty-six Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($26,250.00) and that the reasonable value of said property at the time of the institution of this action was Forty Four Thousand One Hundred Twenty-five Dollars ($44,125.00). Your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to be credited upon the pretended accounts produced by the Trust Company for each and all said rental payments with interest thereon at six per cent per annum from the date of such payments and for the value of said property at the time of the institution of this action, with interest thereon as above stated; all of which credits have been improperly and unlawfully omitted from said account by the Trust Company.

(m) Your orators further show that by reason of the failure of the Trust Company and its agents to fully complete said Stilwell contract it became necessary for the Belt Company to acquire certain property at Second and Wyandotte Streets in Kansas City, Missouri, for depot purposes; that thereupon the Trust Company caused the said Second Street Improvement Company, one of its auxiliary corporations aforesaid, to lease to the Suburban Company for a period of ten years from June 1, 1891, lots one hundred and twelve

(112) and one hundred thirteen (113), block eleven (11), Old Town, all in Kansas City, Mo., which said property properly came within the terms of said Stilwell contract and should have been furnished and provided by the Trust Company or by its agent, the Construction Company; under the said lease for said lots 112 and 113 the Belt Company was caused to and did pay rental to the Second Street Improvement Company for the use of said lots from June 1, 1891, to October 31, 1901, a total of One Hundred and Twenty-Five (125) months, at the rental fixed in said lease of Two Thousand Five Hundred Sixty-Six and forty-hundredths Dollars ($2,566.40) per annum, or a total of Twenty-Six Thousand Seven Hundred Thirty-Three and sixty-four-hundredths Dollars ($26,733.64); and that the value of said lots at the time of the institution of this action was the sum of Twenty-Five Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($25,750.00), and your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to a credit upon the pretended account produced by the Trust Company for the sum paid as rentals with 268 interest thereon at six per cent per annum from the date of each payment and for the said sum of Twenty-Five Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($25,750.00), with interest thereon; all of which credits have been improperly and unlawfully omitted from said pretended account by the Trust Company.

(n) Your orators further show that on March 20, 1890, the McClelland, Stumpf & Peltzer Brick Manufacturing Company owned lots one hundred forty-three (143), one hundred forty-four (144), one hundred forty-five (145), and one hundred forty-six (146), in block fourteen (14); lots one hundred nineteen (119), one hundred twenty-two, (122), one hundred twenty-three (123), one hundred twenty-five (125), and an undivided half interest in lot one hundred twenty-four (124), in block twelve (12), and lot one hundred thirty-eight (138), in block thirteen (13), all in Old Town, Kansas City, Missouri, all of which property is located in the vicinity of Second and Wyandotte Streets and is a part of the depot grounds of the Belt Company and was a part of the right of way to be acquired and furnished by the Trust Company or by its agent, the Construction Company, under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1899. In March, 1890, the said Brick Manufacturing Company conveyed all of the foregoing property to Alfred L. Howe, agent or dummy of the Trust Company, and on the same date the said Howe executed two notes for Forty-Nine Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-Three and thirty-three-hundredths Dollars ($49,333.33) each, to secure to the said Brick Manufacturing Company the balance of the purchase price of the same, and a deed of trust to secure said notes was placed upon all said property. On June 23d, 1890, the said Howe conveyed said property to the Belt Company. The first of said notes was for $49,333.33, which became due March 20, 1891, and the second became due March 20, 1892, both bearing six per cent interest; the first of said notes was paid by the Trust Company on March 23, 1891, and charged by it to the Belt Company. On March 14, 1890, the said Brick Manufacturing Company conveyed to W. S. Taylor, an agent and dummy of the Trust Company, lots nine (9), ten

(10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14), and fifteen (15), in block eleven (11) of King & Bouton's Re-survey of the East Half of block eleven (11), Old Town, in Kansas City, Missouri, for a consideration of Forty-One Thousand One-Hundred Dollars ($41,100.00), and said Taylor executed to said Brick Manufacturing Company three notes in the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) each, dated June 1, 1890, to secure the unpaid purchase money, and gave a deed of trust to secure said notes. The property just described is located at Second and Wyandotte
269 Streets in Kansas City, Missouri, upon which the depot building of the Belt Company was afterwards constructed, and it was a part of the property and right of way that should have been furnished by the Trust Company, or by its agent, the Construction Company, under the terms of the said Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889. The Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, in recognition of its obligation to pay for this property at or about the time of its purchase paid from its treasury to the said Brick Manufacturing Company or for it the sum of Eleven Thousand One Hundred Dollars, ($11,100.00), which, with the said three notes of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), given for deferred payments, made up the purchase price of said property; the said Taylor, after the execution of the said three notes, conveyed said property to the Belt Company. On April 7, 1890, Thomas J. Emery owned the following described real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, to-wit, lots twelve (12), and thirteen (13) of King & Bouton's Re-survey of the west half of block ten (10), Old Town; also lots one hundred forty-one (141) and one hundred forty-two (142) block fourteen (14), Old Town; on said date he duly conveyed said property to the said Alfred L. Howe, who was acting in the same capacity as aforesaid: that said Howe gave back to said Emery two notes for Nine Thousand Three Hundred Seventy-Five Dollars ($9,375.00), with six per cent interest, to secure the unpaid portion of the purchase price, securing said notes with a deed of trust upon the property; and thereafter on June 23, 1890, conveyed lots one hundred forty-one (141) and one hundred forty-two (142) in block fourteen (14) to the Belt Company, and the remainder of the property was conveyed to the Second Street Improvement Company; that of said two notes of Nine Thousand Three Hundred and Seventy-Five Dollars ($9,375.00) each, the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), or Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) on each of said notes, represented the deferred payments on the property acquired for and deeded to the Belt Company; that all of said Emery property was a part of the property and right of way that should have been procured and furnished by the Trust Company or by its agent, the Construction Company, under the terms of the said Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889.

4- 4-1890	4- 4-1891	6 per cent	T. J. Emery.....	$5,000.00

Your orators further show, that on or about October 15, 1897, the Belt Company was embarrassed financially and insolvent and that it had outstanding notes of a large amount, including the notes above mentioned, which were secured by a first mortgage as aforesaid; that the stock of the Belt Company was depressed in value and certain of the officers of the Trust Company and certain investors in it and in the Belt Company became desirous of improving the financial condition of the Belt Company by getting off its books certain of its bills payable, including the notes mentioned, in order that by certain manipulations a dividend might be declared, and the market in the stocks of the Belt Company might be improved and the parties interested might profit therefrom in their stock dealings and transactions. Accordingly, an arrangement was made between certain officers of the Trust Company and J. de Goeijen, by the terms of which the Trust Company assumed and agreed to pay the said real estate notes, including the notes above mentioned, and the amount of said notes, including the said [illegible] of Eighty Nine Thousand Three Hundred and Thirty-Three a[illegible] thirty-three-hundredths Dollars ($89,333.33), was by the Trust Company charged to the Belt Company on the books of the Trust Company, and the same now appears as a debit to the Belt Company in the pretended statement submitted by the Trust Company. At the time of said transaction, and on or about October 15, 1897, pursuant to the plan aforesaid, the said J. de Goeijen purchased certain bonds belonging to the Belt Company, which were by the Trust Company credited upon its books to the Belt Company in an amount sufficiently large to cover all of said notes, so that upon the books of the Belt Company all of said bills payable had been eliminated, and the Belt Company was thus enabled to make out and send to stockholders and financial publications a clean statement showing an improved financial condition for the purpose of bolstering up the market value of its stock aforesaid, all of which was accordingly done. The said statements showing said credits extended by the Trust Company and the improved financial condition of the Belt 271 Company resulting therefrom were sent out to stockholders and investors and the financial publications aforesaid, and the public was invited to purchase and trade in the stocks as well as the bonds of the Belt Company, in reliance upon such statements. And your orators aver that thereafter the public did deal in, buy and sell the stocks and bonds of the Belt Company, and investments were made in reliance upon said statements.

Your orators further show, that on or about the month of April, 1899, and after the appointment of receivers for the Gulf Company, the Trust Company had good reason to believe and did believe that it would soon lose control of the Belt Company, and that other and independent directors and officers would be elected, and it thereupon set about to relieve itself of its assumption and agreement to pay the said notes above mentioned, aggregating Eighty-Nine Thousand Three-Hundred Thirty-Three and 33-100 Dollars, and thereupon made the pretense and claim that the aforesaid credit which it extended to the Belt Company on or about October 15, 1897, was on the understanding that the funds for such credit should be supplied by the said J. de Goeijen, and that said J. de Goeijen had failed to supply said funds; and thereupon said Trust Company undertook by an entry upon its own books to relieve itself of its said assumption and agreement to pay said notes aggregating $89,333,33, but failed, neglected and refused upon so doing to credit the account of the Belt Company with said sum, as it should have done. At that time the said de Goeijen was indebted to the Trust Company in an amount which said De Goeijen was unable to pay, or by reason of their intimate financial relationship the Trust Company was unable or unwilling to collect from De Goeijen, and thereupon the Trust Company contrived the plan of causing the Belt Company to take over its worthless account against De Goeijen, in lieu of crediting the Belt Company with such sum, as it should have done as aforesaid. At said time the Trust Company well knew that said account against De Goeijen was worthless and uncollectable, and its action in causing said entries to be made on the books of the Belt Company and in refusing itself to credit the Belt Company, was a fraudulent and unlawful attempt on the part of the Trust Company to relieve itself of its assumption of the agreement to pay said notes in said sum of $89,333.33, and at the same time to release said amount charged to the Belt Company on account of such assumption. By reason of the premises, the Trust Company is estopped to deny that the credit it extended to the Belt Company as aforesaid was an absolute credit, and is so estopped from saying that said credit was a conditional one, and cannot in equity and 272 good conscience claim the right to unload upon the Belt Company the worthless claim against De Goeijen in lieu of crediting the Belt Company or paying said notes, neither of which has been done by the Trust Company.

Your orators claim, therefore, that the charge of Eighty-Nine-Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-Three and 33-100 Dollars ($89,333.33), made by the Trust Company to the Belt Company on or about October 15, 1897, which appears in the pretended statement submitted by the Trust Company, should be eliminated therefrom, together with all charges of interest which also appear in said pretended statement, and that the Belt Company should be credited with same amount and interest thereon from said date of October 15, 1897, together with interest upon the charges of interest made in connection therewith as aforesaid.

(1) Your orators further state that on or about May 9, 1890, when the Suburban Company and the Construction Company undertook, as above stated, to declare the contract between them for the construction of the first section of the Suburban Company's road duly performed in all respects, the said Construction Company had an overdraft at one of the banks in Kansas City, Missouri, in the sum of Three Hundred and Thirteen and 76-100 Dollars ($313.76), whereby the said Construction Company owed said bank the said sum of money; that the Trust Company, through its officers and agents unlawfully and fraudulently caused the Suburban Company to take up and pay said overdraft in said sum on the 7th day of May, 1890, and said sum is wholly omitted in the pretended statement of account submitted, and the Belt Company should be and is entitled to be credited with interest thereon from the day of payment thereof.

2. Your orators further show that upon the organization of the various companies above named, to-wit, the Suburban Company, the Consolidated Company, the Union Company, the Air Line and the Northern Connection Company, the Trust Company as above set forth caused these companies respectively to issue stocks and bonds, and thereupon the Trust Company undertook the disposition of said stocks and bonds, in some instances going through the form of purchasing said stocks and bonds itself and in other cases disposing of said stocks and bonds to others, and in connection therewith made large and exorbitant charges to the Belt Company under the guise of commissions for so doing.

(a) In the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company there are the following charges to the Belt Company un-
273 der the guise of commissions in connection with the Belt Company:

Aug.	8, 1890	$15,000.00

The amount of this payment does not appear on the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

274 (d) In addition to the foregoing charges that appear upon the said statement, the Trust Company took and appropriated to its own use the stock and bonds of the Consolidated Terminal Company under the guise of commissions as follows:

Dec. 17, 1891, 1000 shares of stock of the value of $32,220.00.

Dec. 17, 1891, 30 bonds of the value of $25,410.00.

Your orators further show that as above set forth the Trust Company, at all times while it was handling the stocks and bonds of the companies mentioned, absolutely dominated and controlled said companies, and was using them, and each of them, as its own instrumentality or dummy for its own benefit and profit; that the Trust Company occupied a fiduciary relation to said companies and that any contract or contracts made or claimed to have been made between the Trust Company and said companies respectively, providing for commissions, donations or services were unlawful, inequitable and oppressive, and neither said contracts nor the charges above made were ever submitted to or approved by the parties in interest in said companies; that the said charges and exactions made under the guise of commissions or services were not only exorbitant, but by reason of the relationship between the Trust Company and the said companies the Trust Company did not have the right in law to charge the said companies any commissions whatsoever for the sale or handling of said securities or for anything done or services performed on account of which said charges were made; that the charges for said commissions contained in said pretended statement should be eliminated and the Belt Company should be credited upon said account with interest on said charges from the dates when they were made; and in respect to the charges for commissions not appearing upon said pretended statement, the Belt Company should be and is entitled to a credit from the Trust Company with interest from the date of the payment thereof; and the value of the stocks and bonds so appropriated by the Trust Company as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the dates respectively of such appropriation, should be credited to the Belt Company upon said statement.

3. Your orators further show that upon the organization of the various companies above named, to-wit, the Suburban Com-
277 pany, the Consolidated Company and the Union Company, the Trust Company as above set forth caused these companies respectively to issue stocks and bonds, and thereupon the Trust Company undertook the handling and disposition of said stocks and bonds, and, in addition to the exaction of commissions as above stated, the Trust Company exacted and caused the Belt Company to pay certain other charges under the name of trustee's fees, which your orators allege are wrongful and unlawful charges, for the reasons hereinbefore and hereinafter set forth, said charges being as follows:

Sept. 12, 1892, 1 share of the value of $33.00.

Your orators further show that, as hereinbefore set forth, the Trust Company at all times while it was handling the stocks and bonds of the companies mentioned absolutely dominated and controlled said companies and was using them and each of them
278 as its own instrumentality or dummy for its own benefit and profit; that the Trust Company occupied a fiduciary relation to said companies and that any contract or contracts made, or claimed to have been made, between the Trust Company and the said companies respectively, providing for trustee's fees, were unlawful, inequitable and oppressive, and neither said contracts nor the charges above made were ever submitted to or approved by the parties in interest in said companies; that the said charges and exactions made under the guise of trustee's fees were not only exorbitant, but, by reason of the relationship between the Trust Company and the said companies, the Trust Company did not have the right in law to charge the said companies any trustee's fees whatsoever in connection with the sale or handling of said securities, or for anything done or services performed, on account of which said charges were made; that the charges for said trustee's fees contained in said pretended statement should be eliminated and the Belt Company should be credited upon said account, with interest on said charges from the date when they were made; and the value of the stocks so appropriated by the Trust Company as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the date of such appropriation, should be credited to the Belt Company upon said statement.

4. Your orators further show that upon the organization of the various companies above named, to-wit, the Suburban Company and the Consolidated Company, the Union Company, the Air Line and the Northern Connecting Company, the Trust Company as above set forth cause- these companies respectively to issue stocks and bonds, and thereupon the Trust Company undertook the handling and disposition of said stocks and bonds and appropriated and converted to its own use large amounts of the stock of said companies under the pretense that said stock was taken by the Trust Company as a bonus.

Sept. 21, 1897, 4 9-10 bonds.....	2,205.00

Your orators further show that as hereinbefore set forth the Trust Company at all times while it was handling the stocks and bonds of the companies mentioned, absolutely dominated and controlled said companies, using them and each of them as its instrumentality or dummy for its own benefit and profit; that the Trust Company occupied a fiduciary relation to said companies and was the promoter and organizer of each and all of them; that there was no consideration whatever for the above mentioned stocks and bonds so taken by the Trust Company as between the Trust Company and the Belt Company, but that said stocks and bonds were so taken by the Trust Company solely by virtue of its domination and control over it; that in equity and good conscience the Trust Company should account to the Belt Company for the value of all of 280 said stocks and bonds so unlawfully taken by it from the Belt Company, and the Belt Company is entitled to credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company for the value of said stocks and bonds so unlawfully appropriated as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the dates respectively of such appropriations.

5. Your orators further show that upon the organization of the various companies above named, to-wit: The Suburban Company, the Consolidated Company, the Union Company, the Air Line, and the Northern Connecting Company, the Trust Company began the practice of loaning money to the said companies, taking the promissory notes of the company to which the money was so loaned, and charging such loan to the Belt Company; that from time to time moneys were advanced by the Trust Company to or for said companies, and the same were charged to the Belt Company in open account and from time to time the securities, consisting of stocks and bonds of said companies, were bought by the Trust Company from said companies, or sold by the Trust Company, for them, and the proceeds credited in open account to the Belt Company; that in this manner there were from time to time many notes of large amounts given by the Belt Company upon which the Trust Company charged the Belt Company with interest and discount in large sums; that interest on daily balances upon said open accounts was also computed, usually at the close of each month, and if the balance was in favor of the Belt Company an allowance was made of interest on the average daily balance for such month at the rate of two per cent. per annum, but if the balance was in favor the Trust Company, interest upon the average daily balance for such month was allowed at the rate of from seven per cent. to ten per cent. and the amount of such interest charged to the Belt Company in open account, and the interest so charged to the Belt Company in open account was included in the daily balances for subsequent months, and also in the promissory notes of the Belt Company taken from time to time, and in that manner the interest exacted by the Trust Company was compounded monthly upon daily balances, and at stated periods upon the said promissory notes.

Your orators further show that in the pretended statement of account presented by the Trust Company there are unlawful charges of interest and discount as follows:

(a) Between the dates of June 14, 1890, and June 4, 1900, there is charged in open account by the Trust Company against the Belt Company various items of interest on daily balances at the per cent. above stated, which after the deductions of interest
281 allowed the Belt Company on daily balances, amounts to the sum of $16,105.45, an itemized statement of which, showing the dates upon which said charges were made upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, and the amount of each charge is set forth in a statement under the heading "Interest on Daily Balances," hereto attached and made a part hereof of Exhibit "2."

The item shown on the Exhibit in red represents the allowance of interest on daily balances where the same are in favor of the Belt Company; the items in blue show the charges of interest in favor of the Trust Company and against the Belt Company.

(b) On May 16, 1892, there was charged in open account as shown by the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company in connection with the Air Line Company against the Belt Company Eighty-Five and 18-100 Dollars ($85.18), interest on open account.

(c) Between the dates of June 14th, 1890, and November 7th, 1899, there was charged by the Trust Company against the Belt Company for discount on said notes, the sum of Nineteen Thousand Eight Hundred Thirty-Two and 9-100 Dollars ($19,832.09); an itemized statement of which, together with the dates upon which said charges were made in the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, with the amount of each charges, appears on said Exhibit "2" under the head of "Discount on Notes."

(d) Between the dates of June 14, 1890, and November 7, 1899, there was charged by the Trust Company upon its books against the Belt Company for interest on said notes above mentioned, the sum of Forty-Four Thousand Seven Hundred Sixty-Three and 48-100 Dollars, ($44,763.48), and same appears as charges against the Belt Company upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, an itemized statement of which, with the dates upon which said charges were made, and the amount of each charge is shown on said Exhibit "2," under the heading of "Interest on Notes."

(e) During the year 1892 there were charged as shown upon the pretended statement of the Trust Company, in connection with the Air Line, against the Belt Company, items of interest upon notes given by the Air Line to the Trust Company as hereinbefore described as follows:

June 17, 1892	$146.67
Dec. 8, 1892	437.50
	66.67

282 (f) Between the dates of September 1, 1896, and January 1, 1897, there were charged in open account, as shown by the pretended statement, by the Trust Company, against the Belt Company, certain items of interest upon alleged anticipated payments upon the subscriptions by various parties, including the Trust Company, to the bonds of the Northern Connecting Company, and that said items are as follows:

September 28, 1896
October 7, 1896	$41.91
December 11, 1896	1,179.17
" " 1896	3.64
" " 1896	14.88

(g) On August 11, 1892, there were charged in open account, as shown on the pretended statement by the Trust Company, in connection with the Consolidated Company, against the Belt Company, certain items of interest upon alleged anticipated payments upon the subscriptions by various anticipated — to the bonds of the Consolidated Terminal Company, amounting to the sum of $10,195.93.

(h) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company between the dates September 15, 1896, and June 4, 1900, there were charged by the Trust Company against the Belt Company by reason of the Belt Company constructing the railroad of the Connecting Company, various items of interest on daily balances at the per cent above stated, which after deduction of interest allowed the Belt Company on daily balances amount to the sum of Twenty-Eight Thousand Three Hundred Thirty and 1-100 Dollars ($28,330.01), an itemized statement of which, showing the amount of each charge, is set forth in the statement, under the heading "Interest on Daily Balance," hereto attached and made a part hereof as as Exhibit "3;" the items shown on the exhibit in red represent the amount of interest on daily balances where the same are in favor of the Belt Company; the items in blue show the charges of interest in favor of the Trust Company, as against the Belt Company.

(i) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company between the dates of September 15, 1896, and June 4, 1900, there was charged by the Trust Company, or the Trust Company caused other persons to charge against the Belt Company, for interest on notes that the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to give by reason of the Belt Company constructing the Connecting Company, the sum of 283 Thirty-Six Thousand Four Hundred Nineteen and 86-100 Dollars ($36,419.86), an itemized statement of which, showing the said charges and the amount of said charges, is set forth in the statement under the heading of "Interest on Notes," hereto attached and made a part hereof as Exhibit "3."

(j) That the amount of compound interest so compounded as hereinbefore described by the Trust Company and charged against the Belt Company by the Trust Company amounts to the sum of Seventeen Thousand Nine Hundred Twenty-Nine and 44-100 Dollars ($17,929.44).

(k) In addition to the foregoing charges of interest and discount there were other charges of interest and discount made by the Trust Company against the Belt Company in the amount of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($150,000.00), which the Belt Company was caused by the Trust Company to pay from funds in its treasury.

Your orators further show that as hereinbefore stated, the Trust Company at all times, covering the period of the charges aforesaid, absolutely dominated and controlled the said companies and was using them, and each of them, as its own instrumentality or dummy for its own benefit and profit; that the Trust Company, as the promoter of said companies, and by reason of its control and domination over them, at all times occupied a fiduciary relation to said companies and was not entitled in equity and good conscience to make said excessive and unreasonable charges and exactions; that by reason of the relationship between the Trust Company and the said companies as hereinbefore stated, the Trust Company did not have the right to charge the said companies any interest whatever upon daily balances, or otherwise, and that the charges for said items of interest contained in said pretended statement should be eliminated, and the Belt Company should be credited upon said account with interest on said charges from the dates when they were made, and there should be credited upon said acccount also the amount of compound interest and the interest which the Belt Company was caused to pay from its own funds to the Trust Company, together with interest on said payments from the time when they were made, respectively.

6. Your orators further show that the Trust Company during the period beginning with the year 1892 down to the year 1900, maintained what is called its "Building Department," which consisted of a limited number of employes, whose duty it was to make contracts for such building or construction work as the Trust Company might desire to have done in carrying out its various enterprises in connection with its auxiliary companies, including the Belt
284 Company, the Consolidated Company, the Union Company, the Air Line, the Elevator Company and Amusement Company Co.; that all of the work done for said companies could, and should have been done by said companies, respectively, but the Trust Company contrived the scheme of its Building Department in order that work of that character might be done by the Trust Company and large and exorbitant charges made therefor, from which the Trust Company might reap a large profit by causing the Belt Company to pay, not only the cost of such work and materials, but also large sums in addition thereto under the guise of superintendence; that the aforesaid plan was carried out to the extent that a large amount of work was done by the said Building Department, for the companies above named, and the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to pay not only the cost thereof, but from ten per cent. to fifteen per cent. additional under the guise of superintendence; that the amount of said superintendence so charged by the Trust Company to the Belt Company, together with the dates on which said charges were made, and the amount of each charge, is shown under the heading of "Superintendence," on Exhibit "2," hereto attached, and aggregates the sum of Forty Thousand Four Hundred Fifty-six and 32/100 Dollars ($40,456.32); that of said sum fifty (50) per cent. was clear profit to the Trust Company; that the Trust Company charged to the Belt Company the said sum of $40,456.32, and the same appears upon the pretended statement presen-ed by the Trust Company; that the Trust Company by reason of its relation to the said companies did not have the right in law to charge the said companies any sum whatsoever as superintendence in excess of the actual cost thereof, and did not have the right to profit out of said transactions; that the said profits of the Trust Company arising from said transactions should be eliminated from said pretended statement, and the Belt Company should be credited upon said account with interest on the amounts so eliminated from the dates when the said charges were made.

7. Your orators further show to the court that in the year 1895 the Trust Company, under the pretense of increasing the earnings of the Air Line, caused the incorporation of the Fairmount Amusement Company, and the establishment and exploitation of Fairmount Park, and in so doing the Trust Company caused to be expended by the Air Line and by the Belt Company, large sums of money in the acquisition of a large tract of land near the railroad of the Air Line between Kansas City and Independence, and the construction of buildings thereon and the adaptation of said grounds for the purpose of a public park; that the moneys so furnished by the Air Line as aforesaid were afterward, by the direction
285 of the Trust Company, charged to and assumed by the Belt Company so that ultimately all of the expenses in connection with the exploitation of Fairmount Park were charged to the Belt Company, and the various items making the aggregate thereof appear as debits to the Belt Company upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company; that the result of the organization and operation of Fairmount Park was a net loss of Two Hundred Ninety-three Thousand Three Hundred Three and 68/100 Dollars ($293,303.68), all of which the Belt Company was required by the Trust Company to stand; that the scheme of Fairmount Park was a financial failure and the Trust Company knew, or should have known, that it would be such failure, and the conduct of the Trust Company in causing the Belt Company to organize and carry on said enterprise and to stand the loss arising therefrom was and is inequitable, unjust and oppressive, and the Trust Company should in equity and good conscience be required to stand said loss itself, and the amount of said loss should be eliminated from the charges against the Belt Company upon the pretended statement produced by the Trust Company, or if that is impossible by reason of inability to identify the various items going to make the deficiency, then the amount of said loss, together with interest thereon, should be credited upon said pretended statement.

8. Your orators further show to the court that the Trust Company caused the incorporation of the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company on or about January 4, 1892, and after its incorporation the Trust Company caused to be constructed for it by the building department of the Trust Company three elevators, and caused the Elevator Company to operate said elevators and to execute upon its corporate property mortgages in large amounts to pay the purchase price of its properties.

(a) The operation of said elevator by the Elevator Company resulted in a loss, which was represented in part by a charge upon the books of the Trust Company against the Elevator Company in the amount of Three Hundred Ninety-One and 17-100 Dollars ($391.17); that the Trust Company on or about the 29th day of April, 1893, found that the Elevator Company was hopelessly insolvent and unable to pay said amount, and thereupon it charged said amount so due it from the Elevator Company, together with other items alleged to be due from the Elevator Company, to the Trust Company, amounting in all to the sum of Fifteen Thousand Two Hundred Ninety-Six and 68-100 Dollars ($15,296.68) to the Belt Company, and said charge of $15,296.68 now appears in the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company as a 286 charge against the Belt Company; that the action of the Trust Company in so charging against the Belt Company the debt of the Elevator Company was wrongful, and said charge was without consideration, and the said charge should be eliminated from the said pretended statement.

(b) On or about June, 1893, and while the Trust Company, then holding all the stock of the Elevator Company in its name and in the names of its directors and officers and their wives, knew that the Elevator Company was hopelessly involved and could not be made a success, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to go through the form of an agreement with the Elevator Company, by the terms of which the Belt Company was to acquire and take title to all of the elevators and other properties of the Elevator Company, except one thousand four hundred and sixty-one (1461) shares of stock of the Belt Co. theretofore exchanged by the Trust Company and its directors, officers and their wives, for Elevator stock, and in consideration thereof the belt Company was to issue to the Elevator Company 146.1 shares of the capital stock of the Belt Company and to assume the liabilities of the Elevator, all of which were then owing by the Elevator Company to the Trust Company; that said shares of stock were duly issued by the Belt Company and delivered to the Elevator Company and the liabilities of the Elevator Company were charged to the Belt Company, but the contract was never carried out in any other respect. The said 146.1 shares, upon being so received by the Elevator Company, together with the shares of the Belt stock above referred to, were caused by the Trust Co. to be delivered to it and its directors and officers and their wives, so that the Belt Company never at any time received any consideration for said 146.1 shares of Belt stock, of the reasonable value of Four Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy Dollars ($4,770.00), which said amount should be allowed as a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, together with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum from said 8th day of June, 1893.

(c) From September, 1892, to September, 1894, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to pay out from its own treasury to the Trust Company for the completion of the property of the Elevator Company the sum of Fourteen Thousand One Hundred Eighty-Five and 4-100 Dollars ($14,185.04), for which the Belt Company received no consideration. The said sum of $14,185.04 was paid out of funds of the Belt Company advanced to it by the Trust Company, and charged to the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, and, therefore, said sum with interest thereon should be credited to the Belt Company on said statement.

ment with the Elevator Company, by the terms of which the Elevator Company was to reacquire and take title to all the property of the Elevator Company that had been received by the Belt Company by reason of the pretended agreement of June, 1893, above mentioned, together with all improvements and additions made upon and to the said elevators and property by the Belt Company, amounting in value to the sum of Fourteen Thousand One Hundred Eighty-Five and 4-100 Dollars ($14,185.04), and in consideration thereof, the Elevator Company was to issue and did issue to the Belt Company 425 shares of the Elevator Company's stock, and was to re-assume and did re-assume Thirty-Two Thousand Dollars ($32,000.00) of the liabilities of the Elevator Company that had been assumed by the Belt Company by reason of the said agreement of June, 1893; and the Belt Company, in addition to the transfer of said property to the Elevator Company, was to continue its assumption of the balance of the liabilities of the Elevator Company, amounting to Fifteen Thousand Two Hundred Ninety-Six and 68-100 Dollars ($15,296.68), that had been assumed by the Belt Company by reason of said agreement of June, 1893. The stock of the Elevator Company so received by the Belt Company was worthless, as the Trust Company well knew, and the said $32,000 of liabilities re-assumed by the Elevator Company was evidenced by certain promissory notes of the Elevator Company secured by certain deeds of trust upon the elevators and properties of the said Elevator Company.

Between Sept. 1, 1894, and June 1, 1900, the excess of expenditures occasioned by the operation of the properties and elevators of the Elevator Company over the receipts therefrom amounted to Seventeen Thousand Eight Hundred Seventy-Seven and 92-100 Dollars ($17,877.92), and this loss to the Elevator Company, the Trust Company, solely by reason of its coercion, domination and control over the Belt Company, unlawfully caused to be charged to and paid by the Belt Company without any consideration therefor; the act of the Trust Company in having said charge made and paid was inequitable and oppressive and the Belt Company is entitled to a credit upon the pretended statement of the Trust Company for $17,877.92), with interest thereon, from the date of payment thereof.

(e) In addition to the charges appearing upon the pretended statement, the Trust Company unlawfully caused the Belt Company to pay to it, without consideration therefor, between December, 1894, and June, 1899, as interest upon the said $32,000 of notes of the Elevator Company all of which were the obligations 288 of said Elevator Company, the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), of this amount so paid Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000) appear as charges against the Belt Company upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company; and the Belt Company was caused by the Trust Company to pay the balance, Eight Thousand Dollars ($8,000.00), to it from funds in its treasury; all of said payments were made solely by reason of the coercion, domination and control of the Trust Company and said payments are inequitable and oppressive; the Belt Company is entitled to a credit upon the said pretended statement for the said Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) with interest thereon from the date of payment thereof; and the Belt Company is further entitled to a credit from the Trust Company for the said $8,000.00 with interest thereon from the date of payment thereof.

9. Your orators further state that in the year 1895, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated a railroad corporation under the laws of the States of Missouri, called the "Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company," herein referred to as the Connecting Company, for the purpose of constructing a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, in order to connect with the railroads at that time running eastwardly to Chicago, Illinois, and northwardly to Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Afterwards, and in the same year, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to enter into a contract with the Connecting Company, by the terms of which the Belt Company undertook to acquire the right-of-way and to construct the railroad of the Connecting Company between the points aforesaid, in consideration of which the Connecting Company agreed in said contract to execute, issue and deliver to the Belt Company, bonds and stocks of the Connecting Company; that the Belt Company was caused by the Trust Company to enter upon the execution of said contract and to construct the said railroad, and the Belt Company did secure the right-of-way and construct the railroad of the Connecting Company between Kansas City and Pattonsburg. In so doing the Belt Company was caused to expend large sums of money for right-of-way, material and for construction, and the stocks and bonds of the Connecting Company were wholly inadequate in value to reimburse the Belt Company for the money so expended, so that there resulted a large loss to the Belt Company in the matter of said contract, amounting to the sum of One Hundred Sixteen Thousand Six Hundred Forty-Four and 53-100 Dollars ($116,644.53), all of which of said deficiency was by the Trust Company charged to the Belt Company and the various items going to make the said deficiency appear upon the 289 pretended statement presented by the Trust Company as charges against the Belt Company.

Your orators further state that the action of the Trust Company in so requiring the Belt Company to enter into said contract and construct said railroad, resulting in said loss, was wrongful, oppressive and was done solely for the benefit of the Trust Company, that it might profit from the handling of the securities of the Connecting Company, which, under said contract, would be received nominally by the Belt Company, but in reality by the Trust Company; that the Trust Company knew and should have known that said venture would result in a large loss to the Belt Company, and the amount of said loss in equity and good conscience ought not to be charged to and borne by the Belt Company, and the same should be eliminated from the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, together with interest thereon; or, if the same cannot be identified, then that credit be given for the amount thereof with interest.

10. Your orators further show that on January 1, 1897, July 1, 1897, January 1, 1898, and July 1, 1898, there fell due certain coupons upon bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, outstanding in the hands of various holders; that said coupons were the obligations, of said connecting Company and were not in any manner, obligations either direct or contingent on the part of the Belt Company.

(a) When the said coupons became due on said dates respectively the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company was without funds to pay the same, and the Trust Company in order to bolster up and protect the credit of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Company, and to prevent a default on its part in the payment of its interest, did take up and pay said coupons in the amounts and on or about the dates hereinafter stated, to-wit:

(b) Your orators further show that the Trust Company by virtue of its domination and control over the Belt Company did cause the Belt Company to pay, and it did pay from the funds in its treasury, the interest upon certain bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, falling due as aforesaid, at or about the said dates, to the persons and in the amounts following, to-wit:

Oct. 14, 1897,	John H. Carr, interest on $4,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. 5 per cent bonds, due July 1, 1897	$100.00

... ... 1897,	N. Norton, Ass't Secretary, account various parties, interest on $249,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. 5 per cent bonds, due Jan. 1, 1898	6,225.00
Total		$9,125.00

The amount of these payments does not appear on the pretended statement furnished by the Trust Company.

291 (c) Your orators further show that all of the foregoing payments made by the Trust Company are charged to the Belt Company in the pretended statement of account except the item of $9,125.00 in the amounts and at the dates above set forth and there is also charged to the Belt Company in said statement interest upon the said payment of $30,850.00, amounting to $167.95, and also the amount of $77.13 as commission or brokerage for paying said coupons.

The said charges made by the Trust Company against the Belt Company and entered on said pretended statement, including the item of Nine Thousand One Hundred Twenty-five Dollars ($9,125.00) are unlawful, inequitable and were caused to be paid by the Belt Company or made arbitrarily by the Trust Company without reason or excuse, but for the pretended reason that the claim of the Trust Company arising out of its payments of said interest could not be collected from the Kansas City & Northern Connecting —, because of its financial inability to make said payment, and that the Belt Company being in better financial standing could be made to pay same by charging it to the account of the Belt Company; and your orators are entitled to have said items so appearing in said pretended account eliminated as charges against the Belt Company. The aforesaid payments made by the Belt Company on account of said interest coupons were unlawful and inequitably made by the Belt Company as a result of the coercion and domination of the Trust Company, and not by reason of any liability therefor on the part of the Belt Company, and the Belt Company is in equity and good conscience entitled to be credited with the amount thereof, together with interest thereon from the dates of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum.

(d) Your orators further show that on or about July 31, 1898, the Belt Company was the owner of the first mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Company, and also the owner of Three Hundred and Fourteen (314) coupons attached thereto, which said coupons were then due; that said coupons were the direct obligation of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, due and payable to the Belt Company, said bonds being at that time in the control of the Trust Company. The Trust Company on or about said date, did wrongfully cause the said coupons, amounting in value to the sum of Seven Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($7,850.00) to be taken from said bonds and cancelled as having been paid, and denied and still denies to the Belt Company the right to said coupons or the interest thereon; that said act of the Trust Company was wrongful and inequitable and operated to deprive the Belt Company of said sum of Seven 292 Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($7,850.00) and interest thereon at six per cent from said date, for which in equity and good conscience the Trust Company should account to the Belt Company and said sum has been omitted by the Trust Company from its pretended statement.

11. Your orators further state that on or about September 25, 1893, the Belt Company was the owner of Two Hundred second mortgage bonds of the par value of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, issued by the Kansas City & Independence Air Line and secured by a mortgage upon the property of that company. The Belt Company on that day was also the owner of Twenty-five Hundred (2,500) shares of stock of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) each, issued by the Union Company. On said 25th day of September, 1893, a contract in writing was entered into between the Belt Company and the Trust Company, which recited that the Belt Company was the owner of the entire issue of the second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, which issue consisted of Two Hundred (200) bonds of the par value of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) each, subject to the interest which the Trust Company had as trustee in thirty (30) of said bonds, numbered from one seventy-one (171) to two hundred (200), both inclusive, aggregating the principal sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000.00), and held in trust by the Trust Company under the mortgage or deed of trust, given by the Kansas City & Independence Air Line of date March 1, 1893, and also reciting that the Belt Company was the owner of Twenty-five Hundred (2,500) shares of the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company, of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) each; and further reciting that the Belt Company was desirous of selling and disposing of the entire issue of said second mortgage bonds and the said 2,500 shares of stock for the purpose of raising money and means to properly extend, equip, repair, maintain and operate its road and to meet its obligations then and thereafter incurred, and that the Trust Company had agreed to purchase said bonds and stock at and for the price and sum thereafter stated in said contract. It was, therefore, mutually agreed in said written contract that the Belt Company should sell and deliver and that the Trust Company should purchase and receive and pay for the entire issue of the second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, aggregating the principal sum of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00), and also Two Thousand Five Hundred (2,500) shares of the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company, of the par value of Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000.00) at and for the price of the earned interest on said 293 bonds, at the time of their delivery to the Trust Company, and the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($150,000.00), to be paid upon the terms and at the times hereinafter stated; that is to say, that the Belt Company should deliver to the Trust Company the said 2,500 shares of the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company upon the execution of said contract, and whenever the Belt Company should demand the Trust Company should take in amounts of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), par value or multiples thereof so many of said second mortgage bonds as the Belt Company might deliver; and the Trust Company agreed to pay the Belt Company therefor upon said contract all of the earned interest on the bonds so delivered to it and seventy-five per cent (75) of the face value of th eprincipal sum thereof. It was further agreed in said written contract that said second mortgage bonds, numbered from one (1) to one hundred and seventy (170) both inclusive, aggregating the principal sum of One Hundred and Seventy Thousand Dollars ($170,000.00), should be delivered and paid for on or before eighteen (18) months from the date of said contract, and that so many of said bonds, numbered from one hundred and seventy-one (171) to two hundred (200), both inclusive, aggregating the principal sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000.00), as should remain unsold by the Trust Company as trustees, under and by virtue of the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust, securing said bonds, on the first day of March, 1898, should be delivered and paid for within six months from said March 1, 1898.

(a) Your orators further show that in accordance with said contract there was delivered to the Trust Company by the Belt Company the entire issue of said second mortgage bonds, being two hundred (200) bonds, of the par value of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) each, and the Trust Company gave to the Belt Company credit for one hundred and thirty (130) of said bonds at the sum or price of Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($750.00) each, as follows:

Oct., 1893, 100 bonds at 75	$75,000.00
Mar., 1904, 6 bonds at 75	4,500.00
Jan., 1895, 6 bonds at 75	4,500.00
Mar., 1895, 6 bonds at 75	4,500.00
Dec., 1895, 6 bonds at 75	4,500.00
Mar., 1894, 6 bonds at 75	4,500.00
	$97,500.00

Your orators further state that the Trust Company failed, neglected and refused within the time limited in said con-
294 tract, or at any time thereafter, to purchase and pay for the remaining seventy (70) second mortgage Air Line bonds, of the par or face value of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) each, as specified in said contract; but on the contrary, the Trust Company afterwards discovered that the said second mortgage bonds could not be sold upon the market, and were worthless, and it thereupon devised a plan or scheme to re-sell and unload the same upon the Belt Company; and accordingly to carry out said plan, it caused the Belt Company to enter into a pretended agreement rescinding said contract of September 25, 1893, and attempting to release the Trust Company from its obligation to take the remaining seventy (70) of said bonds all of which was inequitable and against good conscience and the same is not binding upon your orators.

(b) In further consideration of said fraudulent plan the said Trust Company caused entries to be made upon its books and upon the books of the Belt Company charging the Belt Company as and for a return of said 130 bonds so purchased by the Trust Company at Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($750.00) each as aforesaid, as follows:

July, 1894, 80 bonds at 75	$60,000.00
June, 1896, 50 bonds at 75	37,500.00
	$97,500.00

(c) Your orators further show that the Trust Company in equity and good conscience should be held to account and pay to the Belt Company the contract price of the said seventy second mortgage bonds, being the amount of Fifty-Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($52,500.00), together with interest thereon at 6 per cent from the 25th day of March, 1895.

(d) Your orators further show unto the court that the 2,500 shares of the Union Company stock, so delivered to the Trust Company under said contract as aforesaid, were appropriated by the Trust Company to its own uses and for its own benefit and that it never at any time returned said stock to the Belt Company or accounted for the proceeds thereof. On or about May, 1894, the Trust Company exchanged said stock with the Belt Company for 2,500 shares of the par value of $100.00 each of the capital stock of the Belt Company, which was worth at that time Sixty-Two Thousand

Five Hundred Dollars ($62,500.00); that the Trust Company received and thereafter disposed of the said stock of the Belt Company and has never accounted to your orators thereofor, as in equity and good conscience it is bound to do, together with interest thereon at six per cent per annum from the 25th day of March, 1895.

295 Your orators are entitled to have allowed to them upon the pretended account presented by the Trust Company a credit represented by the contract price of said seventy bonds, to-wit. the sum of Fifty-Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($52,-500.00) with interest thereon, or if the court should find that said contract was duly rescinded, then your orators are entitled to a credit, represented by the value of said 2,500 shares of stock, to-wit, the sum of Sixty-Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($62,500.00) and interest thereon.

Your orators further show that the act of the Trust Company in charging back to the Belt Company the said one hundred and thirty (130) bonds at Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($750.00) per bond was unlawful and inequitable for the reason that said bonds were then worthless, as the Trust Company well knew, and that in equity and good conscience said charges should be eliminated from said pretended account.

12. Your orators further show that the Trust Company caused to be constructed the railroad of the Air Line and used for that purpose a corporation previously created by it, called the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company.

The Trust Company caused the Air Line to enter into a contract with said Construction Company for the construction and completion of the railroad of the Air Line; under the terms of said contract the Construction Company was to receive the stocks and bonds of the Air Line in certain amounts fixed in said contract. The Construction Company entered upon the construction or said railroad, but before the same was fully completed, the Trust Company caused the Air Line and the said Construction Company to go through the form of an agreement by the terms of which the Air Line was to accept the then partially completed railroad as and for full compliance with said contract, and was to turn over to the Construction Company the securities provided in said contract to be turned over, upon its final completion.

And it was further provided that the Air Line should assume all the liabilities of the Construction Company and should succeed to and take over all of its assets. This plan was carried out and the uncompleted railroad was turned over to the Air Line, the securities were delivered to the Trust Company and the Air Line assumed the liabilities and took over the assets of the Construction Company.

(a) Among the assets of the Construction Company was the subscription made by the Trust Company in the name of A. E. Stilwell, trustee, to the capital stock of the Construction Company in

296 the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00), which had been duly subscribed by the Trust Company, but upon which nothing had ever been paid. In the disposition of the securities received by the Construction Company as aforesaid, this unpaid subscription on the part of the Trust Company was treated as paid, and a proportionate amount of the securities of the Air Line, to-wit: One Hundred and Ninety-Five (195) shares of stock, Twenty-Four and 375-1000 bonds (24.375) of the then aggregate value of Twenty-six Thousand Dollars ($26,000.00) was turned over to and received and retained by the Trust Company, but the Trust Company notwithstanding refused, and has ever since refused to pay such subscription, or any part thereof, but caused entries to be made upon its books and upon the books of the Air Line, cancelling said stock subscription by a fictitious charge. Your orators show, therefore, that by reason of the premises the Trust Company ought in equity and good conscience to account for and pay over to the Belt Company the amount of said subscription, to-wit: Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00) with interest thereon from the date that same was made, to-wit, March 30th, 1891, at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum to date, or that the Trust Company should account for and pay over to the Belt Company the reasonable value of the securities so wrongfully received by the Trust Company as aforesaid, together with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum from the date of such delivery, to-wit: the 18th day of March, 1892, and that your orators are entitled to a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company in the amount of said subscription, with interest, or in the amount of the value of said securities with interest, as your orators may elect.

Your orators further show that if it should be claimed by the Trust Company and made to appear that the subscription mentioned in the preceding paragraph as having been made by A. E. Stilwell, trustee, was not in fact and in law the subscription of the Trust Company, then your orators show that the said charge made by the Trust Company against the Air Line for the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00), some two years after the transactions mentioned in the preceding paragraph, was an unlawful and fictitious charge and fraudulent as against the Belt Company; that the reason assigned by the Trust Company for making said charge was that it was for services, when as a matter of fact, no services were rendered by the Trust Company, and the charge was merely an unlawful method adopted by the Trust Company to get rid of its liability on said stock subscriptions.

297 (b) Your orators further state that on or about May 17, 1892, when the Air Line and Construction Co. undertook, as above stated, to declare the contract between them for the construction of said Air Line road duly performed in all respects, the said Construction Co. had an overdraft of $2,436.08, and owed the Trust Co. in open account the sum of $13,436.08; the Trust Co., through its officers and agents, unlawfully and fraudulently caused the said overdraft of $2,436.08 and $600.00 of said open account to be charged in open account upon the books of the Trust Co. against the Air Line; and $10,400.00 of said open account that was paid by the Air Line to the Trust Co. does not appear on the pretended statement; and the charges afterwards, by the consolidation of accounts, becoming a charge against the Belt Co.; the said $600.00 and $2,436.08 items appear as debit charges against the Belt Co. in the pretended statement presented by the Trust Co. and the Belt Co. should be and is entitled to a credit for the said items on the pretended statement, including the item of $10,400.00, with interest thereon from the date of payment thereof.

13. Your orators further show that in December, 1891, a contract was entered into between the West Kansas City Land Company and the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, under the terms of which the Land Company agreed to sell to the Consolidated Company a strip of land twenty-eight (28) feet in width over and across certain land in Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, for a consideration of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) of which amount Four Thousand Dollars ($4,000.00) was to be paid upon the delivery of a warranty deed and the balance three years thereafter; while the contract was in the name of the Consolidated Company, it was for the benefit of the Belt Company and the said payment of $4,000.00 was made by the Belt Company. The Belt Company in November, 1892, gave its note to the West Kansas City Land Company for Five Thousand Six Hundred Dollars ($5,600.00), being the balance of the purchase price of said land, and the Trust Company guaranteed the payment of said note and interest to the West Kansas City Land Company and took from the Belt Company the sum of $5,600.00 in cash and retained the same as a special deposit to cover its liability on said note and agreed to pay interest thereon at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum; that afterwards such proceedings were had that your orators, by the judgment and decree of the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, affirmed by the judgment of the Supreme Court of the state, were adjudged to pay and did pay said note and interest on June 13, 1901, amounting to Seven Thousand Nine Hundred Ten and 32-100 Dollars ($7,910.32); and thereupon the Trust Company be-
298 came in duty bound to return and refund to your orators the said sum of Five Thousand and Six Hundred Dollars ($5,600.00), and interest thereon; but the Trust Company has failed and refused and ever since has failed and refused to pay said sum to your orators, and the Trust Company has failed in its pretended account to give your orators credit therefor, to which in equity and good conscience it is entitled; that the same appears upon the pretended account submitted by the Trust Company as a charge against the Belt Company under date of November 28, 1892, which said charge is unlawful and should be expunged; and the interest thereon should be credited to the Belt Company.

14. Your orators further state that on or about November, 1899, a judgment in the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) was rendered against the Belt Company in the suit of one Zumwalt to recover for personal injuries sustained by him. That the Belt Company thereupon appealed said case to the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri, and gave an appeal bond as by law required; that the Trust Company signed said appeal bond as surety and required the Belt Company to deposit with it the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) to cover its liability as surety on said bond; that such proceedings were had that the judgment in said case of Zumwalt was on or about the 19th day of May, 1903, reversed without being remanded, and thereupon the liability of the Trust Company, as such surety, ceased, but notwithstanding such release from liability the Trust Company has refused and still refuses to account for or pay over to your orators the said sum of $5,000.00, together with interest thereon, to which your orators in equity and good conscience are entitled; and the Trust Company has failed and omitted to credit your orators on its said pretended statement of account, with said sum of $5,000.00 to which, with interest thereon from said 29th day of November, 1899, your orators are entitled.

15. The orators further show to the court that it was the habit and practice of the Trust Company in the disposition of bonds and stocks of the Belt Company, the Consolidated Company, the Air Line and the Union Company, to make sales of said bonds and stocks at such prices as the Trust Company should decide upon, and then when such sales had been made, to credit the Belt Company with a less amount, representing to the Belt Company that the sale so made by the Trust Company as aforesaid, had been made at and for a much less price than the amount or rate at which the sale had actually been made. In other instances the Trust Company would have an opportunity to make an advantageous sale of stock or bonds, and with such sale in view would cause the Belt Company to go through the form of selling 299 such stock or bonds to the Trust Company, and the latter would then, or within a short time thereafter consummate the sale in contemplation. In this manner the Trust Company derived large profits from the transactions in addition to all the charges for commissions and services hereinbefore mentioned, the said profits consisting of the difference between the amounts at which the sales would be made by the Trust Company and the amounts reported by it to the Belt Company as the amount of the sale, and for which the Belt Company received credit, or the amount of the pretended purchase by the Trust Company; that the amount of said profits is to your orators unknown, but your orators are informed and believe, and so charge upon their information and belief, that the profits so received by the Trust Company, and unlawfully retained by it, exceed the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000.00); that the Trust Company has never at any time accounted to the Belt Company for such profits so unlawfully retained by it, and your orators are entitled to have said profit ascertained and determined and the amount thereof, with interest thereon, credited upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

16. Your orators further show that, on the 24th day of August, 1893, the Belt Company was insolvent, as its directors, who were made up of the officers and directors of the Trust Company, then well knew; that notwithstanding such insolvency the said directors were caused by the Trust Company to go through the form of declaring a dividend payable in the capital stock of the Company and, accordingly, the Belt Company, acting under the domination and control of the Trust Company and being coerced into such action, did declare a stock dividend and did deliver to its various stockholders its capital stock of the par value of Fifty-one Thousand Two Hundred Sixty-two and 20-100 ($51,262.20) Dollars and of the reasonable market value of Seventeen Thousand Eighty-seven and 40-100 Dollars ($17,087.40), all of which was unlawful and fraudulent as against the Belt Company and amounting to an appropriation by the Trust Company of the capital stock of the Belt Company in said amount; that of the said stock dividend so paid the Trust Company received as a holder of the capital stock of the Belt Company its stock of the par value of Four Thousand Six Hundred Eighteen and 20-100 Dollars ($4,618.20) and of the market value of One Thousand Five Hundred Thirty-nine and 40-100 Dollars ($1,539.40); your orators show, therefore, that in equity and good conscience they are entitled to a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company in the 300 sum of $17,087.40 with interest thereon at six (6) per cent from the 1st day of November, 1893.

17. Your orators further show that, on the 7th day of April, 1894, the Belt Company was insolvent, as its directors who were made up of the officers and directors of the Trust Company then well knew; that notwithstanding such insolvency the said directors were caused by the Trust Company to go through the form of declaring a dividend payable in the capital stock of the Company and, accordingly, the Belt Company, acting under the domination and control of the Trust Company and being coerced into such action, did declare a stock dividend and did deliver to its various stockholders its capital stock of the par value of Seventy-eight Thousand Six Hundred Fifteen and 86-100 Dollars ($78,615.86) and of the reasonable market value of Twenty-six Thousand Two Hundred Five and 28-100 Dollars ($26,205.28), all of which was unlawful and fraudulent as against the Belt Company and amounting to an appropriation by the Trust Company of the capital stock of the Belt Company in said amount; that of the said stock dividend so paid the Trust Company received as a holder of the capital stock of the Belt Company, stock of the par value of Sixteen Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-eight and 20-100 Dollars ($16,338.20) and of the market value of Five Thousand Four Hundred Forty-six and 6-100 Dollars ($5,446.06); your orators show, therefore, that in equity and good conscience they are entitled to a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company in the sum of Twenty-six Thousand Two Hundred Five and 28-100 Dollars ($26,205.28) with interest thereon at six (6) per cent from the 1st day of May, 1894.

18. Your orators further show that in November, 1897, the Belt Company was wholly insolvent as the Trust Company then well knew, but notwithstanding that fact the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to go through the form of declaring a dividend of one and one-half per cent upon all outstanding stock and a resolution was accordingly adopted by the directors of the Belt

Company declaring such dividend; that thereafter the Belt Company, so acting under the coercion and control of the Trust Company, as aforesaid, did pay out as and for such dividend the sum of Seventy-one Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($71,250.00) of which said amount the Trust Company, as a stockholder of the Belt Company, received a large amount. That the action of the Trust Company in so requiring said dividend to be paid was unlawful, wrongful and the amount so caused to be paid out by the Belt Company together with interest thereon should in equity and good conscience be allowed as a credit upon the pretended statement by the Trust Company.

301 19. Your orators further show that after the incorporation of the Union Terminal Railroad Company, the Trust Company caused it to execute its bonds in the sum of Two Million Dollars, and in order to secure the same to execute a mortgage upon all of its corporate property, then or thereafter acquired; that it was provided in said mortgage that the proceeds of all of the bonds, except one hundred and fifty (150) reserved for interest paying purposes, should be used in the construction and equipment of the railroad of said company; that after said railroad had been constructed the Trust Company caused the Union Company to deliver to the Belt Company and caused the Belt Company to deliver to the Trust Co. one thousand one hundred and sixty (1,160) Union Co. bonds of the par value of One Million One Hundred and Sixty Thousand Dollars ($1,160,000.00) and the cash value of One Million, Forty-four Thousand Dollars ($1,044,000.00); that although the Trust Company was the Trustee in said mortgage and knew of the authorized purpose for which said bonds could be used as aforesaid, it wrongfully sold said bonds to various investors and used the proceeds thereof to credit the account of the Belt Company, the debit side of which had been greatly augmented in amount by the fraudulent conduct on the part of the Trust Company in making to the Belt Company excessive and exorbitant charges for services, interest and commissions and upon other pretexts in the manner hereinbefore set forth; that the said bonds so wrongfully put afloat by the Trust Company by their terms drew interest at the rate of — (5) per cent per annum and the Belt Company which had theretofore been required by the Trust Company to guarantee said bonds was thereafter required and compelled by the Trust Company to pay interest in large amounts upon said bonds in the amount of Four Hundred and Thirty-two Thousand Dollars ($432,000.00); that the conduct of the Trust Company in the premises was wrongful and in violation of its trust and resulted in imposing upon the Belt Company the unnecessary burden of said interest payments which appear as charges to the Belt Company in the pretended statement by the Trust Company. That your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to have said charges of interest eliminated from said statements or if the said charges in respect to the particular bonds cannot be identified with certainty in said account, then to have said account credited with the amount so paid by the Belt Company together with [in] interest thereon from the respective dates of payment.

20. Your orators further show that on or about April 28th, 1892, the Trust Company sold to one Caroline A. Perkins three Consolidated Company bonds for twenty-five hundred and fifty 302 dollars ($2,550.00); that said bonds were the property of the Belt Company, but that the Trust Company fraudulently and wrongfully refused and neglected and has ever since refused and neglected to pay said proceeds of said bonds to the Belt Company, or to in any way account for them, and the Belt Company is entitled to credit for said sum as of said date, together with interest thereon.

21. Your orators further state that on or about the — day of —, 1890, the Trust Company charged against the Belt Company the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) and credited the same to "Arkansas Lands;" that your orators are informed and believe that said charge was fictitious and fraudulent and that in truth and in fact said sum of Five Thousand Dollars was not then nor at any time advanced by the Trust Company to or for the Belt Company, and that the Belt Company received no benefit or consideration therefrom and that the said charge of Five Thousand Dollars in equity and good conscience ought to be eliminated from the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company and that the Belt Company should be credited with interest on said amount from the time when said charge was made.

22. Your orators further show to the court that about the year 1892, the Trust Company caused the incorporation of the Fruit Auction and Cold Storage Company under the laws of the State of Missouri; that the incorporators of said company were Arthur E. Stillwell, Arthur A. Mosher, Edward L. Martin and William S. Taylor; that the articles of incorporation of said company recited that one-half of the capital stock thereof, to-wit, Seventy-five Thousand Dollars ($75,000.00) had been paid up in lawful money of the United States, when in truth and in fact no part of said capital stock had been paid up; that the Trust Company caused said Cold Storage Company to engage in the business of the sale of fresh fruits in Kansas City, Missouri, and after said business had been conducted for a few months it went out of business owing the Trust Company a large sum of money; that thereupon and on or about the 13th day of February, 1894, the Trust Company, in order to recoup its losses sustained in the matter of said Fruit Auction & Cold Storage Company, appropriated to its own use two hundred and eighty-six (286) shares of the stock of the Belt Company of the value of Six Thousand Two Hundred Ninety-two Dollars ($6,292.00) and used the same to wipe out the debt owing by the said Cold Storage Company to the Trust Company; that the taking of said stock and its appropriation to wipe out the debt
303 of said Cold Storage Company on the books of the Trust Company was fraudulent and wrongful as against the Belt Company as was without any consideration whatsoever given to it; the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company does not contain any credit for the value of said stock but your orators show that a credit for such amount with interest thereon should be allowed.

23. Your orators further state that in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company, there is, under date of September 13, 1898, a charge against the Belt Company of Two Thousand and Five Hundred Dollars ($2,500.00) for moneys represented to be paid by the Trust Company in unlawful stock transactions in the stock of the St. Joseph & Grand Island Railroad Company purchased as a speculation on margins alleged to have been carried on the account of the Belt Company; and in the same account, under date of September 15, 1898, there appears a charge of Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.0) and on the 9th day of December, 1898, a charge of Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) for similar unlawful transactions in margins in stock of the St. Joseph & Grand Island Railroad Company alleged to have been for the account of the Belt Company; that said transactions were unlawful and were beyond the corporate power of either the Trust Company or the Belt Company and it is inequitable and unfair that the said transactions and the loss resulting therefrom in the sum of Five Thousand Nine Hundred Eighty-nine and 50-100 Dolars ($5,989.50) should be charged against the Belt Company and said entries therefor are incorrect and should be expunged from the alleged account, and credit allowed for interest thereon.

24. Your orators further show that, in addition to the stock of the Belt Company taken and appropriated by the Trust Company as above set forth, the Trust Company did on or about September, 1890, take, appropriate and convert to its own use Four Hundred and Ninety-nine Thousand Dollars ($499,000) par value of the capital stock of the Belt Company, of the actual value at that time of One Hundred and Sixty-six Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-three and thirty-three one-hundredths Dollars ($166,333.33) for which the Trust Company has failed and refused to account upon its pretended statement or otherwise; and your orators are entitled to be credited upon the said pretended statement with the value of said stock as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the date when the same was so appropriated.

25. Your orators further show that on or about the —, 1902, the Trust Company took, appropriated and converted to its own use 2,455 shares of the capital stock of the Union Company of the par value of Two Hundred Forty-five Thousand Five 304 Hundred Dollars ($245,500.00) and of the actual value of Forty-nine Thousand One Hundred Dollars ($49,100.00), for which the Trust Company has failed, neglected and refused to account on its pretended statement and your orators are therefore entitled to credit on said statement for said sum of Forty-nine Thousand One Hundred Dollars ($49,100.00) with interest thereon from said date.

26. Your orators further show that the Trust Company caused to be constructed the railroad of the Air Line and used for that purpose a corporation previously created by it called the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, as set forth in paragraph twelve herein; that the Trust Company caused the Air Line to enter into a contract with the said Construction Company for the construction and completion of the railroad of the Air Line; under the terms of said contract the Construction Company was to receive Three Hundred Thousand Dollars par value of the stock and Three Hundred Thousand Dollars par value of the first mortgage bonds of the Air Line. The Construction Company entered upon the construction of said railroad, but before the same was fully completed the Trust Company caused the Air Line and the said Construction Company to go through the form of an agreement by the terms of which the Air Line was to accept the then partially completed railroad as and for a full compliance with said contract and was to turn over to the Construction Company the securities provided in said contract to be turned over upon its final completion as aforesaid, and thereupon the said railroad was turned over to the Air Line and the said securities above mentioned, which had at all times remained in the custody of the Trust Company, were by the Trust Company appropriated to its own use; that the actual cost to the Trust Company of the construction of said Air Line was the sum of One Hundred Seventy Thousand Seven Hundred Forty-seven and twenty-nine-one-hundredths Dollars ($170,747.29), and the Trust Company realized from said transaction a profit of One Hundred Twenty-nine Thousand Two Hundred Fifty-two and seventy-one-one-hundredths Dollars ($129,252.71); that, by reason of the relation of the parties as hereinbefore more specifically set out, it is unjust and inequitable that the Trust Company should retain said profits or any of them, but it should be required to account to the Belt Company therefor and the same should be allowed as a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, together with interest thereon.

27. Your orators further show that in connection with the contract between the Belt Company and the Connecting Company aforesaid, and as a part of the obligation assumed by the Belt Company to procure the right of way for the railroad of the Connecting Company, the Belt Company was caused by the Trust Company to purchase and acquire certain lands along the line of said railroad in addition to the right of way and take the title thereto in a corporation which the Trust Company caused to be organized under the laws of the State of Missouri called the Northern Townsite Company, hereinafter referred to as the Townsite Company, one of the defendants herein, which corporation was at all times officered by the officers and employes of the Trust Company and at all times dominated and controlled by the Trust Company.

a. The Trust Company caused the Belt Company to advance to the Townsite Company and also to advance in the purchase of lands which were conveyed to the Townsite Company a large sum of money, to-wit, the sum of $46,463.75; that all the lands now held by the Townsite Company were purchased with money so caused to be furnished by the Belt Company and the greater portion of said lands still stand in the name of the Townsite Company; but certain lands heretofore standing in the name of the Townsite Company have been sold and the proceeds thereof are now held by your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Townsite Company heretofore appointed by this court. That the Trust Company furnished to the Townsite Company the sum of $6,288.57 and no more. Your orators show, therefore, that by reason of the premises they are entitled to have the properties now standing in the name of the Townsite Company conveyed to them as and for the property rightfully belonging to the Belt Company and also to have the said moneys arising from the sale of said lands and also from the rentals thereof, transferred to them in like manner, together with any other assets of the Townsite Company arising or growing out of the moneys so furnished by the Belt Company as aforesaid; or at the option of your orators they are entitled to credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company with the amount of moneys so furnished by the Belt Company as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the dates when said moneys were so furnished.

(b) The Trust Company in connection with the affairs of the Townsite Company charged and collected a commission of 10 per cent on moneys handled or land sold for it and these charges made between July, 1896, and 1901, amounting to Ten Hundred and Eighty-five Dollars ($1,085.00) are unlawful and improper charges by reason of the relations of the companies to each other and should be eliminated from the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

306 28. Your orators further show that in the pretended statement submitted by the Trust Company under date of April 20th, 1891, there is a charge against the Belt Company in the sum of Three Thousand Eight Hundred Thirty-five and 50-100 Dollars ($3,835.50) and afterwards under date of November 19, 1891, a credit against the same charge of One Thousand Seven Hundred Eighty-one Dollars ($1,781.00), leaving a net charge against the Belt Company of Two Thousand and Fifty-four and 50-100 Dollars ($2,054.50), purporting to be charged for rent of engines Numbers 51 and 52 from January 20, 1891, to Oct. 31, 1891, 284 days, at $7.00, $1,988.00; also rental of engine No. 51, October 31st to November 19th, 19 days, at $3.50, $66.50; total $2,054.50. This charge of $2,054.50 should be eliminated from the pretended statement and credit allowed thereon as of date November 19, 1891, for the following reasons. In January, 1891, the Belt Company had a large credit balance with the Trust Company in excess of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000), upon which it was receiving no interest from the Trust Company and such credit balance extended for many months thereafter. In January, 1891, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to purchase two engines, being locomotives Nos. 51 and 52, and instead of permitting the Belt Company to pay for the same as it should have done, the Trust Company gave to the vendors of the locomotives its own note and charged the interest on said note to the Belt Company, and afterwards, in November of the same year, the Trust Company caused entries to be made so as to show that it had purchased said engines in order that it might sell the same to the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company and the Consolidated Company, and thereupon unlawfully and oppressively charged to the Belt Company said sum of $2,054.50, pretending that the same was rental upon said engine at the rate of $3.50 each per day; that said charge of rental covers the period during which the engines were, as shown by the books of the Trust Company and also the books of the Belt Company, the property of the Belt Company. Your orators, therefore, claim that said charge should be eliminated from the pretended statement and that credit with interest should be allowed the Belt Company for said amount from the date when said charge was made.

29. Your orators further show that on or about July 1, 1898, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to lease from the Second Street Improvement Company parts of lots 12, 13, 14 and 15 in block 10, King & Bouton's Re-survey, in Kansas City, Missouri, comprising a piece of land 25 by 75.4 feet, the rental named in said lease being at the rate of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) per month, and the Second Street Improvement Company, 307 by the terms of said lease, reserved the privilege of cancelling the same upon thirty days' written notice; on the same day the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to lease all of said land to Wells, Fargo Express Company for Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per month, the Belt Company reserving the right to cancel said lease upon thirty days' written notice, provided, however, that if such notice should be given within two years from the date of the lease the Belt Company should pay to the Express Company the sum of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00). Your orators further show that said land was not necessary for a right of way or for the operation of the Belt Company but the Trust Company caused it to be leased to the Belt Company and by the latter sub-leased to the Express Company for the purpose of aiding the Second Street Improvement Company to the extent of Seventy-five Dollars ($75.00) per month, the Improvement Company being at that time one of the auxiliary companies of the Trust Company and dominated and controlled by it and officered by the officers and employees of the Trust Company.

Your orators further show that the act of the Trust Company in causing the said leases to be made, was wrongful and oppressive and imposed an unnecessary charge of $75.00 per month on the Belt Company; that between the dates of July, 1898, and December, 1899, the Belt Company was caused to pay to the said Improvement Company the sum of Eighteen Hundred Dollars ($1,800.00), and during the same period it collected from the Express Company under said lease the sum of Four Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($450.00), leaving a net expenditure as a result of the making of said lease in the sum of Thirteen Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($1,350.00), for which, with interest thereon from the date of the payments made, your orators are entitled to credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

In consideration whereof and for as much as your orators are remediless in the premises except in a court of equity, your orators therefore pray the aid of this court;

(a) That an accounting be taken of the various transactions and dealings between the Trust Company and the Belt Company; or by the Trust Company for the use and benefit of and as trustee and agent for the Belt Company and that the Trust Company be required to pay the balance found to be due by it, if any, upon such accounting; that in taking such accounting all claims and demands alleged to be held by the Trust Company against the Belt Company in Kansas and Missouri, where the Trust Company used the Belt Company simply as an instrumentality and agency for its own use and 308 benefit, be charged against the Trust Company and it be held liable for all losses incurred or [claimbed] to have been incurred by the Belt Company about the same.

(b) That the said notes hereinabove described may be found and decreed by this court to have been executed in the fraudul-nt manner and for the fraudulent purposes above set forth and without consideration; and that said notes may be by this court directed to be surrendered up and canceled, and that each an- all of the stocks, bonds and other securities, including the assigned account above mentioned, fradulently delivered to the Trust Company by its officers and employes in the manner hereinabove set forth, ordered by this court surrendered and delivered up or reassigned to the Belt Company.

(c) That each and all of the property purchased with the money of the Belt Company and belonging in equity to it, the legal title to which is held in the name of any of the companies hereinbefore set forth, may be required by the decree of this honorable court to be conveyed to the Belt Company, or to its receivers for it.

And your orators pray for a continuance of the writ of injunction herein against the Guardian Trust Company, its agents, servants and employes, restraining and enjoining them and each of them from selling, transferring or in any wise disposing of the said notes above mentioned and so executed by the Belt Company to the Trust Company; and from selling, transferring or in any wise disposing of the said bonds and stocks and other property hereinabove described, delivered to said Trust Company as collateral security for said notes.

And it may please your honors to grant unto your orators the subpœna of the United States of America issuing out of and under the seal of this honorable court directed to the Guardian Trust Company, the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, the Fairmount Amusement Company, the Central Improvement Company and Thomas T. Crittenden, its receiver, the Northern Townsite Company, and the Cambria Steel Company, the defendants herein respectively therein and thereby commanding them on a day certain therein to be named and under a certain penalty to be and appear before this honorable court then and there to answer (but not under oath, an answer under oath being hereby expressly waived), all and singular the premises, and to stand and perform and abide by such orders, directions or decrees as may be made in the premises, 309 and as shall seem meet and agreeable to equity and good conscience.

And your orators will ever pray.

THE KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY, UNION Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, Defendants; The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, Intervenor.

312 Intervening Petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

To the Judges of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri:

The Intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, respectfully shows:

1. The intervenor is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri as a railway corporation, having been duly incorporated according to law in March, 1900.

2. That the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railway Company, one of the defendants herein, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri and being about to construct and equip a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, did, on or about May 1, 1890, execute and deliver its deed of trust to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein) as trustee, in which said mortgage or deed of trust it is recited that the said mortgage or deed of trust shall be a first mortgage and paramount lien upon said railroad and upon all the property and rights of property of the railroad company of every name, nature and description then held or that might be thereafter acquired including all the privileges and franchises thereto appertaining; that in and by said mortgage or deed of trust there was conveyed to said trustee to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said railroad company in the principal sum of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00) all and singular and double track standard gauge railroad of the company (meaning thereby the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company) constructed and to be constructed from a point at the intersection of Second and Broadway streets in Kansas City in Jackson County, Missouri; thence in an easterly direction on and along said Second street to its point of intersection with Harrison street in said city; thence in a northeasterly direction to a point near Randolph avenue in said city; thence east for a distance of about one and one-half miles; thence in a southeasterly and southerly direction to the southern limits of said city; thence in a general southwesterly direction to a point at or near the mouth of Brush Creek in said county of Jackson, being about twelve (12) miles of double track railroad, about ten (10) miles of which are within the corporate limits of Kansas City; also all the lands, tenements, easements and hereditaments acquired or appropriated or which shall be thereafter acquired or appropriated for the 313 purpose of a right-of-way for said railroad or for its tracks or switches; also all railroad tracks, railways and rights-of-way, depot grounds, station grounds and other grounds, bridges, viaducts, culverts and other structures, depots, station houses, engine houses, car houses, fuel houses, warehouses, machine shop and other shops, water tanks, turntables, superstructures, erections, fixtures, rolling stock, furniture, fuels, tools, implements, machinery and appliances and other facilities for maintaining and operating said railroad, as well such as are then owned or held by the company as also such as the company might thereafter construct or acquire for use in connection with its said railroad; also all the terminals, terminal rights, privileges, contracts, leases, connections and appliances which the company then owned and held and which it might thereafter own and hold for use in connection with its said railroad; also all of certain described lots, tracts and parcels of land situated in Kansas City in the County of Jackson, State of Missouri, more specifically described in said mortgage or deed of trust; also all and singular the rents, tolls, income, issues and profits of the said railroad, premises and property; and also all the estate, right, title and interest, legal and equitable and present and future of the company in and to the same and every part thereof; and also all the corporate and other rights, privileges, liberties and franchises of the company connected with or pertaining to the said railroad or the construction, acquisition, maintenance or use thereof as well those thereafter to be acquired as those then held.

That default was made in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust and, on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said mortgage or deed of trust in the Circuit Court of the United States for Western Division of the Western District of Missouri; that the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, was a party to said proceedings.

Your intervenor further states that the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company, hereinafter referred to as the Consolidated Company, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, and being engaged in having its line of railway constructed, completed and equipped in Jackson County, Missouri, did for said purposes, on or about February 1, 1892, make, execute and deliver its deed of trust or mortgage to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein) and the Provident Life & Trust Company of Philadelphia as

erty and rights of property of the Railroad Company of every name, nature and description then held or that might thereafter be acquired, including all the privileges and franchises thereto appertaining; that in and by said mortgage or deed of trust there was conveyed to said trustee, to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said Railroad Company in the principal sum of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($750,000.00), and bearing interest at the rate of five per cent (5 per cent) per annum, all and singular the standard guage railroad of the company, constructed and to be constructed from a point on the line of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad, at or near the intersection of Grand avenue and Second street in Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri; thence in a general westerly direction to a point on the state line between the State of Missouri and the State of Kansas, near the South bank of the Missouri river, being about two miles of standard guage railroad, and lying wholly within the said County of Jackson, and State of Missouri, and wholly within the corporate limits of Kansas City; also all the lands, tenements, easements and hereditaments acquired or appropriated, for the purpose of a right of way for said railroad or for its side tracks or switches; also all railroad tracks, railways, ways and rights of way, depot grounds, station grounds and other grounds, bridges, viaducts, culverts and other structures, depots, station houses, engines houses, car houses, fuel houses, warehouses, machine shops and other shops, water tanks, turntables, superstructures, erections, fixtures, rolling stock, furniture, fuel, tools, implements, machinery and appliances and other facilities for maintaining and operating said railroad, as well as such as were then owned or held by the company, as also such as the company may thereafter construct or acquire and own for use in connection with its said railroad; also all the terminals, terminal rights, privileges, contracts, leases, connections and appliances which the company then owned and held, and which it may thereafter own and hold for use in connection with its said railroad;

Also all and singular the rents, tolls, income, issues and profits of the said railroad, premises and property; also all the estate, right, title and interest, legal and equitable of the then present and future of the company in and to the same and every part thereof; and also all the corporate and other rights, privileges, liberties and franchises of the company connected with or pertaining to 315 the said railroad or the construction, acquisition, maintenance or use thereof, as well those thereafter to be acquired as those then held.

Your intervenors further show that afterwards, to-wit, on or about the 25th day of July, 1902, said Consolidated Company entered into articles of consolidation as authorized by and in accordance with the provisions of the statutes of the State of Missouri in such case made and provided; that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, a railroad corporation then and there duly organized and exi-ting under the laws of the State of Missouri, whose line of railroad connected with and formed a continuation of that of the Consolidated Company thereby forming a continuous line of railroad running in the same general direction; that thereby there was formed and organized The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company hereafter referred to as the Belt Company and being one of the defendants herein.

That default was made in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust given by the Consolidated Company, and, on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said mortgage or deed of trust in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri; that the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, was a party to said proceedings.

The Intervenor further states that the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, one of the defendants herein, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri and being about to construct and equip a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, did, on or about March 1, 1892, execute and deliver its deed of trust to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein), as trustee, in which said mortgage or deed of trust it is recited that the said mortgage or deed of trust shall be a first mortgage and paramount lien upon the railroad of said company and upon all its property and rights of property of every name, nature, and description then held or that might thereafter be acquired, including all the privileges and franchises thereto appertaining; that in and by said mortgage or deed of trust there was conveyed to said trustee to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds, of said railroad company in the principal sum of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000.00), all and singular the standard gauge railroad of the company (meaning the Kansas City & Independence Air Line), 316 and to be constructed from a point on the line of the Kansas City Suburban Belt railroad at or near the southeast corner of Section Twenty-five (25), Township Fifty (50), Range Thirty-three (33) West, in Jackson, Missouri; thence in a general easterly direction to the city of Independence in said county of Jackson, in the State of Missouri, being about six (6) miles of standard gauge railroad and lying wholly within the said County of Jackson and State of Missouri; also all the lands, tenements, easements and hereditaments acquired or appropriated, for the purpose of a right-of-way for said railroad or for its side tracks or switches; also all railroad tracks, railways, ways and rights-of-way, depot grounds, station grounds and other grounds, bridges, viaducts, culverts and other structures, depots, station houses, engine houses, car houses, fuel houses, warehouses, machine shops and other shops, water tanks, turn tables, superstructures, erections, fixtures, rolling stock, furniture, fuel, tools, implements, machinery and appliances and other facilities for maintaining and operating said railroad, as well such as the company then owned or held as also such as the company thereafter may construct or acquire and own for use in connection with its said railroad; also all the terminals, terminal rights, privileges, contracts, leases, connections and appliances which the company then owned and held and which it might thereafter own and hold for use in connection with its said railroad; also all and singular the rents, tolls, income, issues and profits of the said railroad, premises and property; and also all the estate, right, title and interest, legal and equitable and present and future of the company in and to the same and every part thereof; and also all the corporate and other rights, privileges, liberties said railroad or the construction, acquisition, maintenance or use thereof as well those thereafter to be acquired as those then held; that default was made in the payments required by said mortgage or deed of trust and on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of the said mortgage or deed of trust in the Circuit Court of the United States within and for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri; that the defendant Guardian Trust Company was a party to said proceedings.

That such proceedings were had in the foreclosure suits above mentioned that the said causes were consolidated, and upon the 6th day of November, 1901, there was entered by said court a final decree of foreclosure and sale adjudging and decreeing that default had been made in the payment of the principal and interest upon the bonds secured by the mirtgages aforesaid and that the railroads, properties and franchises embraced in each of said mortgages 317 should be sold as in and by the said decree provided, reference being hereby made thereto and to the record in said causes; that pursuant to said decree a commissioner was appointed to make said sale and the said commissioner did on December 31, 1901, at the place in the said decree specified duly sell at public auction to the intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, it being the highest and best bidded at said sales, all and singular the railroads, property and franchises in said decree mentioned and directed to be sold and in said motrgages described as heretofore set forth, due notice of the time and place of said sales having been published pursuant to said decree, and the said decree was complied with in all things relating to said sales; that said commissioner did duly make and file his report of said sales on December 31, 1901, in the above entitled causes and court, which said report and sales were, after notice given, duly confirmed and made absolute, and the said commissioner did thereafter as directed by said court and on or about January 4, 1902, duly convey by commissioner's deed all and singular the railroads, franchises and property of every kind and description theretofore belonging to the said railroad companies and set forth and described in said mortgages including the property held by the said companies respectively at the date of said mortgages and also the property thereafter acquired by them and each of them to your intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which is now the lawful owner thereof.

3. Your intervenor further shows that the Union Terminal Railroad Company, one of the defendants herein, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Kansas, and being about to construct and equip a line of railroad in Wyandotte County, in the State of Kansas, did, on or about February

1, 1893, execute and deliver its deed of trust to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein) and the Provident Life & Trust Company, of Philadelphia, as trustees, in which said mortgage or deed of trust it was recited that said mortgage or deed of trust should be a lien upon the railroad of said company and upon all the property and rights of property of the said company of every name, nature and description then held or that might thereafter be acquired including all the privileges and franchises thereto appertaining; that in and by said mortgage or deed or trust there was conveyed to the said trustees all and singular the standard gauge railroad of the said Union Terminal Company constructed and to be constructed from a point in the city of 318 Argentine in the County of Wyandotte in the State of Kansas, to a point on the north side of the Kansas river opposite the said city of Argentine; thence in a northwesterly direction by the most convenient and practical route, to a point at or near the Missouri river; thence along and down the valley of the Missouri and up the valley of the Kansas river to the place of beginning, so as to substantially encircle the city of Kansas City, Kansas, in said County of Wyandotte; also such branch or branches and spur or spurs as may be necessary to enable it to connect with the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company's railway at the state line between Missouri and Kansas where the said railway intersects said state line on or near the south bank of the Missouri river; the main line of the railway of the Union Terminal Railroad Company being about twenty-two miles in length and lying wholly within the said county of Wyandotte and State of Kansas; also all the lands, tenements, easements and hereditaments acquired or appropriated, for the purpose of a right-of-way for said railroad or for its side tracks or switches; also all railroad tracks, railways, ways and rights-of-way, depot grounds, station grounds and other grounds, bridges, viaducts, culverts, and other structures, depots, station houses, engine houses, car houses, fuel houses, warehouses, machine shops and other shops, water tanks, ties, rails, furniture, fuel, tools, implements, machinery, supplies and appliances, and other facilities for maintaining and operating said railroad as well such as were then owned or held by the company as also such as the company might thereafter construct or acquire and own for use in connection with its said railroad, and also the terminal, terminal rights, privileges, contracts, leases and connections and appliances which the company then owned and held and which it should thereafter own and hold for use in connection with its said railroad; also all and singular the rents, tolls, income, issues and profits of the said railroad, premises and property; and also all the estate, legal and equitable and present and future of the company in and to the same and every part thereof; and also all the corporate and other rights, privileges, liberties and franchises of the company connected with or pertaining to the said railroad or the construction, acquisition, maintenance or use thereof, as well those thereafter to be acquired as those then held; that default was made in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust and on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said mortgage and deed of trust in the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Kansas, First Division; the defendant Guardian Trust Company was a party so said proceedings; that such proceedings were had in said foreclosure suit that upon the 6th day of November, 1901, there was entered by the said court a decree of foreclosure and sale, 319 adjudging and decreeing that default had been made in the payment of the principal and interest upon the bonds secured by the mortgage aforesaid and that the railroad properties and franchises embraced in said mortgage should be sold as in and by the said decree provided, reference being hereby made thereto and to the record in said cause; that pursuant to said decree a commissioner was appointed by the court to make said sale, and the said commissioner did, on December 31, 1901, at the place in the said decree specified, duly sell at public auction to the intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, it being the highest and best bidder at such sale, all and singular the railroad property and franchises in said decree mentioned and directed to be sold, including all property held by the said railroad company at the time of the execution of said mortgage, as well as property thereafter acquired and held as provided in said mortgage or deed of trust, due notice of the time and place of said sale having been published pursuant to said decree, and the said decree was complied with in all things relating to said sale; that said commissioner did duly make and file his report of said sale on December 31, 1901, in the above entitled cause and court, which said report and sale were, after notice given, duly confirmed and made absolute; and the said commissioner did thereupon and on the 4th day of January, 1902, as directed by said court, duly convey by commissioner's deed all and singular the railroad, franchises and property of every kind and description theretofore belonging to said company at the time of the execution of said mortgage or deed of trust, and also all property therein described thereafter acquired by said company to your intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which is now the lawful owner thereof.

4. Your intervenor further states that the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, being a railroad corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, and being engaged in the construction of a line of railroad from a point near Kansas City, Missouri, southwardly to the Gulf of Mexico, did, on or about April 1, 1893, execute and deliver its deed of trust to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company (now by change of name called the Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants herein), and the State Trust Company of the City of New York, as trustees, in and by which said mortgage or deed of trust there is conveyed to the trustees therein named all and singular the line of railroad constructed or thereafter constructed or acquired from Kansas City in the State of Missouri, southerly through the counties of Jackson, Cass, Bates and Vernon, and the northwest corner of

320 of Barton County in said State of Missouri, and so on to the City of Mena in the State of Arkansas; and all and singular the railroad, ways and rights-of-way, road beds, depot grounds and other lands and all tracks, bridges, viaducts, culverts, fences, depots, stations, station houses, engine houses, car houses, freight houses, wood houses, locomotive shops and other shops and all other structures and buildings whatsoever then held or owned or which should be thereafter in any wise acquired, held or owned by the said railroad company for use in the construction, maintenance or operation of its line of railroad or any extension, continuation, branch railroad or lines or railroad which it might thereafter purchase, construct or acquire in connection with its main line of railroad; also all locomotives, tenders and passenger, baggage, freight, cattle and other cars, and all other rolling stock and equipment whatsoever, and all machinery, tools and implements and all fuel, supplies and materials then or thereafter held, owned or acquired by said railroad company for constructing, maintaining, operating and repairing its said railroad or any extension or branch thereof; also all rights, privileges, powers, immunities and exemptions and all corporate and other franchises then owned, held and enjoyed by the said railroad company with respect to said main line or any part thereof or which should be thereafter owned, acquired, held or enjoyed by or conferred upon said railroad company connected with or relating to the said main line of railroad, its extensions, continuations and branches; also all leases, traffic contracts and arrangements of every kind and character whatsoever which said railroad company had or might thereafter enter into with any other railroad company forming part of the said line; also all and singular any tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances to said railroad or lines of railroad and each and every part thereof acquired and to be acquired, constructed and to be constructed then or thereafter belonging or in any wise appertaining; and all the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders, estate, right, title, interest, property, possession, claim and demand whatsoever, as well in law as in equity which the said railroad company then had or was entitled to or which the said railroad company, its successors or assigns should thereafter acquire or become entitled to concerning the said railroad or any extension, continuation or branch thereof or their rights, franchises and each and every part and parcel thereof with the appurtenances. Said mortgage or deed of trust was executed and delivered to said trustees to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said railroad company in the principal sum of twenty-three million dollars ($23,000,000.00); that default was made and in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust and on April 28, 1899, proceedings were instituted in the Circuit 321 Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri for the foreclosure of said mortgage or deed of trust; the defendant Guardian Trust Company was a party to said proceedings; that such proceedings were had in said action that on the 5th day of February, 1900, there was entered by said court a decree of foreclosure and sale adjudging and decreeing that default had been made in the payments of the principal and interest upon the bonds secured by the mortgage or deed of trust aforesaid, and that the railroads, properties and franchises embraced in said mortgage should be sold as in and by the said decree provided, reference being hereby made thereto and the record in said cause; that pursuant to said decree a special master was appointed to make said sale and the said special master did, on March 19, 1900, at the place in said decree specified duly sell to a committee acting for your intervenor, the said committee being the highest and best bidder at said sale, all and singular the railroads, property and franchises in said decree mentioned, including the properties owned and acquired at the time of the execution of said mortgage or deed of trust as well as those thereafter acquired for use in connection with its said railroad, and directed to be sold, due notice of the time and place of said sale having been published pursuant to said decree and sale, and said decree was complied with in all things relating to said sale; that your intervenor by leave and order of court became the substitute bidder in the place of said committee; that said special master did duly make and file his report of said sale on March 20, 1900, in the above entitled cause, which said report and sale were, after notice given, duly confirmed and made absolute, and the said special master did thereupon, as directed by said court, duly convey by master's deed all and singular the railroad, franchises and property of every kind and description belonging to the said railroad company, including not only the properties described in said mortgage or deed of trust as then owned and held by the said railroad company but also the properties thereafter acquired for use in connection with the operation of said railroad, to your intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which is now the lawful owner thereof.

The mortgages or deeds of trust mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs are all duly and properly acknowledged and duly and properly recorded in the various counties in which the properties mentioned therein were respectively located at or about the dates of said mortgages or deeds of trust respectively.

5. The intervenor further shows that, about the year 1887, the defendant Guardian Trust Company (hereinafter called the Trust Company) conceived and entered upon the plan and pur-
322 pose to cause to be constructed a number of railroads in and about Kansas City in the State of Missouri, and Kansas City in the state of Kansas, and leading from or to said city; it was a part of the said plan and purpose of the Trust Company to cause said railroads to be built, constructed and operated by various corporations to be organized by the Trust Company and to elect certain of the officers, agents and representatives of the said Trust Company as the officers and directors of the said several railroad companies so as at all times to absolutely dominate and control the corporate action of the said railroad companies through their common directors and officers; it was a further part of the plans and purposes of the Trust Company to utilize and employ some one or more of the said railroad companies to act for and on behalf of the Trust Company in building and operating railroads and in the issue of bonds and stocks so as to gather unto the Trust Company all the profits and other advantages accruing in the premises to foist upon the said railroad companies so utilized any and all losses, burdens or other liabilities which might result in the course of their operation; in carrying out its said plans and purposes the Trust Company assumed the position and duty of trustee and agent in constructing and operating said railroad and in managing and disposing of the bonds, stocks, funds and other assets of the said railroad companies and is held to the liability of trustee or agent for the use and benefit of the parties who might and did become concerned or interested therein; and that consequently the relation of the Trust Company to each and all of the said railroad companies and especially those hereafter named so far as the said Trust Company might employ the same, or either of them, as agents and instrumentalities to further its own plans and purposes, was that of a principal bound and charged with the duty to indemnify and protect such railroad company so employed and utilized in any particular transaction against any and all losses, burdens and liability arising in the premises; moreover the Trust Company was either the sole trustee in the mortgages above mentioned, or when joined as co-trustee with the Provident Life and Trust Company or the State Trust Company was the active trustee in the charge and management of the trust created by the several mortgages or deed of trust above described, and as such trustee owed an active duty at all times, during the continuance of such relation, to care for and in every way protect the interests of the bondholders secured by said mortgages, as well as to care for and protect the interests of the mortgagors themselves; the Trust Company in pursuance of the plans and purposes so conceived and entered upon by it, did 323 acquire the control of the Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Suburban Company, in the year 1889, and caused it to issue the bonds secured by the mortgage aforesaid and to issue capital stock in a large amount and to cause said company to construct and thereafter to operate a railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, as described in the mortgage or deed of trust, of said company heretofore set forth; the Trust Company, in pursuance of the same plan, did in 1891, cause to be incorporated the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Consolidated Company), and did cause said Consolidated Company to issue bonds and a mortgage or deed of trust to secure the same, and to issue its capital stock in a large amount, and to construct a railroad in Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, connecting with the railroad of the Suburban Company, the two roads forming a continuous line of railroad from the state line between the states of Kansas and Missouri at a point in the eastern portion of Jackson County known as Belt Junction; that in December, 1891, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Kansas the Union Terminal Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Union Company) and did cause it to issue and execute the bonds and mortgage or deed of trust above referred to and issue capital stock in a large amount, and did further cause it to construct a railroad beginning at the state line between the states of Kansas and Missouri and extending southwesterly along the left bank of the Kaw, or Kansas river to a point at or near the town of Argentine, Wyandotte County, Kansas; in January, 1891, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, the Kansas City & Independence Air Line (hereinafter referred to as the Air Line), and did cause the Air Line to issue and execute the bonds and mortgage above referred to and issue stock in a large amount and to construct and operate a railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, extending from a point on the line of the Suburban Company known as Air Line Junction to the City of Independence in the State of Missouri. Shortly after the issue of the bonds and stocks of the Consolidated Company the Trust Company caused it to consolidate with the Suburban Company, forming a new company called the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company (hereinafter referred to as the Belt Company); that the Trust Company caused the Union Company to execute a lease of all its property, rights and franchises to the Belt Company, and thereunder the Belt Company operated the line of the Union Company and its own line and continued so to operate the same until the institution of the foreclosure proceeding above referred to; the Trust Company, by virtue of its ownership and 324 control of the capital stock of the Belt Company, Air Line and Union Company, did at all times, cause its officers and directors to be elected as the officers and directors of said lines, and did thereby dominate and control all the affairs and business of said lines and caused them, and each of them, to do and perform all such corporate acts and things as the Trust Company from time to time deemed to be beneficial to its own interests; that the Trust Company in the year 1893, caused to be incorporated the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Gulf Company, and caused it to issue and execute the bonds and mortgage or deed of trust above referred to and issue stock in a large amount. The Trust Company also caused the Gulf Company to construct and operate a railroad extending generally from a point near Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, to the Gulf of Mexico and did cause the Gulf Company to enter into contracts with the Belt Company for the use of the latter's terminals at Kansas City; the Trust Company also caused its officers and directors to be elected officers and directors of the Gulf Company and at all times by that means did dominate and control the affairs of the Gulf Company and did cause it to perform such corporate acts and things as the Trust Company deemed to be for its benefit and advantage; that by reason of such domination and control the Trust Company at all times had a complete and intimate knowledge of all the affairs and transactions of all the companies above referred to in all their details, including the transactions hereinafter specifically mentioned.

6. Your intervenor further shows that in the year 1895, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the

State of Missouri the Central Improvement Company (hereinafter called the Central Company), the directors and officers of which were at all times made up from the directors and officers of the Trust Company, and the Central Company was at all times in all of its transactions dominated and controlled by the Trust Company, the purposes of the incorporation of the said Central Company were to hold the legal title to real estate that might be needed and acquired for right-of-way or other purposes necessary for and in connection with the operation of the various railroad companies so dominated and controlled by the Trust Company, in some instances the purpose being that upon the purchase of property by one of the said railway companies the title should be taken in the name of the Central Company in order that it might be enabled to give back a mortgage or deed of trust to secure a portion of the purchase money, which said mortgage or deed of trust would be a first lien and not subject to the first mortgage or deed of trust 325 lien upon the property of the railway companies respectively.

In pursuance of this plan large amounts of money were furnished to the Central Company by the Belt Company, by the Air Line and by the Gulf Company for the purchase of right-of-way and terminal properties necessary for the use and operation of the said railways respectively; and purchases were accordingly made of properties for the use and operation of said companies, a list of which properties so purchased is hereto attached marked "Exhibit A"; this statement shows the price paid for each particular piece of property and for which particular railroad company the said property was acquired and by which company the purchase price was paid: that the titles to said property so acquired were, for convenience merely, placed in the name of the said Central Company; in some instances the money so furnished to pay for such properties was furnished directly by the Belt Company or other companies for whose benefit the purchase was made to the vendors and in other instances the money was furnished direct to the Central Company, which issued to the company so furnishing such funds its capital stock representing approximately the amount of money so furnished. That in this way there were issued by the Central Improvement Company fourteen hundred and seven (1,407) shares, of which eight hundred and seventeen shares (817) are now held by the Belt Company, three hundred and thirty-four (334) shares are now held by the Union Terminal Company, twenty-two (22) shares are now held by the Air Line and two hundred and thirty-four (234) shares are now held by the Gulf Company, such companies ha-ing furnished from time to time for the purchase of property for the use and benefit of such companies the following amounts:

Belt Line	$129,571.30
Gulf Company	23,673.89
	$169,349.60

that no money was ever received by the Central Company, except the money so furnished as aforesaid and it did not have at any time any assets or property except property so purchased as aforesaid: that the said fourteen hundred and seven (1,407) shares of stock were the only shares of stock ever lawfully issued by the Central Company; and by reason of the premises the said Central Company is, and was at all times, a mere trustee holding the legal title to the various properties, in trust, for the said railways, for whose use and benefit said lands were purchased as aforesaid; immediately upon the making of such purchases and the vesting of title in the Central Company the particular railroad company for which 326 such purchase was made became the equitable owner and entitled to a conveyance thereof; the said properties so purchased for the said railroad companies and to which the said railroad companies respectively were entitled to a conveyance were necessary for the use of such railroad company in connection with and in the operation of its railroad and came within the after acquired property clause of the mortgage placed upon said road, so that the equitable liens of said mortgages respectively attached to and became a charge upon the said properties in favor of their bondholders respectively. That sales of some of said properties have been made by the Central Company and by its receiver acting under order of this court and the proceeds thereof are now in the possession of said receiver. By the foreclosure proceedings above mentioned and decrees of sale had thereunder the intervenor acquired the equitable title to all of said properties so held by the Central Company, as aforesaid, and became and is now entitled to a conveyance of the same and to the proceeds of sales thereof now held by the said receiver, but the Trust Company denies the right of the intervenor to said property or to the stock of the Central Company, and pretends to hold the said stock of the Central Company as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, as hereinafter more specifically set forth.

7. Your intervenor further shows that prior to February 1, 1900, the Belt Company purchased and owned a large quantity of steel rails for use in the construction and repair of its railroad and in connection therewith; there were in the possession of the Belt Company on February 1, 1900, and prior thereto, approximately six hundred (600) tons, more or less, of said steel rails so owned by the Belt Company and approximately twenty tons of fastenings for use in connection therewith; by virtue of the after acquired property clause above referred to in the mortgage of the Belt Company, the said steel rails and fastenings became charged with a lien to secure the payment of the bonds so issued by the Belt Company, as aforesaid; upon the foreclosure of the said mortgage of the Belt Company and the sale had thereunder the equitable title to said rails passed to and vested in the intervenor, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and it became and is now the equitable owner thereof; the Trust Company claims to have acquired said steel rails and fastenings on or about February 1, 1900, as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it and the Trust Company denies the right and claim of your intervenor to said steel rails and fastenings, although it received the same with actual notice of the mortgage lien thereon; the value of said steel rails and fastenings was and is thirty-five dollars ($35.00)

327 per ton and the Trust Company should be required in equity to deliver said property to your intervenor, or if the said property has been sold by the Trust Company, then it should be required to account for and pay to your intervenor the proceeds or full value thereof.

8. Your intervenor further states that the railroad of the Union Company was a connecting railroad with the line of the Belt Company, the two railroads forming a continuous line of railroad and the Belt Company was, therefore, authorized by law to aid the Union Company in the construction of its road and to acquire the stock of the Union Company in the lawful execution of the corporate purposes of the Belt Company; prior to June 13, 1900, the Belt Company did acquire five thousand (5,000) shares of the capital stock of the Union Company and held said stock for the uses and purposes of its railroad as by law duly authorized to do; by virtue of the after acquired property clause in the mortgage executed by the Belt Company as above set forth, the lien of said mortgage in equity attached to said five thousand (5,000) shares of Union stock when so acquired by the Belt Company and inured to the benefit of the bondholders of the Belt Company as the Trust Company well knew. The Trust Company acquired possession of said five thousand (5,000) shares of Union Terminal stock so covered by said mortgage lien as aforesaid, and claims to hold the same as collateral security for an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, and denies the right of your intervenor to said stock or to the proceeds thereof. On or about June 14, 1900, the Trust Company claims to have sold said five thousand (5,000) shares of Union stock at and for the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) which sum was the fair value thereof at that time. By virtue of the said mortgage of the Belt Company and the foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder your intervenor became entitled in equity to said five thousand (5,000) shares of Union stock, or twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00), the value or proceeds thereof, together with interest thereon at six per cent per annum from said June 14th, 1900, which the Trust Company unlawfully withholds from the intervenor.

The Air Line owned and operated a railroad connecting with the railroad of the Belt Co., as hereinbefore stated, and the two formed a continuous line of railroad, and the Belt Company thereby, by virtue of the statutes of the State of Missouri, became entitled to aid the Air Line in the construction of its road and to purchase and hold the capital stock of the Air Line; prior to June 11, 1900, the Belt Co. had acquired and owned 4,944 shares of the capital stock of the Air Line; the Belt Co., also at the same time had acquired as aforesaid and held 14,997 shares of the Union stock in addition to the five thousand shares above mentioned;

328 that the said Union stock and the said Air Line stock were acquired by the Trust Company claiming to hold the same as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Co. to it, but the said stocks had been acquired by the Belt Company prior thereto and were covered by the after acquired property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company, as the Trust Company well knew, to secure the bonds of the Belt Company; and upon the foreclosure of said mortgage of the Belt Company and the sale thereunder to your intervenor the latter acquired the equitable title to said stock or to the value or proceeds thereof; the Trust Company claims that it did, on or about June 11, 1900, sell said 14,997 shares of Union stock and 4,994 shares of the Air Line stock at the sum or price of $9,996.65; and it holds the said stocks or the proceeds thereof and denies the right of your intervenor thereto; that your intervenor in equity is entitled to said stock or, if the same has been sold by the Trust Company, to have the Trust Company account to it for the value or the proceeds thereof together with interest thereon from June 11, 1900, at six per cent.

9. Your intervenor states that in the year 1896, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, called the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Connecting Company) for the purpose of constructing a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, in order to connect with the railroads at that point running eastwardly to Quincy, Illinois, and northwardly to Council Bluffs, Iowa. The Trust Company, after the incorporation of said railway company, caused it to execute its bonds, secured by mortgage or deed of trust, in a large amount and to issue its capital stock in a large amount, and thereupon caused the Connecting Company and the Belt Company to enter into a contract, by the terms of which the Belt Company undertook to acquire the right-of-way and to construct the railroad of the Connecting Company, and as a consideration thereof, the Connecting Company agreed to execute issue and deliver to the Belt Company the bonds and stocks of the Connecting Company, that the proposed line of the Connecting Company formed a direct connection with the line of the Belt Company and the two lines formed a continuous line of railroad; in pursuance of said contract the Belt Company began the construction of the railroad of the Connecting Company and the acquisition of its right-of-way, and received as a consideration for so doing, a large amount of the first mortgage bonds and of the capital stock of the Connecting Company and held and owned a large amount in value of said bonds and stocks, for use in connection with the operation of its railroad on and prior to 329 July 20, 1899; that at various dates the Trust Company took and converted to its own use eleven hundred and thirty (1,130) of the first mortgage bonds of the Connecting Company which at that time belonged to the Belt Company and were of the value of eight hundred forty-five thousand, four hundred and fifteen dollars ($845,415.00); that at the same time the Trust Company took and converted to its own use, sixteen (16) of the second mortgage bonds of the Connecting Co. which were at the time owned by the Belt Company, of the value of seven thousand, two hundred dollars ($7,200.00); that at the same time the Trust Company took and converted to its own use six thousand two hundred and fifty (6,250) shares of the capital stock of the Connecting Company, which were the property of the Belt Company, of the value of thirty-seven thousand five hundred dollars ($37,500.00). On or about July 20, 1899, the Trust Company took from the Belt Company four hundred and fourteen (414) first mortgage bonds of the Connecting Company and three thousand nine hundred and twenty (3,920) shares of the stock of the Connecting Company, which were at the time the property of the Belt Company, and claimed to hold the same as collateral security for an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it. All of said bonds and stocks came under the after acquired property clause of the mortgage or deed of trust executed by the Belt Company and were charged with an equitable lien to secure the bonds of the Belt Company, as the Trust Company at all times well knew. By the foreclosure proceedings and sale to your intervenor as above referred to the equitable title to said stocks and bonds or to the proceeds thereof, when they had been sold by the Trust Company, vested in your intervnor which is now in equity the owner thereof. On or about September 30, 1899, the Trust Company claims to have sold said 3,920 shares of Northern Connecting stock and to have received therefor the sum of Nineteen Thousand, Eight Hundred Eighty-five and 71-100 dollars ($19,885.71); the Trust Company denies the right of your intervenor to said bonds and stocks, or the value or proceeds thereof, but claims that it has since the acquisition thereof sold all of said first mortgage bonds, including those above referred to as collateral and to have received therefrom the proceeds thereof in the sum of Nine Hundred Ninety-five Thousand Four Hundred and Fifteen Dollars, ($995,415.00) and your Intervenor is entitled in equity and good conscience to have the proceeds of all of said stocks and bonds above mentioned, accounted for and paid to it.

10. Your intervenor further shows that in the month of —, 1896, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to enter 330 into a terminal contract with the Gulf Company, by the terms of which the Belt Company gave to the Gulf Company an entrance into Kansas City and certain valuable terminal rights and facilities; and the Gulf Company on its part undertook and agreed to pay to the Belt Company certain sums of money as rental for the rights and privileges granted to it in said contract; both parties entered upon the performance of said contract and continued so to do until April 1, 1899, when receivers for the Gulf Company were appointed by the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri. At the time of the appointment of said receivers there was due to the Belt Company from the Gulf Company under and by virtue of the terms of said terminal contract, a large sum claimed by the Trust Company to be in excess of One Hundred Thirty-three Thousand Dollars ($133,000.00). That said terminal contract, by virtue of the provisions of the after acquired property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company heretofore set forth became charged in equity with a mortgage lien to secure the bonds issued by said company, and the rents, issues and profits at that time due the Belt Company under said contract also became charged in equity with the mortgage lien of the Belt Company to secure said bonds; that by virtue of the said foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder to your intervenor the latter acquired all equitable right and title to said contract and to the rentals due thereon as the Trust Company at all times well knew. The Belt Company, on or about February 1, 1900, undertook to transfer and assign said account to the Trust Company as collateral security to secure an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it and the Trust Company claims to be the assignee of said account, and refuses to cancel or re-assign said account to your intervenor as in equity and good conscience it should be required to do.

11. Your intervenor further states that, in connection with the contract between the Belt Company and the connecting company aforesaid, and as a part of the obligation of the Belt Company under said contract to procure the right of way for the railroad of the connecting company, the Belt Company purchased and acquired certain lands along the line of said railroad in addition to the right of way and took the title thereto in a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri called the Northern Townsite Company (hereinafter referred to as the Townsite Company) which corporation was organized by the Trust Company and officered by the trust Company. In purchasing land for said right of way it became frequently necessary, in the economical handling of the matter, to purchase larger tracts out of which the right of way would be carved, and also to purchase lands
331 for townsites, and the title to the lands of this character that were purchased was taken in the name of the Townsite Company. All of the money used in purchasing said lands, amounting to the sum of Forty-six Thousand Four Hundred Sixty Three and 75-100 Dollars ($46,463.75) was furnished and provided by the Belt Company, except the sum of $46720.07, which was furnished and provided by the Trust Company. That the capital stock of the Townsite Company, to the extent of 439 shares, was by it issued to the Belt Company to represent the moneys contributed by it in the purchase of said lands; that the purchase of said lands was incidental to the construction of the railroad of the connecting line; and the title to said lands (except such as may be held to have been purchased with moneys furnished by the Trust Company) in equity belonged to the Belt Company and were covered by the after acquired property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company as aforesaid; that by virtue of the said foreclosure proceedings and the sale thereunder to your intervenor, the latter became vested with the title to said lands so owned in equity by the Belt Company and became entitled to the capital stock so issued by the Townsite Company to the Belt Company; that the Trust Company denies the right of your intervenor to said lands, or any part thereof, and to said capital stock, and claims to hold the said capital stock as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it. By virtue of the premises your intervenor is entitled in equity and good conscience to a decree requiring the Trust Company to turn over to your intervenor all of the said capital stock representing moneys advanced by the Belt Company and to the cancellation of any and all of the capital stock of said Townsite Company issued without consideration, or to a conveyance to the Belt Company of all the properties and assets of the Townsite Company upon repayment to the Trust Company by your intervenor of the said sum of Six Thousand Seven Hundred and Twenty-Eight Dollars and Seven Cents ($6720.07), so advanced by the Trust Company to the Townsite Company.

12. Your intervenor further shows that, as above stated, the Trust Company at all times fully controlled and dominated all the corporate acts and doings of the Belt Company; that the Trust Company at all times caused its own officers and directors to be the officers and directors of the Belt Company, and was in a position to require, and did require, the said officers and directors of the Belt Company to do and perform the will and behest of the Trust Company in each and every act and deed. The Trust Com-
332 pany, while possessed with this power of domination and control, did not exercise the same for the interest or benefit of the Belt Company or its stockholders or bondholders whose bonds were secured by mortgage on the property of the Belt Company; nor did the Trust Company in any degree or in any way carrry out the duties imposed upon it as trustee in said mortgage, but on the contrary the Trust Company at all times controlled the acts and doings of the Belt Company in the interest and for the benefit of the Trust Company and exercised its powers and duties as trustee in said mortgage in its own interest and in violation of its trust.

On April 1, 1899, the Gulf Company, being then insolvent, defaulted in the payment of a semi-annual installment of interest then due and on the same day all its railroads and properties were placed in the hands of receivers appointed by the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri; and on April 28, 1899, upon bill filed by the State Trust Company all the railroads and property of the Gulf Company were placed in the hands of receivers appointed by the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, the suit and proceedings in the state court being then dismissed. Prior to said default the Trust Company, whose officers and directors were also the officers and directors of the Gulf Company as well as of the Belt Company, knew that a default would occur and that receivers would be appointed; and the Trust Company also knew that if the Gulf Company became bankrupt or passed out of its possession and control the other auxiliary companies, to-wit, the Belt Company, the Air Line, the Union Terminal and the Consolidated Terminal, would soon likewise pass out of its control and domination; and the Trust Company, in violation of its duty as trustee in said mortgages and with a view of appropriating to itself whatever of value there was remaining in the possession of the said companies, contrived the plan of requiring said companies to turn over to it all of the personal property owned by said companies, of every nature and description, as and for security for alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it. In pursuance of this plan the Trust Company, on March 31, 1899, caused the Belt Company to turn over to it Ten Thousand Five Hundred (10,500) shares of the capital stock of the Union Company to secure an alleged indebtedness; and on July 20, 1899, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to turn over to it, as collateral security to secure said alleged indebtedness, four thousand nine hundred ninety-eight (4,998) additional shares of stock of the Union Terminal Company, four thousand nine hundred and ninety-three (4,993) shares of the stock of

333 twenty (1,120) shares of stock of the Central Improvement Company, four hundred and thirty-nine (439) shares of the stock of the Northern Townsite Company, four hundred and twenty-five (425) shares of the stock of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, twenty-five (25) shares of the stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company, thirteen thousand nine hundred and twenty (13,920) shares of the stock of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Company, sixty seven and nine-tenths (67.9) second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, and also the right of the Belt Company to receive eighteen hundred and fifteen (1,815) additional shares of the Stock of the Northern Connecting Railroad Company; also two hundred and seven and five tenths (207.5) of the second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company. On September 30, 1899, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to sell to it all of the stock of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting held by the Belt Company at the price of one and three-sevenths Dollars ($1 3-7) per share to apply upon the alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to the Trust Company. On February 5, 1900, a decree of foreclosure and sale was rendered in the foreclosure proceedings in the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri in the case of State Trust Company against the Gulf Company; the Trust Company knew some time prior to the rendition of said decree that said decree would be rendered and accordingly on February 1, 1900, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to pretend to hold a meeting of its directors and to specifically turn over all of the afore-mentioned stocks and bonds to the Trust Company to secure said alleged indebtedness, and also to assign and transfer to the Trust Company by bill of sale as collateral security six hundred (600) tons, more or less, of sixty pound (60-lb.) steel rails owned by the Belt Company and stored in its yards at East Kansas City; and to assign and transfer to the Trust Company an account owned by the Belt Company against the Gulf Company in the sum of One Hundred Thirty-Three Thousand and fifty-eight and 4-100 Dollars ($133,058.04) as collateral security for the said alleged indebtedness. This transaction completely stripped the Belt Company and the other companies of all portable personal property and there was nothing left which could be appropriated by the Trust Company under the guise of taking additional security.

Your intervenor further states that the said acts of the Trust Company in causing the Belt Company to turn over said stocks, bonds, property and account to the Trust Company were unlawful and void and were solely due to the unlawful domination and 334 control exercised by the Trust Company over the officers and directors of the Belt Company as aforesaid; that the matters and things so done and transacted were not known to or approved by any independent board of directors or to the persons in interest owning the stocks and bonds of the Belt Company.

Your intervenor further states that the Trust Company by reason of its control of the Belt Company had intimate and exact knowledge of all the affairs and accounts, assets and liabilities of the Belt Company; although it was trustee in the mortgage of the Belt Company, and thus bound to a high degree of fidelity to the interests of the Belt Company and its bondholders, yet it used its knowledge of the affairs of the Belt Company to its own advantage in endeavoring and undertaking to protect what it claimed its own indebtedness rather than the other indebtedness of the Belt Company, both floating indebtedness and also that secured by the mortgage aforesaid, all of which was contrary to equity and good conscience and in violation of its duties as trustee; the Trust Company by virtue of its position as trustee in said mortgage and its relation to the bondholders and to the mortgagor is estopped to assert that it took said security to secure its own alleged indebtedness, but is deemed and held in equity to have received said collateral security above specifically described as trustee under the said mortgage of the Belt Company Line for the benefit of the outstanding bonds secured thereby. The equities, if any there be, in favor of the Trust Company are inferior and subordinate to the superior equity of your intervenor to the collateral security above described by virtue of the mortgage of the Belt Company and the purchase at foreclosure sale thereunder by your intervenor.

13. Your intervenor further shows that the Union Terminal Railroad Company duly executed its mortgage or deed of trust dated February 1, 1893, to the defendant Guardian Trust Company and to the Provident Life & Trust Company of Philadelphia as trustees, to secure the bonds of the Union Company, in the sum of two million dollars ($2,000,000.00); at the time of the execution of said mortgage or deed of trust the Union Company had not constructed its railroad and was only the owner of a franchise for the construction and operation of a railroad along the left bank of the Kaw River from a point at or near Argentine, Kansas, to a point in Kansas City on the state line between the states of Kansas and Missouri; and the purpose of the issue of the bonds mentioned in the said mortgage or deed of trust was to provide funds with which to construct the railroad of said company as was expressly provided in said mortgage or deed of trust, and at all times known to the Trust 335 Company. After the execution of said mortgage or deed of trust the bonds of the Union Company in the sum of two million dollars ($2,000,000.00) were duly issued and placed in the custody of the Trust Company and it then became the duty of the Trust Company under the express terms of said mortgage, as well as by law, to see that as the bonds of the Union Company were sold the proceeds thereof used in the construction, completion and equipment of the railroad of the Union Company, so that as bonds should be sold the amount of value of the proceeds thereof should be added to the property of the Union Company in approximately an equal amount so that as the bonded indebtedness of the company should increase, the property of the company covered by said mortgage as security for said indebtedness should also increase at the same rate, and in that manner the outstanding bonded indebtedness of the company should be at all times amply secured but the trust company, unmindful of its duties as aforesaid, did from time to time sell the said bonds of the Union Company to innocent purchasers for value and did not unlawfully and improperly divert the proceeds of said sales from the purposes for which they were intended as aforesaid, and did unlawfully and improperly use the said proceeds to diminish from time to time the alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, which in no wise increased or augmented the value of the property of the Union Company covered by said mortgage. Of the said issue of two million dollars ($2,000,000.00) par value of bonds of the Union Company the Trust Company thus diverted thirteen hundred and fifty (1350) bonds of the par value of one million three hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($1,350,000.00) and of the actual value of ($1,215,000.00) from the uses and purposes for which the bonds were issued, as the Trust Company at all times well knew and wrongfully and unlawfully neglected and refused to use the proceeds thereof in adding to the value of the physical property of the railroad company; and the Trust Company did wrongfully, in breach of its duty as trustee, from time to time sell and put afloat the said bonds of the Union Company in said amount after the completion and equipment of the Union Company and when there was no occasion or necessity for a sale or disposition of said bonds for the construction, completion or equipment of the said railroad; that the conduct of the Trust Company in this behalf was fraudulent as against the said bondholders of the Union Company, the proceeds of whose bonds were not used by the Trust Company to increase or augment the property covered by the said mortgage, and constituted a breach of trust on the part of the Trust Company.

Your intervenor is the owner of all the said outstanding 336 bonds of the Union Company by purchase from bona fide holders for value thereof; that the property and franchise of the Union Company were sold at foreclosure sale, as hereinbefore stated, at the price of $1,500,000, which was in excess of the full value thereof; after crediting the proceeds of said sale upon the said bonds so held by your intervenor there remained and still remains due to your intervenor the sum of seven hundred seventy-three thousand two hundred forty-six dollars ($773,246.00) and interest thereon from January 1, 1902, at 5 per cent; that if the Trust Company had not wrongfully diverted the proceeds of said bonds from the use and purposes for which they were intended as above set forth the said mortgaged property would have been worth and would have sold for sufficient to have paid said bonds in full. Your intervenor was not advised of the foregoing acts of the Trust Company in diverting the proceeds of said bonds, until the facts in relation thereto were developed recently in the taking of testimony in support of the ancillary bill in this cause.

Wherefore your intervenor prays judgment against the Trust Company for the amount of said deficiency and interest.

14. Your intervenor further states that, on September 6, 1900, the Cambria Steel Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, exhibited its creditor's bill in this case based upon a judgment and unsatisfied execution against the Belt Company. It is claimed by the said Cambria Company that the collateral security now held by the Trust Company being a part of the collateral security above described, is not covered by the mortgage executed by the Belt Line, but that said collateral security so held by the Trust Company may be subjected to the payment of the judgment of the Cambria Company; but your intervenor states that the claims of the Cambria Company under the said creditor's bill are subordinate and inferior to the claims of your intervenor as aforesaid. Your intervenor further shows that, on the — day of November, 1901, the Belt Company and its receivers filed their ancillary bill against the Cambria Company and the parties defendant herein, claiming that the alleged indebtedness asserted by the Trust Company against the Belt Company was fictitious and that no such indebtedness in fact existed; and further claiming that said indebtedness as well as the notes heretofore executed by the Belt Company to evidence the same, should be cancelled, and that the said collateral security held by the Trust Company should thereupon be returned to the said Belt Company and its [-ceivers.] Your intervenor shows that the claims of the 337 Belt Company and its receivers, for the reasons hereinbefore set forth, are inferior and subordinate to the claims of your intervenor. An injunction has been issued in this cause by this court restraining the Trust Company from disposing of said collateral until the final order and decree of this court as to all of said collateral security, except as to ninety-nine (99) first mortgage bonds of the Connecting Company which have heretofore been sold and the proceeds thereof, amounting to forty thousand dollars ($40,000.00) are held in lieu of said bonds to await the final judgment and decree of the court.

Wherefore your intervenor prays:

a. For the judgment, order and decree of this court requiring the Central Improvement Company and its receiver to convey to your intervenor all the real estate or other property standing in its name and to turn over to your intervenor all the moneys held by the Central Improvement Company, or receiver, or owing to it, or them, arising from the sale or the proceeds of said property;

b. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to your intervenor the value of the steel rails and fastenings mentioned in paragraph seven (7), together with interest thereon;

c. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to the intervenor the value of the five thousand (5,000) shares of Union Terminal stock, together with the value of four thousand nine hundred and ninety-four (4,994) shares of the capital stock of the Air Line and also the value of the fourteen thousand nine hundred and ninety-seven (14,997) shares of the capital stock of the Terminal Company, together with interest thereon.

d. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to your intervenor the value of the bonds and stock of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company mentioned in the preceding paragraph nine.

e. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to assign to your intervenor the account of the Belt Company against the Gulf Company mentioned in the foregoing paragraph ten.

f. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to release to your intervenor all of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company and that said Northern Townsite Company and its receivers be required to convey to your intervenor all of the property held by said Northern Townsite Company and its re-338 ceivers, together with all the moneys in their possession or owing to them as the proceeds of the property formerly held by said Townsite Company upon repayment to the Trust Company for such sum as the court may find was contributed by said Trust Company for the purchase of property taken in the name of the Townsite Company.

g. That the defendant Guardian Trust Company be required to account for and pay to the intervenor the amount of the proceeds of the bonds of the Union Company diverted by it from the purposes for which said bonds were issued, as set forth in paragraph thirteen.

h. And for such other relief as may be equitable and just.

340 The Answer of Guardian Trust Company to the Amended Intervening Petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

The Guardian Trust Company, one of the defendants in the above entitled cause, and one of the respondents to the amended intervening petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, for its separate answer to said amended intervening petition, answering, says:

1. This respondent admits that the said intervenor is a corporation, duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, as a railway corporation, and that it was incorporated, according to law in March, 1900.

2. This respondent admits that on or about May 1, 1890, The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Suburban Company, a railroad corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, executed and delivered its deed of trust to this respondent, as trustee, for the purpose of securing an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said railroad company in the principal sum of one million ($1,000,000.00) dollars; and this respondent admits that the provisions of said trust deed are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition, except that this respondent denies that it is recited in said mortgage that the same shall be a paramount lien upon all the property of the railroad company of every name, nature and description then held or that might thereafter be acquired. That default was made in the payments required by the terms of said mortgage or trust deed and that on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said mortgage or trust deed, as is alleged in said amended intervening petition, and that this respondent was a party to said proceedings.

This respondent admits that on or about February 1, 1892, the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, a Missouri corporation, did make, execute and deliver its deed of trust to this respondent and to the Provident Life and Trust Company, of Philadelphia, as trustees, to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said railroad company in the principal sum of seven hundred fifty thousand ($750,000.00) dollars; and this respondent admits that the provisions of said trust deed are substantially as set forth in said amended intervening petition, except that this respondent denies that it is recited in said mortgage that the same shall be a paramount lien upon all the property and rights of property of the railroad company of every name, nature and description then held or that might hereafter be acquired.

341 This respondent admits that default was made in the terms of said mortgage or trust deed, and that on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said mortgage or trust deed as is alleged in said amended intervening petition, and that this respondent was a party to said proceedings.

This respondent admits that on or about July 25, 1892, said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company and said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company entered into articles of consolidation in accordance with the provisions of the statutes of the State of Missouri in such case made and provided, and that said two companies thereby became consolidated and formed a new and separate corporation under the name, Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter referred to as the Belt Company.

This respondent admits that the Kansas City and Independence Air Line, being a railroad corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, did, on or about March 1, 1892, execute its deed of trust to this respondent as trustee to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said last named railroad company in the principal sum of three hundred thousand ($300,000.00) dollars, and that the provisions of said trust deed are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition, except that this respondent denies that it is recited in said mortgage that the same shall be a paramount lien upon all the property and rights of property of the railroad company of every name, nature and description then held or that might thereafter be acquired. That default was made in the payments required by said last named mortgage, and that on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said last named mortgage in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, and that this respondent was a party to said proceedings.

This respondent admits that the foreclosure suits, above mentioned, were consolidated, and that upon the sixth of November, 1901, a final decree of foreclosure and sale was entered in said consolidated suit and the property therein involved decreed to be sold; that pursuant to said decree a sale was made and that the Kansas City Southern Railway Company was the purchaser at said sale, but this respondent says that said mortgage was foreclosed and said suits were commenced and prosecuted and said sale made pursuant to and in accordance with the plan and scheme hereinafter described and under the circumstances hereinafter stated.

342 3. This respondent admits that the Union Terminal Railroad Company, being a railroad corporation organized under the laws of the State of Kansas, did on or about February 1, 1893, execute and deliver its deed of trust to this respondent and to the Provident Life and Trust Company, of Philadelphia, as trustees, and that the provisions of said mortgage or deed of trust are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition, except that this respondent denies that it is recited in said mortgage that the same shall be a paramount lien upon all the property and rights of property of the railroad company of every name, nature and description then held or that might thereafter be acquired. That default was made in the payment required by the terms of said mortgage and trust deed and that on September 6, 1900, proceedings were instituted for the foreclosure of said last named mortgage in the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Kansas in the First Division; that such proceedings were had in said suit that upon the sixth day of November, 1901, a decree of foreclosure and sale was entered therein and the property and franchises embraced in said mortgage were decreed to be sold; that a sale was had pursuant to said decree, at which sale the Kansas City Southern Railway Company became the purchaser, but this respondent says that said mortgage was foreclosed and said suit was commenced and prosecuted and said sale made pursuant to and in accordance with the plan and scheme hereinafter described and under the circumstances hereinafter stated.

4. This respondent admits that the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, being a railroad corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, did, on or about April 1, 1893, execute and deliver its deed of trust to this respondent and the State Trust Company of the City of New York, as trustees, to secure an issue of the first mortgage bonds of said last named railroad company, in the principal sum of twenty-three million ($23,000,000.00) dollars; that the provisions in said last named trust deed are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition; that default was made in the payments required by the terms of said last named mortgage or trust deed, and that on April 28, 1899, proceedings were instituted in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, for the foreclosure of said last named mortgage, and that such proceedings were had in that suit that on the fifth day of February, 1900, a decree of foreclosure and sale was entered therein, decreeing that the railroad's properties and franchises embraced in said mortgage should be sold; that pursuant to said decree said railroad's
343 properties and franchises were thereafter, on March 19, 1900, sold to said intervenor, but this respondent says that said property was foreclosed and said suit was commenced and prosecuted and said sale made pursuant to and in accordance with the plan and scheme hereinafter described and under the circumstances hereinafter stated.

This respondent admits that the several mortgages hereinabove referred to were all duly and properly acknowledged and recorded in the various counties in which the properties mentioned therein were respectively located at or about the dates of said mortgages respectively.

5. This respondent denies that about the year 1887, or at any other time it conceived and entered upon the plan and purpose to cause to be constructed railroads in and about Kansas City; it denies that it was part of said plan and purpose to cause said railroads to be built, constructed or operated by corporations to be organized by respondent and to elect certain officers, agents and representatives of respondent as the officers and directors of said railroad companies so as to dominate and control the action of said railroad companies. It denies that it was a part of its plans and purpose to utilize one or more of said railroad companies to act on behalf of respondent in building and operating railroads and in the issue of bonds and stocks, or either of them so as to gather unto the Trust Company the profits and other advantages accruing therefrom and to foist upon the railroad companies the losses or liabilities resulting therefrom. It denies that either in building said roads, or in the sale of stocks and bonds of said railroad companies it employed said railroad companies, or any of them, as its agents to further its own plans and purpose, and therefore denies that it was a principal, bound and charged with the duty to indemnify and protect said railroad companies against losses and liability arising in the premises; but admits that it was in some cases sole trustee in the mortgages above mentioned; but denies that in any case it was active trustee therein. It denies that it, in pursuance of said plans and purposes, or for any other reason, or in any other circumstances acquired the control of the Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Suburban Company) in the year 1889, or at any other time. Denies that it caused said Suburban Company to issue bonds, secured by mortgage. Denies that it caused said Suburban Company to issue capital stock in a large amount, or in any amount, and denies that it caused said company to construct and operate a railroad. It denies that in 1891, or at any other time it caused to be incorporated the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Consolidated Company); denies 344 that it caused said Consolidated Company to issue bonds and a mortgage or deed of trust to secure the same. Denies that it caused said company to issue capital stock and to construct a railroad or either of them.

It denies that in December, 1891, or at any other time, it caused to be incorporated the Union Terminal Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Terminal Company), or that it caused said company to issue and execute bonds and mortgage securing the same and capital stock, or any of them, as is alleged in said intervening petition.

It denies that it caused said company to construct a railroad.

It denies that it caused to be incorporated the Kansas City and Independence Air Line (hereinafter referred to as the Air Line). It denies that it caused the Air Line to execute and issue bonds and mortgage and to issue stock and construct a railroad, as alleged in said petition, or either of them. On the contrary, this respondent says that each and all of the said corporations were organized in the manner and under the circumstances set forth in the answer of this respondent, filed in this cause, to the bill called "Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint," filed by Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as receivers of the Kansas City Suburbar Belt Railroad Company, which said answer is hereby referred to and made a part of the answer to said amended intervening petition.

This respondent denies that it at any time caused the said Consolidated Company to consolidate with the Suburban Company, forming a new company called "Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company" (hereinafter referred to as the Belt Company) but this respondent says that said companies did, of their own accord and volition effect said consolidation on or about July 25, 1892, and that the Consolidated Company so formed was called "Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company."

Respondent denies that it cause- the Terminal Company to execute a lease of all its property, rights and franchises, or any part thereof, to the Belt Company, and that thereunder the Belt Company operated the line of the Terminal Company and its own line. On the contrary, this respondent alleges that said lease was made without the interference of this respondent and wholly at the volition of the parties to said lease.

This respondent denies that by virtue of its ownership and control of the capital stock of the Belt Company, Air Line and Terminal Company, it did at all times, or at any time cause its officers 345 and directors to be elected as the officers and directors of said lines, or any of them. It denies that it dominated and controlled the affairs and business of said lines, or caused them or either of them to perform such corporate acts and things as this respondent deemed beneficial for its own interest. On the contrary this respondent says that the directors and officers of said companies were elected by the stockholders of said respective companies in the free exercise of their own judgment, in the same manner as the directors and officers of any other company are elected; that in some instances a part of the officers and directors of said several corporations were also at the time officers and directors of this respondent, but that in such instances such officers and directors had no personal interest in procuring for this respondent any undue advantage over the other companies, and did not procure any such advantage.

This respondent denies that in the year 1893, or at any other time, it caused to be incorporated the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company (hereinafter called the Gulf Company), or caused it to issue and execute bonds, mortgages and stock, or any of them, as is alleged in said amended intervening petition. It denies that it caused the Gulf Company to construct a railroad from KansasCity to the Gulf of Mexico or any [any] part thereof. It denies that it caused the Gulf Company to enter into contracts with the Belt Company for the use of the latter's terminals at Kansas City. On the contrary it says that said contract between the Belt Company and said Gulf Company was freely made and entered into by the parties thereto, without any interference on the part of this respondent, and that said contract was made in the manner and under the circumstances stated in said answer to said ancillary bill.

This respondent denies that it caused its officers and directors to be elected officers and directors of the Gulf Company, and by that means, or by any other means dominated and controlled the affairs of the Gulf Company and caused it to perform such corporate acts as this respondent deemed to be for its benefit and advantage. On the contrary it says that said Gulf Company was managed and cotnrolled by directors and officers, freely and voluntarily elected by the stockholders thereof in the usual and ordinary manner.

This respondent denies that it had complete and intimate knowledge of all the affairs and transactions of all the said companies, as is alleged in said amended intervening petition.

6. Respondent denies that in the year 1895, or at any other time it caused to be incorporated the Central Improvement Com-
346 pany. It denies that the directors and officers of said Central Company were at all times made up from the directors and officers of this respondent, or that this respondent in all or any of the transactions of said Central Company dominated and controlled the said Central Company. On the contrary, this respondent says that the directors and officers of said Central Company were freely elected by the stockholders of said company and that while some of the directors and officers of the Central Company were also officers and directors of this respondent, yet they had no personal interest in procuring any benefit or advantage for this respondent at the expense of the Central Company, and did not procure any such advantage.

This respondent admits that the Central Improvement Company was organized, but it says that it was organized at the instance and by the procurement of the Belt Company and the Gulf Company, for the purpose of securing and acquiring the title to various tracts of land in and about Kansas City, but it is true that the Belt Company furnished some of the money paid for said land bought by the Central Company. It is also true that the Gulf Company advanced some money for the same purpose, but whether or not the list of said properties so purchased by the Central Company is correctly shown on "Exhibit A" attached to said intervening petitions, this respondent is not advised and therefore neither admits nor denies the same. This respondent, however, denies that the titles to said real estate, so purchased, were for mere convenience placed in the name of the Central Company; but says that said Central Company was duly organized for the purpose of acquiring said lands, and that it did acquire title to the same and whatever interest said Belt Company, Air Line or said Gulf Company have, or had, in said lands is represented by the stock in said Central Company which was issued to them when said moneys were advanced.

This respondent denies that said Belt Company or said Gulf Company, or any other company or person advancing money to said Central Company became the equitable owner of the land which was purchased by the money so advanced; but on the contrary says that the interest of the company, or the person so advancing money is represented by the stock issued by the Central Company.

This respondent further shows that the said Belt Company, Air Line Company and Gulf Company, or their assigns, hold substantially all of the stock of said Central Company, and in that sense they are the beneficial owners of the property of said Central Improvement Company, subject, however, to any liens 347 thereon for unpaid portions of the purchase price thereof or for other valid liens; but this respondent has not now, and never has had, any interest in the property of the Central Improvement Company, except that it holds a mortgage on a certain piece of property owned by said Central Improvement Company to secure certain promissory notes, aggregating the principal sum of $5,000.00, which mortgage was a subsisting lien upon the property at the time the Central Company bought it, and which mortgage was subsequently purchased and is now held by this respondent.

This respondent denies that the properties so purchased by the Central Company were necessary for the use of said respective railroad companies in connection with the operation of their respective roads, and it denies that such property came within the "After Acquired" property clause of said mortgages, or either of them. It denies that the equitable liens of said mortgages, or either of them attached to and became a charge upon said properties in favor of the bond holders. It is not advised as to whether any of said properties have been sold by the receiver of said Central Company.

This respondent denies that by the foreclosure proceedings, above mentioned and decrees of sale thereunder, the intervenor acquired the equitable title to all of said properties, or any part thereof so held by the Central Company, and it denies that said intervenor became and is now entitled to the conveyance of the same and to the proceeds of the sale thereof. On the contrary, this respondent says that no part of said property was covered by said mortgages, or any of them; that said property was not in any way appurtenant or necessary to the operation of said railroads, or any of them and that in and by the said foreclosure proceedings said intervenor obtained no title to said lands or any part of the same, and that said monies were advanced and said lands purchased after the consolidation aforesaid.

7. This respondent denies that on or about February 1, 1900, the Belt Company had purchased and then had in its possession, approximately 600 tons of steel rails and fastenings. On the contrary, this respondent says that there was less than 361 tons of said rails and fastenings.

This respondent denies that by virtue of the "After Acquired" property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company, said rails and fastenings became charged with a lien to secure the payment of the bonds; and denies that upon the foreclosure of said 348 mortgage and the sale thereunder that the equitable title of said rails passed to and vested in the intervenor, or that it became the equitable owner thereof. On the contrary, respondent says that said intervenor obtained no title whatever, either legal or equitable to said rails by means of said foreclosure proceedings and sale.

This respondent further says that said mortgage did not by its terms cover said rails, and further that said rails were purchased after the consolidation of the said Consolidated Company and the Suburban Company, forming the new company called the Belt Company and long after the execution of said mortgage, and further that said rails were not appurtenant to the operation of said railroad.

This respondent admits that it formerly held said rails as collateral security to the indebtedness hereinafter referred to from the Belt Company to this respondent, but it denies that the value of said rails and fastenings was of the value stated in said petition, and that such rails and fastenings were subsequently sold by this respondent for the sum of approximately eleven thousand ($11,000.00) dollars, and that respondent has credited the net proceeds thereof on its accounts against said Belt Company; that notwithstanding said company had assigned said rails and fastenings to this respondent as collateral security, said company afterwards refused to deliver the same to respondent, and respondent was compelled to bring a suit of replevin therefor in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, and said suit was subsequently determined in favor of this respondent; and that such judgment (which was entered on the — day of ——), is res judicata and cannot be here inquired into.

8. This respondent admits that the railroad of the Terminal Company was a connecting railroad with the line of the Belt Company and that the Belt Company was authorized to aid in the construction of the line of the Terminal Company. It admits that the Belt Company acquired 5,000 shares of the capital stock of the Terminal Company; but denies that by virtue of the "After Acquired" property clause in the Belt Company mortgage that the lien of the mortgage in equity or in any other manner attached to the 5,000 shares of the Terminal stock so acquired by the Belt Company, or that said lien inured to the benefit of the bondholders of the Belt Company.

Respondent admits that it acquired possession of said 5,000 shares of Terminal stock as collateral security, but denies that it was collateral security to an alleged indebtedness, but on the con-
349 trary says it was a just and bona fide indebtedness of said Belt Company to this respondent.

Respondent admits that about June 14, 1900, it sold said 5000 shares of stock for $25,000.00, which sum was the fair and full value thereof at that time. Respondent denies that by virtue of said mortgage of the Belt Company and the foreclosure and sale thereunder, that the intervenor became entitled in equity to said 5000 shares of stock, or the proceeds thereof, or any part thereof. On the contrary, this respondent says that said mortgage did not by its terms cover said stock; that said stock was not in any manner appurtenant to the operation of said railroad; that said stock was acquired after the consolidation, as aforesaid, and that the said intervenor, by said foreclosure proceedings acquired no title or interest whatever in and to said stock, or the proceeds thereof.

Respondent admits that the Air Line owned and operated a railroad connecting with the railroad of the Belt Line, and that the two formed a continuous line of railroad, and that the Belt Company become and was entitled to aid the Air Line in the construction of its road and to purchase and hold the stock of the Air Line.

Respondent admits that prior to June 11, 1900, the Belt Company acquired and owned 4,994 shares of the capital stock of the Air Line, and also 14997 shares of the Terminal Company's stock, in addition to the 5000 shares above mentioned. It denies that it acquired said stock as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Line, to it, but on the contrary says that the respondent held said stock as collateral security to a bona fide indebtedness owing from the Belt Company to this respondent. This respondent denies that said stocks, or any part thereof, were covered by the "After Acquired" property clause in the mortgage of the Belt Company and denies that upon the foreclosure of said mortgage and sale thereunder that the intervenor acquired the equitable title to said stock or to the value or proceeds thereof. On the contrary this respondent says that no part of said stocks were covered by the terms of said mortgage; that said stocks were in no way appurtenant or necessary to the operation of said railroad and the said stocks were all acquired after the consolidation aforesaid and therefore that said intervenor acquired no right, title or interest to said stocks, or any part thereof by means of said foreclosure proceedings.

This respondent admits that on or about June 11, 1900, it sold said 14,997 shares of Terminal stock and 4994 shares of Air Line stock for the sum of $9,996.65, which sum was the full and 350 fair value of said stocks at the time, but denies that said intervenor is entitled to any accounting for the value or proceeds of such sale.

9. This respondent denies that in the year 1896, or at any other time, it caused to be incorporated the Kansas City Northern Connecting Railroad Company (hereafter called the Connecting Company) for the purpose alleged in the intervening petition, or for any other purpose. It admits that said Connecting Company was organized for the purpose of constructing a railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, in order to connect with the railroads at that point running to Quincy, Illinois, and to Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Respondent denies that it caused said Connecting Company to execute bonds, mortgage and stock, or any of them, as alleged in said intervening petition, and denies that it caused said Connecting Company to enter into a contract, under which the Belt Company undertook to acquire the right-of-way and construct the railroad for said Connecting Company, and under which said Connecting Company agreed to give the Belt Company its bonds and stocks.

This respondent admits that such a contract was made between said companies, but it was made freely and of their own accord and without the interference of this respondent.

This respondent admits that pursuant to such contract the Belt Company began the construction of a railroad for the Connecting Company and the acquisition of its right-of-way and received as a consideration for so doing a large amount of the first mortgage bonds and of the capital stock of the Connecting Company, and that the Belt Company so held said stock and bonds on and prior to July 20, 1899.

This respondent denies that at various dates, or at any date it took and converted to its own use any bonds or stocks belonging to said Belt Company.

Respondent denies that about July 20, 1899, it took from the Belt Company mortgage bonds and stocks in the Connecting Company belonging to the Belt Company as collateral security for an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company, to respondent, but on the contrary says that it did take said bonds and stock as collateral security to a bona fide indebtedness due to it from the Belt Company.

Respondent denies that said bonds or stocks, or any of them, came under the "After Acquired" property clause of the mortgage made by the Belt Company and denies that they, or any of them were charged with an equitable lien to secure the bonds of the

to said stocks and bonds, or the proceeds thereof, vested in equity in the intervenor. On the contrary this respondent says that said mortgage did not by its terms cover said bonds and stocks, or any part thereof; that said bonds and stocks were not necessary or appurtenant to the operation of said railroad; that all of said stocks and bonds were acquired after the consolidation, as aforesaid, and that said intervenor acquired no right, title or interest of any kind whatsoever in and to said stocks and bonds by means of said foreclosure proceedings.

This respondent admits that on or about September 30, 1899, it sold 13,920 (not 3920) shares of Northern Connecting Company's stock, which it at one time had held as collateral, as aforesaid, for the sum of $19,885.70, which sum was the full and fair value of said stock, at the time. That prior to said sale, this respondent had accepted said stock as part payment on its said indebtedness at the same price for which respondent afterwards sold said stock.

10. This respondent denies that in 1896, or at any other time, it caused the Belt Company to enter into a Terminal contract with the Gulf Company, by the terms of which the Belt Company gave to the Gulf Company an entrance into Kansas City and valuable terminal rights and facilities, and whereby the Gulf Company undertook and agreed to pay to the Belt Company certain rentals for such rights as were granted to the Gulf Company in said contract. On the contrary, this respondent says that said contract was entered into by said parties freely and as the act of said companies represented by their independent and adult officers and board of directors.

This respondent admits that said parties operated under said contract until April 1, 1899, when receivers for the Gulf Company were appointed; that at said last named time there was due to the Belt Company from the Gulf Company under said contract about the sum of $133,000.00.

This respondent denies that said terminal contract, by virtue of the provisions of the "After Acquired" property clause in the said mortgage of the Belt Company became charged in equity with a mortgage lien to secure the bonds issued by said Belt Company, and denies that the rents, issues and profits, or any part thereof at that time due the Belt Company under said contract became charged in equity with such lien. It denies that by virtue of said foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder to the intervenor that the latter acquired all equitable right and title, or any right and title to said contract and rentals due thereon.

352 Respondent admits that the Belt Company, on or about February 1, 1900, did transfer and assign to it the said account against the said Gulf Company as collateral security to a bona fide indebtedness from the Belt Company to this respondent.

This respondent says that said intervenor acquired no right, title or interest whatever to said contract, or the rentals thereunder by virtue of said foreclosure proceedings, because said contract and rentals thereunder are not covered by the terms of said mortgage, and because it is in no way appurtenant to the operation of said railroad; and because said contract was made and said rentals accrued after the said consolidation, as aforesaid.

11. This respondent denies that the Northern Townsite Company (hereinafter referred to as Townsite Company) was either organized or officered by the Trust Company. On the contrary, this respondent says that said Townsite Company was organized by its own stockholders for the purpose of acquiring and dealing in certain lands along the line of the railroad of the Connecting Company.

This respondent admits that all the money used by the Townsite Company in purchasing its lands was furnished by the Belt Company and by this respondent, but it denies that the sum of $46,463.75 was furnished and provided by the Belt Company and this respondent but on the contrary says that a much smaller amount was furnished.

Further answering, it says that the total amount of money furnished by the Belt Company for the purchase of said lands in which the Townsite Company had or claimed to have any interest was $6,286.57, and that the Belt Company received therefor 439 shares of the capital stock of the said Townsite Company, at the par value of $100.00 each, and that the total amount of money furnished by this respondent for the same purpose was $6720.07, and that it received 489 shares of the capital stock of said Townsite Company.

This respondent denies that in equity the said lands represented by the money furnished by the Belt Company belong to the Belt Company and were covered by the "After Acquired" property clause in the said mortgage. It denies that by virtue of said foreclosure proceedings and sale thereunder to the intervenor that the intervenor became vested with the title to said lands, or any part thereof, and denies that said intervenor thereby became entitled to the capital stock so issued by the said Townsite Company, to the Belt Company, or any part thereof.

353 This respondent denies that it holds the capital stock so issued to the Belt Company as collateral security to an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, but on the contrary says that it holds said stock as collateral security to a bona fide indebtedness from the Belt Company to this respondent. This respondent says that said intervenor is not entitled, either at law or in equity, to any interest or title in said lands, or said stock, because the same are not covered by the terms of said mortgage, because they are not appurtenant to the operation of said railroad and because they were acquired after the consolidation, as aforesaid.

12. This respondent denies that it at any time dominated and controlled the acts of the Belt Company, or that it caused its officers and directors to be the officers and directors of the Belt Company. Denies that it required the officers and directors of the Belt Company to perform the will and behest of this respondent in any respect, but on the contrary alleges that the officers and directors of said Belt Company at all times exercised their independent judgment and acted in good faith for the best interests of the said Belt Company.

This respondent further says that in all respects and at all time- it fully and in good faith performed the duty imposed upon it as trustee in said mortgage, and that at no time did it control the acts and doings of the Belt Company in its own interest.

This respondent admits that about April 1, 1899, the Gulf Company was insolvent; that it defaulted in payment of interest and that it was placed in the hands of receivers, as alleged in said petition, but it denies that it knew that a default would occur prior to the time default was made, and denies that it knew that if the Gulf Company became bankrupt that the so-called auxiliary companies would pass out of its control and denies that said so-called auxiliary companies were ever in its control. It denies that in violation of its duty as trustee of said mortgages and with a view to appropriate to itself whatever value there was remaining in possession of said auxiliary companies it contrived the plan to require said companies to turn over to it all or any part of the personal property of said companies as and for security for an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to it, but on the contrary it alleges that at all times it acted in good faith and that in procuring the collateral security, as hereinafter stated, it acted in goood faith towards the Belt Company and its creditors.

This respondent denies that on March 31, 1899, and July 20, 1899, or at any other time, it caused the Belt Company to 354 turn over to it collateral, as alleged in said intervening petition, but respondent says that said Belt Company did turn over to this respondent as collateral security to a bona fide debt then owing to this respondent from said Belt Company, collateral security as is shown in the said answer to said amended ancillary bill.

This respondent denies that on September 30, 1899, or at any time it caused the Belt Company to sell to it all or any part of the stock of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Company held by the Belt Company, at the price of one and three-sevenths dollars per share or at any other price to apply upon an alleged indebtedness from the Belt Company to this respondent, but on the contrary this respondent says that said sale of said stock was a fair and open sale at a full fair value of said stock, and that the indebtedness upon which the same was applied was a bona fide indebtedness from the Belt Company to this respondent.

Respondent admits that a foreclosure decree was entered on February 5, 1900, in the case of State Trust Company against the Gulf Company.

Respondent denies that it knew prior to the rendition of said decree that the same would be rendered.

It denies that on February 1, 1900, or at any time it caused the Belt Company to pretend to hold a meeting of its directors and to specifically turn over all of the stocks and bonds, as alleged in said amended intervening petition, or any part thereof, to secure an alleged indebtedness, and to assign and transfer to respondent the said steel rails, and to assign and transfer to respondent the account owned by the Belt Company, against the Gulf Company as aforesaid, as collateral security for an alleged indebtedness. On the contrary, this respondent says that the meeting of said board of directors of said Belt Company was held at their own volition, and without an interference or direction from this respondent, and that the action of the said board of directors in turning over said collateral security was the free act of the directors of said Belt Company.

Respondent denies that the action of the Belt Company in turning over said stocks, bonds and property to it as collateral was void and denies that such action was due to the pretended unlawful combination and control exercised by respondent over the officers and directors of the Belt Company, but on the contrary says that said action was the voluntary act of said officers and directors in the exercise of their independent judgment.

355 This respondent denies that by reason of its control of the Belt Company it had knowledge of the affairs and situation of the Belt Company, but it admits that it did, by reason of its connection with said Belt Company, have considerable knowledge of the affairs and situation of the Belt Company, and denies that it used its knowledge of the affairs of the Belt Company to its own advantage rather than for the purpose of the other indebtedness of said Belt Company, but on the contrary it says that it acted in good faith in protecting its own interests and in doing so did not violate any duty which it owed as trustee or to the bondholders, or any other creditors of said Belt Company.

This respondent denies that on account of its position as trustee in said mortgage that it is estopped to assert that it took said security to secure its own indebtedness, and denies that it is deemed in equity to have received said collateral as trustee under said mortgage of the Belt Company. On the contrary it says that said mortgage for the reasons hereinbefore stated, did not cover said securities and property or any part thereof.

Further this respondent says that most of said transactions were had and done more than ten years prior to the filing of said intervening petition, and that each and all of said transactions were had and done more than five years prior to the filing of said petition, and the intervenor ought not to be permitted after so long a time to come into a court of equity and question the same; that whatever pretended rights, equities and causes of action accrued to the intervenor, by reason of said transactions, accrued to it more than five years before the institution of this suit, and respondent hereby pleads, to each and all of said transactions, the statutes of limitation of the State of Missouri, to-wit, sections 4271, 4272 and 4273, of the Revised Statutes of the State of Missouri for the year 1899, which said statutes are now and have been during all the times herein mentioned in full force and effect, and respondent pleads, as to the same, all other statutes of limitation of the State of Missouri. Respondent further say that ever since the organization of the said intervenor and its creation as a corporation it has had full knowledge of all the facts and circumstances in connection with the taking of said collateral security and the sale of stocks and bonds as aforesaid, and the real estate transactions aforesaid, and of all of the other matters and things in its said petition complained of, and has made no protest against the same and has taken no steps to enforce any rights which it has or claims to have in and to said stocks and bonds or the proceeds thereof, or said real estate or any of them; that said 356 intervenor has been guilty of laches in the premises and should not now be permitted to come into a court of equity and assert any claim to said money or property or any part thereof or to question any of said transactions and respondent claims the same benefit from these defenses as if it had formally pleaded the same in bar of and had demurred to the said intervening petition.

13. This respondent admits that the Union Terminal Railroad Company executed its mortgage dated February 1st, 1893, that respondent was one of the trustees named in said mortgage, and that the same was executed to secure bonds of the Union Company in the sum of Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00); that at the time the Union Company had not constructed its railroad, that the purpose of the bond issue was to provide funds to construct said railroad, but as to whether such purpose was expressly provided in said mortgage this defendant neither admits nor denies, but asks that said mortgage, or a certified copy thereof, be produced in evidence.

This respondent denies that bonds in the sum of Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00) were issued and placed in the custody of respondent, but on the other hand says that the amount so placed with it was a much less amount, and that the amount of said bonds so delivered to it, the prices at which they were delivered and the circumstances are fully set forth in respondent's said answer to said supplemental and amended ancillary bill.

Respondent denies that either by law or by the express terms of said mortgage it was the duty of respondent to see that as said bonds were sold, proceeds thereof should be used in the construction, completion and equipment of said railroad. On the contrary respondent says that there was no such duty imposed either by the terms of said mortgage or by law.

Respondent denies that it sold any of said bonds and unlawfully diverted the proceeds of said bonds, or any part thereof, from the purposes for which they were intended. It denies that it used said proceeds or any part thereof to diminish the indebtedness due to it from the Belt Company. It denies that it thus diverted 1,350 of said bonds of the par value of $1,350,000.00, or any part thereof, from the uses and purposes for which said bonds were issued. It denies that in breach of its duty as trustee or in any manner, or at any time, it sold or put afloat said bonds or any of them after the completion and equipment of the said Union Terminal Company; it denies that any of the transactions conducted by it in 357 respect to said bonds were fraudulent as against bond holders of said Union Company; on the contrary respondent says that said bonds were sold by said Union Company itself for its own purposes, and that in the main the said bonds were acquired by the Belt Company, which had guaranteed the payment of principal and interest of said bonds, and was the owner of all the capital stock of the said Union Company, and operated its line, and that afterward the Belt Company, in the usual course of business, sold said bonds for full value to respondent and to others, and respondent avers that such bonds as were bought by it from either the Belt Company or the said Union Company were bought for full value, and in most cases for far more than their full value.

Respondent neither admits nor denies that the intervenor is the owner of all of said outstanding bonds of said Union Company, and asks that strict proof be made thereof, but states that if it be that the intervenor, is the holder and owner of all of said outstanding bonds of said Union Company, intervenor is not a bona fide holder of the same for value; that said bonds came into the possession of the intervenor in the manner hereinafter stated and not otherwise; respondent admits that the property and franchises of the Union Company were sold at the aforesaid price of $1,500,000, but it denies that such price was in excess of the full value thereof; on the contrary respondent says that said price obtained at said foreclosure sale was much less than the real value of said property.

This respondent denies that said intervenor did not learn of the transactions had and done by this respondent in respect to said Union Company bonds until recently, when testimony was taken in support of the ancillary bill in this cause. Further this respondent says that most of said transactions in respect to said Union Company bonds were had and done more than ten years prior to the filing of said intervening petition, and that each and all of said transactions were had and done more than five years prior to the filing of the original bill in this suit and more than five years prior to the filing of said intervening petition, and that if any rights, equities or causes of action accrued to the intervenor as it is pretended, by reason of such transactions, the same accrued to it more than five years before the institution of this suit, and that intervenor ought not now to be permitted after so long a time to question the said transactions, and respondent hereby pleads to each and all of said transactions the statutes of limitations of the States of Missouri, to-wit, Sections 4271, 4272 and 4273, of the Revised Statutes of the year 1899 of said State of Missouri, which statutes are now and were at all 358 times herein mentioned in full force and effect, and pleads as to the same all other statutes of limitations of said state. Respondent further says that ever since the organization of said intervenor it has had full and complete knowledge of all the facts and circumstances in connection with the handling and sale of said Union bonds by this respondent, and has made no protest against the same and has taken no steps to enforce any rights which it had or has or pretends to have in and to said bonds or the proceeds thereof, or by virtue of ownership of said bonds or by reason of any other thing connected with said bonds and the transactions had in respect of the same by this respondent; that said intervenor has been guilty of laches in the premises and should not now be permitted to come into a court of equity and assert any claims against this respondent on account of said transactions or any of them in respect to said Union Company bonds, and respondent craves the same benefit from these defenses as if it had formally pleaded the same in bar of said intervening petition or had demurred to the same, and respondent states that whatever Union Company bonds were acquired by the said intervenor were acquired by it through the reorganization committee hereinafter mentioned in consummation of the reorganization plan hereinafter mentioned, which plan is fully set out in a certain pamphlet, put forth and promulgated by the said committee, a true copy of which is attached to and made part of the supplemental answer of this respondent and its receiver to the said bills of complaint in said foreclosure suits exhibited in this court by the said Provident Life and Trust Company, and for brevity respondent prays leave to refer to the same; that the said intervenor acquired said Union bonds through the said committee, in pursuance of the said reorganization plan and agreement, and that said intervenor was caused to be incorporated by the said committee for the purpose among other things of issuing its stocks and bonds in exchange for stocks and bonds of the said Union Company and other companies, as in said plan and agreement set forth, and that said intervenor is the successor company which the said committee proposed by said plan to organize, as in said plan set forth, and respondent states that the owners and holders of said Union Company bonds from which the said committee acquired the same, were, at all times herein mentioned, thoroughly familiar with all the facts and circumstances surrounding the issuance of said bonds and of all of respondent's transactions in reference thereto, and that the said committee at all time-, after it acquired the said Union Company bonds and up to the time it delivered the same to the said intervenor, was at all times familiar with the said transactions and all the facts and circumstances surrounding the same, and that no steps 359 were ever taken by either the said bondholders or the said committee to enforce any rights which they are in said petition now claimed to have had in respect to the said Union bonds or in respect to respondent's transactions in regard thereto.

14. This respondent admits that on September 6th, 1900, the Cambria Steel Company filed its bill in this case, and that the allegations of said bill are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition. That in November, 1901, the Belt Company, by its receivers, filed their ancillary bill herein, and that the allegations therein are substantially as set forth in said intervening petition.

This respondent admits that an injunction has been issued in this cause, restraining respondent from disposing of said collateral until the final order and decree of this court as to all of said collateral, except 1899 first mortgage bonds of the Connecting Company, as is alleged in said intervening petition.

This respondent further answering, says that the indebtedness from said Belt Company to this respondent is evidenced by certain promissory notes, executed by said Belt Company, and by an open account, as set forth and fully stated in the said answer to said amended ancillary bill.

15. This respondent, the Guardian Trust Company, further shows that on or about the 14th day of June, A. D. 1899, William F. Harrity, B. M. Baker, August Hecksher, Edward Wagner, Samuel R. Shipley, Silas W. Pettit and Winthrop Smith entered into an agreement for the reorganization of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf

Railroad Company, Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company, and the Port Arthur Channel and Dock Company and their so-called subsidiary or auxiliary companies, including said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Union Terminal Railroad Company, Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, and Kansas City and Independence Air Line Railroad Company; that said persons calling themselves a reorganization committee formed a so-called "plan or reorganization," which was promulgated under date of November 7, 1899, and invited all holders of bonds and stocks of said several companies above named, to deposit the same with said reorganization committee under said plan of re-organization which proposed to organize a new corporation to be known as the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which should acquire the properties of all said above named corporations, and issue in payment therefor the bonds and stocks of said re-organized or new corporation in the proportions and on the terms and in the manner set out in the said plan 360 of re-organization, which is hereby referred to and ready to be produced upon the hearing of this cause.

16. That after the promulgation of said plan on November 7, 1899, there was deposited with said re-organization committee the proportion of bonds and stock required by said plan to make the same operative; and on the 20th day of December, 1899, said plan was declared operative; that thereafter said committee caused to be organized and incorporated the Kansas City Southern Railway Company under the statutes of the State of Missouri for the purpose of acquiring title to the properties of said corporations named in the foregoing paragraph, and the stocks and bonds of said new corporation were thereafter exchanged for the stocks and bonds of said several corporations in the proportion and manner set out in said re-organization plan; that by means of said exchange said Kansas City Southern Railway Company came to be the owner of practically all the bonds and stocks of said corporations above mentioned, and particularly of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and said corporation caused to be elected directors and officers of said Belt Railroad Company, who conducted the same and managed and operated it in the interests of and as a component part of the railroad system of said Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

17. This respondent further shows that the organization of said Kansas City Southern Railway Company and exchange of its stocks and bonds above alleged for the stocks and bonds of said Belt Railroad Company, and the other steps taken in pursuance of said reorganization plan, effected a consolidation of said Kansas City Southern Railway Company and said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company under the statutes of the State of Missouri; or a consolidation de facto, and that said Kansas City Southern Company is estopped to deny such consolidation, or to claim that the same was not legally complete; and that said Kansas City Southern Railway Company thereby became and is liable for all the debts incurred by said Belt Railroad Company to the same extent as said last mentioned company, including the debts of this respondent heretofore mentioned and alleged in this answer.

18. Further answering this respondent shows that said re-organization committee, when working out said plan of re-organization expressly represented to this respondent that, in consideration of the debt due and owing from said Belt Company to this respondent, said committee would provide for the payment of all debts and obligations due to this respondent from all of said corporations proposed to be included in said re-organization plan, and particularly 361 said Belt Railroad Company, and expressly promised this respondent that said committee would pay or cause to be paid all debts of every character due to this respondent from said several corporations proposed to be consolidated, and particularly from said Belt Railroad Company; and that the said new and re-organized company would pay such debts; that certain members of said re-organization committee, constituting a so-called purchasing committee, purchased at the foreclosure sale of said Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, all its assets, right-of-way, rolling stock, etc., and thereafter assigned said bid to said Kansas City Southern Railway Company which said company entered into a contract with said re-organization committee, wherein and whereby it assumed and agreed to complete and carry out all the obligations undertaken and assumed by said re-organization committee; that under and by reason of said agreement and contract said Kansas City Southern became liable and agreed to pay all the obligations of said Belt Railroad Company to this respondent, and is still so liable.

19. That said Kansas City Southern was at the time of the foreclosure and sale of the Belt Company's assets the holder and owner of practically all the bonds and stock of said Belt Company; that, in order to obtain and control the stock of said Belt Company, said Kansas City Southern Railway Company exchanged its stock in the proportions and in the manner specified in said plan of re-organization, which is hereby referred to, for the stock of said Belt Company, and thereupon proceeded to secure a foreclosure of said bonds of said Belt Company; that said scheme of re-organization and exchange of stocks aforesaid resulted in the stockholders of the Belt Railroad Company securing a large amount of stock of said Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which was at that time and is yet very valuable, and was at that time and is yet of much greater market value than the total claims of this respondent against said Belt Railroad Company; that said scheme legally implied the payment by said Southern Company of all the claims of this respondent against said Belt Comapny.

20. This respondent therefore alleges and shows that if said scheme of re-organization and exchange of securities was intended by said re-organization committee and by said Kansas City Southern Railway Company and its officers to deprive this respondent of all security and opportunity of collecting its said claims against the Belt Railroad Company, while preserving and securing to the stockholders of said company said advantage and valuable interests through said scheme of transfer of stocks that said foreclosure of said properties of said Belt Company, would have been a fraudulent scheme, and in that case should be held void and in-
362 valid, so far as this relator is concerned, and the property thereby transferred to said Kansas City Southern Railway Company should be held subject to the debts and claims of this respondent and subjected to their payment, even if it should be held by the court that a legal consolidation or actual or de facto consolidation, was not brought about as hereinabove alleged, whereby said Kansas City Southern Railway Company became legally obligated to pay the claims of this respondent against said Belt Railroad Company.

21. All of which matters and things hereinbefore stated this respondent is ready to aver, maintain and prove as this Honorable Court may direct. Wherefore respondent prays that the so-called intervening petition of the said Kansas City Southern Railway Company may be dismissed as without equity, and for its costs in this behalf most wrongfully expended.

Ancillary Bill.

363 Answer of the Guardian Trust Company to the Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint.

Now comes the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, and now and at all times hereafter saving and reserving to itself all benefit and advantage of exceptions which can or may be had or taken to the many errors, uncertainties and other imperfections in the said bill contained, for its separate answer thereto, or to so much thereof as and such portions thereof, as this defendant is advised it is necessary or essential for it to answer unto, answering and pleading says:

1. That it is true as alleged in the said amended and supplemental ancillary bill that on November 30th, 1900, Francis M. Black was appointed receiver for the Guardian Trust Company in a certain cause wherein W. W. Bierce et al. were complainants and said trust company was defendant, then pending in this court, and that since the filing of said bill the receiver for the Guardian Trust Company has been discharged and the said Trust Company is now in the possession of its corporate property and is managing its own business.

2. This defendant admits that Wash Adams, Esq., was heretofore appointed receiver for the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, but states that the property and assets of said Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company have since been taken out of the hands of said Wash Adams, receiver, and said receiver has been discharged, and this defendant admits that at the time of the filing of the original ancillary bill Wash Adams was the duly qualified and acting receiver of the Central Improvement Company and that since said bill was filed the said Adams has resigned and Thomas T. Crittenhen has been appointed as his successor and is now the duly qualified and acting receiver of said Central Improvement Company.

3. This defendant admits that the Cambria Steel Company heretofore filed its original bill of complaint in this court against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the several other defendants above named in which said original bill said Steel Company set up a judgment which it had on the same day obtained against the said Belt Railroad Company and that in said bill of complaint the said Steel Company seeks to subject certain alleged rights, claims and alleged property and assets, alleged to belong to the said Belt Railroad Company and some of the other defendants to the payment of its said judgment.

364 4. This defendant admits that on the same day that the said bill of complaint was filed by the said Cambria Steel Company four certain bills of complaint were filed in this court by the Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia, two of said bills being filed against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, as the sole defendant, another of said bills being filed against the Union Terminal Railroad Company, a Kansas corporation, and the said Belt Railroad Company as defendants, and the other of said bills being filed against the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, a Missouri corporation, and the said Belt Railroad Company. Each of said bills sought to foreclose a first mortgage upon a certain Railroad described in the said bills of complaint, respectively, and which said several described pieces of railroad property had for a long time been operated by the said Belt Company as a continuous and allied system, and this defendant admits that the said

Belt Railroad Company was the owner practically all of the capital stock of said several railroad companies; admits that upon the same day that said bills of complaint were filed an application was made for the appointment of a receiver for all of the property of said Belt Railroad Company and of the said Air Line Company and of the said Union Terminal Company, and that on the same day, to-wit, on September 6, 1900, by an order entered of record in in said causes, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, complainants in said amended ancillary bill were appointed receivers of said Belt Railroad Company and of said Air Line Company and of said Union Terminal Railroad Company and that thereupon the said Knott and Swinney, as such receivers, took possession of all the property and franchises of said Belt Railroad Company and of the said Air Line Company and Union Terminal Company, and that as such receivers they did operate the said railroads until the same were sold under the decrees of this court, rendered in said foreclosure suits, which suits had been consolidated, and that at such sales the Kansas City Southern Railway Company became the purchaser of all of said railroad properties and said railroad properties under the said decrees of foreclosure were conveyed to the said Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which has ever since owned and operated the same.

5. For convenience the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company as it existed prior to its consolidation hereinafter mentioned, with the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company is hereinafter referred to as the Suburban Company and after said consolidation as the Belt Company, the Union Terminal Railroad Company, as the Union Company; the Kansas City and Independence Air Line, as the Air Line; the Consolidated Terminal Company, as the Consoli-
365 dated Company; the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, as the Elevator Company; the Central Improvement Company, as the Improvement Company; the Fairmount Amusement Company, as the Amusement Company; the Northern Townsite Company, as the Townsite Company; the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, as the Northern Company.

6. Further answering this defendant states that it was incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri in the year 1889, and not in the year 1883, as alleged in the said amended ancillary bill; that this defendant was originally incorporated under the name of "Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust Company," but afterwards changed its name in the manner provided by statute to "Guardian Trust Company."

7. This defendant states that it is true that in the month of January, 1887, a corporation was formed under the laws of the state of Missouri, known as the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company for the purpose of building a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas. This defendant says that it is untrue, and hence it denies that it caused the said Suburban Company to be incorporated but on the contrary avers that the said Suburban Company was organized and incorporated some two years before this defendant company was created, and this defendant had nothing to do with the organization of the said Belt Company.

8. It is also untrue that the servants, employes, officers or directors of this defendant in any way became or were the officers or directors of the Suburban Company, nor did they or any of them become such until several years after the latter company's incorporation, and it is untrue that this defendant at all times or at any time dominated and controlled the said Belt Company, or the Suburban Company.

9. This defendant denies that it, by reason of its alleged domination, or for any reason whatever, or in any way caused the Suburban Company to issue and deliver to this defendant all of its capital stock, and denies that this defendant caused the said Suburban Company to execute its bonds in the sum of one million dollars, or any other amount, and denies that this defendant caused said bonds to be delivered to it, and denies that this defendant proceeded to sell or otherwise dispose of said bonds and stock, and to apply the proceeds thereof, except as hereinafter stated. And this defendant denies that it has ever refused or failed to fully account to the said Belt Company for any property, choses in action, moneys or other 366 things of the said Suburban Company or Belt Company, which may have come into its hands at any time and by any means, but state that the contrary is true; that this defendant has frequently, from time to time fully accounted to the Belt Company and said Suburban Company for all moneys, property, effects and assets which may, in any way, have come into its hands of this defendant, belonging to the said Belt Company or to said Suburban Company.

10. This defendant further answering the said ancillary bill concerning its connection with the said Suburban Company, states and shows to the court as follows: The said Suburban Company was incorporated in January, 1887; that it soon after said date authorized the issuance of $1,500,000.00 of its capital stock; that said Suburban Company for the first two years of its existence had done considerable preliminary work in the way of procuring franchises to use certain streets in Kansas City, along which to build its railroad from a point near Second and Broadway streets in Kansas City, Missouri, in an easterly direction to a point near Cecil Station on the Missouri, Pacific Railroad in what is known as the East Bottoms, being a distance of about four and one half miles, and had also done considerable work in making surveys and locating its said line, and in the way of constructing a portion of its roadbed, but it had been unable to make any arrangements whereby it could dispose of its securities or otherwise raise money with which to build and complete its road or any considerable portion of it. Being in that condition it did, about April or May, 1889, apply to A. E. Stilwell, who was then one of the vice presidents of this defendant, and who then did not have and never prior thereto had had any connection with or interest whatever in the said Suburban Company, but who had an extended and favorable acquaintance with men of capital, and was recognized as having skill in soliciting and procuring capitalists to subscribe to and invest in such enterprises. And the said Suburban Company at said time requested him, that he, said Stilwell, use his efforts to procure the money with which to build and complete the said portion of its road from Second and Broadway streets to Cecil Station.

11. That negotiations were then had between the said Stilwell and the said Suburban Company, which resulted in a contract between the said Company and the said Stilwell, whereby the said Company agreed to issue and deliver to the said Stilwell $450,000.00 of its first mortgage bonds, out of a total issue, as then contemplated of $500,000 00 and $900,000.00 of its capital stock if the said Stilwell would build or cause to be built the said portion of the said railroad. That said contract was duly authorized by the Board of Directors
367 of the Suburban Company at a meeting lawfully called, and by its stockholders at a meeting duly called and convened on May 31st, 1889. That at the time of the making of said contract, none of the directors or stockholders of the Suburban Company, except E. L. Martin had any connection with or interest in this defendant company, and none of the directors, officers and stockholders of this defendant company, except E. L. Martin, had any interest in or connection with said Suburban Company. That said contract was made at arms' length between said parties, free from any domination, direction or control whatever on the part of this defendant, and that a large majority of the board of directors of the said Suburban Company continued to be composed of persons wholly disconnected with this defendant, until the said portion of said railroad was completed and paid for in accordance with the terms of said contract.

That the said Stilwell thereupon procured subscribers to the stock of and the incorporation of a construction company, known as the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, under the laws of the State of Missouri, which did the work of carrying out the said contract which the said Suburban Company had made with him, the said Stilwell.

12. That, in order to comply with the said construction contract on its part, and to build additional portions of its road, the said Suburban Company duly authorized the issue of $1,000,000.00 of bonds and authorized the execution of a mortgage upon all of its property then owned or subsequently to be acquired, to secure the payment of said bonds, and that this defendant was one of the trustees named in said mortgage; but defendant denies that said Suburban Company in and by said mortgage conveyed all of the property then held or which should thereafter be acquired by it. That upon the performance of the said contract for the construction of the said portion of said road between Second and Broadway streets and Cecil station, the Suburban Company caused to be issued and certified by this defendant as trustee $500,000.00 of its first mortgage bonds, all of which the said Suburban Company used in paying the said construction company for its work in building the said portion of said road, and in compensating some of its officers and directors for services rendered and money advanced and expended by them theretofore; but this defendant had nothing to do with or any connection with the said $500,000.00 of bonds except to certify them as trustee, at the request of the Suburban Company, and to deliver them on its direction. That at the same time the said Suburban Company issued and delivered to the said construction company and to its said officers and promoters, 368 for their said labor and services 7,000 shares of its capital stock, which capital stock then had no value, but this defendant had nothing to do, either directly or indirectly with the disposition of said $500,000.00 in bonds, or the said 7,000 shares of stock.

13. That when the said Kansas Terminal Construction Company received said shares of stock, under its said contract, as aforesaid, it then held and owned a majority of the outstanding stock of the Suburban Company, and it, the said construction company, distributed the said stock to its own stockholders by way of dividends or as a distribution of its assets, whereby the stockholders of the said construction company became stockholders, and the holders of a large majority of the outstanding stock of the Suburban Company, and thereafter, as such stockholders, they elected directors of the Suburban Company of their own choice, which choice fell upon persons who were mainly either directors, officers or employes of this defendant, but it is untrue, as alleged in the said amended ancillary bill, that this defendant had anything to do with causing its officers, directors or employes to be elected as the officers or directors of the said Suburban Company, but the stockholders of the said Suburban Company chose their own directors, and this defendant held but little, if any, stock of the Suburban Company, and had but little, if any, voice in the choice of such directors. It was in this way, as above stated, that the persons who were directors and officers of this defendant came to be directors and officers of the Suburban Company and not otherwise.

14. After the Suburban Company had thus disposed of five hundred thousand dollars of its bonds and 7,000 shares of its stock, it had remaining in its treasury undisposed of five hundred thousand dollars in bonds, and 8,000 shares of stock, with which to build an extension of its road from said Cecil Station to Brush Creek, in Jackson County, Missouri. The Suburban Company desired to build and did build this extension itself, without the intervention of a contractor, and the Suburban Company requested the defendant to sell and dispose of the said $500,000.00 of bonds remaining in its treasury and so much of the said stock as might be necessary in order to raise the money for the purpose of building the said extension. That said stock was wholly without any value, and could not be sold for anything, and that on account of the incomplete condition of the property and the uncertainty of its outcome this defendant was unable at that time to sell and dispose of said bonds without great sacrifice, and having faith in the enterprise and in its future value, this defendant bought the said five hundred thousand dollars of bonds from the said Suburban Company at and for an agreed price of ninety-three 369 per cent of their face value, or $930.00 for each $1,000 bond, with the understanding and agreement, however, that this defendant was to have a discount from said price of three per cent on the face of said bonds. The reason of this was that the Suburban Company was perfectly willing to dispose of its bonds at 93 per cent and give to any one who would sell them a commission therefor of 3 per cent, and to give a large amount of stock in addition thereto as a bonus, to any purchaser, because said stock was then without value, and inasmuch as this defendant could not find purchasers for the bonds, it was agreed that this defendant might itself take the bonds at the price named, of 93 per cent with the said discount of 3 per cent.

15. That this defendant thereupon, for the purpose of enabling the Suburban Company to proceed promptly with its work, did take said $500,000.00 in bonds at said price, with 2,200 shares of the capital stock of said Suburban Company as a bonus, and paid the said Suburban Company $465,000.00 therefor.

16. That defendant fully paid and accounted to the said Suburban Company for the total purchase price of said $500,000.00 of bonds and 2,200 shares of stock. That the price paid therefor by this defendant was a full and fair price, and far more than could have been obtained from other sources at that time. This defendant carried these bonds for several years, before it was able to sell them, and then sold them at various times and in various amounts and quantities, at about the same price that it had paid for them. The facts as above stated constitute all of the business transaction- by and between the said Suburban Company and this defendant, in respect of said stock and bonds prior to and up to the time that the said Suburban Company consolidated with the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City, as stated in the said amended ancillary bill.

17. That all of said transactions above referred to occurred more than ten years prior to the filing of the said amended ancillary bill; that all of the facts and transactions above referred to were public, open and were known to, acquiesced in and ratified and approved by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Belt Company, more than ten years ago. Wherefore this defendant pleads the statute of limitations of the State of Missouri, hereinafter set out in bar of this suit, and says that the complainants should not now be allowed to inquire into transactions closed and approved so long ago.

18. That about the time or soon after the consolidation above mentioned, the Suburban Company increased its capital 370 stock to $2,250,000.00; that several years afterward and after the consolidation above mentioned and after a large portion of the railroad of said Suburban Company and Belt Company had been completed and was in operation and had begun to show that it had or soon would have some value as a money earner, this defendant from time to time bought from the Suburban Company and Belt Company certain of its shares of stock for the purpose of supplying the Suburban Company, afterward the Belt Company with needed money, and also from time to time sold for and on account of the said Belt Company and Suburban Company certain other shares of its capital stock; that the prices at which defendant bought said stock of the said companies and the prices at which defendant sold said stock for the account of the said companies were fair and reasonable and all that the stock was worth, and that the commission charged by this defendant for its services in selling such securities was a fair and reasonable commission; that all sales made by this defendant for the account of the Belt Company or Suburban Company were immediately reported to the Belt Company or Suburban Company and the proceeds accounted for, and that immediate payment was made by this defendant to the Belt or Suburban Company for all stock bought by defendant from the said companies, and that all and singular said transactions were known to, acquiesced in and ratified by the officers, directors and stockholders of the Suburban Company and the Belt Company from time to time as the transactions were had and done; that said transactions took place or were settled more than five years before this litigation was commenced and defendant plears the statute of limitation of Missouri as to same.

18½. This defendant further answering denies that it caused a corporation known as the Consolidated Terminal Railway of Kansas City, to be formed for the purposes alleged in said ancillary bill, or for any purpose whatever and avers that this defendant had nothing to do with the formation or organization of the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City.

19. This defendant denies that it had anything to do with electing or causing to be elected its officers, servants or employes as the officers and directors of the said Consolidated Company, and denies that this defendant at all times or at any time dominated or controlled the Consolidated Company; denies that this defendant caused the Consolidated Company to issue and deliver to it its entire capital stock, or any part of it, or its bonds aggregating the sum of $750,000.00 or any other amount, and denies that defendant at any time proceeded to sell or dispose of the bonds and stock of the 371 said Consolidated Company, and to apply the proceeds thereof in any manner or to any extent, except as hereinafter stated. And this defendant denies that it ever failed or refused to fully and fairly account to the Consolidated Company or the Belt Company for any of the property, assets or choses in action of the Consolidated Company which came into the hands of defendant, but states the contrary to be true, that defendant at all times when requested, and without request, fully and fairly accounted to the Consolidated Compay and afterward to the Belt Company for everything that defendant received in which the Consolidated Company had any interest.

20. This defendant further answering states that the facts concerning the affairs of the said Consolidated Company, so far as this defendant knows or had any concern or connection therewith are as follows: After the Suburban Company had caused its said one million dollars of bonds to be exhausted in building and equipping its road from Second and Broadway to Brush Creek, it was without means to build any other extensions or additions to its road, and whilst it is true that it had the lawful power, under its charter, to build and construct an extension of its road from Second and Broadway westward to the state line between Kansas and Missouri, yet it did not have the financial ability to do so, and inasmuch as its mortgage previously given covered all property therein described which it then had or might afterwards acquire, it could not in its own name issue any new mortgage on any extension which would be a first lien thereon. For these reasons and because the Suburban Company saw it was necessary to extend its road to and connect it with the packing houses and other large shipping industries in the West Bottoms in said Kansas City, it found it necessary to extend its road from Second and Broadway to the State Line between Missouri and Kansas, and in order to do this the Suburban Company, itself, through its officers and agents, caused the said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company of Kansas City to be formed and incorporated, and caused it to issue $750,000 of stock and $750,000 of first mortgage bonds, and to give a mortgage which was a first lien upon all of its property therein described then owned or afterwards to be acquired, to secure said bonds, and made the defendant Trust Company one of the Trustees under said mortgage, and caused the officers and employes of the Suburban Company to be chosen as the Directors and Officers of the Consolidated Company. That the said Consolidated Company was simply an artificial arm of the Suburban Company itself, created for its own purposes, and to build extensions and additions to its road. That the Suburban Company was wholly without means to defray the expenses of building said exten-

372 sion or any part thereof and that its only means of raising the necessary money therefor was to dispose of the stock and bonds which it had caused the Consolidated Company to authorize and issue and at the instance and request of the Suburban Company, this defendant undertook to act as the agent of the Belt Company in procuring the necessary franchises and rights-of-way and in placing the said bonds and stock of said Consolidated Terminal Railway Company and in advancing money to defray the expenses of the said extension of said road to the State Line.

21. That the stock which the Consolidated Company was authorized to issue was, of course, without any value at that time, and the said company and the Suburban Company authorized this defendant to give the said stock to purchasers of the bonds as a bonus, at the ratio of 8 shares of stock with each bond, and the said companies promised to pay to this defendant, in consideration of its services in selling and disposing of the said bonds and stocks and acting as such financial agent for the Belt and Consolidated companies in respect to such bonds and stocks, a sum equal to twelve per cent of such of said $750,000 of bonds as this defendant might sell, three-fifths of which amount was to be paid in cash out of the proceeds of such sales, and the other two-fifths was to be paid in stocks and bonds of the said Consolidated company, at the same valuation at which others of said bonds and stock could be disposed of by this defendant to other people, which was fair and reasonable commission and one which the said company could well afford to pay under the circumstances in order to raise the money it needed.

22. That pursuant to the agreements above set forth the defendant, at the request of the Consolidated Company, sold the bonds of the Consolidated Company and that with each of said bonds 8 shares of stock of the said Consolidated Company went as a bonus, in accordance with the agreement aforesaid. Part of said bonds were sold by this defendant for the account of the Consolidated Company and part of said bonds were bought by the Trust Company from the said Consolidated Company, in accordance with the agreement aforesaid, but that the Trust Company received with the bonds bought by it from the Consolidated Company far less than eight shares of stock with each bond which were given as a bonus by the Consolidated Company to all others who bought bonds of said company; that this defendant from time to time paid to and paid out for the Consolidated Company all of the proceeds of the sales of said bonds and stock less such charges for services, commissions and expenditures as were made by this defendant, and the said Consolidated Company accepted and received the benefit thereof; that all sums of 373 money charged by this defendant to the Consolidated Company were immediately reported by the Trust Company to the Consolidated Company and approved by the Consolidated Company and that all such charges appear not only on the books of this defendant but also on the books of said Consolidated Company, and that this defendant has fuly, promptly and faithfully accounted for all and singular its transactions with the Consolidated Company; that all of — charges made by this defendant to the said Consolidated Company were fair and reasonable, and that all of the transactions had between this defendant, the Consolidated Company and the Belt Company in respect to the said bonds and stock of the said Consolidated Company, as well as in connection with any and all other business matters between them, were fully known to, approved by, acquiesced in and ratified by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Consolidated Company and of its successor, the Belt Company, more than five years prior to the institution of this suit, and complainants ought not after so long a time be permitted to question the same and respondent pleads as to the same — statute of limitations of the State of Missouri, hereinafter set out in bar of the complainant's suit.

23. This defendant further answering states that it is true that as alleged in said amended ancillary bill, on or about the 25th day of July, 1892, the said Consolidated Company and the said Suburban Company entered into Articles of Consolidation, under the Statutes of the State of Missouri, whereby the said two companies became one consolidated corporation which was thereafter known as "Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company," and called in the amended ancillary bill and herein the "Belt Company."

24. This defendant denies that at the time of the consolidation of said two companies, or at any other time, this defendant caused its officers and employes to be elected to the positions of officers and directors of the said Belt Company, but state that the stockholders of the said two companies after their consolidation elected their own officers and directors, without any interference or influence on the part of this defendant. It is true, however, that certain persons who were connected with this defendant were chosen as some of the directors and officers of the said Belt Company, but this defendant denies that it at any time, or in any manner, as alleged in the ancillary bill, dominated or controlled the actions of the Belt company.

25. This defendant, further answering admits, as stated in the amended ancillary bill of complaint, that it was found ad-
374 visable about the 30th day of December, 1891, to have a corporation formed under the laws of the State of Kansas, for the purpose of building and holding the title to a further extension of the said Suburban Company's railroad system from the state line westward and southward to Argentine, in the State of Kansas, but denies that it caused the said Union Company to be organized for that purpose or any other purpose, but states the fact to be that the said Union Company was caused to be organized for that purpose by the Suburban Company.

26. And this defendant denies that it caused its officers and employes to be elected as the officers and directors of the said Union Company, but states that the Suburban Company which was the sole owner of the capital stock of the Union Company, caused the officers and directors of the said Union Company to be elected, without any interference or domination whatever on the part of this defendant.

27. This defendant denies that it caused all of the stock, or any of the stock of the said Union Company to be issued to the said Belt or Suburban Companies and denies that it caused the said Union Company to execute its first mortgage bonds in the amount of $2,000,000 or any other amount, but admits that the said Union Company did authorize the issuance of $2,000,000 of bonds, and executed its first mortgage to secure the same, and made this defendant one of the trustees in said mortgage. The said Union Company, though in fact an independent corporate entity, was really organized by the Suburban Company for its use and benefit and for the purpose of building the said extension to said Belt Company's railroad. This defendant denies that the said bonds were issued and delivered to it for the use and benefit of the Suburban Company except as hereinafter stated.

28. This defendant denies that it ever failed or refused, when requested, to fully and fairly account to the said Union Company, the Suburban Company or the Belt Company for any and all disposition made by it of any of the bonds, stock or property of either of said companies, but states that upon the contrary it has fully and frequently accounted to the said companies for all property, choses in action, money or assets of whatever nature which came into its hands in which either of said companies had any interest.

29. That the said Union Company, the Belt Company and the said Suburban Company were under the necessity of disposing of the said bonds and stock of the said Union Company for the purpose of raising the money with which to acquire and construct the 375 said extension into the state of Kansas, as they had no other means of raising the money for that purpose. That at the special instance and request of the said Union Company and of the Suburban Company, and later the Belt Company, the defendant undertook and agreed to act as financial agent for them in and about the matter of disposing of said stocks and bonds of the Union Company, and financing said enterprise, and to render such services and advance such moneys as might be necessary to procure the necessary franchises therefor, and to establish and put in operation warehouses, factores and other like industries along the line of the said railroad, and the said Suburban Company, Belt company and the said Union Company agreed to pay this defendant a reasonable compensation for its services, advancements and responsibilities in that behalf.

30. That it was impossible to find purchasers for said bonds at a greater price than 82 per cent of their face value, and only then provided considerable quantities of the stock of the said Union Company should go with the bonds as a bonus, but said stock, as a matter of fact, at that time, and for several years after, was without any value. That this defendant immediately after the organization of the said Union Company, in pursuance of the request and agreement above stated, proceeded to finance the said Union Company and to sell its said bonds and stock, or to buy them when other purchasers could not be found in time to supply the needed money, and to render important and valuable services in connection with the securing of franchises for the building of the road, and advance from time to time, such money as might be needed therefor, and this defendant continued to act as such financial agent and to render such services until the said extension of such road by means of the Union Company was completed, which extended over a period of several years.

31. That it was understood and agreed between this defendant company and the said Union Company, Suburban Company, and later the Belt Company, that in case this defendant could not find purchasers for said bonds fast enough to supply money needed for the construction of said road, that this defendant might itself buy such of said bonds as it was willing to buy, at the same price that like bonds were being sold to other persons, and might deduct from the price thereof a sum equal to what would be a fair commission for selling the bonds to others, that is to say, the defendant, in case it bought any of said bonds, was to account to the Union Company or the Suburban Company for the price of said bonds, 376 in the same manner and upon the same terms as it was to account to them for bonds sold to other people.

32. That this defendant, pursuant to the agreement aforesaid, sold for and on account of the Belt Company, bonds of the Union Company of the par value of upwards of $440,000 and accounted to the Suburban Company, the Belt Company and the Union Company for the proceeds of all such sales, and that being unable to sell and dispose of the bonds of the Union Company to others fast enough to provide the money as it was needed by the Suburban Company, later the Belt Company, this defendant, under the agreement and arrangement above stated, from time to time purchased of the Belt Company bonds of the Union Company of the par value of $1,496,000 and that immediate payment was made by this defendant to the Belt Company of the price of all bonds bought by this defendant of the Belt Company; that of the bonds bought by this defendant from the Belt Company it bought 350 bonds of the par value of $1,000 each at par and 350 of said bonds of the par value of $1,000 at $950 each, which was far more than the bonds were worth, and which was greatly in excess of the price at which other persons were willing to buy said bonds; that on October 21, 1892, this defendant accepted from the Belt Company and Union Company 60 of said Union Company's bonds at $82 and 1,500 shares of Union Company's stock in part payment for its services in and about the matters aforesaid; that whenever any charge was made by this defendant to the Belt or Suburban Company for services or commission or any other thing such charge was immediately stated and rendered to the Belt or Suburban Company, and all such charges were approved and agreed to by the Belt Company; that this defendant fully, promptly and faithfully accounted to the Belt and Suburban Company in respect to all and singular its transactions with the Belt or Suburban Company in relation to the securities of the said Union Company, and the said Suburban Belt Company and the said Union Company received the benefit of said transactions; that all of the charges made by this defendant for its services in the premises were reasonable and fair, and all of the transactions had between this defendant and the Union Company, the Suburban Company and the Belt Company in relation to the said bonds and stock of the said Union Company, as well as in connection with any and all of the business between them were fully known to, approved by, acquiesced in and ratified by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Union Company, Suburban Company and the said Belt Company, and all of said transactions were had and done more than five years prior to the institution of this suit, and complainant ought not to be permitted after so long a time to 377 question the same, and this defendant as to all and singular the said matters complained of pleads the statute of limitations of the State of Missouri hereinafter set out.

33. This defendant further answering denies that it, on the 23rd day of January, 1891, or at any other time caused a corporation known as the Kansas City & Independence Air Line to be incorporated or formed. Said Air Line was incorporated, however, for the purpose of building a line of railroad connecting with the line of the said Suburban Company, and running to the City of Independence, Missouri, and the capital stock of said company was, after being increased, fixed at $500,000. This defendant denies that it at any time caused its officers and employes to be elected as the directors and officers of the said Air Line, and denies that it caused said Air Line to issue its first mortgage bonds to the amount of $300,000, or any other amount, but states that the Air Line did issue its first mortgage bonds to that amount, and secured the same by a first mortgage upon all of its corporate property, and made this defendant one of its trustees under said mortgage. This defendant denies that it at any time dominated or controlled the said Air Line; denies that this defendant caused the said Suburban or Belt Companies to acquire all, or any, of the bonds or stocks of the Air Line, and denies that it caused the Suburban Company to deliver the said bonds and stock to it, the said defendant, and denies that this defendant proceeded to dispose of the same and to apply the proceeds thereof, for the corporate purposes of the Suburban or Belt Companies, or for any other purpose except as hereinafter stated; denies that this defendant has ever refused upon request to account to said Belt Company or Suburban Company for the disposition made by it of any of said bonds, or stock or the proceeds realized therefrom, but, upon the contrary, states the fact to be that this defendant has frequently, fully and truly accounted to the Suburban Company, the Belt Company and to the Air Line Company for the disposition of all of the property, assets or choses in action of either of said companies which in any way came into the hands or under the control of this defendant.

34. This defendant, further answering, states that the facts concerning the Air Line Company and its connection with it and with the Belt Company are as follows: That on the 23rd day of January, 1891, at the suggestion and by the procurement of the Suburban Company, the Air Line Company was incorporated with a capital stock of $150,000, and with eleven directors, a majority of whom were directors of the said Suburban Company, for the purpose of building a railroad from a point on the line of the Sub-378 urban Company's road, to the city of Independence, Missouri, a distance of some six or eight miles, for the use and benefit of the said Suburban Company. That the said Air Line Company soon after increased its capital stock to $500,000 and issued its first mortgage bonds, as aforesaid, to the amount of $300,000; that the said Air Line afterwards entered into a contract with a construction company known as the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, for the building and completion of its said road, whereby it promised to pay to the said construction company, in consideration of the construction of said road, $250,000 of its first mortgage bonds, and 2,000 shares of its capital stock. That said road was built by said construction company under said contract.

35. That at the special instance and request of the Air Line and said Suburban Company the defendant rendered valuable services in procuring franchises for the use of public highways by said Air Line, and in acting as the financial agent for the said Air Line, and in from time to time advancing it money and selling certain of its bonds and stocks for its account, and purchasing certain other of its bonds and stocks in order to furnish the money for its requirements; that said bonds were not reasonably worth to exceed 80 per cent of their face value and the said stock had no market or other value at all.

36. That the said Air Line settled with the said Kansas City Terminal Construction Company for building its said line by deliverng to said Construction Company certain first mortgage bonds and certain shares of stock which had been issued by the Air Line as aforesaid, but defendant avers that the said Construction Company accepted in full payment for its work, under said construction contract, a less amount of stock and bonds than was specified in the contract as drawn, and that thereupon the said Construction Company distributed said stocks and bonds among its stockholders; that it is true that this defendant from time to time, in order to furnish the said Construction Company with the necessary funds for the construction of said Air Line, sold for said Construction Company and for its account certain of said bonds and stock and fully accounted for the proceeds of all such sales; that after setting in full with said Construction Company the Air Line still had in its treasury certain of its first mortgage bonds and certain shares of stock, and that at the special instance and request of the Air Line and of the Suburban Company this defendant from time to time sold to others certain of said stocks and bonds in order to supply the said Air Line with money for its requirements, and that this defendant immediately, fully and faithfully accounted to said Air Line for the proceeds of all such sales as and when the 379 said transactions were had and done; that this defendant also at the special instance and request of the Air Line and said Suburban Company from time to time, by reason of the fact that it was unable to sell bonds and stock to others fast enough to supply money that the said Air Line and Suburban Company needed bought from said Air Line certain of said stocks and bonds at the same or greater prices than said bonds and stocks were being sold at to others; that this defendant made immediate payment to the Air Line for all such stocks and bonds bought by it as aforesaid as and when such purchasers were made; denies that it constructed or caused to be constructed the said Air Line, but on the contrary states that said Air Line was constructed by said Construction Company at the procurement of said Suburban Company and of said Air Line and for the purposes of the said Belt Company; denies that it at any time dominated or controlled the said Air Line, but on the contrary states that said Air Line was at all times controlled by its own adult stockholders, officers and directors, nearly all of whom were directors of said Suburban Company, later the Belt Company. This defendant states that whatever was paid it by the said Air Line in compensation for the services of this defendant in acting as the financial agent of said Air Line, and in procuring franchises and for commissions in the sales of said bonds and stock, was paid pursuant to an open, fair agreement and understanding had at the time and that such compensation was fair and reasonable; that this defendant from time to time, as the transactions took place, paid to and paid out for and on account of the said Air Line and said Belt Company all of the proceeds of all of the said bonds and stock so sold by it and also all of the purchase price of all of said bonds and stock so purchased by it, and the said Air Line and the said Belt Company or its predecessor the Suburban Company accepted and received the benefit thereof, and this defendant has fully and truly accounted therefor; that all and singular the transactions had between this defendant and the said Air Line and Belt Company in relation to the stock and bonds and the money of the said Air Line, as well as in connection with all other business between them, were fully known to, approved by, acquiesced in and ratified by all of the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Air Line and of the said Belt Company both before and after the consolidation herein above mentioned, and more than five years prior to the commencement of this suit, and the complainants should be held estopped from now questioning transactions settled so long 380 ago, and respondent pleads the statute of limitations of the state of Missouri hereinafter set out in bar of the said matters.

37. This defendant, further answering, denies that it at all times up to and about the month of April, 1900, or at any other time, in any way dominated and controlled the affairs of the Suburban Company or its successor the Belt Company by reason of the alleged facts set forth in said amended ancillary bill, or by any other reason or means whatever; denies that it caused its officers, directors and employes to be elected as the officers and directors of the said companies, or in any way induced or influenced the stockholders of said companies to choose such persons as their officers or directors; denies that the officers and directors of said Companies were mere dummies acting as the agents of this defendant, but state that they were chosen by the stockholders of said companies and were acting independently for and on behalf of the said companies at all times. This defendant admits that it attended to the disbursement of a large amount of the moneys which were realized from the sale of the bonds and stocks of the said several companies hereinabove mentioned, but denies that it attended to the disbursements of all of said moneys, and states that whatever disbursements of such moneys were made by this defendant were made at the spec[illegible] stance and request of the said companies and for their use [illegible] benefit, and were fairly made and fairly and fully accounted for. This defendant does not know what the total cost of the lines of all of the said railway companies hereinabove named amounted to, and has no means now of ascertaining the same, as all of the books and papers connected therewith are in the possession of the complainants in the said amended ancillary bill, and have been for nearly five years; denies that there was actually delivered to and disposed of by it securities, stocks and bonds of said companies aggregating in value more than $5,000,000 as alleged in the ancillary bill; denies that this defendant or its said receiver have ever at any time refused to account to the said companies or to their receivers for the proceeds derived by this defendant from the sale of any of the said bonds and stocks, or for the disposition made by it of any of the proceeds thereof, but, upon the contrary, states that it has frequently, and at all times duly and fully accounted for all of said stocks and bonds, and for all of the proceeds thereof which came into its hands or over which it had any control; denies that it pretends to claim that it is retaining any money above the actual cost of the said several railroad properties for the purpose of paying for this defendant's commissions and services in the matter of the sale and disposition of said bonds or stock, or any of them, except as hereinbefore 381 stated, and this defendant again states that each and every of said transaction-, and each and all of said charges for commissions and services were fair, reasonable, fully accounted for and satisfactory to the Belt Company and acquiesced in, ratified and approved by all of the officers, directors and stockholders many years prior to the institution of this suit.

38. This defendant, further answering, denies that it on or about the 30th day of June, 1896, or at any other time prior or subsequent thereto, either in its own name, or in the name of any of its officers, or in the name of any corporation controlled by it, or in any other manner whatsoever, had entered into any contract whereby it was obligated to construct a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, for the purpose alleged in the amended ancillary bill, or for any other purpose, but states that this defendant was never in any way obligated or bound to build the said railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, or any part thereof, and never assumed any obligation in connection therewith; this defendant denies that it at any time caused the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company hereinafter called the Northern Company to be incorporated, and denies that it caused certain of its officers and employes to be elected as officers and directors of the said Northern Company, and denies that this defendant at all times, or at any time, dominated or controlled the affairs of the said Northern Company; denies that this defendant set about to discover a way in which it could cause the said railroad to be constructed without incurring any liability itself; denies that it had anything to do with the construction of the said railroad except as the financial agent of the Belt Company, as hereinafter stated; denies that it conceived the idea or purpose of having the Belt Company undertake the construction of the said railroad; denies that it by any means whatever caused or attempted to cause a contract to be entered into between the said Belt Company and the said Northern Company, whereby the Belt Company agreed to construct the said railroad for the Northern Company.

39. This defendant admits that the Belt Company did enter into a contract with the Northern Company whereby the Belt Company agreed to build said railroad for said Northern Company from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, and that the "Exhibit A" heretofore filed by this defendant in its answer to the original bill of the Cambria Steel Company in this cause, is a true copy of the said contract between said Belt Company and the said Northern Company; denies that it had anything whatever to do with the making of the said contract, or that it in any way controlled or dominated or in any way influenced either of the parties thereto to enter into the same; denies that the said Northern Company's railroad was constructed in any way for the use and benefit of this defendant; denies that this defendant had any interest whatever in the building of the same; denies that the said Northern Railroad has been of any benefit or value to this defendant; denies that the said Northern Railroad has been of no benefit or advantage to the Belt Company, but, upon the contrary states that it has been of large benefit to said Belt Company, and that it was necessary and useful for the corporate uses and purposes of the said Belt Company and denies that the said railroad was built for the purposes and ends of this defendant, or that it had any interest whatever in the same.

40. This defendant denies that all of the money paid out by the Belt Company for the construction of the said Northern Railroad passed through the hands of this defendant, but states, however, that much of said money did pass through the hands of this defendant, for the reasons and to the extent hereinafter stated, but not otherwise; it denies that all of the bonds and stock which were to have been delivered to the said Belt Company under the terms of the said contract, passed through the hands of this defendant, but states that some of said bonds and stocks did pass through the hands of this defendant, for the purposes and to the amount hereinafter stated, and not otherwise. This defendant admits that it proceeded to sell and dispose of some of the said bonds and stock as hereinafter stated, but this was at the special instance and request of the Belt Company and as the financial agent of the said Belt Company, and not otherwise.

41. This defendant denies that it ever at any time when requested failed to account to the said Belt Company for the amount realized by it from the sale of any of said Northern Company's bonds and stock; denies that it has stated or pretended that the construction of the said Northern road by said Belt Company resulted in a loss to that company of about $300,000 or any other sum; but this defendant states that it frequently, at all times when requested, and without request, fully accounted to the said Belt Company for the proceeds of all of said bonds and stock which passed through the hands of this defendant and for any and all moneys which came into its hands or under its control, belonging to the said Belt Company, or in which the Belt Company had any interest; denies that it is, or ought to be in any way chargeable with the amount of any loss which may have resulted to the Belt Company, if any did result, on account of 383 its contract to build the said Northern Railroad, denies that this defendant is in any way responsible therefor, or should be held accountable therefor.

42. This defendant, further answering, states that the facts connected with the building of the said Northern road are as follows: The business of the Belt Company was not that of a trunk line, but consisted in switching for trunk lines and for industries situated along its line, and in furnishing terminal facilities for other railroads that might want to enter Kansas City, and had no terminal facilities of their own, hence it was to the advantage and interest of the Belt Company to encourage and assist as many industries as possible to locate along its line, and also to assist and encourage other trunk lines of railroad to enter Kansas City, and to use the terminals of the said Belt Company for the purpose of entering, either by aiding said trunk lines to build in to Kansas City, or by building out to meet them.

43. That in 1896, although all of the several portions of the said Belt Company's railroad system had been constructed, and operated for several years, yet the Belt Company found that it had been and still was unable to earn enough from its business to pay a fair return on its investment, hence it conceived the idea of building a railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, there to meet the Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad, and the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad, and at an intervening point to meet the Chicago Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, and thereby to furnish to those three railroads an entrance into Kansas City, which railroads would use the tracks and other terminal facilities of the Belt Company and pay a large and profitable rental therefor, and furnish a large and profitable switching business to the Belt Company. It was also thought by the Belt Company that it could make a large profit in constructing the said Northern railroad on its own account. So it was that the Belt Company caused the Northern Company to be organized, without any suggestion or domination by this defendant whatever, and the Northern Company was organized for the purpose of building a railroad from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, and for the reasons above stated. The Belt Company caused some of its directors, officers, employees and stockholders to be chosen as the directors and officers of the Northern Company and the said company afterward authorized the issuance of first mortgage bonds to the extent of $20,000 per mile of the road to be built and second mortgage income bonds in the amount of $15,000 per mile for each mile of road to be built, and made this defendant one of the trustees under both of the mortgages securing such bonds, 384 and authorized the issuance of — shares of capital stock.

44. The Belt Company had no means whatever with which to carry out its contract for constructing the said railroad, except such as it might be able to realize from the sale of the bonds and stock of the Northern Company, and at the special instance and request of the Belt Company and the Northern Company, this defendant undertook to act as their financial agent in the sale and disposition of such of the bonds and stock of said Northern Company as it could find purchasers for, and at such price as it might be able to obtain. That the said second mortgage income bonds had no market value, and only in one or two exceptional cases was this defendant able to sell any of the said second mortgage income bonds for any money, but found it necessary in selling the first mortgage bonds to deliver to the purchaser some of the second mortgage bonds as a bonus. The capital stock of the Northern Company had no market or other value.

45. That this defendant for and on account of the said Belt Company and Northern Company and at their special instance and request from time to time sold bonds and stock, issued by the said Northern Company, at the highest and best prices which could be obtained therefor; that this defendant was unable to find purchasers for said stock and bonds as fast as the money was needed by the Belt Company and Northern Company to meet their demands in the construction of said Northern railroad, and it was understood and agreed between them and this defendant that this defendant should have as many of said bonds as it was willing to buy at the prices name by them and that this defendant should have the right to deduct from the purchase price thereof in settlement an amount equal to what would be a fair commission in case such bonds had been sold by this defendant to other persons; that in pursuance to said understanding and for the purpose of furnishing and supplying money to the Northern Company and the Belt Company for the building of said connecting road this defendant did buy from the said Belt Company certain of said bonds and stock at prices then and there agreed upon, which prices were fair and reasonable and fully as much if not more than the prices at which the securities of said Northern Company were being sold for to others. This defendant avers that it has fully, faithfully and promptly accounted to the said Belt Company and to the said Northern Company in all and singular the transactions had between them in connection with the bonds and stock of the said Northern Company and in connection with every other matter or thing; that this defendant from time to time paid to and 385 paid out for and on account of the said Northern Company and the said Belt Company all of the proceeds of all the said bonds and stock so sold by it and also all of the purchase price of all of the said bonds and stock so purcha-ed by it, and the said Northern Company and the said Belt Company accepted and received the benefit thereof; that all moneys received by this defendant for its services in the premises and for its commission in selling and disposing of the said bonds and stock and for its services in advancing money to the said Belt Company for the purpose of building the said Northern Company's road were and are fair and reasonable, were fully agreed upon at the time and have long since been settled and closed, and complainants should now be held estopped from questioning the same.

46. That on or about the first day of April, 1900, there was an entire change in the officers and management of the said Belt Company and the persons who were at that time chosen as its officers and directors were in no way connected with or interested in this defendant Trust Company, but were hostile to it, but that nevertheless the said Belt Company received and accepted the proceeds and benefits of the contract for the building of said Northern Company's road, and that since the said change in the management of the Belt Company as well as prior thereto, the Belt Company has claimed the stock and bonds, payable under the said construction contract, as its own property, and the said Belt Company, both prior to and since the said change in its management, has continued to exercise acts of ownership and control over such of said bonds and stock of said Northern Company as remained in the treasury of said Belt Company, as aforesaid, and this defendant says that all and singular the dealings and transactions between it and the said Belt Company in respect to the securities issued by the Northern Company and in relation to any and all other matters complained of in the ancillary bill were fully known to, acquiesced in, approved and ratified by the officers, directors and stockholders of the said Belt Company, and that by reason of the premises complainants are estopped to complain and are estopped from asserting that the said contract for the construction of the Northern road was in fact the contract of this defendant and not of the Belt Company, and are estopped from claiming that this defendant should in any way be held responsible for any alleged loss that arose, if any, on account of the carrying out of the said contract by the Belt Company, and are estopped to claim that this defendant has not fully and truly accounted for all moneys or property coming into its hands as aforesaid, and this defendant avers that it has fully and fairly accounted to the Belt Company in all of the transactions aforesaid.

386 That an operating contract was entered into between the Belt Company and the Northern Company for the use by the latter of the terminal facilities of the Belt Company and that under said contract large and increasing profits and revenues accrued to the Belt Company; that said contract was ratified and adopted by said Knott and Swinney, receivers of said Belt Company, and complainants herein, and was afterwards adopted by the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, purchaser of the property and franchises of the Belt Company at the foreclosure sale hereinabove mentioned.

47. This defendant, further answering, denies that the Belt Company at any time advanced any money to this defendant, or that the defendant took out of the earnings or assets of the Belt Company any sums of money whatever, which it pretended to expend for and on behalf of the Belt Company, or otherwise; denies that the Belt Company ever advanced or delivered to it any money, at any time or times, except such as it was able, from time to time, to deliver to this defendant, in part payment of the indebtedness which the Belt Company from time to time owed to this defendant. The fact is that the Belt Company never was in a position to advance any money to anybody; it needed all the money it had and frequently more too, for its current requirements, and instead of the Belt Company's advancing any money to this defendant for any purpose whatever, the contrary is true, that this defendant advanced money to the Belt Company on several occasions to keep said Belt Company from bankruptcy and to keep it a going concern. This defendant denies that it was ever requested by the Belt Company, or by anyone else, to account for any money alleged to have been so advanced or so taken out of the treasury of the Belt Company by it; that, as a matter of fact; there never was any ground or basis for supposing that this defendant had ever wrongfully gotten any of the Belt Company's money.

48. This defendant, in further answering, denies that it during the times hereinbefore mentioned, or at any time took upon itself the business of paying out practically all of the moneys which were paid out for the benefit of the said Belt Company, but states that this defendant did, from its own funds, frequently, and at various times advance large sums of money to and for the use and benefit of the Belt Company because the said Belt Company had at such times no money itself with which to meet demands that from time to time were pressing, and to make improvements and betterments that were absolutely necessary for its success as a money earning institution.

387 49. This defendant denies that it took upon itself the duty of buying for the Belt Company practically all or any of the property which the said Belt Company needed to acquire in its business of operating said railroad, and denies that it used any money of the Belt Company for any such purpose; denies that it caused other corporations to be formed for the purpose of holding the legal title to any properties purchased for the use and benefit of the Belt Company; denies that it caused the capital stock of any such corporations to be issued to the Belt Company; and then turned over to this defendant, or to be issued to this defendant direct, or otherwise, for any purpose whatever; denies that this defendant caused its own servants, agents and employes to be elected and continued as the officers and directors of any such companies, at any time; denies that this defendant, in the manner alleged in the amended ancillary bill or in any other manner, controlled the affairs of the Belt Company or controlled the actions and affairs of any of the said alleged subsidiary companies; denies that this defendant caused the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company to be incorporated for the purpose alleged in the amended ancillary bill or for any other purpose.

50. This defendant states that the Elevator Company was organized by the procurement of the Belt Company for the purpose of acquiring and erecting grain elevators along the line of the Belt Company, so as to furnish such facilities as would increase the business and earnings of the Belt Company. That said Elevator Company acquired certain lands in what is known as the East Bottoms of Kansas City, Missouri, and caused to be erected thereon three elevators, one of which has since been destroyed by fire. That this defendant advanced to the said Elevator Company large sums of money for the erection of said elevators, and received from the said Elevator Company three mortgages or deeds of trust, one on each of said elevators, two for $12,000 each, and one for $8,000, which sums were justly due and owing to this defendant. That one of the said elevators was consumed by fire, and the amount of insurance thereon was collected by Wash Adams, the receiver of the Elevator Company and was paid by him to this defendant company and its receiver, and was duly credited upon the note which was secured by the mortgage on that elevator, leaving a balance still due on account of that mortgage of $4,251.50; that on the remaining two mortgages, one for $12,000 and the other for $8,000 nothing has been paid, and the interest on all of them has been long in default, and this defendant still holds said mortgages on said property.

388 51. The said Belt Company, from time to time, advanced some money to the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, which went into the construction of the said elevators, and was the owner of 425 shares of the capital stock of the said Elevator Company of the par value of $100 each, which is all of the stock which the said Elevator Company has ever issued. It is true that the said elevator property was purchased and the said elevators built for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, but it is untrue that it was done by this defendant, and inasmuch as the Belt Company is the owner of all of the outstanding stock of the Elevator Company, it is in this sense true that all of the property of the Elevator Company belongs to the Belt Company, subject, however, to the lien of the mortgages thereon to this defendant, as before stated.

52. This defendant has not and never had any interest in any of the property standing in the name of the said Elevator Company except as the holder of the said mortgages. This defendant denies that it ever failed or refused to account to the Belt Company for all of its transactions in connection with the said Elevator Company's property, and denies that it ever received any funds from the Belt Company, for the purpose of constructing said elevator; denies that it caused the Belt Company to assume of all the outstanding debts and liabilities of the said Elevator Company, but states that if the Belt Company did assume such outstanding debts and liabilities, it was a proper thing for it to do, as it is and was by reason of its being the sole stockholder in the said company, the beneficial owner of all of the property of the Elevator Company, subject to the said debts and liabilities, and there is no reason, in law or equity, why the Belt Company should be reimbursed for paying its own debts, or discharging obligations upon its own property if it did discharge any such obligations. This respondent admits that Wash Adams, Esq., was appointed receiver of the Elevator Company, as alleged in the amended ancillary bill, and that he has since been discharged as such receiver.

53. This defendant denies that it caused the Improvement Company to be organized for the purpose of holding the legal title to various pieces of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, or elsewhere, purchased for the use and benefit of the said Belt Company, and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Company, or either of them, or for any other purpose; it denies that it dominated the Improvement Company or that it caused its servants and employes to be elected as the officers and directors of the said Improvement Company; it denies that any money whatever was at any time paid and by the Belt
389 Company to this defendant, for the purpose of purchasing any pieces of real estate to be held by the said Improvement Company; denies that any shares of stock of the Improvement Company were ever at any time issued to this defendant; denies that this defendant ever had any interest in or owned any of the stock of the Improvement Company; denies that any request or demand has ever been made by the Belt Company or anyone else, to or on this defendant for an accounting for any funds alleged to have been advanced to this defendant by the Belt Company for the purpose of buying land for the Improvement Company, or for an accounting for the alleged disposition of any of the stock of the said Improvement Company.

54. It is true that a corporation known as the Central Improvement Company was organized, but this was not done at the instance of respondent, but was done by the procurement of the Belt Company and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company for the purpose of securing and acquiring title to various tracts of land in and about Kansas City. It is true that the Belt Company furnished some of the money to be paid upon the purchase price of the land bought by the Improvement Company; it is also true that the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company advanced some money for the same purpose. Upon such money being furnished from time to time by the said Railroad Company to the Improvement Company the latter company issued to the Belt Company at different times 1120 shares of its capital stock and also issued certain shares of its stock to the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company on account of the money furnished by it. All or practically all of the outstanding stock of the Improvement Company has been issued to and is now held by the said Belt Company, and the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and their assigns; that this defendant has not now and never has had any interest in the property of the Improvement Company except that it holds a mortgage on a certain piece of the property owned by the said Improvement Company to secure certain promissory notes aggregating the sum of $5,000, which mortgage was a subsisting lien upon the property at the time the Improvement Company bought it, and which mortgage was subsequently purchased and is now held by this defendant. This defendant also holds certain stock of the Improvement Company, as collateral security for an indebtedness due this defendant from the said Belt Company. The defendant admits that Wash Adams, Esquire, was appointed receiver of the said Improvement Company; that he afterwards resigned and that T. T. Crittenden was appointed as receiver in his place and stead, and that said T. T. Crittenden now has pos-390 session and control of its property as alleged in the said amended ancillary bill.

55. This defendant denies that it caused the Fairmount Amusement Company to be organized, or to be dominated or controlled by it, as alleged in the amended ancillary bill, or in any way; denies that the Belt Company ever advanced any money to this defendant for the purpose of purchasing or improving the property of the Amusement Company. This respondent admits that all of the capital stock of the Amusement Company belongs to the Belt Company, subject, however, to the lien of the Trust Company upon it as a pledge for the security of certain indebtedness of the Belt Company to this defendant, as hereinafter shown. This defendant states that it does not know what moneys, if any, the Amusement Company ever expended, if any, and does not know who furnished the money; but this defendant denies that the Belt Company ever supplied this defendant with any money to be used in furthering the ends or purposes of the Amusement Company; denies that this defendant ever took upon itself the duty of disposing of or disbursing any money for the Belt Company for any such purpose; denies that large sums of money or any sums of money were ever paid by the Belt Company to this defendant for that purpose; denies that the Belt Company or any one else has ever asked this defendant for an accounting on account of any such money alleged to have been furnished to this defendant for any such purpose.

56. It is true that the Amusement Company was organized for the purpose of operating what is commonly known as Fairmount Park; that said park was established by the said Air Line and the Belt Company for the purpose of creating passenger traffic for the said Air Line and the Belt Company to and from the said park; that the said park was operated as a place of recreation and amusement, in order to attract residents of Kansas City and vicinity to the same and to cause them to use the line of the said Air Line and the said Belt Company for transportation to and from said park, and that said park at the time it was established, and for more than six years thereafter, had no transportation facilities except those afforded by the said Air Line and the said Belt Company, and that the said Air Line and the said Belt Company derived large revenues and profits from passenger traffic in connection with said park. It is untrue that this defendant at any time caused said Belt Company to advance to it large sums of money for the purpose of fitting up Fairmount Park; it is true, however, that this defendant, itself did advance, at the special instance and request of the Air Line and 391 the Belt Company, from time to time, large sums of money in the fitting up of Fairmount park, and that it charged the same to the said Air Line, and afterwards to the Belt Company when the account of the Air Line was merged in that of and assumed by the Belt Company; but this defendant denies that the Belt Company ever supplied the Trust Company with any money for that purpose; denies that the Belt Company or anyone else ever requested this defendant to account for any money alleged to have been advanced to it by the Belt Company in fitting up said Fairmount Park, but states that no such money was furnished; all of the money which this defendant advanced towards fitting up Fairmount Park was charged, as aforesaid, to the Air Line or to the Belt Company, and due and proper accounts were rendered thereof from month to month as the work progressed, and were duly audited and approved; the originals of such bills and accounts so rendered have been ever since and are now in the possession of the Belt Company and its receivers. That all of the transactions of whatever nature between this defendant and the Air Line or the Belt Company in reference to Fairmount Park were fully accounted for, known to and ratified and approved by all of the office-s, directors and stockholders of the Air Line Company and the Belt Company, and the said complainants should be held estopped from now questioning the same.

57. This defendant denies that it caused to be organized what is known as the Northern Townsite Company; denies that it dominated and controlled the affairs of the said Townsite Company; denies that it caused the Belt Company to advance to it upwards of $5,000, or any other sum which was used by this defendant in the purchase of property which was taken in the name of the said Townsite Company; denies that all or substantially all of the money that was used for the purpose of acquiring the property of the Townsite Company was money advanced by the Belt Company; and denies that this defendant instead of issuing to the said Belt Company all of the capital stock of the said Townsite Company, issued large portions thereof to itself, or to other persons for its use and benefit; or that it otherwise disposed of the same, except as hereinafter stated; denies that the Belt Company or any one else has ever requested it to account for any money alleged to have been received by this defendant from the Belt Company for the purposes of the Townsite Company. It is true that the Townsite Company was organized for the purpose of acquiring real estate along the line of the Northern Company; the facts are that this defendant and the Belt Company supplied all of the money that was used in purchasing lands by the Townsite Company. The Belt 392 Company paid into the treasury of the Townsite Company $6,286.57, and received therefor 439 shares of the capital stock of the said Townsite Company of the par value of $100 each, and this defendant paid into the treasury of the said Townsite Company $6,720.07, and received 489 shares of the capital stock of said Townsite Company, of the par value of $100 each; that said shares so issued to the Belt Company and to this defendant, were issued in proper proportion to the amount of money paid in by each, and that the amount of money paid into the treasury of the said Townsite Company by this defendant and the Belt Company was equivalent to about $14.32 on each share of stock so issued to them respectively. That 24 shares of said stock were issued to each of the following named parties: A. E. Stilwell, C. A. Braley and J. T. Nolthenius, in compensation for their services as directors and officers of the Townsite Company, and that no other stock of the said Townsite Company has been issued to anyone. That the defendant owes the Belt Company nothing on account of the Townsite Company's affairs, and there is nothing to call for any accounting by this defendant to the Belt Company in connection therewith.

58. This defendant denies that it caused the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company to be formed, but admits, however, that the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company was formed for the purposes stated in the said ancillary bill, and that it issued the bonds to the amount therein stated; that the defanlt therein stated was made, and that the foreclosure proceedings stated therein were had. This defendant denies that either the Belt Company, the Union or Air Line Companies were largely dependent upon the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, for their earnings; it admits that an operating contract was in existence between the Belt Company and the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, but it denies that it was well known to this defendant that if the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company went into the hands of receivers, it would result in the insolvency of the Belt and other companies before named, or that it would necessitate their ultimately being thrown into the hands of receivers, and the mortgages upon their respective properties foreclosed.

59. This defendant denies that it at any time set about to contrive a scheme whereby it might appropriate to itself before the Belt Company should pass beyond its control, any of the property or assets of the Belt Company; denies that it caused to be exhibited to its own officers and directors who were holding the position of officers or directors of the Belt Company, various claims and demands which it alleged were due and owing by the Belt Company to it; denies that it caused such of its own officers and em-393 ployes who were holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company to pass upon and approve such claims and demands; denies that this defendant caused its own officers and employes who were holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company to execute to this defendant various pretended promissory notes and other negotiable instruments for the alleged purposes of securing to this defendant the payment of such pretended claims as alleged in the amended ancillary bill; denies that this defendant caused to be delivered and transferred to it various stocks, bonds and accounts and other personal property belonging to the Belt Company as collateral security for the said pretended indebtedness by the means or for the purposes alleged in the amended ancillary bill.

60. This defendant states, however, that the said Belt Company did for value received execute and deliver to this defendant from time to time in part payment of the indebtedness of said Belt Company, to this defendant, certain promissory notes, which notes are more particularly hereinafter set out and described and are now held and owned by this defendant, upon which notes there is now due and owing from the said Belt Company and its receivers an amount aggregating more than one-half million dollars.

61. And this defendant shows to the court that the Belt Company assigned and pledged to the respondent as collateral security for the payment of the said promissory notes and other indebtedness, held by this defendant against the Belt Company, the stock, bonds and property stated in the amended ancillary bill of complaint, except that the item of property stated in the amended ancillary bill as being 600 tons of steel rails was in fact about 344 tons of steel rails and about 17 tons of fastenings.

62. This defendant denies that the said notes were executed or that the said stock, bonds and property were given as collateral security by reason or through any domination or control of this defendant over the Belt Company. It is true that at the time the said notes were given and the said property assigned as collatera security that a majority of the officers and directors of the Belt Company were connected with this defendant, either as its officers, directors or employes, but this respondent denies that any of the officers or directors of the Belt Company were personally interested in securing to this defendant any of the assets of the Belt Company which in equity or good conscience ought not to have been secured and denies that the execution of said promissory 394 notes, or either of them or the delivery of the said collateral security or any part thereof, was fraudulent or void for any reason whatever.

63. On the contrary this defendant states and shows to the court that the Belt Company was justly indebted to this defendant at and prior to the time of the execution and delivery of the said promissory notes respectively, for moneys from time to time loaned to the said Belt Company, or advanced by this defendant and paid out to and for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, all subsequent to the first day of January, 1898; that each and all of said notes were given for the purpose of evidencing a bona fide indebtedness to the amount specified in said notes. That said notes were executed and delivered, and the said collateral security assigned and pledged in good faith for the purpose of evidencing and securing the payment of debts justly and equitably due and not otherwise. That all of said notes were given for so much money loaned and advanced by this defendant to the Belt Company, subsequent to the first day of January, 1898, as aforesaid.

64. This defendant denies that it kept its officers and directors, or caused its officers and directors to be continued as the officers and directors of the Belt Company during the time stated in the amended ancillary bill, or at any time. It is true, that many of the officers and directors of the Belt Company were also officers and directors of this defendant, but that condition was occasioned by the fact that the stockholders of the Belt Company, who were persons other than this defendant elected certain officers, directors and employes of this defendant as officers and directors of the Belt Company, and it was not occasioned by any domination or control of this defendant, or by any influence whatever exerted by or on behalf of this defendant, and there never was, at any time, any officer, director or employe of this defendant, who was also an officer or employe of the Belt Company who desired or wished this defendant in any way to have or acquire any undue advantage whatever of the Belt Company, and there was at all times open and careful accounting had between the Belt Company and this defendant of all transactions in which they had any mutual connection.

65. This defendant denies that the only accounting which has ever been had between it and the Belt Company has been such an accounting as its officers and employes holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company pretended to make and this defendant denies that the only accounting, which 395 has been had between it and the Belt Company, has been such as was made by the officers of said companies in looking over and going through the form of approving the accounts and statements rendered the Belt Company by this defendant, but on the contrary this defendant states that the mutual accountings between [his] defendant and the Belt Company were faithfully made and were the result of a thorough and systematic method of bookkeeping, and that from time to time the mutual accounts between the said companies were thoroughly examined and checked by the proper officers of said companies and said accounts duly approved, and if any inaccuracies existed therein same were corrected and adjusted at the time.

66. This defendant states that it kept full, true and correct accounts of all and singular its dealings with the Belt Company and all other companies herein mentioned; that this defendant employed, in conducting its business, what is known as the voucher system of bookkeeping, whereby a voucher is made for each and every transaction wherein any money is disbursed or paid out; that such voucher contains on its face the receipt of the person or corporation to whom any such money is paid; that for every disbursement made by this defendant it has on hand a voucher showing the person to whom the disbursement was made, the amount thereof and on what account, to which is appended the receipt of the person to whom such payment was made; that this defendant at all times herein mentioned had and still has on hand a voucher known as a journal voucher for each [a-d] every charge or credit made against or in favor of any account on its books, such voucher containing full details of the transaction; that all such vouchers are and were at all times carefully and systematically filed by this defendant in numerical order; that a full, true and correct transcript of all such vouchers is contained and set forth in the books of this defendant and that the said books of this defendant have at all times been carefully and correctly kept, and this defendant states that during all or most of the time, during which the transactions complained of in the said bill took place, the Belt Company used and employed the same system of accounting; that in each and every case that this defendant made any charge against the Belt Company or any of the other companies named herein or gave any credit to the Belt Company or any of the other of said companies, immediate notice thereof was given by this defendant to the Belt Company or such other company against whom or in favor of — such charge or credit was made or given; that if this defendant received any money or property for which the 396 said Belt Company or any other of said companies was entitled to credit, such fact with full details of the transaction, were then and there communicated to the said companies respectively, and if the Belt Company and the other companies hereinabove mentioned, found said credit correctly given it immediately entered the same upon their own books respectively, and the same is true of all other companies with which this defendant had any dealings, and if any charge was made by this defendant against the Belt Company or any other company herein named the same was immediately reported to the said Belt Company or to such other company against which the charge was made, and if such charge was found to be correct, such charge was entered upon the books of the Belt Company or on the books of the company against which such charge was made; that such charges and credits were made regularly and in the ordinary course of business and continued over a long period of time; that if this defendant charged anything to the Belt Company for commission or services in any particular transaction and such charge was found to be correct by the officers of the Belt Company, all such charges were entered and extended upon the books of the Belt Company; that at regular stated intervals the respective auditors of the respective companies, including said Belt Company, checked and verified the balances between the said companies, and if any inaccuracies were found therein the same were immediately adjusted and corrected; that this system of accounting was employed during the whole period in which this defendant had any dealings with the Belt Company or any of the other companies herein mentioned; that it was at all times the aim and intention of this defendant its accounts should be full, true and correct and that any person or corporation with whom it had been dealing should have full and free access to the same, and should have full and free information as to the state of such accounts and that such aim and intention herein was at all times carried out. Respondent denies that such checking and verifying of such accounts was a mere pretense and sham, but on the contrary states that the proper officers and employes of the respondent, and of the Belt Company and of all the other companies in which the Belt Company was interested, at all times during the period in which the said alleged grievances took place, in so doing, acted with an eye single to the protection of their respective companies, to the end that the books and accounts of such respective companies should speak the truth and should at all times correctly show the state of such accounts. That from time to time the said Belt Company through its officers caused to be exhibited to each and all of its stockholders statements of the accounts between the Belt Company and defendant, based on the books of accounts 397 of said Belt Company and of defendant and that said stockholders were satisfied with said book showing and made no objection thereto and complainants should now be held estopped from questioning same.

67. Respondent further denies that at any time prior to the institution of this suit the complainants, in the original bill or the complanants in the said amended ancillary bill ever requested respondent for any accounting as to its dealings with the said Belt Company or that respondent ever refused to make any such accounting; on the contrary respondent states that it repeatedly, prior to the institution of this suit and during the month of June, 1900, at which time there was a complete change of management of the said Belt Company, demanded of the said Belt Company and its receivers and the persons representing them that they and the said Belt Company pay to this Trust Company the amount of its and their indebtedness to this defendant and that this defendant requested the Belt Company and its receivers to make an examination of the books of this defendant in order to again satisfy them that the said indebtedness was justly due to this defendant, and this defendant states that prior to the institution of this suit the Belt Company had its own experts make such examination and that such experts did make such examination, with the result that it found a difference of only one cent between the accounts as shown on the books of this defendant and as shown on the books of the Belt

Company; that the said Belt Company and its receivers have frequently, prior to the institution of this suit, recognized the said indebtedness of this defendant against the Belt Company as valid and just, and have frequently promised to pay the same; that in the month of June, 1900, the Belt Company, which was then managed by persons, none of whom were in any way connected with this defendant, paid on account of some of the said promissory notes, held by this defendant, and executed by the Belt Company, large sums of money, which were duly cerdited thereon, as hereinafter shown, and promised to pay the balance due on said notes and other indebtedness.

68. This defendant states that by reason of the premises complainants herein are not entitled to have any further accounting and this defendant states that it would be a manifest hardship and injustice upon it to be obliged to again account to the complainants or to the said Belt Company; that the dealings for which the complainants ask an accounting cover a period of more than ten years prior to the institution of this suit; that during said period this defendant, at the special instance and request of the said Belt Company and its constituent companies, at divers times received and paid out for the said Belt Company vast sums of money, 398 involving thousands of transactions, and that in such transactions this defendant received and disbursed several millions of dollars, and that in each and all of said transactions this defendant fully accounted at the time; that each and all of said transactions were fully known to and acquiesced in by the officers, directors and stockholders of the Belt Company and its constituent and allied companies, and that to now, after so many years, require this defendant to have all of its accounts opened and re-examined will result in manifest hardship and injustice; that this defendant has at all times denied that complainants were entitled to any further accounting in this suit; that it is not true that this defendant has prepared and submitted any statement of account to said complainant since the filing of the original and ancillary bills herein, and this defendant states having already accounted so fully to the said companies there is no occasion for any further accounting herein; this defendant states that it is true, however, that its auditor has been called by the complainants herein as a witness before the special master to whom the issues herein were referred by this honorable court and that at the request of said complainants this defendant's auditor did, as a part of his testimony before said special master, submit a statement of the ledger account between this defendant and the Belt Company, and this defendant states that said statement is a true and correct statement of said account; this defendant denies that said account is insufficient or untrue; denies that said statement does not properly or fully account for the stocks and bonds and other properties received by this defendant from, for or on account of the Belt Company; denies that any of the charges against the Belt Company in said account are untrue or illegal or unauthorized, and this defendant states that all of such charges are just and correct both in law and in equity; this defendant denies that the said witness has omitted from said statement any credits to which the Belt Company is entitled; this defendant admits that in the year 1893, it had accounts on its books against the Union Company, the Consolidated Company, the Air Line and the Belt Company, and that in said year all of said accounts were merged by this defendant with its said account in the Belt Company, but this was because the Belt Company had consolidated with said Consolidated Company and had acquired all of the capital stock of the Union Company and the Air Line, and it is true that for this reason all charges made against or on account of said lines were afterwards made by this defendant against the Belt Company and were assumed by the Belt Company.

69. In answer to paragraph 1 of said amended ancillary bill this defendant admits that the Suburban Company was or-
399 ganized under the law of the State of Missouri or or about January 8, 1887, but denies that nothing was done by said company in the way of construction of its road until on or about May 31, 1889, but states that the preliminary surveys of said road had been made and that a franchise had been obtained by it from the city of Kansas City, Missouri, for the use of streets and highways in said city, and this defendant again denies that it caused the said company to issue any securities, stock or bonds, but states that any securities issued by said company were caused to be issued by its own stockholders and officers, and this defendant again denies that it caused the incorporation of the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, hereinafter called the Construction Company, and this defendant again denies that it caused the said Suburban Company on or about May 31, 1889, or at any other time to enter into any contract with A. E. Stilwell for the construction of said line or any other contract, and again denies that it, this defendant, caused the said Construction Company to build the said railroad from Broadway street in Kansas City, Missouri, along Second street to Harrison street or along any other street or place, but on the contrary this defendant states that said Construction Company had its own stockholders, officers and directors and conducted its own business in its own way, and made its own contracts, as did also said Suburban Company; this defendant states that the said Suburban Company did make and enter into a contract with A. E. Stilwell on or about June 1, 1889, for the construction of said line in consideration of certain stock and bonds to be issued to the said Stilwell or his assigns by the said Belt Company, and afterwards the said Stilwell did transfer to this defendant as trustee for the said Construction Company the said contract, but this defendant denies that said Stilwell transferred said contract, as aforesaid, in consideration of the sum of $10,000 or any other sum, and this defendant states that it did not receive one cent or any valuable thing whatsoever from said Stilwell or any other person in connection with the transfer of said contract, and this defendant denies that upon the transfer of said contract this defendant undertook to comply with the terms of said contract or any one of them but states that there was no reason why it should do so; and this defendant denies that it had any interest whatsoever in the said contract; this defendant denies that it caused its own stockholders, employes, officers and directors to be elected and appointed officers and directors of the Construction Company and denies that it at any time dominated or controlled the Construction Company, but on the contrary states that said Construction Company was dominated and con-

400 trolled by its own adult stockholders and directors, and that said Construction Company was organized at the instance and by the procurement of the Suburban Company and not otherwise; this defendant denies that the Construction Company was made up of the stockholders, employes, officers and directors of this defendant and such of their friends as they were willing to appoint to come in and enjoy the fruits and profits of said alleged plan as alleged. It is true that certain persons, who were officers of or connected with this defendant, owned some stock in the Construction Company, but this was not caused by this defendant, and this defendant states that in the main the stockholders of the Construction Company were persons who had invested in such stock and who lived in various parts of the United States, and it is true that the Construction Company proceeded with the construction of that portion of the road of the Suburban Company from Broadway to Cecil Junction, but this defendant is not advised as to the cost of such construction; this defendant denies that it had anything to do with the delivery of said road by the Construction Company to the Suburban Company; denies that it caused the Suburban Company to accept the said railroad from the Construction Company in an incomplete condition as a full compliance with the requirements of said construction contract, and this defendant denies that it caused the Suburban Company to direct this defendant to turn over to the Construction Company the stocks and bonds described in said construction contract, but states that all the acts and doings of the Suburban Company and the Construction Company were the free act and deed of said respective companies; this defendant admits that after the said road was turned over to the Belt Company by the Construction Company the Suburban Company did issue to the Construction Company its stock and bonds as hereinabove set forth and this defendant avers that afterward the said securities were distributed by the Construction Company among its own stockholders. This defendant denies that it caused the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance by the said Construction Company with the terms of said contract with the Suburban Company as and for a full compliance, denies that it caused said securities to be issued and denies that it caused the Suburban Company to at any time enter into any contract, and denies that it at any time dominated and controlled the [the] Suburban Company for any purpose or at all.

70. This defendant further states that it has no information sufficient to found a belief upon as to the cost of the road and right-of-way constructed and acquired by the Construction Company and turned over to the Suburban Company, but this defendant denies that the stocks and bonds turned over by the Suburban 401 Company to the Construction Company were worth reasonably the sum of $480,000.00, but on the contrary states that said securities were worth much less than that sum. Respondent denies that it received from the Suburban Company any of the stocks and bonds turned over to it by the Construction Company, and states that it received no stock or bonds from the Construction Company except those which it had paid for either in cash or in services. This defendant denies that it should, in equity and good conscience, account to the complainants for any of the profits, if any, made by the Construction Company in said transactions; that said transactions took place more than ten years prior to the institution of this suit; that the Suburban Company and its stockholders fully ratified the same, and this defendant pleads the statute of limitations of Missouri, hereinafter set out, as to said transactions.

71. This defendant further states that at the time of the Suburban Company accepted said road from the said Construction Company said Suburban Company had issued no stock whatsoever, and that at the time said road was turned over by the said Construction Company to the Suburban Company the only stockholders of the Suburban Company were the stockholders of the said Construction Company, and that if, as alleged, the said Construction contract was not in all respects carried out by the Construction Company, which this defendant denies, that no person was injured thereby except the stockholders of the said Construction Company, who were then the sole stockholders of the said Suburban Company; that at the time said road was turned over to the Suburban Company by the Construction Company, as aforesaid, the entire property of the Suburban Company consisted of a line of railroad extending from Second and Wyandotte streets in Kansas City, Missouri, in an easterly direction to Cecil Junction; that at said time the said road had neither freight nor passenger traffic of any consequence and could not reasonably expect to have such traffic unless it further extended its road or acquired other lines of railroad; that said line of railroad was not extended by the Suburban Company from said Cecil Junction to Brush Creek in Jackson County, Missouri, until a long time afterward; that at said time the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company and the Union Terminal Railroad Company and the Air Line had not yet been organized nor their lines constructed and that was not done until long afterward, and that at the time said Construction Company delivered said road to the Belt Company as aforesaid the facilities and property so turned over were entirely adequate for the then requirements of the said Suburban Company; that 402 long afterward through the extension of its line and through the acquisition of other lines of railroad the passenger and freight traffic of the said Suburban Company and the said Belt Company increased to such an extent that it became necessary to acquire and construct switching yards, depots and round houses and other structures and facilities for the carrying on of said business; that among the increased facilities acquired, as aforesaid, were a large and expensive passenger depot at Second and Wyandotte streets in Kansas City, costing about $65,000.00; that said depot was not acquired or constructed until several years after the said Construction Company had turned over said road to the Suburban Company, as aforesaid, and that said round houses, depots and additional terminal grounds became necessary solely through the increased traffic, caused by the extension of said Suburban Company's line and the acquisition by said Suburban Company of other lines penetrating the industrial sections of Kansas City and connecting with other lines of railroad entering Kansas City; that such increased facilities were not necessary in the condition the road was in at the time said Construction contract was entered into nor at the time said road was turned over to the Suburban Company by the Construction Company, as aforesaid, and this defendant states that among the items with which the complainants seek to charge this defendant are the expense of the said Suburban Company and the Belt Company in purchasing said increased terminal yards, freight depots, round houses, etc., all of which would be contrary to equity and good conscience, even if this defendant were in any way bound by the contract between said Construction Company and the said Suburban Company, but this defendant again states that it was under no obligation whatsoever to the Suburban Company or any other company or person under said construction contract, nor on account of the manner in which said contract was carried out, said contract was solely between the said Construction — and the said Suburban Company, and this defendant was in no wise a party thereto, except to disburse the securities of the said Suburban Company at the direction of said Suburban Company to the persons entitled thereto.

72. This defendant further states that at the time said first division of the Suburban Company lines between Second and Wyandotte streets and Cecil Junction were turned over by the Construction Company to the Suburban Company each and all of the stockholders of the Suburban Company knew exactly the condition the said line was in, and knew exactly whether or not all of the right-of-way for said line had been paid for and if not paid for the amount of the deferred payments, and knew exactly the cost 403 of the construction of said line; that all of said matters were fully set forth on the books of the said Construction Company and that at the time said line was turned over by the Construction Company to the Suburban Company the books of the Construction Company were turned over to the Suburban Company and have ever since been in the possession of the Suburban Company and its successor, the Belt Company and the receivers of the Belt Company, and that by reason of the premises the complaints are estopped, after so many years have passed, from now asserting that said road was turned over to the Suburban Company in an incomplete condition, and are now estopped from even charging that the said Construction Company, much less this defendant, which had nothing to do with the transactions, with the cost and expense of the Suburban Company and the Belt Company and its receivers in and about the purchase of terminal grounds, depots, right-of-way and the other matters complained of in this connection in the said amended ancillary bill.

73. In answer to paragraph B on page 25 of said amended ancillary bill this defendant denies that there remained in the treasury of the Suburban Company, after it had paid the Construction Company, as aforesaid, bonds of the Suburban Company of the par value of $100,00.00 and denies that said bonds of the par value of $100,000.00 were in any manner taken or appropriated by this defendant for its own benefit or anybody's benefit; denies that said bonds were of the reasonable value of $90,000.00 in money; denies that after the delivery by the Suburban Company to the Construction Company of its stock of the par value of $600,000.00 that stock of the par value of $400,000.00 still remained in the treasury of the Suburban Company, and denies that such stock of the par value of $400,000.00 was in any way taken or appropriated by this defendant and denies that said stock was of the reasonable value of $80,000.00 in money, but on the contrary this defendant states that of the first issue of bonds made by the said Suburban Company, to-wit, bonds of the par value of $500,000.00, all of said bonds with the exception of bonds of the par value of $50,000.00 were delivered to the Construction Company, as aforesaid, and that the remaining bonds of the par value of $50,000.00 were distributed by the said Suburban Company, through its officers, directors and stockholders, to the original promoters of the said Suburban Company for services rendered, and that this defendant got none of said bonds, and that of the first issue of stock of the said Suburban Company of the par value of $1,000,000.00, stock of the par value of $600,000.00, but having at that 404 time no actual value was delivered by the Suburban Company to the said Construction Company as a bonus with said bonds and that of the remaining stock of the par value of $400,000.00, this defendant got none except that which it bought and paid for, as shown on the books of this defendant, and as shown on the books of the said Suburban Company and the said Belt Company.

74. In answer to paragraph C on page 26 of said amended bill, this defendant again states that it was under no obligation, legal or equitable, under the terms of said Construction contract, was not a party to the same, had nothing to do with the execution of the same, had nothing to do with the carrying out of the same, and that there is no reason in law or in equity why this defendant should be charged by reason of the said contract; that all of the monies alleged to have been expended as shown by the alleged bill of items on pages 26 and 27 of said amended bill were monies expended by the said Suburban Company later the Belt Company, for its own benefit in constructing and equipping and improving its own lines and there is no reason in law or in equity why it should not pay its own bills.

75. In answer to paragraph D, on page 28, of said amended bill, this defendant denies that it undertook to procure any right of way for the said Suburban Company, except at the special instance and request of the said Suburban Company; that it is true that this defendant at the request of the Suburban Company, advanced large sums of money to it for various purposes and charged such monies to the said Suburban Company as it had a right to do; that all of such transactions were fully known to and acquiesced in by the said Suburban Company; this defendant denies that it in any instance or at any time caused the Suburban Company or the Belt Company to purchase any right-of-way or execute notes for deferred payments, but that all such transactions were conducted by the Suburban Company or the Belt Company at its own instance and for its own benefit, and that under no circumstances could this defendant by any possibility have benefited thereby; that it is true that this defendant from time to time at the request of the Belt Company paid interest, due from the Belt Company on the obligations of the latter company, and charged such disbursements to the Belt Company, as it had a right to do, and that the said Suburban Company, later the Belt Company, at all times recognized its obligations to reimburse this defendant on account thereof; that it is true that this defendant failed to furnish a depot for the Suburban Company, but there was no reason in law or equity why respondent should furnish a depot or anything else for the Suburban Company; this defendant denies that it was obligated to furnish any depot to the Suburban Company, or to the Belt 405 Company, and denies that the said Construction Company was the agent of the defendant; this defendant admits that for the benefit of the Suburban Company and the Belt Company, and at the request of said Company, it, this defendant advanced a large sum of money to the Belt Company for the construction of a passenger depot at Second and Wyandotte streets, and that it charged the cost thereof to the Suburban Company or to the Belt Company, as it had a right to do, and as the said companies requested it to do, and that each and every charge of each and every item of the expenses of constructing said depot appears not only on the books of this defendant but also in the books of the Belt Company, and the said Belt Company, its officers, directors and stockholders have at all times acquiesced in such charges, which charges were fair, reasonable and proper; that in the printed itemized statement attached to said amended bill and marked "Exhibit I," wherein complainants pretended to set forth the items of expense of the Belt Company for right-of-way, depots and other buildings, and attached to said amended bill marked "Exhibit 1," there are included many items aggregating many thousands of dollars of expense incurred by the said Belt Company in increasing its terminal facilities through the purchase of large tracts of real estate for terminal grounds and switching facilities, and not essential as right-of-way and not requisite to the said Belt Company or the Suburban Company in the enjoyment of their franchise, and that said real estate includes lands purchased by the said Belt Company for its future requirements and in anticipation of future necessities and that such lands were not purchased on account of the then existing needs of the said railway companies, but on the contrary, on account of an expected increase of traffic which would arise from the acquisition of other lines, extensions, the growth of Kansas City and its tributary country, etc., and that said statement is not true and correct; this defendant admits that the said railway companies paid interest on deferred payments due on such real estate which were a lien on some of the lands so purchased by the said Suburban or Belt Companies, but there is no reason in law or in equity why the Suburban Company, later the Belt Company, should not pay interest on their own debts and this defendant is in no wise liable therefor.

76. This defendant in answer to the matters and things averred in paragraph- E to K, inclusive, on pages 29 to 35, inclusive, of said amended bill, again states that it was under no obligation to furnish the said Suburban or Belt Company with any right-of-way or to make any of the payments therein mentioned, and that for the reasons hereinabove set forth, and denies that the complainants
406 are entitled to have any credit upon their indebtedness to this defendant by reason of such payments, and this defendant admits that it did not pay all of the operating expense of the said railway companies, nor for the equipment, maintenance nor extension of their roads, and states that there was no reason in law or in equity why it should do so.

In answer to paragraph L of said amended bill on page 35 thereof this defendant states that it was under no obligation, legal or equitable, to furnish the Suburban or Belt Company with switching yards in Kansas City or elsewhere; denies that the Second Street Improvement Company was one of its auxiliary companies or that this defendant created it; states that the said Second Street Company had its own stockholders, officers and directors, and that while it is true that some of the officers of said Second Street Company were also connected with this defendant, yet this was because the stockholders of the said Second Street Company chose such persons as its officers and not through any act of this defendant; denies that it caused the Second Street Company to lease to the Consolidated Terminal Company the land described in said paragraph L or any land, but says that such lease was entered into between the Second Street Company and the Belt Company of their own free will and accord, and that there is no reason in law or in equity why the said Belt Company should not have paid the rent to the Second Street Company which it agreed to pay, and there is no reason in law or in equity why this defendant should pay the rent due from said Belt Company; but said tract of ground was not necessary to the operation of said Suburban Company, but was purchased by the Belt Company long after the Suburban Company had ceased to exist and long after the Belt Company had acquired the Air Line, the Union Company and the Consolidated Company, and that said tract of land was much larger than the said Belt Company needed to have at the time it leased the same, and same was leased in view of the future requirements of the said Belt Company.

77. In answer to paragraph M on page 36 of said amended bill, this defendant admits that the said Second Street Company leased certain land to the Suburban Company for depot purposes, but denies that it caused the Second Street Company or the Suburban Company to enter into such lease and denies that it had anything to do with the same, and that there is no reason in law or in equity why this defendant should pay the rental on said land or any other rental which the Suburban Company or Belt Company obligated themselves to pay.

407 78. In answer to paragraph N on page 36 of said amended bill, this defendant admits that in March, 1890, the McClelland-Stumpf and Peltzer Brick Manufacturing Company conveyed to Alfred L. Howe the land therein described, and that said land was part of the depot grounds of the Suburban Company, but this defendant denies that said Howe was its agent or dummy, but on the contrary states that said Howe was the treasurer of said Suburban Company and that said land was purchased by said Howe for the use and benefit of said Suburban Company, and at its request. This defendant admits that said Howe made a cash payment to said Brick Company on account of said land and executed his notes as alleged, secured by deed of trust for the deferred payments; that afterward, to-wit: June 23, 1890, said Howe, for a nominal consideration, conveyed said real estate, subject to said incumbrance to the Suburban Company. This defendant admits that when the first of said notes became due it paid the same, at the request of the Suburban Company, and charged the amount of such payment to the Suburban Company, and that afterward and prior to the said consolidation between the Suburban Company and the Consolidated Terminal Company the said Suburban Company liquidated and paid the said charge. This defendant admits that the said Brick Company on March 14, 1890, conveyed certain land described in said paragraph N of said amended bill to one W. S. Taylor, but this defendant denies that said Taylor was its agent or dummy, but on the contrary states that said Taylor was an officer of the Suburban Company and bought said land at its request and for its use and benefit. Defendant admits that a cash payment was made by said Taylor on said real estate and that notes and deed of trust were executed by him to secure the unpaid purchase money, and that afterward said Taylor for a nominal consideration conveyed said real estate to the Suburban Company and this defendant admits that the notes so executed by Taylor and Howe, as aforesaid, aggregated the principal sum of $89,333.33, and that said notes were secured by deed of trust, which was a lien upon the land upon which afterward the said Suburban Company and the Belt Company erected a depot at Second and Wyandotte streets; defendant denies that in October, 1897, the Belt Company was financially embarrassed or insolvent; denies that stock of the Belt Company was depressed in value at said time; this defendant denies that it was desirous of manipulating the accounts of the Belt Company, or that it did at said time or any other time manipulate the accounts of the Belt Company; this defendant denies that any arrangements was made between any of its officers and one J. De Goeijen, Jr., or 408 between it or any other person or corporation whereby it assumed or agreed to pay the real estate notes, which were a lien on the property of the Belt Company, including said notes aggregating $89,333.33, and this defendant denies that it at any time assumed and agreed to pay the said notes, except upon the condition and under the circumstances hereinafter set forth, but on the contrary states that said notes, including said notes aggregating $89,333.33 were assumed by said De Goeijen; this defendant denies that in April, 1899, or at any other time it had reason to believe or believed that it would lose control of the Belt Company and states that at no time did it have control of the Belt Company; denies that it set about to relieve itself of any obligation to pay the said notes aggregating $89,333.33, but states that it had at no time incurred any such obligation; denies that in April, 1899, that the said De Goeijen was indebted to it in an amount in excess of said notes or in any sum, and denies that said De Goeijen was unable to pay his obligations to this defendant or any other person; denies that it caused the Belt Company to take over any account due the defendant from said De Goeijen; denies that it knew that said De Goeijen was insolvent or that it could not collect its account against him, and states that it had no account against said De Goeijen at said time and states that said De Goeijen was at all times solvent; denies that it caused the Belt Company to make any entries on its books and denies that the Belt Company or complainants are entitled to any credit upon their indebtedness due this defendant on account of said notes for $89,333.33, which sum was charged by this defendant to the Belt Company on October 15, 1897.

79. Defendant states that the facts in regard to said item of $89,333.33, charged by it to the Belt Company on October 15, 1897, are as follows, to-wit: Said De Goeijen, Jr., was a resident of Amsterdam in Holland, and he and his associates also residents of Holland were on or about October 15, 1897, the owners of a large majority of the stock of t' said Belt Company and of bonds of the Belt Company; that said De Goeijen was the agent and representative of said Dutch investors was chairman of a permanent executive committee appointed by the stockholders of the Belt Company, which committee had full discretionary powers in the management of the Belt Company affairs, and was largely interested in the Belt and its constituent companies that said Dutch investors, including said De Goeijen, were interested in improving the financial condition of the Belt and its constituent companies.

80. That with this end in view the said De Goeijen, during the year 1897, came to Kansas City, Missouri, from Holland; that at that time the said Belt Company was indebted to various 409 persons to an amount aggregating upwards of $100,000.00 on account of purchase money notes executed by the Belt Company in payment for real estate used for terminal and depot purposes and secured by deed of trust, which was a first lien upon said

real estate; that at said time the Belt Company was also indebted to various other persons on account of money borrowed for its current requirements, in the nature of floating debt.

81. That during the year 1897, and prior to October 15, 1897, the Belt Company owned 483 second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad of the par value of $483,000.00 and owned 82 bonds of the Union Terminal Railway Company of the par value of $82,000.00.

82. That by written contract, dated July 1, 1897, the Belt Company sold to said De Goeijen the said 483 Northern bonds at 45 cents on the dollar or $450.00 for each bond or a total amount of $217,350.00, and sold to the said De Goeijen the said 82 Union Terminal bonds at par; that is to say, for $82,000.00, and by said contract the said De Goeijen agreed to pay the said Belt Company for said bonds on or before December 1, 1897.

83. And the said Belt Company on its part agreed that out of the proceeds of said sale it would pay or caused to be paid its said outstanding indebtedness or floating debt, including said real estate mortgage notes.

84. That afterward respondent, at the request of the Belt Company and said De Goeijen, agreed that it would act as the fiscal agent of the Belt Company in the collection from said De Goeijen of the purchase price of said bonds and would see to it that said purchase price was disbursed in accordance with the said arrangement made between the Belt Company and the said De Goeijen, that is to say, that this defendant would, as fast as the money was received from said De Goeijen and not otherwise, pay off and discharge the said floating debt of the Belt Company, including said real estate mortgage notes; that at the time said arrangement between the Belt Company and De Goeijen was entered into the said 82 Union Terminal bonds and the said 483 second mortgage Northern bonds were not in the possession of the Belt Company, but had been pledged by the Belt Company with various financial institutions as collateral security for the payment of its notes and obligations, and that before said bonds could be obtained by the Belt Company and delivered to said De Goeijen, it was known by all parties to the transaction that it would be necessary for such obligations to be paid, and this defendant was delegated 410 by the said De Goeijen and the said Belt Company to pay off and discharge said obligations out of the proceeds of said securities bought by said De Goeijen.

85. That in accordance with said arrangement between the defendant De Goeijen and the Belt Company, this defendant passed to the credit of the Belt Company on its books on October 15, 1897, the full sum of $217,350.00 on account of said Northern second mortgage bonds, purchased by said De Goeijen, as aforesaid, and also passed to the credit of the said Belt Company the full sum of $82,000.00, being the full purchase price of the 82 Union Terminal bonds, purchased by said De Goeijen at par, as afore-said.

86. That in pursuance of said arrangement this defendant as soon as it could get the said bonds released by the persons who were holding the same as collateral security, sent the said bonds to the said De Goeijen, and the said De Goeijen from time to time made payments on account of his said purchase of said bonds, and that this defendant in pursuance to said arrangement applied the said payments so made by De Goeijen to the payment of the said floating indebtedness of the Belt Company.

87. That the said De Goeijen paid the entire purchase price of the said bonds to this defendant with the exception of the sum of $89,333.33, which amount was still unpaid at the time said Knott and the said Swinney were appointed receivers for the said Belt Company.

88. That with the proceeds of said bonds so sold by the Belt Company to said De Goeijen this defendant was able to and did pay off and discharge all of the floating debt of the Belt Company outstanding October 15, 1897, with the exception of said sum of $89,333.33, which sum represented the aggregate amount of said real estate mortgage notes secured on the depot property of the Belt Company, and which notes were then held by the Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia, and which company continued to hold the said notes until the same were paid as hereinafter stated.

89. That from time to time this defendant for and on behalf of the Belt Company requested the said De Goeijen to pay it the said sum of $89,333.33, being the balance due the Belt Company on account of his purchase of the said Northern second mortgage bonds and the said 82 Union Terminal bonds, so that this defendant might pay off and discharge said real estate mortgage notes held by the said Provident Company, but the said De Goeijen failed to pay same to this defendant at any time; that it was at all times 411 distinctly understood and agreed between the Belt Company and the said De Goeijen and this defendant that this defendant should not be required to pay the said real estate mortgage notes held by said Provident Company and aggregating $89,333.33, until and unless the said De Goeijen should pay defendant in full for the said Belt Company for the said bonds purchased by him from it, as aforesaid, and defendant states that said De Goeijen at no time paid to it the full amount of the said purchase price of said bonds, his payments on said bonds lacking exactly the sum of $89,333.33 of being the full purchase price as agreed on as aforesaid, and respondent states that it denies it had any interest in said transactions except to collect the said purchase price from said De Goeijen and to apply the proceeds thereof, in accordance with the said directions of the said Belt Company and said De Goeijen, which respondent did, and that in said transaction respondent acted solely as the agent for the said Belt Company and the said De Goeijen; that it would be unjust and inequitable to charge respondent with the said principal sum of $89,333.33 or any part thereof, for the reason that against the said charge of said amount made by this defendant against the Belt Company on October 15, 1897, this defendant, on the same day gave credit to the Belt Company for the full amount of the purchase price of the said bonds and this defendant at no time received the said purchase price in full, the deficiency being the exact amount of said real estate mortgage notes, aggregating the principal sum of $89,333.33.

89*a*. And this defendant states that said Belt Company at all times treated the said De Goeijen as its debtor by reason of his failure to either pay the said depot mortgages or to pay the balance due on the purchase price of the said bonds, and from time to time, and at regular intervals, the said Belt Company rendered bills against the said De Goeijen for the said sum of $89,333.33 and for the interest which it the said Belt Company from time to time paid to the said Provident Company on account of said depot mortgages, and that the said Belt Company regularly collected from the said De Goeijen the said interest accruing on the said depot mortgages to the said Provident Company and paid as aforesaid by the Belt Company, and that it was at all times fully understood by the Belt Company, its stockholders, officers and directors that this defendant was in no wise liable to pay the said depot mortgages aggregating said sum of $89,333.33.

412 90. And further answering said charge of said amended ancillary bill in relation to said real estate mortgage notes, this defendant states that even though the said De Goeijen did not pay the full amount of said purchase price of said bonds to the Belt Company through the medium of this defendant, yet the said De Goeijen did in fact pay the same to the receivers of the Belt Company, complainants herein, in the manner hereinafter stated, that is to say: Shortly after the said Kansas City, Pittsburgh and Gulf Railroad Company went into the hands of receivers in the month of April, 1899, certain persons organized themselves into a committee of re-organization, said committee assuming to act for and on behalf of all of the holders of securities of the said Gulf Railroad, who should join and participate with the said committee in the re-organization of said company; that said committee promulgated a plan of re-organization and succeeded in securing the co-operation of practically all of the stockholders and bondholders of said Gulf Railroad Company; that as part and parcel of the said plan of re-organization said committee acquired all of the stocks and bonds of the said Belt Railroad Company and its constituent companies, and that as part and parcel of said plan of re-organization, and pursuant to authority conferred on it by said stockholders and bondholders, the said committee proceeded to adjust certain of the floating indebtedness of the said Gulf Company and of the said Belt Company; that at the time the said Gulf Company went into the hands of receivers it was indebted to the said De Goeijen in the sum of about $300,000.00 borrowed money; that said De Goeijen made claim against the receivers of said Gulf Company for the amount of said indebtedness and also made claim against said committee for the amount thereof; that in the meantime Knott and Swinney, complainants herein, were appointed receivers for the Belt Company, pursuant to the same plan of re-organization and the said receivers of the said Belt Company referred to the said Committee for adjustment the claim of said Belt Company against the said

De Goeijen for the principal sum of $89,333.33, growing out of the failure of said De Goeijen to either pay the balance due on the purchase price of said Union Terminal bonds and Northern bonds or to pay the said real estate mortgage notes, and that thereupon said De Goeijen and the said committee entered into negotiations for a settlement of the mutual controversies pending between the said De Goeijen and the said committee, which was acting on behalf of the said Belt Company and the said Gulf Company and their receivers; that the said committee brought forward as an offset against De Goeijen's claim for $300,000.00 against the Gulf Company, the claim of the Gulf Company and its receivers against 413 De Goeijen for the said principal sum of $89,333.33, and the said claim of said De Goeijen was compromised and settled on that basis, the said committee paying the said De Goeijen the sum of $150,000.00 in full settlement of the mutual demands existing between the said De Goeijen and the said committee, which committee was acting at the time for and in behalf of the Belt Company, the Gulf Company and their receivers, and that the amount so paid to the said De Goeijen was practically the full amount of the said De Goeijen's claim against the Gulf Company less the amount which the said De Goeijen owed the said Belt Company on account of his purchase of the said Union Terminal bonds and the said Northern bonds, and his assumption of said depot mortgages and this defendant states that the said Belt Company and its receivers, having thereby received full payment for the said depot mortgages aggregating $89,333.33, are estopped to say that either the said DeGoeijen or this defendant is indebted to them on account of the said real estate mortgage notes, and this defendant states that it was with the amount of money thus deducted by the said committee from the said De Goeijen's claim that the said receivers of the Belt Company afterward paid the said Provident Life and Trust Company said real estate mortgage notes and not otherwise.

91. In answer to the averments made in paragraph 1 on page 41 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant denies that it caused the Suburban Company to take up and pay the alleged overdraft of the said Construction Company, to the amount of $313.76 or any other overdraft, and states that at the time said Construction Company delivered said road to the Suburban Company, the Suburban Company, through its stockholders, officers and directors, assumed said overdraft and afterward paid the same as they were bound to do.

92. In answer to paragraph 2 on page 42 of said amended ancillary bill and subdivisions a to n, inclusive, of said paragraph, this defendant states that it has already hereinabove fully answered the charges and averments made in said paragraph; this defendant again states that due and proper credit was given to the said Suburban Company, Belt Company, Air Line, Consolidated Terminal and Union Terminal Companies for all moneys and property of said companies, coming into its hands; that no sums of money were charged against said companies by this defendant for commissions or other services except such as were agreed upon between this defendant and the said companies, respectively, and that said charges for commissions or other services were all and singular just, fair and reasonable, and that for all securities, either stocks or bonds, issued by said companies and coming into the hands of this defendant, it 414 fully, promptly and faithfully accounted to the said companies, respectively, as will appear from the books of account of said companies, in the possession of complainants; and this defendant states that the pretended statements contained in said paragraph 2 of page 42 of said amended bill and in said subdivisions of said paragraph 2 are not a true and correct statement of the monies and securities received by this defendant, and that said statements are grossly misleading and unfair; this defendant denies that it ever received any donations from any of the said companies; denies that it ever appropriated to its own use any money or property of the said companies or either of them coming into its hands and denies that complainants are entitled to have any credit upon their indebtedness to this defendant, by reason of the pretended omissions of any items from the accounts exchanged between this defendant and the said companies, respectively, and this defendant states that the accounts between it and the said companies, respectively, are and were at all times full, true, just and correct, and this defendant makes the same answer in respect to averments made in paragraph 3 of said amended bill on page 46 thereof and in subdivisions a to d, inclusive, of said paragraph; this defendant denies that none of the charges made by it were ever submitted to, or approved by the parties in interest in said companies, but on the contrary, states that each and all of said charges were submitted to and approved by the parties in interest in said companies; denies that there was anything in the relationship between this defendant and the said companies which deprived this defendant of the right to be paid for its services to said companies, and states that it would be grossly inequitable and unjust to deprive this defendant of its just compensation in and about the premises; this defendant admits that it was not an eleemosynary institution; admits that it was in business for pecuniary profit and gain; admits that it was not organized or conducted for the purpose of gratuitously serving in a multitude of transactions said companies or any of them for the sole convenience and profit of the said companies, but this defendant states that all services rendered by it to said companies were rendered in the ordinary course of business, as similar services were rendered by it to other persons and companies, and that there is no reason in law or in equity why the said Belt Company or its constituent companies should not pay their honest debts; this defendant denies that the said companies were its dummies for the benefit and profit of this defendant, but on the contrary states that said companies were at all times seeking their own legitimate business and profit and that they made only such contracts with this defendant as their 415 officers and agents and stockholders believed would profit said companies, and that all of said officers, agents and stockholders were of full legal age and competent to manage their own affairs, and this defendant makes the same answer in respect to the averments made in paragraph 4 on page 48 of said amended bill and of subdivisions a to e, inclusive of said paragraph.

93. In answer to paragraph 5 on page 50 of said amended bill, this defendant admits that it, from time to time, loaned money to the companies therein mentioned, taking the notes of said companies evidencing such loan, and that it charged interest on the said notes in the same manner that it charged interest to other companies or individuals, customers [this of] defendant, who borrowed money from it, and this defendant states that there is no reason in law or in equity why the said companies should have the right to borrow money from this defendant without paying interest, and there is no reason in law or in equity why the said companies should not pay interest on the monies received and borrowed by them; this defendant admits that whenever any of said companies had a balance in their favor in its hands in open account that this defendant allowed such company interest on such daily balances and such daily balances were correct and were properly computed and were verified and checked by the respective auditors of the said companies each and every month, and that this defendant allowed interest to said companies on such daily balances at the rate of 2 per cent per annum, which was as much if not more than was paid by other banking institutions to their customers, under like conditions and this defendant admits that frequently that said companies overdrew their accounts with this defendant and that this defendant charged interest to said companies on such overdrafts just as it did to other customers under like circumstances; this defendant states that it usually charged interest on such overdrafts at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, which was a fair and reasonable charge and was less than was charged by other banking institutions to their customers under like circumstances; this defendant denies that it made any improper or unlawful charges of interest or discount against the said companies or any of them, but on the contrary states that all of such charges for interest or discount were correct, proper and lawful and were only such as were distinctly agreed upon by the parties in interest at the time such charges were made, all of which fully appears on the books of account, not only of this defendant but on the books and records of said companies themselves; this defendant states that no such charges for interest or discount were made except in the ordinary course of business and in accordance with business
416 usages universally in force, and this defendant denies the correctness of the alleged computation of interest or discounts made in the said amended ancillary bill and in the exhibits thereto attached, but states that said alleged computations are incorrect and untrue, and this defendant states that if any compound interest was charged by it against any of the said companies, which this defendant denies, such charges were fully agreed upon at the time same were made, and this defendant denies that complainants are entitled to have any credit upon their indebtedness by reason of the matters and things set up in said paragraph 5 on page 50 of said amended ancillary bill or in any of the subdivisions of said paragraph.

94. In answer to paragraph 6 on page 54 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant admits that one of the features of its business was to supervise and conduct building operations, and that for this purpose it maintained what is called a building department; this defendant denies that the purpose of said building department was to conduct construction operations for its auxiliary companies and states that it had no auxiliary companies; this defendant admits that at the special instance and request of the said Suburban Company, Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company, Air Line, Elevator Company and Amusement Company it did a large amount of construction work for the said companies, but denies that it made any exorbitant or unreasonable charges for such work; this defendant states that all such work was faithfully and efficiently done; that this defendant maintained a large and expensive staff of employes for the purpose of properly conducting such operations; that by reason of the fact that this defendant, through its said building department, could more efficiently do the work and was better equipped to perform the same, the said companies from time to time employed this defendant to conduct such operations; that this defendant made no charge for the services of its building department except such as were fair and reasonable, and such charges were not more, and in fact were less, than the said companies would have had to pay others for the said services; that there is no reason in law or in equity why the defendant should not receive fair and just compensation for the services rendered by its said building department or a fair profit for the work of said building department; that no charges were made by said building department against the said companies or either of them except such as were fully, fairly and openly agreed upon between this defendant and the said companies; this defendant states that there is no reason in law or in equity why its said building department should have done any work for any of said companies gratuitously, and this 417 defendant denies that complainants are entitled to any credit on their indebtedness to this defendant by reason of any charges made against any of said companies on account of the services of said building department.

95. In answer to paragraph 7 on page 55 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant denies that it caused the incorporation of the Amusement Company, but again states that said Amusement Company was caused to be organized by the said Belt Company, and the said Air Line, for the purpose of creating passenger traffic for the said companies; this defendant denies that it caused the said companies to spend large sums of money or any sum of money in the acquisition and improvement of Fairmount Park, but states that any money invested for that purpose was invested by the said companies for their own proper benefit and in the ordinary course of business; this defendant states that the establishment and maintenance of said park did result in creating an extraordinary passenger traffic for said Belt Company, Air Line and the said lines received the benefit of such traffic; this defendant states that there is and was no possible way by which it could benefit or profit through the said park;

this defendant states that the books and papers of said Amusement Company and of the said Belt Company and Air Line are now and ever have been in the possession of complainants and the said Belt Company; that therefore this defendant is not advised as to the result of the operation of said park, but this defendant is informed and believes and so charges [to] fact to be that the operation of said park, after taking into account the earnings of the said Belt Company and Air Line, by reason of said passenger traffic, resulted in little if any loss to the said Belt Company or Air Line; this defendant states that if it should turn out that the operation of such park did result in a loss that there is no reason in law or in equity why the Belt Company or the said Air Line, for whose sole benefit the said park was established and maintained, should not pay the same, and this defendant states that said companies having received the benefits and advantages of said park are and should be held estopped from complaining of any losses on account thereof.

96. And this defendant in answer to paragraph 8 on page 56 of said amended ancillary bill and subdivisions a to e, inclusive, of said paragraph, states that it has already fully answered the averments therein made and this defendant again avers that the said Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company was an auxiliary company of the said Belt Company; that said Elevator Company was organized at the instance of said Belt Company for the purpose of owning 418 and operating elevators upon the line of said Belt Company and for the purpose of promoting and increasing the freight traffic of said Belt Company through the handling and shipment of grain and for the purpose of increasing the revenue of the said Belt Company; that the mortgage notes held by this defendant, secured upon the property of said Elevator Company, represent exactly so much money expended by this defendant for said Elevator Company in the acquisition and construction of said elevator property; that the said Belt Company is the owner of all and singular the shares of stock outstanding and issued by said Elevator Company and the said Belt Company, in order to acquire said stock of its own act and volition, assumed the debts of the said Elevator Company; that the said Belt Company assumed no debts of the said Elevator Company except such as were for money actually spent upon the property of said Elevator Company; that while it is true that this defendant advanced monies for the purpose of maintaining and equipping the said elevators and charged the same to the said Belt Company, it was done at the request of the said Belt Company and for its use and benefit; this defendant denies that any of the said stock of the Elevator Company was issued to it or that it caused any stock of the Elevator Company to be issued to anybody, and denies that it caused any such stock to be issued to the officers and employes of this defendant or to their wives, but again states that all of the outstanding and issued stock of the said Elevator Company was issued to said Belt Company and it or complainants are still the owner of the same, and this defendant further states that it never had any interest in the said Elevator Company or in its property except to be reimbursed for the moneys it had expended on account thereof;

this defendant further states that the said Belt Company derived large revenue from the handling and switching of grain to and from said elevators and the rentals thereof, and having received all the benefit of said elevators should now be held estopped from seeking to unload its loss, if any, upon this defendant; this defendant further states that ever since June, 1893, when the Belt Company became interested in the said Elevator Company, the books of account of the said Elevator Company showing exactly what had been expended on said elevators and the result of their operation have been in the possession of the said Belt Company or the said complainants, who at all times knew the condition of said Elevator Company and its property; that any and all contracts made by the said Belt Company in relation to said Elevator Company or its property or its stock were made by the proper officers, stockholders and directors of the said Belt Company and the said Elevator Company, who at all 419 times knew the exact facts in relation to all of the transactions made in that behalf, were fully known to and ratified by the stockholders, directors and officers of the said Elevator Company and the said Belt Company, and complainants should be held estopped from now seeking to charge this defendant with the result of such transactions.

97. Defendant, answering the averments made in paragraph 9 on page 59 of said amended ancillary [bill], again denies that it caused the incorporation of said Northern Company, but states that the facts in that behalf are as hereinabove set forth, and this defendant states that all of the transactions had by said Belt Company in connection with said Northern Company were voluntarily entered into by the said Belt Company at the instance of its stockholders, officers and directors; that said transactions were entered into by the Belt Company for its own sole benefit and profit, and this defendant should not be charged either in law or in equity with any loss, if any, resulting from such transactions; that if any profit resulted from such transactions the Belt Company received and retained the same and was entitled to the same; and there is no reason in law or in equity why this defendant should pay any of the losses, if any there were; this defendant admits that it paid certain interest coupons due on the bonds of the Northern Company and charged the same to the Belt Company but states that this was done at the special instance and request and for the benefit of the Belt Company; that at the time this was done the Belt Company had in [i-s] treasury large blocks of the securities, both stocks and bonds, of the said Northern Company, which it had received from said Northern Company in part payment for constructing the said Northern Company's road and that the said Belt Company was at said time endeavoring to dispose of through this defendant the said securities; that it was the desire of the Belt Company and to its interest to obtain as large a price as possible for the said securities of the Northern Company, received by it as aforesaid, and that it would have been disastrous to said Belt Company for it to have allowed a default to occur in the payment of the interest due on the bonds of the said Northern Company, and that for the purpose of preventing such default and preventing a depreciation of the value of the securities of the Northern Company so received and held by it the said Belt Company, for a short period, advanced through this defendant certain moneys for the benefit of the Northern and of itself for the payment of interest accruing on the said bonds of the Northern Company; this defendant denies that it caused the Belt Company to pay any such interest on Northern bonds, but states that this was done by the Belt Company for its own purposes as hereinabove set forth; this de-420 fendant states that it made no payments of any interest on Northern bonds except at the request of the Belt Company and that all charges made against the Belt Company by this defendant in this connection, were made with its full knowledge, approval and consent.

98. In answer to paragraph D on page 63 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant states that the said Northern Company began operating on or about July 1, 1898; that on July 31, 1898, certain interest became due on the first mortgage bonds which had been issued by the said Northern Company and delivered to the Belt Company in payment of the Belt Company's services in and about the construction of the Northern Company's road; that at the time said interest became due the said Northern Company had just begun to operate its road and was not as yet in financial condition to pay its fixed charges; that the Belt Company, which was the holder and owner of a large amount of the bonds of the Northern Company and which expected to still receive a larger number of bonds by virtue of its construction contract with the Northern Company, and with a view to lightening the burdens of the said Northern Company, and for the purpose of enhancing the value of its securities, requested this defendant, to whom said bonds had been delivered by the Belt Company for disposition, to cancel the interest coupons attached to said Northern bonds, becoming due on July 31, 1898; that pursuant to said request of the Belt Company and not otherwise this defendant did cancel the said 314 coupons mentioned in said amended bill; and that this was done at the solicitation and with the full knowledge of the said Belt Company, which having received all the benefit of said transaction, should be held estopped from now complaining thereof.

99. In answer to paragraph 11 on page 64 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant states that the facts in that behalf are as follows: On September 25, 1893, the Belt Company was the owner of 200 second mortgage bonds of the par value of $1000.00 each, issued by the said Air Line and secured by second mortgage upon the property of that company; said bonds had been issued by the Air Line to the Belt Company in consideration of the Belt Company guaranteeing the payment, principal and interest, of the said bonds and each of said bonds bore the written guaranty endorsed thereon by the Belt Company of said principal and interest; that said 200 second mortgage bonds constituted the entire issue of second mortgage bonds made by the said Air Line. On said 25th day of September, 1893, a written contract was entered into between the Belt

Company and this defendant, whereby this defendant pur-
421 chased said 200 second mortgage bonds from the Belt Company at and for the price of 75 cents on the dollar or $750.00 for each bond, and thereby this defendant agreed to take and pay for an aggregate of 170 of said bonds within eighteen months from the date of said contract, and to take and pay for such of the remaining 30 of said bonds as should remain unsold under the terms of the mortgage securing same, on or before September 1, 1898, and said contract further provided that in consideration of this defendant taking said bonds at said price the said Belt Company agreed to transfer to this defendant 2500 shares of stock of the Union Terminal Company, then in the treasury of the Belt Company; this defendant further states that as to said 30 bonds numbered from 171 to 200, inclusive, it was provided in the mortgage securing same that same should be reserved in the hands of this defendant as trustee, so that same might be sold if necessary and the proceeds used for the purpose of paying interest on bonds theretofore sold.

100. Defendant states that in pursuance to said contract it received from the said Belt Company 130 of said bonds and gave credit to the Belt Company for said bonds at the price agreed upon, to-wit: $750.00 for each bond, and the said Belt Company did also, pursuant to said contract, deliver to this defendant the said 2500 shares of Union Terminal stock.

101. That at all of said times the Belt Company was the owner of all of the capital stock of the Air Line and was guarantor of the said second mortgage bonds, and afterward the said Belt Company, finding that the earnings, present and prospectiv , of the said Air Line were not sufficient to justify the Belt Company in negotiating said second mortgage bonds and thereby increasing the fixed charges of the said Belt Company, which had guaranteed said bonds, the Belt Company cast about for some means whereby it could avoid carrying out its contract to deliver said second mortgage bonds to this defendant, and whereby it, the Belt Company, could retire the said second mortgage bonds; that thereupon the Belt Company failed to make any further deliveries to this defendant of said second mortgage bonds and entered into negotiations with this defendant for a return by this defendant of such second mortgage bonds, as had already been sold and delivered to this defendant by the Belt Company; that thereupon [ils] was agreed between this defendant and the said Belt Company that this defendant would return to the Belt Company all of the said 130 bonds purchased by this defendant as aforesaid, at the same price at which this defendant had bought the same, to-wit:

75 cents on the dollar, and all of the said bonds were then 422 and there returned to this defendant by the Belt Company, and thereupon the Belt Company returned the said bonds to the treasury of the Air Line in consideration of being released by the Air Line of its said guaranty of the said bonds, and said bonds were accepted on said terms by the Air Line, and thereupon the said entire issue of said second mortgage bonds of the Air Line to the number of 200 were cancelled and released of record; this defendant states that it was distinctly agreed when it returned said bonds to the Belt Company, as aforesaid; that in consideration of releasing said Belt Company from its said contract to sell said entire issue of the Air Line bonds to this defendant, this defendant should retain the said 2500 shares of Union Terminal stock and this was done; defendant denies that it failed, neglected or refused to purchase and pay for the remaining 70 of said bonds as specified in the said contract, but on the contrary states that the said Belt Company declined to carry out said contract; this defendant denies that said second mortgage bonds could not be sold upon the market, and denies that said bonds were worthless, but on the contrary states that each of said bonds bore the written guaranty of the said Belt Company, making said Belt Company primarily liable thereon, and that at all said times the obligations of the Belt Company were worth 100 cents on the dollar; this defendant denies that it devised any plan or scheme to unload said bonds upon the Belt Company, but on the contrary states that said bonds were resold and returned to the Belt Company at its own solicitation and request, and solely for the reason that the said Belt Company desired to be relieved of its said guaranty of the said bonds, and this defendant states that by reason of the premises and by reason of the agreement entered into between this defendant and the Belt Company at the time, it had a right to retain the said 2500 shares of the Union Terminal stock, and this defendant denies that complainants are entitled to have any credit upon their indebtedness to this defendant by reason of the premises.

102. In answer to paragraph 12 on page 68 of the said amended ancillary bill, this defendant denies that it caused the railroad of the Air Line to be constructed and denies that it used the said Kansas City Terminal Construction Company for that purpose, but on the contrary states that the Belt Company caused said Air Line to be constructed and that said line was constructed by contract between the said Air Line and the said Construction Company, and this defendant denies that it caused the Air Line to enter into said contract, but admits that under the terms of said contract the Construction Company was to receive the stock and bonds of the Air Line
423 in certain amounts fixed in said contract for its services; this defendant denies that it brought the contract between the said Construction Company and the Air Line, whereby the said Construction Company turned over and delivered said railroad to the said Air Line, but on the contrary states that this defendant had nothing to do with said transactions; this defendant denies that said railroad was in an uncompleted condition at the time same was turned over to the Air Line by the Construction Company, but admits that at the time said railroad was so turned over to the Air Line the Air Line assumed all the liabilities and took over all of the assets of the said Construction Company; this defendant states that the facts in this behalf are as follows: This defendant states that for and on behalf of said Air Line and the said Construction Company, and at their request, it rendered valuable services to the said Construction Company in selling for the account of the said Construction Company all of the stocks and bonds received by said Construction Company in payment for its work under said Construction Contract; and the said Construction Company recognizing its obligation to compensate this defendant for its expenses and services in that behalf, at a meeting of the Board of Directors of said Construction Company duly convened, adopted a resolution that there should be issued by the said Construction Company to this defendant two hundred (200) shares of the full paid capital stock of the said Construction Company in compensation for its services aforesaid and said two hundred (200) shares of capital stock were issued to this defendant in accordance with said resolution; and this defendant denies that it subscribed for the capital stock of the said Construction Company or any part thereof except as above stated; and this defendant denies that it ever became liable to the said Construction Company on account of such subscription; and this defendant denies that any subscription by it to the capital stock of the said Construction Company was taken over by the said Air Line as one of the assets of the said Construction Company at the time the said Air Line assumed the liabilities and took over the assets of the said Construction Company or at any other time. Defendant is not advised as to whether or not the said two hundred (200) shares of stock of the said Construction Company received by this defendant were the same shares as were subscribed for by A. E. Stilwell, trustee, as alleged in the amended ancillary bill, but states that if they were the same shares the said subscription was fully paid as hereinbefore set forth, by the services rendered by this defendant and in accordance with the said resolution. This defendant further states that it rendered valuable services to the said 424 Air Line in and about obtaining the franchises of said Air Line, procuring right-of-way, and other services, and that the only compensation received by this defendant from the said Air Line for said services was thirteen (13) first mortgage bonds of the said Air Line and five hundred (500) shares of its stock; that the said stock at that time had no value whatsoever and that this defendant afterward sold the said bonds at eighty cents (80c.) on the dollar, realizing therefor the sum of Ten Thousand Four Hundred Dollars ($10,400.00), being the highest obtainable price of said bonds at said time and that said sum of ten thousand four hundred dollars ($10,400) and said five hundred (500) shares of worthless stock constitute the only compensation received by this defendant from the Air Line for its services rendered as aforesaid and that said compensation was less than this defendant's said services were worth. This defendant denies that it caused any fictitious entries to be made upon the books of the Air Line cancelling said alleged stock subscription for two hundred (200) shares of Construction Company stock, and denies that it caused any fictitious entries of any kind to be made on the books of the Air Line at any time; and this defendant states that if the said alleged charge against this defendant on account of said alleged stock subscriptions was cancelled, it was a proper thing for the Air Line to do for the reason that this defendant had long before paid for said stock as hereinbefore set forth.

103. This defendant in answer to paragraph B on page 70 of said amended bill, denies that it caused the Air Line to pay any overdraft of the Construction Company and this defendant denies that the Air Line paid any debts of the Construction Company except such as it had expressly assumed and agreed to pay and this was done by the Air Line through its authorized officers and agents and with the consent and approval of the stockholders of said Air Line.

104. This defendant in answer to paragraph 13 on page 70 of said amended ancillary bill, denies the same but states that the facts were as follows: That in November, 1892, the Belt Company gave its note to the West Kansas City Land Company for $5600 upon certain terms and conditions expressed in said note and this defendant guaranteed the payment of said note and interest to the West Kansas City Land Company, thereby making this defendant liable on account of the said note of the Belt Company, and that thereupon and on or about the same time this defendant charged the Belt Company with the sum of $5600, being the amount of the liability assumed by this defendant; that said charge was made by this defend-
425 ant with the full knowledge and consent and approval of the Belt Company; that afterward demand was made upon this defendant for the payment of said note by the Land Company, the payee therein, and this defendant, at the request of the Belt Company, refused to pay the same for the reason that the Belt Company was claiming that the Land Company had not complied with the terms and conditions of the contract on account of which said note was given, and thereupon the said Land Company brought suit against the said Belt Company, and such proceedings were had in said suit that judgment was rendered against the Belt Company for the amount due on said note, and afterward the complainants, as receivers of the said Belt Company, paid the same, but this defendant states that said judgment was not rendered nor was it paid until long after the institution of this suit; that by reason of the premises the complainants are entitled to have credit upon their indebtedness to this defendant for the said sum of $5600, and this defendant is willing that complainants should have such credit; this defendant denies, however, that the said Belt Company ever paid to this defendant the sum of $5600 in cash on account of said note or any other sum on said account, but states that said item of $5600, charged by this defendant against the Belt Company was a mere charge and was made for the reason that this defendant had guaranteed said note and had become liable thereon, and it transpiring subsequent to the bringing of this suit that the said Belt Company has discharged its own liability on said note said charge so made by this defendant, though properly made at the time, should now be credited upon the indebtedness owing by the said Belt Company to this defendant.

105. In answer to paragraph 14 on page 71 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant states that it is true that on or about November, 1899, a judgment was rendered against the Belt Company for the sum of $5000 in favor of one Zumwault in a suit brought by him to recover for personal injury sustained by him; that it is true that the Belt Company appealed said cause to the Supreme Court of Missouri, and gave an appeal bond, as required by law, and that this defendant at the request of the Belt Company, became surety on said appeal bond and that to indemnify this defendant for its liability on said bond the Belt Company deposited with this defendant the sum of $5000; that afterward such proceedings were had that the said judgment and said suit was on the 19th day of May, 1903, and long after the institution of this suit, reversed without being remanded, and that thereupon the liability of this defendant on said bond ceased; this defendant denies that it has refused since the re-426 versal of said cause to account for or pay over to said Belt Company or its receivers the said sum of $5000, but on the contrary states that this defendant has at all times been willing, since the reversal of said cause, that the said receivers of said Belt Company should have credit on their indebtedness to this defendant for the said sum of $5000, and this defendant denies that said receivers are entitled to any interest on the said sum of $5000, no agreement having been made by the parties to the transaction that any interest should be paid by defendant thereon, and neither of said parties intending that any such interest should be paid.

106. In answer to paragraph 15 on page 71 of said amended ancillary bill this defendant denies it was its habit in the disposition of securities of the Belt Company or any of its constituent companies to make sale of said securities at such prices as this defendant should decide upon, or that when such sale was made to credit the said companies with a less amount than was received by this defendant, or that it was the habit of practice of this defendant to report to said companies that such sales had been made for a less amount than was actually received, but on the contrary this defendant states that no sales were made by it for the account of said companies of any of said securities except at prices previously agreed upon with the said companies, and this defendant denies that it in any instance negotiated for the sale of any such securities, and after finding the price at which it could dispose of the same purchased such securities itself from the said companies, and denies that any such transactions ever took place, and denies that this defendant ever made any profit through such transactions; on the contrary, this defendant states that no securities were purchased by it from the said companies or either of them, except at prices openly and fairly agreed upon between it and the said companies, and that said prices were usually much higher than the prices at which said companies were selling said securities to other persons.

107. This defendant in answer to paragraphs 16, 17 and 18 on pages 72 to 74, inclusive, of said amended ancillary bill, denies that at any of the times therein mentioned the Belt Company was insolvent, and denies that this defendant at any time caused the said Belt Company to declare any Dividend, but on the contrary states that the said Belt Company at all of said times was managed and controlled solely by its own adult stockholders, officers and directors, and that defendant had nothing to do with the declaration of said dividend; this defendant further denies that at the time said dividends were declared it owned a large amount of stock of the said 427 Belt Company, but on the contrary states that the amount of stock at such times owned by this defendant was comparatively insignificant, and that there is no reason in law or in equity

why the Belt Company should not have paid its own dividends out of its own funds; this defendant states that there is no reason in law or in equity why the dividends of the said Belt Company should have been paid out of the funds of this defendant.

108. This defendant in answer to paragraph 19 on page 74 to said amended ancillary bill, denies that it caused the Union Terminal Company to execute its bonds in the sum of $2,000,000 or in any other sum; denies that it caused the said Union Company to secure the said bonds by mortgage; denies that it caused the Union Company to sell bonds or any of them to the Belt Company; denies that it caused the said Belt Company to sell any of said bonds to this defendant; denies that it wrongfully sold any of said bonds to anybody; denies that this defendant caused the Belt Company to guarantee the payment of said bonds of the Union Company; denies that it caused the Belt Company to pay any interest on the bonds of the Union Company; this defendant admits, however, that it purchased more than 500 of said Union Company bonds from the Belt Company and states that it paid the said Belt Company for said bonds the par value thereof or 100 cents on the dollar, which was far in excess of what the said bonds were worth, and this defendant admits that it purchased other bonds of the said Union Company from the said Belt Company at prices ranging from $800 to $950 per bond, the par value of which was $1000 per bond, and that the prices paid by this defendant to the said Belt Company were far more than the said bonds were worth.

109. In answer to paragraph 21 on page 75 of said amended bill, this defendant states that the charge therein referred to, as having been made against the Belt Company, was on account of money advanced for the said Belt Company and was made with the full knowledge, consent and approval of the Belt Company at the time and that said charge was a proper charge.

110. In answer to paragraph 22 on page 76 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant denies that it caused the incorporation of the Fruit Auction and Cold Storage Company; states that said Company was organized at the instance and request of said Belt Company and for its benefit; states that said company was organized for the purpose of increasing the freight traffic on the line of the 428 said Belt Railroad Company; that for this purpose said company established a warehouse and trading room on the line of said Belt Company and that at said trading room commission merchants, dealers in produce and fruit, conducted an exchange, and that at said warehouse shipments of fruit and produce were received by means of the line of the said Belt Company, and that by reason thereof the said Belt Company derived a large revenue through the diversion of shipments of fruit and produce from other lines to its line, and that said company and its operations were conducted solely for the benefit of the said Belt Company; that at the request of the said Belt Company this defendant advanced moneys to the said Fruit Auction Company and that to reimburse this defendant for the advancements so made, at the request and for the benefit of the Belt Company and not otherwise, the Belt Company transferred to this defendant 286 shares of stock of the Belt Company, but this defendant denies that said shares of stock were of the value of $6290, but on the contrary states that said stock had little, if any, value at that time.

111. In answer to paragraph 23 on page 76 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant states that it is true that it made charges against the Belt Company aggregating the sum of $6500 on the dates stated in said bill, but states that said charges were made because this defendant on said dates, at the instance and request of the Belt Company, paid drafts aggregating said sum of $6500, which drafts had been drawn on the said Belt Company and that said drafts were for the obligations of the said Belt Company, and this defendant, having paid the same, was entitled both in law and in equity to charge the amount thereof to the Belt Company, and this defendant states that if the said Belt Company lost any money in speculation there is no reason in law or in equity why this defendant should pay such losses; that all of such charges were fully known to, ratified and acquiesced in by the said Belt Company, its officers and directors, and complainants are now estopped from questioning the same.

112. In answer to paragraphs 24 and 25 on page 77 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant again denies that it at any time appropriated or converted to its own use any stock of the Belt Company or the Union Company or of any other company.

113. In answer to paragraph 26 on page 78 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant states that it has already hereinabove fully answered the same, and again denies that it constructed the said Air Line but states that same was constructed by the said Construction Company; that when the said Construction Company delivered said road to the said Air Line, to wit, in the year 1892, the 429 Construction Company turned over to the Air Line all of its books of account showing in detail the cost of the said Air Line, and the said books of account have ever since been in the possession of the said Air Line, and the said Belt Company and their receivers, and that all the facts and circumstances surrounding the transactions of the said Air Line and the cost thereof were fully known to the stockholders and directors of the Air Line and the Belt Company at the time the said line was accepted from the Construction Company, and complainants are now estopped from complaining of the result of such contract, and this defendant again denies that it made any profit on the said construction contract, and avers that it had nothing to do with the said Construction Company except as a banking institution, selling the stocks and bonds received by the Construction Company in payment of its work for which stocks and bonds this defendant has fully accounted many years ago.

114. In answer to paragraph 27 on page 78 of said amended ancillary bill, defendant states that the Northern Townsite Company was a corporation organized for the purpose of buying and selling and otherwise disposing of land, particularly lots in certain townsites located on the line of the said Northern Railroad and that the said Belt Company and defendant and others were stockholders of said Townsite Company; that the only lands in which the said

Townsite Company had or claimed to have any interest were the lands upon which were situated two townsites, one called Trimble and one called Braley—and that these lands were bought and paid for wholly by the said Townsite Company; that there were other lands standing in the name of the Townsite Company which had been paid for wholly by the said Belt Company, but the said Townsite Company at no time claimed to have any interest in the said lands paid for by the Belt Company as aforesaid. The way it came about that the said Townsite Company had lands standing in its name which were owned entirely by the Belt Company, was as follows and not otherwise: The Belt Company under and by virtue of its Construction contract with the said Northern Company, was under a contract duty to furnish right-of-way for the Northern Company, and the right-of-way agent of the Belt Company, in acquiring such right-of-way, frequently found it expedient or necessary to buy a whole tract of land upon which said right-of-way was to be located and which tract of land was much larger than was needed for right-of-way or depot purposes and the title of all of said land over and above the amount necessary for right-of-way and depot purposes, was, by the Belt Company for its own convenience and for its own purposes, put, temporarily, in the name of the said Townsite Company, and the portion of 430 said land which was needed by the said Northern Company for right-of-way, was by the said Townsite Company, upon request of the Belt Company, deeded to the said Northern Company, but the Townsite Company at no time claimed to have any interest in any lands which had been bought and wholly paid for by the said Belt Company; its business was confined solely to the selling of lots in the said townsites which had been bought and paid for wholly by the said Townsite Company, and that as to the lands which had been so bought and paid for wholly by the Belt Company, the Belt Company treated the same as its own and collected the rents and profits thereof, none of said rents and profits being collected by the said Townsite Company; that none of said lands exclusive of said right-of-way, the title to which was put by the Belt Company in the name of the Townsite Company, was needed for right-of-way or railroad purposes, but was held and owned by the said Belt Company in the manner aforesaid, for the purpose of dealing in real estate and for the purpose of making a profit thereby; that the Townsite Company held the title of said lands exclusive of said townsites, wholly for the convenience and accommodation of said Belt Company, and at all times stood ready to convey the same to the Belt Company or to such other person or corporation as the said Belt Company might direct. Defendant denies that the said Belt Company was the only stockholder of the said Townsite Company, but on the contrary states that other persons and corporations were also stockholders of the said Townsite Company and contributed largely to the purchase price of said townsite lands; and defendant denies that the said Townsite lands are in equity the lands of the Belt Company, but said lands are the property of the said Townsite Company and complainants are not entitled to any credit upon their indebtedness to defendant by reason of the transactions of the said Townsite Company or by reason of the other matters and things set forth in said amended bill. It is true that defendant at the request of the said Townsite Company, from time to time, sold through its land department certain lots and parcels of land in the said townsites of the said company and that it charged a commission therefor, as it had a right to do, and said commission was fully agreed upon between the members to the transaction and was fair and reasonable (150).

115. Defendant denies that it at all times, or at any time dominated or controlled the said townsite company, but states that said townsite company was dominated and controlled by its own officers, stockholders and directors; and defendant denies that it caused the Belt Company to have the title to any of its lands taken in the name of the said Townsite Company, but on the contrary states
431 that anything that was done in that behalf was done as the free act and deed of the said Belt Company.

116. In answer to paragraph 28 on page 80 of said amended ancillary bill, this defendant denies that it caused the Belt Company to purchase locomotives No. 51 and 52, therein mentioned, or any other locomotives, or that it ever caused the Belt Company to purchase anything, but on the contrary states that whatever the Belt Company did in that behalf it did of its own free will and accord, and this defendant denies that it made any charge against the said Belt Company for rental or otherwise except such as was justly due from the said Belt Company, and this defendant states that said charge has been fully settled by the Belt Company many years ago, and complainants are now estopped from questioning the same.

117. This defendant in answer to paragraph 29 on page 81 of said amended ancillary bill, denies that on or about July 1, 1898, or at any other time it caused the Belt Company to lease from the Second Street Company the lots in said bill described or any other lots, but on the contrary states that if any such lease was made it was made by the proper officers, directors and stockholders of the Belt Company, who were all of sound mind and able to manage their own affairs, and this defendant denies that it caused the Belt Company to execute a lease to all or any of said land to the Wells, Fargo Express Company, and this defendant denies that the said Second Street Company was one of the auxiliary companies of this defendant, and this defendant denies that it at all times or at any other time dominated or controlled the said Second Street Company, and this defendant states that whatever leases or contracts were made between the said Belt Company, Second Street Company and the said Express Company, were made in the ordinary course of business between said companies, and this defendant had no connection whatsoever therewith.

118. As to so much of the said amended ancillary bill as seeks an account of the money, property or effects of the said Belt, Union, Air Line, Consolidated, Suburban, Kansas City Terminal Construction, Elevator, Improvement, Townsite or Northern Companies, coming into the hands of this defendant prior to the 6th day of September, 1895, or that seeks a satisfaction for or in respect of any money or property received by this defendant for or on account of any of the above named companies or with respect to any of the matters and things set forth in the said amended ancillary bill as having taken place or transpired prior to the said date, 432 this defendant says that all of the said matters and things pretended to have transpired, and all of the said money, property and effects pretended to have been received by this defendant, if any such were received, transpired and were received by this defendant more than five years before the commencement of this action or any action whatsoever, and that if the said complainants in the said amended ancillary bill had any cause of action or suit against this defendant for or concerning any of the said matters, which this defendant does not admit, that such cause of action or suit did not accrue or arise within five (5) years before the said amended ancillary bill or the said original bill herein was filed or this defendant was served with process, nor did this defendant at any time within five (5) years before the said bills were exhibited or process sued out against this defendant, promise or agree to come to any account or make satisfaction or agree to pay any sum or sums of money for or by reason of any of the said matters, nor was there any occasion for it so to do; and that by a certain Act of the General Assembly of the State of Missouri, for the limitation of actions and suits at law, it was enacted as is shown by Sections 6773, 6774 and 6775, of the Revised Statutes of the State of Missouri, for the year 1889, as follows, to-wit:

SEC. 6673. "Civil actions, other than those for the recovery of real property can only be commenced within the periods prescribed in the following sections, after the causes of action shall have accrued."

SEC. 6774. "Within ten years: First, an action upon any writing, whether sealed or unsealed, for the payment of money or property; second, actions brought on any covenant of warranty contained in any deed of conveyance of land shall be brought within ten years next after there shall have been a final decision against the title of the covenantor in such deed, and actions on any covenant of seizin contained in any such deed shall be brought within ten years after the cause of such action shall accrue; third, actions for relief, not herein otherwise provided for."

SEC. 6775. "Within five years: First, all actions upon contracts, obligations or liabilities, express or implied, except those mentioned in section 6774, and except upon judgments or decrees of a court of record, and except where a different time is herein limited; second, an action upon a liability created by a statute other than a penalty or forfeiture; third, an action for trespass on real estate; fourth, an action for taking, detaining or injuring any goods or chattels, including actions for recovery of specific personal property, or for any other injury to the person or rights of an-433 other, not arising on contract and not herein otherwise enumerated; fifth, an action for relief on the ground of fraud, the cause of action in such case to be deemed not to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party at any time within ten years, of the facts constituting the fraud."

The defendant states that the statutes have been in force during the whole time in which the said matters set forth in said amended ancillary bill are pretended to have transpired and ever since the said pretended causes of action are alleged to have accrued; and this defendant pleads the several matters aforesaid in bar to so much of the said complainant's said demands as aforesaid and prays the judgment of this Honorable Court thereon.

119. For further plea this defendant says ever since defendant had any dealings of any kind with the said Kansas City Terminal Construction, Fruit Auction, Belt, Union, Suburban, Air Line, Consolidated, Northern Elevator, Townsite or Improvement Companies, the said Belt Company and all of said companies have had full knowledge of all the facts and circumstances in connection with the said dealings and in connection with the disposition made of the stocks and bonds of the said companies or any of them and of the organization and management of the said companies and of the condition of their property and assets and of all the pretended acts and doings of this defendant in connection therewith, if any such acts were done; and that the said companies, including the said Belt Company, have had full knowledge of all such facts and circumstances in connection with said transactions ever since the same were had and done, if any such transactions took place; and that the said Belt Company and the other companies above named have taken no steps to enforce any rights which it had or has or claims to have, arising out of such transactions and that the said Belt Company and the other companies above named and the complainants in the said amended ancillary bill have been guilty of laches in the premises and should not now be permitted to come into a court of equity and assert any claim arising out of said transactions or to question the same, and defendant craves the same benefit from this defense as if it had formally pleaded the same in bar of said amended ancillary bill or had demurred thereto.

120. As to so much and such part of the said amended ancillary bill as seeks an account of and concerning the dealings and transactions therein alleged to have taken place between this defendant and any of the other companies therein named, this defendant says

434 that long prior to the filing of the said bills of complaint herein, from time to time and at least once in each and every month during the whole time that this defendant had any dealings with the said Suburban, Belt, Union, Air Line, Consolidated, or any of the other companies therein mentioned, this defendant caused to be exhibited to the said companies with which said dealings were had, a full, complete and correct statement in writing, of the accounts between it and the said companies or any of them, counterparts of each item of which were delivered to the said companies respectively, of all sums of money, and all property which this defendant had before that time, by the order and direction and for the use of the said companies received and of all manner of things thereunto relating or at any time prior thereto

depending between this defendant and the said companies, and in respect whereof the said bills of complaint have since been filed; and the said companies, through their proper officers, after a strict examination of the said accounts and every item and particular thereof, which accounts this defendant avers to have been true and just did approve and allow the same and did pay to this defendant in whole or in part the balances shown to be due this defendant, either in cash or by their promissory notes duly executed and delivered, or did agree to pay the said balances to this defendant, as the case might have been; and that from time to time, prior to the filing of said bills of complaint, each and every matter and thing complained of in the said amended ancillary bill was settled by the said Belt Company, either in cash or by the execution by it to defendant of notes evidencing the indebtedness shown to have been due defendant from said Belt Company by the said statements, and that in the said indebtedness were included, all and singular, the said matters complained of in the said amended ancillary bill, and the said notes were executed by the said Belt Company with full knowledge on the part of its officers and directors of the facts and circumstances from which said indebtedness arose, and that each and all of the matters aforesaid complained of in the said amended ancillary bill were many years ago and long prior to the commencement of this suit, fully settled and adjusted between defendant and the said Belt Company through the execution by the said Belt Company from time to time of it- notes given in part payment of the accounts so exhibited by the defendant to the Belt Company as aforesaid and that said notes have long since been paid and settled and that at the time said notes were executed to defendant the stockholders and officers and directors of the Belt Company and of all the other companies with whom any such dealings were had, were fully informed as to all the matters and things on account of which said notes were given and that the notes executed by the said Belt Company and which are now held by defendant, are 435 notes evidencing the indebtedness of the Belt Company arising long after the notes first hereinbefore referred to were paid and settled; and the action of the officers and directors of the Belt Company and the other companies hereinabove named in executing said notes, was afterward fully ratified and confirmed by the stock-holders of the said companies; and this defendant pleads the several matters aforesaid in bar of so much of the said amended ancillary — as prays an account herein and defendant prays the judgment of this Honorable Court thereon.

121. This defendant further states that long prior to the commencement of this action there was a complete accord and satisfaction between this defendant and all of the companies hereinabove named with respect to all of the matters and things set forth in the said amended ancillary bill, excepting only the matters set forth in paragraphs 104 and 105 hereof, which matters and things relate solely to facts and circumstances arising since the institution of this suit, and for which the complainants were not entitled to have credit on their indebtedness to respondent until long after the said bills of complainants were exhibited.

122. Further answering, defendant states that from and after the first day of January, 1898, continuously up until the 1st day of April, 1900, defendant at sundry and frequent times loaned and advanced to the said Belt Company at its instance and request large sums of money, aggregating more than a half million dollars, for the purpose of making necessary improvements in the said Belt Company's road, and that the said Belt Company used the said money for its own purposes; that the said Belt Company from time to time repaid to this defendant some of the money so loaned and advanced by it as aforesaid, but left unpaid a very large portion thereof, for a part of which balance promissory notes, hereinafter described, were duly executed and delivered by the Belt Company to this defendant and to secure which certain stocks, bonds and property owned by the Belt Company, and hereinafter described, were pledged as collateral security; that the said Belt Company, long after any officer of this defendant had ceased to have any connection with the said Belt Company, subsequently recognized said indebtedness, evidenced by said notes, as just and valid and subsequently promised to pay the same; that during the month of June, 1900, the Belt Company at a time when no officer of this defendant had any connection therewith paid, on account of some of the said promissory notes, large sums of money which were duly credited thereon, as is hereinafter shown, and promised to pay the remainder due on said notes and the other indebtedness hereinafter described and owing to this defendant.

436 123. That this defendant now owns and holds the following promissory notes, duly executed and delivered as aforesaid to this defendant by the said Belt Company, all of which notes are long past due and unpaid, to-wit:

One note dated March 31, 1899, due July 2, 1899, for $50,000.00, with interest from date at the rate of six per cent per annum, on which there has been paid and credited on June 14, 1900, $12,500.00.

One note dated July 26, 1899, due on demand for $203,900.00, with interest at 6 per cent per annum from date, upon which there was paid and credited on June 11, 1900, $9,993.65.

One note dated October 23, 1899, due on demand, for $7,162.40 with interest at 6 per cent per annum from date.

One note dated November 7, 1899, due January 8, 1900, for $50,000.00 with interest after maturity at 8 per cent per annum, upon which there was paid and credited June 14, 1900, $12,500.00.

One note dated January 25, 1900, due May 25, 1900, for $25,000.00, with interest after maturity at 6 per cent per annum; interest paid to September 1, 1901.

One note dated February 8, 1900, due May 12, 1900, for $109,500.00 with interest from maturity at 8 per cent per annum, on which there was paid and credited October 23, 1900, as proceeds of sale of collateral made by the National Bank of Commerce, $110,250.00 leaving a balance due on October 23, 1900, of $3,240.66.

One note dated September 21, 1899, for $23,056.48, with interest after date at 8 per cent per annum.

One note dated February 9, 1900, due June 11, 1900, for $10,400.00, with interest from maturity at 6 per cent per annum.

124. In addition to above described promissory notes the Belt Company is justly indebted to this defendant on an open book account, arising subsequent to the execution by the said Belt Company of the said notes, and arising on account of money advanced at various times and in sundry sums by this defendant to, and paid out for the use and benefit of the said Belt Company, at its special instance and request, parts of which said money the said Belt Company, from time to time, repaid and was duly credited therewith, all of which sums of money, so advanced and paid out for the use and benefit of the said Belt Company, together with the payments and credits thereon, are truly set out and appear from the 437 bill of items hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit A," which bill of items shows the balance due to this defendant on said account on June 4th, 1900, as being $43,713.32.

125. And this defendant states that the stocks, bonds and property, which were assigned to it by the said Belt Company as collateral security for the said indebtedness, are as follows, towit:

10,000 shares of the capital stock of the Union Company.

4,997 shares of capital stock of the Union Company.

4,994 shares of capital stock of the Air Line.

1,120 shares of the capital stock of the Central Improvement Company.

439 shares of stock of the Northern Townsite Company.

425 shares of stock of the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company.

25 shares of stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company.

13,920 shares of stock of the Kansas City Northern and Connecting Railroad Company.

67 9-10 second mortgage bonds of the said Northern Connecting Company.

23 first mortgage bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company.

26 first mortgage bonds of the Kansas City Northern and Connecting Railroad Company.

315 first mortgage bonds of the Kansas City Northern and Connecting Railroad Company, also,

A certain account and claim of the Belt Company against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, consisting of charges for material furnished and labor performed, switching charges and terminal rentals, due from the said Gulf Railroad Company to the said Belt Company, which account on its face amounts to $132,805.44, also, 16 1712-2000 tons of fastenings.

343 1940-2240 tons of steel rails, also,

126. And defendant states that the above enumerated promissory notes executed by the said Belt Company and now held by this defendant, were executed by the proper officers of the said Belt Company by authority expressly conferred upon said officers at 438 meetings of the Board of Directors of the said Belt Company duly convened and held, and that afterward, on February first, 1900, at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the said Belt Company duly convened and held, a majority of the directors being present, a resolution was regularly adopted ratifying the action of said officers in executing said notes and in delivering the said property to defendant as collateral security therefor.

127. This defendant states that it has heretofore sold certain of said collateral security with the knowledge and consent of the said Belt Company and has applied the same to the payment of the said promissory notes, and that as to the remaining collateral security this defendant has been temporarily enjoined, at the suit of the Cambria Steel Company in the above entitled original cause, from selling or otherwise subjecting certain of the above named stocks and bonds, so held by this defendant as collateral security, toward the payment of the indebtedness of the Belt Company to this defendant, but that certain of said collateral security has, under the order of this court, been sold by this defendant and the proceeds of certain sales are now held by this defendant in accordance with the order of this court to await the final determination of this cause. As to the said claim and account of the Belt Company against the said Gulf Company, assigned to and held by this defendant as collateral security for the said indebtedness, this defendant states that said claim and account has been made by this defendant the subject of an intervening petition in the suit of the State Trust Company, complainant, against said Gulf Company and others, defendants, filed in this court, and that the said intervention is still pending and undetermined.

128. As to the steel rails and fastenings, hereinabove mentioned, this defendant states, that notwithstanding the said Belt Company transferred and assigned the same to this defendant as collateral security as aforesaid, it afterward refused to actually deliver the same to this defendant and this defendant was therefore obliged to bring suit in replevin therefor, which suit was brought in the State Court of Jackson County, Missouri, and resulted in a judgment in favor of this defendant and that this defendant has sold the said steel rails and fastenings, and has applied the same toward the payment of the said open account thereby reducing the balance due on said open account to the sum of $31,809.49.

129. And this defendant again shows to the court that it has no interest in the property of the Central Improvement Company or of the said Amusement Company or of the said Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, except that it holds certain stock of the 439 said companies as collateral security, as aforesaid, for the indebtedness due this defendant by the said Belt Company, and that it holds certain mortgage liens upon the property of the said Elevator Company.

130. And this defendant further states and shows that it has frequently heretofore made demand upon the said Belt Company and upon the complainants in the said amended ancillary bill, for the payment of each and all of said promissory notes and said book account, and that this defendant on the 1st day of April, 1900, made special demand upon the said Belt Company for the payment of all of said promissory notes which are payable on demand, and also on that date made demand on the said Belt Company for the payment of the said open book account; that the said Belt Company has failed and refused to pay the said notes or account or any part thereof.

131. The defendant submits to the judgment of this Honorable Court and humbly insists that this suit is altogether unnecessary and vexatious and that even if complainants had been entitled to any such relief as is prayed by the said bill, the same might have been obtained by proceedings at law, but defendant says that a large sum of money has been due for a long time on account of said promissory notes and said open book account and now is justly due and owing to it from the said Belt Company and complainants and that during the whole of the transactions in the said bill mentioned, the said Belt Company has repeatedly acknowledged the accuracy of the accounts rendered by defendant to it and has treated the same as being, as in fact they were, and are settled accounts, and has treated the said notes and open book accounts as justly owing and due to defendant and defendant claims the same benefit from this defense, as if it had pleaded the same to the said bill.

132. All of which matters and things hereinbefore stated this defendant is ready to aver, maintain and prove as this honorable court may direct, and hereby prays that judgment may be rendered by this Honorable Court against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the said complainants as its said receivers, in favor of this defendant, for the amount of each and all of the said promissory notes, together with interest thereon, and for the amount of the said open book account with interest thereon from the 1st day of April, 1900, and that this defendant may have judgment against the said Belt Company for any and all further sums of amounts that may be found due this defendant; that the court may by proper order protect and enforce the interest of this defendant in and to the stocks, bonds, accounts and property, so deposited with and held by defendant as collateral security as aforesaid, and that the said Belt Company and its said receivers
440 may be ordered and directed to pay to this defendant whatsoever sums of money this defendant may be found entitled to herein, and that this defendant also have judgment for its reasonable costs, charges and expenses in this behalf most wrongfully expended and sustained and for such other and further relief as to the court shall seem meet and just in the premises.

442 Afterwards, to-wit, on the 7th day of August, 1905, the Answer of T. T. Crittenden, as Receiver of the Central Improvement Company, to the amended intervening petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company was filed. Said Answer is in words and figures as follows:

In the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri.

In Equity.

No. 2468.

CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY, Complainant,

vs.

KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY, UNION TERMINAL Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, Defendants; The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, Intervener.

Bill.

Answer of T. T. Crittenden, as Receiver of the Central Improvement Company, and Central Improvement Company to the Amended intervening Petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

The Central Improvement Company, one of the defendants in the above entitled cause, and T. T. Crittenden, as Receiver of the Central Improvement Company, defendants in the amended intervening petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, for their separate answer to said amended intervening petition, answering, say:

These defendants admit that the intervenor is a corporation, duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, as a railway corporation, and that it was incorporated according to law in March, 1900.

These defendants neither admit nor deny that the mortgages or deeds of trust executed and delivered by The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Consolidated Terminal Railway Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Union Terminal Railroad Company, and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, described in the said amended intervening petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, recited that the same should be a first mortgage and paramount lien upon the railroad of said companies, and upon all the properties and property rights of the said Companies, of every name, nature and description, then held or that might thereafter be acquired including all the 443 privileges and franchises thereto appertaining, but ask that proof of the same be made.

These defendants, further answering, neither admit nor deny that by virtue of the foreclosure sales and the purchase thereat, by The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, described in said amended intervening petition, the said The Kansas City Southern Railway Company acquired title to any of the property of said railroad companies acquired after the execution and delivery of said mortgages or deeds of trust described in said amended intervening petition, but ask that proof of the same be made.

These defendants further answering state that they are not sufficiently informed to answer even upon information and belief as to whether the claims of the Cambria Steel Company and Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad company are subordinate and inferior to the claims of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, described in the said amended intervening petition; and further answering, these defendants, upon information and belief aver that the matters and things stated and set out in the said amended intervening petition, except as to those matters hereinbefore specifically answered, are true.

All of which matters and things hereinbefore stated these defendants are ready to aver, maintain and prove, as this Honorable Court may direct.

Wherefore, defendants pray that the amended intervening petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company may be dismissed, as to these defendants, and for their costs in this behalf most wrongfully expended.

T. B. BUCKNER,
Solicitor for Defendants.

Crittenden, its Receiver to the Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint of Stuart R. Knott, and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company was filed. Said Answer is in words and figures as follows:

These defendants now and at all times hereafter saving to themselves all and all manner of benefit of exceptions or otherwise than can or may be had or taken to the many errors, uncertainties and imperfections in the said bill contained, for answer thereto, or to so much thereof as these defendants are advised it is material or necessary for them to make answer to, answering say:

1. These defendants, the Central Improvement Company and T. T. Crittenden, its Receiver, do not know and cannot set forth as their belief or otherwise whether or not the allegations in said Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint are true (except as to those parts which they hereinafter specifically admit) but of the truth thereof require strict proof to be made.

445 2. The defendants admit that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, the Union Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Northern Townsite Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, Central Improvement

Company, Cambria Steel Company are corporations organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri and citizens and residents of said state and each of them having their principal office or place of business in Kansas City, Missouri, and each of them being an inhabitant of the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, except the Cambria Steel Company which is a corporation duly created and existing under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania and a non-resident of the State of Missouri, and the Union Terminal Railroad Company which is a corporation duly created and existing under the laws of the State of Kansas and a non-resident of the State of Missouri.

3. These defendants further admit all the facts and matters alleged and set forth on pages 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 of the Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint; that the Kansas City Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company was a railroad corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri and that for the purpose of acquiring the funds with which to construct the said railroad the said Railroad Company issued its first mortgage to secure the issue of its first mortgage bonds; that on April 1, 1899, there were issued and outstanding said bonds to the amount of twenty-three million dollars ($23,000,000.00) and that at that time default was made in the payment of the installment of interest due on the said bonds and a bill for the foreclosure thereof was forthwith filed and receivers for said Railroad Company were appointed and thereafter such proceedings were had that said Railroad Company was sold under foreclosure decree.

4. These defendants admit that the Central Improvement Company was incorporated with a capital stock of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000.00) of which one hundred forty-one thousand five hundred dollars ($141,500.00) par value has been issued; that said company was organized for the purpose of holding the title to various pieces of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, and elsewhere purchased for the use and benefit of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter for convenience referred to as the Belt Company, and the Kansas City Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and other companies; that certain pieces of such real 446 estate are used by and are vitally necessary in the operation of the railroad of the Belt Company and are held in the name of the Central Improvement Company; that the total consideration for all of the property acquired by this defendant company was furnished or advanced by the Belt Company or the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company; the title to all of such property being taken in the name of the Central Improvement Company; that certain tracts of land so acquired have since been sold by this defendant company or by its receivers, and that $8,315.72 dollars, resulting from such sales, are now in the hands of T. T. Crittenden, as Receiver of this defendant company; that the title to the following described land acquired by this defendant Company as above described, all of which is of vital importance and necessary to and for the operation of the railroad of the Belt Company and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, is held in the name of this defendant company, and is, together with the said $8,315.72 dollars, now in the possession of T. T. Crittenden as Receiver of this defendant Company:

454 These replicants, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, saving and reserving to themselves all and all manner of advantages of exceptions, which may be had and taken to the manifold errors, uncertainties and insufficiencies of the answer of the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, for replication thereunto saith that they do and will aver, maintain and prove their said bill to be true, certain and sufficient in the law to be answered unto by said defendants, and that the answer of the said defendants is very uncertain, evasive and insufficient in law to be replied unto by these said replicants; without that that any other matter or thing in the said answer contained, material or effectual in the law to be replied unto and not herein and hereby well and sufficiently replied unto, confessed or avoided, traversed or denied is true; all of which matters and things these replicants are ready to aver, maintain and prove as this Honorable Court shall direct, and humbly prays as in and by their said bill they hath already prayed.

456 Second Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint.

To the Judges of the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, in the Eighth Circuit, Sitting in Equity:

Your orators, Edward F. Swinney, as Receiver of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, with leave of court, bring this their second amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint against the Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company and Thomas T. Crittenden, its Receiver, Cambria Steel Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, each and all of which said corporations both complainant and defendants, are corporations organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Missouri and citizens and residents of said state and each of them having their principal office and place of business at Kansas City in said state and each of them being an inhabitant of the Western Division of the Western District thereof, except the Cambria Steel Company, which is a corporation duly created and existing under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania and a non-resident of the State of Missouri.

Your orators state that on November 30, 1900, in the suit of W. W. Bierce, et al., complainants, against the Guardian Trust Company, defendant, then pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of Missouri, Francis M. Black was appointed receiver of the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, and was at the time of filing the original ancillary bill herein the duly qualified and acting receiver of said company, but that since the filing of said bill the receiver for the Guardian Trust Company has been discharged and the said Trust Company is now in the possession of its corporate property, operating and conducting its own business in connection therewith; that in this suit Wash Adams was heretofore appointed receiver for the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, but the property and assets of the said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company had since the filing of the original ancillary bill herein been turned over to the Guardian Trust Company, the mortgagee in certain mortgages covering the property of said Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company; that at the time of filing said original ancillary bill Wash Adams was the duly qualified and acting receiver for the Central Improvement Company, since which time the said Adams has resigned and Thomas T. Crittenden has been appointed as his successor and is now the duly qualified and acting receiver of said company; that said Thomas T. Crittenden is a citizen 457 and resident of the Western Division of the Western District of the State of Missouri.

And, thereupon, your orators complain and say that the above-named complainant, the Cambria Steel Company, heretofore exhibited to this Honorable Court its bill of complaint against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, a defendant, and the other corporation defendants above named, in and by which said bill of complaint said Cambria Steel Company, as such complainant, set up the recovery of a judgment by it against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company for the sum of One Hundred Thousand Nine Hundred Sixty-Two and 91-100 Dollars ($100,962.91), and the issuance and delivery, and return unsatisfied of an execution thereon, and in and by said bill of complaint sought to subject to the payment and satisfaction of said judgment certain rights, properties and assets belonging to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the other defendants above named.

Your orators further show that prior to the filing of said bill of complaint by said Cambria Steel Company four certain bills of complaint were duly filed in this court by the Provident Life & Trust Company of Philadelphia, two of said bills being filed against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company as the sole defendant; another of said bills was filed against the Union Terminal Railroad Company, a Kansas corporation, and the said The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company as defendants; and the other of said bills was filed against the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, a Missouri corporation, and the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company. Each of said bills sought the foreclosure of a first mortgage, upon certain railroad property described in the said bills of complaint respectively, and which said several described pieces of railroad property together for a long time have been operated by the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company as a continuous and allied system, said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company being also the beneficial owner of said properties by reason of owning the capital stock of said several companies. Upon the same day upon which the said bills of complaint were filed an application was made for the appointment of a receiver of all the property of said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and on the same day, to-wit, on the sixth day of September, 1900, an order was duly entered of record in each of said causes, as well as in the above entitled cause, appointing your orator Edward F. Swinney and Stuart R. Knott as receivers of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and vesting them, as such receivers, with 458 all the rights, title, estate, property and interest of the said the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and authorizing and directing them as such receivers, to proceed to take such steps and institute such proceedings, legal or otherwise, as might be necessary and requisite to compel a restoration to said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and said Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as its receivers, of any property rights belonging to it and to compel an accounting from any and all persons, firms or corporations from whom the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company might be entitled to such accounting; that said Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers, were also authorized to appear in any and all suits theretofore or thereafter instituted against the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, in its name or in the names of Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as the receivers, to defend any and all such suits. Your orators further show unto the court that under and by virtue of the powers and authorities so vested in them, as aforesaid, your orators for and on behalf of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, which is made a defendant to the bill of complaint in the above entitled cause, have appeared and filed their answer to said bills of complaint, as will appear of record herein, and having so filed said answer, your orators bring this, their ancillary bill of complaint herein against the defendants above named, and now file this, their second amended supplemental ancillary bill of complaint against said defendants; that since the filing of the original ancillary bill herein, Stuart R. Knott has resigned as receiver and said resignation has been accepted; and that Edward F. Swinney has been continued as sole receiver herein.

Your orators further show unto the court that immediately upon the appointment of your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as such receivers, they took possession of each and all the property of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and under and pursuant to the orders of the court so appointing them, and thereafter and until the foreclosure sale hereinafter referred to, did operate the railroad property of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company. That such proceedings were had in the causes above referred to that on the 6th day of November, 1901, decrees of foreclosure and sale were duly rendered directing the sale of the railroad and properties of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company and the Union Terminal Railroad Company, covered by the mortgages upon said railroads and property respectively, and on December 31, 1901, the said 459 properties so covered by said mortgages, as aforesaid, were in pursuance of said decrees of foreclosure and sale duly sold and conveyed to the purchaser, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

And your orators further charge and aver that the matters and things mentioned and set forth in this, your orators' second amended and supplemental bill of complaint are ancillary to the said suits so pending in this court wherein your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, were appointed as such receivers and are properly cognizable in this court, which has possession of each and all property of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, except such as was covered by its mortgage and has been heretofore conveyed as aforesaid. For convenience, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company will be hereinafter referred to as the Belt Company; the Guardian Trust Company will hereinafter be referred to, for convenience, as the Trust Company; the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company will be hereinafter referred to, for convenience, as the Elevator Company; the Central Improvement Company will herinafter, for convenience, be referred to as the Central Company; the Fairmount Amusement Company will hereinafter, for convenience, be referred to as the Amusement Company.

Your orators show unto the court that the Trust Company was incorporated according to law in and about the year 1883, and that on or about the month of June, 1899, and until on or about the month of June, 1899, the name of the Trust Company was the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, but that at said latter date such proceedings were taken as are provided by the statutes of the State of Missouri in such case made and provided, so that its name was changed to the Guardian Trust Company.

Your orators upon information and belief further show unto the court [thaz] on or about the first day of January, 1887, a corporation was formed under the laws of the State of Missouri known as The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter, for convenience, called the Suburban Company, for the purpose of building a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas. That as your orators are informed and believe and so charge the facts to be the said Suburban Company was either organized by the said Trust Company, or the control of the Suburban Company passed to the Trust Company shortly after its incorporation, so that the servants and employes of the Trust Company were elected as its officers and directors and the said Trust Company at all times hereinafter mentioned dominated and controlled the said Suburban Company. That as your 460 orators are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be the Trust Company so dominating and controlling the Suburban Company by virtue of holding possession of the offices of its board of directors and officers caused the Suburban Company to issue and deliver to it, the Trust Company, each and all of the capital stock of the Suburban Company, and also caused the Suburban Company to execute its bonds secured by a first mortgage upon all of its corporate property then held and to be thereafter acquired amounting in the aggregate to the sum of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00), and that said bonds in like manner, by virtue of the domination and control of the Trust Company were delivered to the Trust Company, and the Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and otherwise dispose of said bonds and stocks and to apply the proceeds thereof as claimed by it for the corporate purposes of the Suburban Company in the construction and operation of its road; but the Trust Company, although often requested to do so, did not at any time and never has truly accounted to the Suburban Company for the proceeds realized by it from said bonds and stock, and never has accounted in any way for said proceeds or the manner in which it has so expended the same, except as hereinafter stated.

Thereafter, as your orators are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, the Trust Company caused to be formed under the laws of the State of Missouri, a corporation known as the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company for the purpose of building a line of road to connect with the line of road constructed or proposed to be constructed by the Suburban Company, although the Suburban Company had full power under its charter to have constructed the said road itself. The Consolidated Terminal Railway Company is hereinafter, for convenience, referred to as the Consolidated Company. That, as your orators are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be, the Consolidated Company was formed and controlled by the Trust Company, electing as its officers and directors the servants and employes of the Trust Company so that at all times it dominated the Consolidated Company, and the Trust Company thereupon caused the Consolidated Company to issue and deliver to it its entire capital stock and also bonds secured by a first mortgage upon its corporate property then and to be thereafter acquired aggregating the sum of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($750,000.00), and caused all said bonds to be delivered to the Trust Company, and the Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and dispose of said bonds and stock of the Consolidated Company so delivered to it as aforesaid and to apply the proceeds thereof as alleged by it for the corporate purposes of the Con-
461 solidated Company in the construction and operation of its road; but the Trust Company, although often requested so to do, did not and never has truly accounted to the Consolidated Company for the disposition made by it of said bonds and stock so delivered as aforesaid and the proceeds derived therefrom and the purpposes to which said proceeds were applied, and never has accounted in any way therefor, except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, that thereafter and on or about the 25th day of July, 1892, the Consolidated Company and the

Suburban Company, as authorized by the Statutes of the State of Missouri, entered into articles of consolidation whereby the said two companies became one consolidated corporation, thereafter known as the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, of which your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, were appointed Receivers, as aforesaid, and under and by virtue of said articles of consolidation, as well as the statutes of the State of Missouri in such case made and provided, the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as its receivers, have succeeded to each and all of the rights of both the Consolidated Company and the Suburban Company.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, that at the time of the consolidation of said two companies, as aforesaid, the Trust Company caused its officers and employes to be elected to the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company, the company so formed by said consolidation, and continued such persons in such positions respectively, continuously until about the month of April, 1900, whereby the Trust Company at all times, up to said last mentioned date, completely dominated and controlled the actions of the Belt Company.

462 instances, caused its officers and employes to be elected the officers and directors of the Union Company and the Union Company was a corporation organized for the sole purpose of holding the title to said property of the Suburban or Belt Company in the State of Kansas; that the Trust Company thereupon caused all of the stock of the Union Company to be issued to the Suburban or Belt Company and also caused the Union Company to execute its first mortgage bonds in the amount of Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00); and said bonds were secured by a first mortgage upon all the property of the Union Company then and to be thereafter acquired; that said bonds were thereupon issued and delivered to the Trust Company for the use and benefit of the Suburban or Belt Company; that the Trust Company immediately proceeded to sell, or otherwise dispose of, the said bonds and stock of the Union Company, which had been theretofore delivered to it by the Belt Company, and to apply the proceeds derived from such sale in part, as alleged by it, to the construction and operation of the road so built for the Belt Company and held and operated in the name of the Union Company; that the Trust Company thereupon became liable to account to the Belt Company for the proceeds and disposition of the same derived from the sale of the said bonds and stock, but although often requested to do it always has failed and refused to account truly to the Belt Company for the disposition made by it of said bonds and stock, the proceeds derived from such disposition and the manner in which said proceeds were disposed of, and has never accounted therefor in any way except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe and so charge the facts to be that thereafter and on or about the 23rd day of January, 1891, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri, a corporation known as the Kansas City & Independence Air Line; hereinafter, for convenience referred to as the Air Line; said company being incorporated for the purpose of building a line of road connecting the line of the Suburban Belt Company and the City of Independence, Missouri; that the capital stock of said company was placed at the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,00.00). The Trust Company immediately caused its officers and employes to be elected directors and officers of the Air Line and thereupon caused the Air Line to issue its first mortgage bonds to the amount of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000.00), secured by a first mortgage upon all of its corporate property then and to be thereafter acquired; that by virtue of the fact that the officers and directors of the Air Line were officers and employes of the Trust Company it at all times dominated and controlled the Air Line up to 463 and until the month of April, 1900; that thereafter the Trust Company acquired each and all of the bonds and stock of the Air Line, the Trust Company in fact constructing the railroad of the Air Line and acquiring said bonds and stock in consideration therefor; afterwards it proceeded to dispose of the same and to apply the proceeds, as it alleged, for the corporate purposes of the Belt Company; but the Trust Company, although often requested so to do, has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for the disposition made by it of the said bonds and stock, and the proceeds realized by it therefrom and has never accounted to the Belt Company in any manner except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show that they are informed and believe and so charge the facts to be that the Trust Company at all times up to and about the month of April, 1900, absolutely and completely dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company by reason of the fact that the officers and employes of the Trust Company were elected officers and directors of the Belt Company at the behest of the Trust Company and were simply dummies acting as the agents of the Trust Company; that the Trust Company itself attended to the disbursement of all the moneys which were realized from the sale of the bonds and stock of the several companies hereinbefore named and itself attended to the disbursement of the moneys which were used in the construction and building of the lines of road of said defferent companies. That your orators are informed and believe, and on such information and belief state that the total cost of the lines of all of the said companies did not exceed the sum of about Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00), but that there was actualy delivered to and disposed — by the Trust Company secured bonds and stock aggregating more than Five Million Dollars ($5,000,000.00) and that the Trust Company has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company or to your orators for the proceeds derived by it from the sale of said bonds and the disposition made by it of such proceeds and has never accounted to the Belt Company in any way, except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators upon information and belief further charge and aver that on or about the 30th day of June, 1896, the Trust Company, either in its own name or in the name of some of its officers, or some corporation controlled by it, had entered into a contract whereby it was obligated to construct a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, for the purpose of connecting at that point with the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad Company and the Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad 464 Company; that the Trust Company thereupon caused to be incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri a corporation known as the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, hereinafter for convenience called the Connecting Company, and caused certain of its officers and employes to be elected officers and directors of the Connecting Company and by virtue thereof at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of the Connecting Company; that the Trust Company, being under obligation to construct said road as aforesaid set about to discover a way in which it could cause said railroad to be constructed without incurring any liability itself and without making itself liable for the possibility of loss in such construction; that it thereupon conceived the idea of having the Belt Company undertake the construction of said railroad on consideration of the issuance of bonds and stock of the Connecting Company; that, therefore, by virtue of the domination and control which the Trust Company exercised over the affairs of both the Belt Company and the Connecting Company, the Trust Company caused a contract to be entered into between the Belt Company and the Connecting Company whereby the Belt Company agreed to construct and did construct said line of railroad for the Connecting Company in consideration, among others, of the issuance to the Belt Company of certain first and second mortgage bonds and stock of the Connecting Company, more fully specified in said contract; that said contract so entered into as aforesaid is set up in Exhibit A to the answer of the Trust Company filed in this cause, to which reference is hereby made. The said line of railroad so built as aforesaid was constructed for the sole use and benefit of the Trust Company and for the purpose of enabling it to comply with its obligations to so furnish the said railroad; that the said railroad so furnished, as aforesaid, was not and never has been of any value whatsoever to the Belt Company; that the construction of said road, as aforesaid, by the Belt Company was the result of the Trust Company's domination and control of the Belt Company, utilizing the Belt Company to further and consummate its own purposes and ends and for its own benefit; and the said contract for the construction of said railroad of the Connecting Co-pany was so entered into it by as aforesaid solely by the domination and control exercised over the Belt Company by the Trust Company, and the Trust Company in so constructing said railroad as aforesaid, simply used the Belt Company as an unwilling agency in the building of the same and occupied towards the Belt Company the relation of principal; that each and all of the moneys paid out by the Belt Company for the construction of said connecting road passed through the hands of the Trust Company and all the bonds and stock which were to have been delivered to the 465 Belt Company under the terms of said pretended contract in like manner passed through the hands of the Trust Company and the Trust Company proceeded to sell or otherwise dispose of the same; that the Trust Company never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for the amount realized by it from said bonds and stock, and has never accounted in any manner to the Belt Company therefor, except as hereinafter stated. Your orators particularly charge and aver that the Trust Company in so using the Belt Company in the construction of said line is charged in law and in equity with the amount of the said loss claimed by the Trust Company to have resulted to the Belt Company and should be held accountable therefor.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be, that, during the time the Trust Company, so dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company and Air Line, it at various times had the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company and Air Line advance to it or take out of the earnings and assets of the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company and Air Line, large sums of money which it pretended to expend for and on account of the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company and Air Line; that by reason of the fact that the Trust Company at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company and Air Line, and had its employes and servants elected as officers and directors of the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company and Air Line, your orators are unable to state the amount of money so appropriated by the Trust Company and belonging to the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company and Air Line, and which the Trust Company alleges was expended for the corporate purposes of the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, Union Company and Air Line, but upon information and belief your orators charge and aver that said amount aggregates upwards of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00); and that the Trust Company has never at any time truly accounted for the said money so received by it, nor the manner in which it was expended, and has never accounted in any manner therefor except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe, and so charge the fact to be, that during the times hereinbefore mentioned the Trust Company took upon itself the business of paying out practically all the moneys which were paid out for the benefit of the Belt Company and of buying for the Belt
466 Company practically all the property which the Belt Company needed to acquire in its business of operating said road and used the moneys of the Belt Company for that purpose, but, instead of taking the title of the property so purchased, in the name of the Belt Company, the Trust Company caused other corporations to be formed for the purpose of holding the naked legal title to said respective properties, and caused the capital stock of said corporations so organized as aforesaid to be issued to the Belt Company and then turned over to the Trust Company or to be issued to the Trust Company direct in trust, for the use and benefit of the Belt Company; and the Trust Company caused its own servants and agents and employes to be elected and continued as the officers and directors of such companies respectively and at all times, down to the month of April, 1900, so that the Trust Company, in the same manner that it controlled the affairs of the Belt Company, dominated and controlled the actions and affairs of the said subsidiary companies; that among the companies so organized by the Trust Company, in the manner aforesaid, is the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, with a capital stock of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00), of which Forty-Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($42,500.00) has been issued; that the said company owns two certain elevators in Kansas City, Missouri, along the line of the Belt Company; and that the Trust Company caused the construction of said elevators, and one other elevator, which has since been destroyed by fire, and in the construction of the same used the money of the Belt Company; said money being paid out to the Trust Company upon its request; that no true accounting has ever been had between the Trust Company and the Belt Company as to the amount of money which it actually expended for the construction of said elevators or of the manner in which it disposed of the funds received by it from the Belt Company for the alleged purpose of undertaking such construction, although requests for such accounting have frequently been made upon the officers of the Trust Company, and no accounting has ever been made therefor, except as hereinafter stated. That the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to assume all the outstanding debts and liabilities of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, and upon said outstanding debts and liabilities the Belt Company paid large sums of money, for which said Belt Company has never been reimbursed. That upon the 8th day of November, 1900, one Wash Adams was appointed Receiver of the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company; that since that date the court in this cause has made an order turning over to the Trust Company the said properties of the Elevator Company for the collection of the rents therefrom and the application of said rents upon underlying mortgages or encumbrances held by the Trust Company; that the Trust Com-467 pany also caused to be organized the Central Improvement Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, with a capital stock of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00), of which One Hundred Forty-One Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($141,500.00) par value has been issued; that said company was organized for the purpose of holding the title to various pieces of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, and elsewhere purchased for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, and the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, another Missouri railroad, and other of the companies above mentioned so organized, dominated and controlled by the Trust Company; that the officers and employes of the Central Company, all of whom were the officers, servants or employes of the Trust Company, continued nominally in office and to control and manage such company until about the month of April, 1900; that certain pieces of real estate which are of vital importance to the Belt Company are held in the name of the Central Company; that the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of purchasing the said pieces of property and using for that purpose funds of the Belt Company; that various sums of money were, during the period above mentioned, paid out by the Belt Company to the Trust Company for the purpose of purchasing such pieces of real estate; that the Trust Company has never truly accounted to the Belt Company, although often requested so to do for the sums of money so received by it and the disposition made by it of such sums of money, and has never accounted at all therefor, except as hereinafter stated. That certain shares of stock of the said Central Improvement Company were also, although belonging to the Belt Company, issued to the Trust Company and it has disposed of the same, and although frequently requested so to do it has never truly accounted to the Belt Company therefor and has never accounted at all therefor, except as hereinafter stated. That a large amount of property was purchased with money advanced by the Belt Company, the title to which property, however, was taken in the name of the Central Improvement Company; that all of said property in truth and in fact has belonged to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Company; that the Belt Company has never been reimbursed for the money so advanced as aforesaid; that upon the 8th day of November, 1900, one Wash Adams, Esq., was appointed Receiver of the Central Improvement Company; that thereafter said Wash Adams resigned and T. T. Crittenden, Esq., was duly appointed receiver, as the successor of Wash Adams, and the said Crittenden since his appointment has held possession of the property of the Central Improvement Company, all of which in truth and in fact belonged to the Kansas City Suburban

Belt Railroad Company, and now belongs to it, unless the title 468 thereto has passed from it by virtue of the foreclosure sale of the property covered by its mortgage, as hereinbefore stated; that another subsidiary company organized by the Trust Company was the Fairmount Amusement Company, with a total Capital stock of Twenty-five Hundred Dollars ($2,500.00), all of which belongs to the Belt Company; that said company was organized, dominated and controlled in the same manner by the Trust Company as the other corporations hereinabove set forth; that all of the moneys expended by the Fairmount Amusement Company were moneys supplied by the Belt Company or supplied by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company; and the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of disbursing all of the said funds, and that large sums of money were paid by the Belt Company to the Trust Company for that purpose, but the Trust Company has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for said money so received by it or the manner in which it expended the same, although often requested so to do, and has never accounted in any way therefor, except as hereinafter stated. That said Fairmount Amusement Company was organized for the purpose of operating what is commonly known as Fairmount Park, along the line of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line road; that during the time that the Trust Company so dominated and controlled the Belt Company it caused the Belt Company to advance to it large sums of money for the purpose of fitting up said Fairmount Park; that the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of expending said sums of money for the purpose of fitting up Fairmount Park; that as your orators are informed and believe, upward of Three Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($350,000.00) was thus supplied to the Trust Company for the purpose of fitting up Fairmount Park; that the Trust Company has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for the manner in which it expended such sums of money, although frequently requested so to do, and has never accounted at all therefor except as hereinafter stated; that another company organized by the Trust Company was the Northern Townsite Company, a Missouri corporation, with an authorized capital of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00), of which Ninety-Two Thousand Eight Hundred Dollars ($92,800.00) has been issued; that said company was organized by the Trust Company in connection with the construction of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad for the purpose of acquiring property at or near townsites along the line of said road; that the Trust Company in the same manner as it dominated the other corporations above named caused its own servants and employes to be elected and maintained as officers and directors of said Townsite Company 469 and at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of said Townsite Company; and the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to advance to it upwards of Forty-Seven Thousand Dollars ($47,000.00), which it used in the purchase of property which kas [take-] in the name of the Townsite Company; and your orators are informed and believe and on such information and belief state that substantially all the money with which the property of the said Townsite Company was acquired was money advanced by the Belt Company, and that the Trust Company instead of issuing the Belt Company all of the capital stock of the Townsite Company issued large portions of it to itself or to other persons for its use and benefit, or otherwise disposed of the same; that the Trust Company has never truly accounted to the Belt Company at any time for the money so received by it for the purpose of said Townsite Company, from the Belt Company, or the manner in which it expended the same, although frequently requested so to do, and has never accounted in any manner therefor, except as hereinafter stated.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be that the Trust Company also caused to be organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, a corporation known as the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, for the purpose of constructing a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to the Gulf of Mexico; and that the said railroad was so constructed under the direction of the Trust Company acting through the said railroad corporation; and for the purpose of acquiring funds with which to construct the said railroad, the said Railroad Company issued its first mortgage to secure the issue of bonds herein specified, and on or about the first day of April, 1899 there were issued and outstanding bonds to the amount of Twenty-Three Million Dollars ($23,000,000.00); that at that time a default was made in the payment of an installment of interest due on the said bonds, and a bill was forthwith filed for the foreclosure thereof and receivers of the said railroad were appointed, and thereafter such proceedings were had that the said railroad was sold under the foreclosure decree.

Your orators further show unto the court that they are informed and believe and so charge the fact to be that the Belt Company, the Union Company, and Air Line above named were very largely dependent upon the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Company for their earnings, and an operating contract was in existence between — the Belt Company; so that it was well known to the Trust 470 Company that if the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company went into the hands of receivers it would necessarily and inevitably result in insolvency of the Belt Company and other companies hereinbefore named, and would necessitate their ultimately being thrown into the hands of receivers and the mortgages upon the property being foreclosed; that the Trust Company by reason of the domination and control which it exercised over the affairs of the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company well knew that at and for some time prior to the first day of April, 1899, said company would make default in the payment of the installment of interest due on that date and that such default would inevitably result in the filing of a bill to foreclose the mortgage and for the appointment of receivers for the said road and that the Trust Company thereupon set about to contrive a scheme whereby it might appropriate to itself, before the Belt Company passed beyond its control, all of the remaining property and assets of the Belt Company which were in such shape that they could by any possibility be transferred to the Trust Company. That the Trust Company thereupon caused to be exhibited to its own officers and employes who were holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company various claims and demands which it alleged were due and owed by the Belt Company to it and caused such of its own officers and employes as were holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company to pass upon and approve said claims and demands, and thereupon caused its own officers and employes so holding the positions of officers and directors in the Belt Company between the 31st day of March, 1899, and the 9th day of February, 1900, to execute to the Trust Company various pretended promissory notes and other negotiable instruments for the alleged purpose of securing to the Trust Company the payment of the said pretended claims which it held against the Belt Company, and caused its own officers and employes, so holding the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company, to cause to be delivered or transferred to it various stocks, bonds and accounts and other personal property belonging to the Belt Company as collateral security for the said pretended indebtedness of the Belt Company to the Trust Company.

Your orators further charge and aver, upon information and belief, that the notes so fraudulently caused to be made by the Belt Company to the Trust Company are as follows:

Note dated March 31st, 1899, payable on July 2d, 1899, for $50,000, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum.

Note dated July 26th, 1899, payable on demand with 6 per cent interest for $203,900.

471 Note dated Sept. 21st 1899, payable on demand, with 8 per cent interest for $23,056.48.

Note dated Oct. 23d, 1899, payable on demand, with 8 per cent interest, for $7,162.40.

Note dated November 7th, 1899, due January 9th, 1900, with 8 per cent interest, for $50,000.00.

Note dated January 25th, 1900, due May 25th, 1900, with 6 per cent interest, for $25,000.

Note dated February 8th, 1900, due May 12th, 1900, with 6 per cent interest, for $109,500.00.

Note dated February 9th, 1900, due June 11th, 1900, with 8 per cent interest, for $10,400.

The stocks and bonds and other property which the Trust Company fraudulently caused its own officers and employees as officers and directors of the Belt Company to turn over to it for the purpose or securing the payment of the said pretended notes as aforesaid, are as follows:

338 first mortgage, 30 year 5 per cent gold bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company of the denomination of $1000, dated January 1, 1897, being bonds numbered 1467, 1769 to 1773, both inclusive; 1799 to 1818, both inclusive; 1324 to 1331, both inclusive; 1756 to 1768, both inclusive; 1184 to 1216, both inclusive; 1466, 1369 to 1400, both inclusive; 1431 to 1440, both inclusive; 1609 to 1658, both inclusive; 1659 to 1708, both inclusive; 1819 to 1851, both inclusive; 1774 to 1798, both inclusive; 1301 to 1323, both inclusive, and 76 of said bonds the numbers of which are not known to your orators; also 50 of said bonds numbered 1129 to 1178, both inclusive.

67 and 9-10 second mortgage, 30 year 5 per cent income bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company of the denomination of $1000 each, dated January 1st, 1897, being bonds numbered 1064 to 1098, both inclusive; 1149 to 1157, both inclusive; 1162 to 1173, both inclusive; 1192 to 1202, both inclusive.

Certificate No. 229, entitling the holder to 250-1000 of said second mortgage income bonds.

Certificate No. 220, entitling the holder to 150-1000 of said second mortgage income bonds.

472 25 shares of the capital stock of the Fairmount Amusement Company of the par value of $100 each, as evidenced by certificates Nos. 9, 6, 5 and 4.

439 shares of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company of the par value of $100 each, as evidenced by certificate No. 11.

425 shares of the capital stock of the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company of the par value of $100 each, as evidenced by certain certificates Nos. 36, 34, 37, 40 and 38.

19,997 shares of the 20,000 shares constituting the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company.

4994 shares of the capital stock of the Kansas City and Independence Air Line.

15 Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company's second mortgage income bonds.

About 600 tons of new steel rails, theretofore purchased by, and then belonging to said Belt Company, and being stored in its yards.

Your orators further charge that the Trust Company also caused the Belt Company to assign to it an open account against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company in an amount of One Hundred Thirty-Three Thousand Fifty-Eight and 4-100 Dollars ($133,058.04), to secure said alleged indebtedness.

Your orators further charge and aver upon information and belief that the said notes were executed and the said account assigned and the said property above described given as collateral security solely under and by virtue of the domination and control of the Trust Company over the Belt Company and at the time the said action was pretended to have been taken by the Belt Company the officers and directors of the Belt Company so causing the Belt Company to take such action were either officers and directors or servants of the Trust Company, and as such officers and directors or servants and employes of the Trust Company were personally interested in securing to the Trust Company all the available assets of the Belt Company, and that the execution of said promissory notes and delivery of said collateral security under such circumstances was fraudulent and void as against the Belt Company, and in law and in equity ought to be set aside.

473 Your orators further charge and aver upon information and belief that the Trust Company continued to keep its own officers, servants and employes filling the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company down to about the month of April, 1900, when the said Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company having been sold under foreclosure decree and a re-organization of said property joined with the Belt Company having been undertaken, the control of the said Belt Company passed into other hands, and that during all the time until said month of April, 1900, the said Trust Company continuously kept its own officers and employes in the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company, so that at no time were there any persons holding the positions of officers and directors of said Belt Company, who were not personally interested in said Trust Company, and desirous of assisting the said Trust Company in every possible way; and at no time was there ever any true accounting had between the Trust Company and the Belt Company, for or by reason of the matters and things hereinabove set forth, except such an accounting as the officers and employes of the Trust Company, so holding the positions of officers and directors of the said Belt Company pretended to make in looking over and going through the form of approving the accounts and statements rendered to the Belt Company by the Trust Company.

Your orators further show unto the court that ever since the control of the Belt Company passed out of the hands of the Trust Company the Belt Company prior to the appointment of your orators as receivers, endeavored to procure from the Trust Company a true accounting for and by reason of the matters and things hereinabove set forth, for the purpose of determining the true state of accounts between the Belt Company and the Trust Company; but all such demands of the Belt Company have been refused by the Trust Company.

Your orators further show that, since the filing of the original and ancillary bill herein the Trust Company has prepared and submitted a statement of account which it pretends and claims to be a full and complete statement of account of all the matters and transactions had between it and the Belt Company, and the other companies aforesaid, covering the matters hereinbefore set forth; but your orators charge the fact to be that the said account is insufficient, untrue and that it does not properly or truly account for the stocks and bonds and other properties received by the Trust Company from, for or on account of the Belt Company and the other companies aforesaid; that many of the charges against the Belt Company and the other companies aforesaid contained in said
474 account are untrue, illegal, unauthorized and ought not in law or equity to be permitted to stand as charges against the Belt Company and the other companies aforesaid; that the Trust Company in making said account has omitted therefrom a large number of credits to which the Belt Company and the other companies aforesaid is properly and lawfully entitled; and your orators hereby set forth their objections to said account by reference to specific items and instances, without, however, in any degree waiving their right to object to said account as a whole or to insist that no such account has been rendered by the Trust Company as is contemplated and required by law or equity or the equity rules governing such matters.

In the said pretended statement the accounts of the Trust Company against the Union Company, Consolidated Company and Air Line were consolidated with the account of the Belt Company in 1893, so that all charges made against or on account of said lines now appear in the statement of the account of the Belt Company.

1. Your orators further show that the Suburban Company was organized under the laws of the State of Missouri on or about January 8th, 1887; that nothing was done by the Suburban Company in the way of construction of its road or the issue or sale of its securities until on or about May 31, 1889. Prior to said date Mr. A. E. Stillwell, Vice President of the Trust Company, and his associates among the officers and directors of the Trust Company came into control of the Suburban Company; and the Trust Company through them, undertook to promote and finance the Suburban Company and to construct, or cause the construction, of its line of railroad. The plan adopted by the Trust Company for this purpose was to cause the Suburban Company to issue a large amount of securities, consisting of bonds and stocks, to be used in securing money with which to construct the railroad, and for this purpose to organize as its agency a construction company which, directly or through some contractor, should construct the line of the Suburban Company and nominally take the securities of the Suburban Company in payment therefor. It was the further intention and purpose of the Trust Company, as a part of the same plan, to cause securities of the Suburban Company to be issued very largely in excess, in value, of the cost of constructing the line of the Suburban Company, and to cause [said securities to pass through the Trust Company, and to] said securities to pass through the Trust Company, which would exact large and exorbitant amounts (under the guise of commissions and services for promotion and of a similar nature), and to cause such securities finally to be distributed among the stockholders and directors of the Con-
475 struction Company which was to be organized very largely from the officers and directors of the Trust Company; so that the large profits arising from the enterprise might inure to the Trust Company and its officers, directors and their friends and associates; and in accordance with the aforesaid plan the Trust Company caused the Suburban Company on or about May 31, 1889, to enter into a contract with A. E. Stilwell (said contract being hereinafter referred to as the Stilwell contract) dated June 1, 1889, by the terms of which said Stilwell, or assigns, agreed to organize a construction company within sixty days from the date of said contract, to be called the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, for convenience hereinafter called the Construction Company, and to cause said Construction Company to build the line of railroad of the Suburban Company from Broadway Street in Kansas City, Missouri, and along Second Street to Harrison Street; thence in a northeasterly direction along the recorded survey of said line, as near as may be, to Cecil Station near the Blue River; said road to be double track the entire distance, with not less than sixty pound steel rails and to be built in all particulars in a first class manner. It was further provided in said contract that the work should begin not later than the first day of September, 1889, and to be completed within twelve months from that date; that the Construction Company should buy such grounds as it might deem necessary for the use of said railroad company for depot purposes and to pay for all rights of way remaining unsecured by the railroad company; that the Construction Company should build a depot of such dimensions and cost and locate same at such a point and equip the road in such manner as it might deem for the best interests of the railroad company, and to pay all and every nature of expense incurred by the building of said road. In consideration for the building of the road, as above stipulated the Suburban Company agreed in said contract to issue its first mortgage bonds upon that portion of its line above described in the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00), bearing six per cent interest, the bonds to be in such form and of such denomination and to run such length [in such form and of such denomination and to run such length] of time as the said Stilwell or his assigns might designate; that of this issue of bonds the Suburban Company should place in escrow with the Trust Company, Four Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($450,000.00) of the same, face value, along with Nine Hundred Thousand Dollars ($900,000.00), face value of the stock of the Suburban Company, to be delivered by said Trust Company as trustee to the said Stilwell, or his assigns, upon the faithful completion of said road as in said contract provided.

476 On the day of the execution of said contract, to-wit, June 1, 1889, said A. E. Stilwell duly transferred and assigned the said contract to the Trust Company in consideration of the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), and the Trust Company, as the assignee of said Stilwell, thereupon undertook to comply with and perform all the conditions and terms of said contract imposed upon said Stilwell.

Your orators further show that, in pursuance of the duty and obligation cast upon the Trust Company by said contract, it proceeded to and did organize a corporation called the Kansas City Terminal Construction Compan r; and the Trust Company caused its own stockholders, employes, officers and directors to be elected and appointed officers and directors of the Construction Company, so that the Trust Company by reason thereof at all times absolutely dominated and controlled the Construction Company. The stockholders of the Construction Company were also made up of the stockholders, employes, officers and directors of the Trust Company and such of their friends as they were willing to permit to come in and enjoy the fruits and profits of the plan. The Construction Company thereupon began the construction of the railroad of the Suburban Company between the points above designated as Broadway Street and Cecil Station; and had only partially completed the construction of said road, the acquirement of the right of way and the performance of their duties and obligations required by said contract, when, on or about May 9, 1890, the officers of the Construction Company and of the Suburban Company and of the Trust Company (who were substantially the same persons and having the same purposes and ends in view), with the intent to secure to themselves large and exorbitant profits through their interest in the Construction Company and the Trust Company, and contracting with themselves as the representatives of the said corporations, caused the Construction Company and the Suburban Company to go through the form of agreement, by the terms of which the Suburban Company agreed to receive and accept the uncompleted railroad so partially constructed by the Construction Company as aforesaid as a full compliance with the requirements of said Stilwell contract and to authorize and direct the Trust Company to turn over to the Construction Company the stocks and bonds described in said Stilwell contract; and accordingly by virtue of such control and domination so exercised by the Trust Company over the Suburban Company, the latter went through the form of accepting the said uncompleted railroad and directing the Trust Company to release the said securities, and the Trust Company did re-477 lease and turn over to the Construction Company bonds of the Suburban Company in the amount of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000.00), face value, and stock of the Suburban Company in the amount of Six Hundred Thousand Dollars ($600,000.00), face value, retaining for itself and its officers Fifty Thousand Dollars ($50,000.00), par value of the bonds, and Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000.00), par value of the stock, as hereinafter set forth; and said stock and bonds in the amount of Six Hundred Thousand Dollars ($600,000.00) and Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000.00), respectively, were thereupon distributed by the Trust Company and by the Construction Company to the stockholders, employes, officers and directors of said two companies and their friends who had been permitted to participate in the scheme as aforesaid.

Your orators further show that the action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with its terms as and for a full compliance, and in causing said securities to be issued, was contrary to the best interests of the Suburban Company, oppressive, inequitable and was solely by virtue of the said domination and control and to the end that the persons so in control and domination might realize unlawful gains and profits; and the said transaction ought not in equity to be permitted to stand as against parties in interest in the Suburban Company.

(a) Your orators further show that the cost of the road and right of way so constructed and acquired by the Construction Company did not exceed the sum of Two Hundred and Ninety-Two Thousand Dollars ($292,000.00), and that the bonds and stock as aforesaid so turned over to the trust Company and the Construction Company as the pretended consideration were of the reasonable value of Four Hundred and Eighty Thousand Dollars ($480,000.00), and that the unlawful profits of said transaction amounting to the sum of One Hundred and Eighty-Eight Thousand Dollars ($188,000.00), with interest thereon from May 9th, 1890, at six per cent per annum, ought in equity and good conscience to be accounted for by the Trust Company and paid to your orators, and that the pretended account rendered by the Trust Company omits said item, to which the complainants are properly entitled.

(b) Your orators further show that at the time of issuing the bonds aforesaid there were issued the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00) par value, and that those remaining after delivery by the Trust Company to the Construction Company of bonds of par value of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000.00), to-wit, bonds in the sum of One Hundred Thou-
478 sand Dollars ($100,000.00), par value, were fraudulently wrongfully and unlawfully taken and appropriated by the Trust Company for its own benefit; and that said bonds so wrongfully taken and appropriated were of the reasonable value of Ninety Thousand Dollars (90,000.00); that at the same time the capital stock issued by the Suburban Company was of the par value of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00), and that remaining after the delivery by the Trust Company to the Construction Company of Six Hundred Thousand Dollars ($600,000.00), par value, as aforesaid, to-wit, the sum of Four Hundred Thousand Dollars ($400,000.00), par value, of said capital stock was fraudulently, wrongfully and unlawfully taken and appropriated by the Trust Company to its own use, and the said stock so wrongfully taken and appropriated was at that time of the reasonable value of Eighty Thousand Dollars ($80,000.00); that your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to have the Trust Company account for and pay over to to your orators the value of said stocks and bonds, to-wit, the sum of One Hundred and Seventy Thousand Dollars ($170,000.00), with interest thereon from May 9, 1890, at six per cent per annum, all of which the Trust Company refuses to do and all of which said items are omitted as credits from said pretended statement of the Trust Company.

(c) Your orators further show that by reason of the failure of the Trust Company and its agents to fully complete said contract as provided for under the terms of the said Stilwell contract, the Suburban Company, its successor the Belt Company, one of your orators, as well as the receivers of the Belt Company, who are also your orators, were compelled to and did expend large sums of money to complete the construction of said railroad, and for the purchase of certain right of way which should have been procured and furnished by the Trust Company or by its agent, the Construction Company under said Stilwell contract, and which would have been so furnished but for the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with said contract as and for a full performance thereof: that a partial list of the amounts so expended by the Suburban Company during the year 1890-1891, are as follows:

480 Company for each and all of the amounts above set forth and interest thereon at six per cent per annum from the dates when said payments were made, all of which have been improperly and unlawfully omitted from the said pretended account by the Trust Company.

(d) Your orators further show that by reason of the failure of the Trust Company to fully comply with the terms of and conditions of the said Stilwell contract and to furnish the right of way and depot required to be furnished by said Trust Company as a part of said contract, it became necessary to secure additional parcels of right of way, all of which the Trust Company was obligated to procure and furnish under the said Stilwell contract, and the Trust Company undertook to procure such right of way for the Suburban Company and did procure the same and in all cases charged the cost thereof, together with interest thereon, to the Belt Company, and the items so charged appear as debits in the pretended statement produced by the Trust Company; that in many instances the Trust Company caused the Suburban or Belt Company to itself purchase said necessary right of way and to execute notes for deferred payments thereon and said notes and the interest payments as they were made from time to time were duly charged to the Belt Company and appeared as debits in said pretended account; that the Trust Company failed to furnish a depot for the Suburban Company as in and by said contract it was obligated to do through itself or through its agent, the Construction Company, and the Trust Company after the pretended completion of said Stilwell contract undertook to and did construct a depot building for the Suburban Company at Second and Wyandotte Streets and charged the cost thereof to the Belt Company, and said charges appear as debits in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company. The amount so expended for right of way aggregates the sum of One Hundred and Twelve Thousand, Two Hundred Thirty-nine and Eighteen-hundredths Dollars ($112,239.18) the itemized statement of which, showing the amounts and dates when the various items were charged to the Belt Company appears upon the itemized statement marked Exhibit "1" under the head of "Right of Way," hereto attached and made a part hereof. The interest paid on right of way notes as aforesaid, the payment of which was made necessary by the Trust Company's failure to comply with said Stilwell contract, aggregates the sum of Forty-three Thousand Sixty-six and 30-100 Dollars ($43,066.30), an itemized statement of which, showing the dates, and amounts paid is set forth in the said Exhibit "1" under the head of "Interest on Right of Way notes," herewith attached as aforesaid; and the Trust Company charged the Belt Company, and the Belt Company 481 paid the same in cash to the Trust Company, the following items of interest on said right of way notes aforesaid, none of said items appearing on the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company and for such items credit should be allowed the Belt Company and for pretended statement with interest thereon from the date of payment thereof:

Sept. 16th, 1892.	Interest on note of W. S. Taylor favor Berth Schoen	$127.80
Sept. 28th, 1892.	Interest on note of W. S. Taylor favor of Rosalie Sachs	214.77
Oct. 14th, 1892.	Interest on note and deeds of trust....	832.99
March 14th, 1893.	Interest on account of note of A. L. Howe for $49,333.33	1,480.00
March 30th, 1893.	Interest on two $5,000 notes secured by deed of trust on property at Second and Wyandotte Streets	300.00

(e) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statement of the Trust Company as so expended for right of way by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company, the Belt Company on or about June 2d, 1896, paid to Louise W. Crane and others, who were then owners of an undivided half interest in lot 124, block 12, of old town, all in Kansas City, Mo., the sum of Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000) as a partial payment for said interest in said lot; that it was the duty of the Trust Company or the duty of its agent the Construction Company, to procure and furnish this tract of land as a part of the right of way called for under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889, the said payment was made necessary because of the failure of the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, to comply with and perform the terms of the said Stilwell contract and because of the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with said Stilwell contract as and for a full performance thereof; that said item of Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000.00) is wholly omitted in the pretended account or statement presented by the Trust Company and that the Belt Company is entitled to and should have credit for said item with interest thereon from the date [of] thereof.

(f) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statement of the Trust Company as so expended for right of way by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company, the Suburban Company on or about April 4, 1890, paid to Thomas J. Emery, who was then the owner of lots 141 and 142 of block fourteen 482 (14), old town, all in Kansas City, Mo., on account of the purchase of said lots the sum of Four Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($4,500), and in addition thereto two notes of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) each were given as the balance of the purchase price of said lots in the manner hereinafter described; that it was the duty of the Trust Company or the duty of its agent, the Construction Company, to procure and furnish this tract of land as a part of the right of way that was called for under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889; and said payment was made necessary because of the failure of the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, to comply with and perform the terms of the said Stilwell contract, and because of the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with said Stilwell contract as and for a full performance thereof; that said item of Four Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($4,500) is wholly omitted in the pretended account or statement presented by the Trust Company and that the Belt Company is entitled to and should have a credit for said item with interest thereon from the date of the payment thereof.

(g) It was the duty of the Trust Company or the duty of its agent, the Construction Company, to procure and furnish to the Suburban Company a right of way across lots ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14), and fifteen (15), block ten (10), of old town, and lot one hundred and one (101), of block ten (10), old town, all in Kansas City, Mo., as a part of the right of way called for under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889; that the right of way of the Suburban Company crosses the said lots and that the said Suburban Company's road, as so built by the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, passes over and upon these said lots; that the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, has omitted and wholly failed to procure and furnish such right of way for and upon said lots as called for and provided under the terms of the said Stilwell contract; that at the time of the institution of this action the reasonable value of the right of way over and upon lots ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12), thirteen (13), fourteen (14) and fifteen (15), of blocks ten (10), of old town, so omitted to be provided by the said Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, was Eleven Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($11,250); that at the time of the institution of this action the reasonable value of the right of way over and upon lot one hundred and one (101), block ten (10), old town, so omitted to be provided by the said Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, was Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00); that the reasonable value of the right of way over and upon 483 the said lots, to-wit, Eleven Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($11,250.00) and Five Thousand Dollars ($5,- 000.00) are wholly omitted in the pretended account or statement presented by the Trust Company, and that the Belt Company is entitled and should have credit for the said items of Eleven Thousand Two hundred and Fifty Dollars ($11,250.00) and Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) with interest thereon from the date of the omission of said Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, to procure and furnish said right of way.

(h) There was paid by the Trust Company as rental for certain right of way, all of which said right of way the Trust Company was obligated to procure and furnish under the said Stilwell contract, and charged against the Belt Company in the pretended statement, the sum of One Thousand Two Hundred Eighty-three and Twenty-hundredths Dollars ($1,283.20), an itemized statement of which is set forth in said Exhibit "1", under the head of "Rental Paid for Right of Way", hereto attached, which said payment was made necessary because of the failure of the Trust Company to comply with and perform the terms of said Stilwell contract.

(i) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statements of the Trust Company as so expended for right of way and rental thereof by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company, the Belt Company, or its receivers, all of whom are your orators herein, between March, 1897, and January 1, 1902, were compelled to pay to the Pacific Express Company (who was then the owner of lot one hundred and one (101), block ten (10), of old town, all in Kansas City, Mo.), as rental for right of way of said Belt Company across said lot the sum of Fourteen Hundred Seventy-five Dollars ($1,475.00); that the amounts so expended by the Belt Company or its receivers are as follows:

485 That it was the duty of the Trust Company or the duty of its agent, the Construction Company, to procure and furnish the right of way over said lot as a part of the right of way called for under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889, and said payments were made necessary because of the failure of the Trust Company, or its agent, the Construction Company, to comply with and perform the terms of said Stilwell contract and because of the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance with said Stilwell contract as and for a full performance thereof; that the said items of rental amounting to Fourteen Hundred and Seventy-five Dollars ($1,475.00) are wholly omitted in the pretended account or statement presented by the Trust Company and that the Belt Company and its receiver (your orators herein) are entitled to and should have credit for said items with interest thereon from date of payment thereof.

(j) There was expended by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company as appears in the said pretended statement the sum of Fifty-nine Thousand Two [Hundred] Sixty-five and Sixty-two-One Hundredths Dollars ($59,265.62) as the cost of the depot building at Second and Wyandotte Streets in Kansas City, Missouri, which said building should have been constructed by the Trust Company, or its agent, the Construction Company, under and in pursuance of the terms of said Stilwell contract; an itemized statement of the items composing the charge of Fifty-nine Thousand Two Hundred Sixty-five and 62-100 Dollars ($59,265.62) is set forth in said Exhibit "1", under the heading "Second and Wyandotte Depots", hereto attached.

(k) There was expended by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt Company, as appears in the said pretended statement, the sum of Twenty-two Thousand One Hundred Fifty-eight and Seventy-five Hundredths Dollars ($22,-58.75) as the cost of other station depots, platforms, sand house, round house and labor and material furnished, all of which should have been constructed, procured and furnished by the Trust Company or its agent, the Construction Company, under and in pursuance of the terms of the said Stilwell contract. An itemized statement of the items composing this charge of $22,158.75 is set forth in said Exhibit "1" hereto attached, under the head of "Other Buildings".

Your orators further say that all the foregoing matters, which appear (and are set forth in said exhibit) as debits in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company are unlawful and unjust and represent matters for which the Trust Company and not the Belt Company was and is responsible; that all of said items
486 should be eliminated from said account and the Belt Company should be credited with interest thereon from the respective dates when said charges were made; that all of the foregoing matters not appearing upon the pretended statement are items which the Trust Company has unlawfully and improperly omitted therefrom and with which the Belt Company, in equity, should be credited.

(l) Your orators further show that, by reason of the failure of the Trust Company and its agents to fully complete said construction contract, it became necessary for the Suburban Company or its successor, the Belt Company, one of your orators herein, to acquire ground for right of way and switching yards in Kansas City, Missouri, upon the line of its road, which should have been furnished and provided by the Trust Company, or its agent, the Construction Company, under and in pursuance of the said Stilwell contract; that accordingly the Trust Company caused the Second Street Improvement Company, which was also one of the auxiliary companies created and officered by it, to execute a lease from it to the Consolidated Terminal Railway Company covering a strip of land in section twenty-five (25), township fifty (50), range thirty-three (33), in Jackson County, Missouri, containing twenty-eight (28) acres, which land adjoined the right of way and railroad tracks of the Suburban Company running parallel to such tracks at a distance of 4,809.8 feet. It was provided in said lease that the lessee should pay a yearly rental of Three Thousand Dollars ($3,000.00) and that the lessee should also have an option of purchase of said property on certain terms therein specified. Your orators duly paid said rent as it accrued from year to year, amounting to the aggregate sum of Twenty-six Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($26,250.00) and that the reasonable value of said property at the time of the institution of this action was Forty-Four Thousand One Hundred Twenty-five Dollars ($44,125.00). Your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to be credited upon the pretended accounts produced by the Trust Company for each and all said rental payments with interest thereon at six per cent per annum from the date of such payments and for the value of said property at the time of the institution of this action, with interest thereon as above stated; all of which credits have been improperly and unlawfully omitted from said account by the Trust Company.

(m) Your orators further show that by reason of the failure of the Trust Company and its agents to fully complete said Stilwell contract it became necessary for the Belt Company to acquire cer-

487 tain property at Second and Wyandotte Streets in Kansas City, Missouri, being lots 112, 113 and 114, block 11, Old Town, Kansas City, Missouri, for depot purposes; that thereupon the Trust Company caused the said Second Street Improvement Company, one of its auxiliary corporations aforesaid, to lease to the Suburban Company for a period of ten years from June 1, 1891, lots one hundred and twelve (112) and one hundred thirteen (113), block eleven (11), Old Town, all in Kansas City, Mo., which said property, together with said lot 114, block 11, Old Town, Kansas City, Missouri, properly came within the terms of said Stilwell contract and should have been furnished and provided by the Trust Company or by its agent, the Construction Company; under the said lease for said lots 112 and 113 the Belt Company was caused to and did pay rental to the Second Street Improvement Company for the use of said lots from June 1, 1891, to October 31, 1901, a total of One Hundred and Twenty-Five (125) months, at the rental fixed in said lease of Two Thousand Five Hundred Sixty-Six and fortyhundredths Dollars ($2,566.40) per annum, or a total of Twenty-Six Thousand Seven Hundred Thirty-three and sixty-four-hundredths Dollars ($26,733.64); and that the value of said lots at the time of the institution of this action was the sum of Twenty-Five Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($25,750.00), and your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to a credit upon the pretended account produced by the Trust Company for the sum paid as rentals with interest thereon at six per cent per annum from the date of each payment and for the said sum of Twenty-Five Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($25,750.00), with interest thereon; all of which credits have been improperly and unlawfully omitted from said pretended account by the Trust Company.

(n) Your orators further show that on March 20, 1890, the McClelland, Stumpf & Peltzer Brick Manufacturing Company owned lots one hundred forty-three (143), one hundred forty-four (144), one hundred forty-five (145) and one hundred forty-six (146), in block fourteen (14); lots one hundred nineteen (119), one hundred twenty-two (122), one hundred twenty-three (123), one hundred twenty-five (125), and an undivided half interest in lot one hundred twenty-four (124), in block twelve (12), and lot one hundred thirty-eight (138), in block thirteen (13), all in Old Town, Kansas City, Missouri, all of which property is located in the vicinity of Second and Wyandotte Streets and is a part of the depot grounds of the Belt Company and was a part of the right of way to be acquired and furnished by the Trust Company or by its agent, the Construction Company, under the Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889.

In March, 1890, the said Brick Manufacturing Company
488 conveyed all of the foregoing property to Alfred L. Howe, agent or dummy of the Trust Company, and on the same date the said Howe executed two notes for Forty-Nine Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-Three and thirty-three hundredths Dollars ($49,333.33) each, to secure to the said Brick Manufacturing Company the balance of the purchase price of the same, and a deed of trust to secure said notes was placed upon all said property. On June 23d, 1890, the said Howe conveyed said property to the Belt Company. The first of said notes was for $49,333.33, which became due March 20, 1891, and the second became due March 20, 1892, both bearing six per cent interest; the first of said notes was paid by the Trust Company on March 23, 1891, and charged by it to the Belt Company. On March 14, 1890, the said Brick Manufacturing Company conveyed to W. S. Taylor, an agent and dummy of the Trust Company, lots nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11), twelve (12) thirteen (13), fourteen (14) and fifteen (15) in block eleven (11) of King & Bouton's Re-survey of the East Half of block eleven (11), Old Town, in Kansas City, Missouri, for a consideration of Forty-One Thousand One-Hundred Dollars ($41,100.00), and said Taylor executed to said Brick Manufacturing Company three notes in the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) each, dated June 1, 1890, to secure the unpaid purchase money, and gave a deed of trust to secure said notes. The property just described is located at Second and Wyandotte Streets, in Kansas City, Missouri, upon which the depot building of the Belt Company was afterwards constructed, and it was a part of the property and right of way that should have been furnished by the Trust Company, or by its agent, the Construction Company, under the terms of the said Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889. The Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, in recognition of its obligation to pay for this property at or about the time of its purchase paid from its treasury to the said Brick Manufacturing Company or for it the sum of Eleven Thousand One Hundred Dollars ($11,100.00), which, with the said three notes of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), given for deferred payments, made up the purchase price of said property; the said Taylor, after the execution of the said three notes, conveyed said property to the Belt Company. On April 7, 1890, Thomas J. Emery owned the following described real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, to-wit, lots twelve (12) and thirteen (13) of King & Bouton's Re-survey of the west half of block ten (10), Old Town; also lots one hundred forty-one (141) and one hundred forty-two (142), block fourteen (14), Old Town; on said date he duly conveyed said property to the said Alfred L. Howe, who was 489 acting in the same capacity as aforesaid; that said Howe gave back to said Emery two notes for Nine Thousand Three Hundred Seventy-Five Dollars ($9,375.00), with six per cent interest, to secure the unpaid portion of the purchase price, securing said notes with a deed of trust upon the property; and thereafter on June 23, 1890, conveyed lots one hundred forty-one (141) and one hundred forty-two (142) in block fourteen (14) to the Belt Company, and the remainder of the property was conveyed to the Second Street Improvement Company; that of said two notes Nine Thousand Three Hundred and Seventy-Five Dollars ($9,375.00) each, the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), or Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) on each of said notes, represented the deferred payments on the property acquired for and deeded to the Belt Company; that all of said Emery property was a part of the property and right of way that should have been procured and furnished by the Trust Company or by its agent, the Construction Company, under the terms of the said Stilwell contract of June 1, 1889.

Your orators further show that the notes described representing deferred payments on property purchased for and afterwards conveyed to the Belt Company are as follows:

Drte of note.	Date due.	Int.	In favor of.	Amount.
4- 4-1890	6- 4-1891	6 per cent	T. J. Emery.....	$5,000.00
4- 4-1890	4- 4-1892	6 per cent	T. J. Emery.....	$5,000.00
6- 117890	6- 1-1891.	6 per cent	McClelland, Stumpf Peltzer Brick Mfg. Company	$10,000.00
6- 1-1890	6- 1-1892	6 per cent	Do.....	$10,000.00
6- 1-1890	6- 1-1893	6 per cent	Do.....	$10,000.00
3-20-1890	3-20-1892	6 per cent	Do.....	$49,333.33

Your orators further show, that on or about October 15, 1897, the Belt Company was embarrassed financially and insolvent and that it had outstanding notes of a large amount, including the notes above mentioned, which were secured by a first mortgage as aforesaid; that the stock of the Belt Company was depressed in value and certain of the officers of the Trust Company and certain investors in it and in the Belt Company became desirous of improving the financial condition of the Belt Company by getting off its books certain of its bills payable, including the notes mentioned, in order that by certain manipulations a dividend might be declared, and the market in the stocks of the Belt Company might be improved and the parties interested might profit therefrom in their stock dealings and transactions. Accordingly, an arrangement was made between certain officers of the Trust Company and J. de Goeijen, by the terms of which the Trust Company assumed and agreed to pay the said real estate notes, including the notes above mentioned, 490 and the amount of said notes, including the said sum of Eighty-Nine Thousand Three Hundred and Thirty-Three and thirty-three-hundredths Dollars ($89,333.33), was by the Trust Company charged to the Belt Company on the books of the Trust Company, and the same now appears as a debit to the Belt Company in the pretended statement submitted by the Trust Company. At the time of said transaction, and on or about October 15, 1897, pursuant to the plan aforesaid, the said J. de Goeijen purchased certain bonds belonging to the Belt Company, which were by the Trust Company credited upon its books to the Belt Company in an amount sufficiently large to cover all of said notes, so that upon the books of the Belt Company all of said bills payable had been eliminated, and the Belt Company was thus enabled to make out and send to stockholders and financial publications a clean statement showing an improved financial condition for the purpose of bolstering up the market value of its stock aforesaid, all of which was accordingly done. The said statements showing said credits extended by the Trust Company and the improved financial condition of the Belt Company resulting therefrom, were sent out to stockholders and investors and the financial publications aforesaid, and the public was invited to purchase and trade in the stocks as well as the bonds of the Belt Company, in reliance upon such statements. And your orators aver that thereafter the public did deal in, buy and sell the stocks and bonds of the Belt Company, and investments were made in reliance upon said statements.

Your orators further show, that on or about the month of April, 1899, and after the appointment of receivers for the Gulf Company, the Trust Company had good reason to believe and did believe that it would soon lose control of the Belt Company, and that other and independent directors and officers would be elected, and it thereupon set about to relieve itself of its assumption and agreement to pay the said notes above mentioned aggregating Eighty-Nine Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-Three and 33-100 Dollars, and thereupon made the pretense and claim that the aforesaid credit which it extended to the Belt Company on or about October 15, 1897, was on the understanding that the funds for such credit should be supplied by the said J. de Goeijen, and that said J. de Goeijen had failed to supply said funds; and thereupon said Trust Company undertook by an entry upon its own books to relieve itself of its said assumption and agreement to pay said notes aggregating $89,333.33, but failed, neglected and refused upon so doing to credit the account of the Belt Company with said sum, as it should have done. At that time the said De Goeijen was indebted to the Trust Company in an amount in excess of said sum, which said De Goeijen was unable to pay, or by reason of their intimate financial relationship the Trust Company was unable or unwilling to collect from De Goeijen, and thereupon the Trust Company contrived the plan of causing the Belt Company to take over its worthless account against De Goeijen, in lieu of crediting the Belt Company with such sum, as it should have done as aforesaid. At said time the Trust Company well knew that said account against De Goeijen was worthless and uncollectable, and its action in causing said entries to be made on the books of the Belt Company and in refusing, itself to credit the Belt Company, was a fraudulent and unlawful attempt on the part of the Trust Company to relieve itself of its assumption of the agreement to pay said notes in said sum of $89,333.33, and at the same time to release said amount charged to the Belt Company on account of such assumption. By reason of the premises, the Trust Company is estopped to deny that the credit it extended to the Belt Company as aforesaid was an absolute credit, and is estopped from saying that said credit was a conditional one, and cannot in equity and good conscience claim the right to unload upon the Belt Company the worthless claim against De Goeijen in lieu of crediting the Belt Company or paying said notes, neither of which has been done by the Trust Company.

Your orators claim, therefore, that the charge of Eighty-Nine Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-Three and 33-100 Dollars ($89,333.33), made by the Trust Company to the Belt Company on or about October 15, 1897, which appears in the pretended statement submitted by the Trust Company, should be eliminated therefrom, together with all charges of interest which also appear in said pretended statement, and that the Belt Company should be credited with same amount and interest thereon from said date of October 15, 1897, together with interest upon the charges of interest made in connection therewith as aforesaid.

(1) Your orators further state that on or about May 9, 1890, when the Suburban Company and the Construction Company undertook, as above stated, to declare the contract between them for the construction of the first section of the Suburban Company's road duly performed in all respects, the said Construction Company had an overdraft at one of the banks in Kansas City, Missouri, in the sum of Three Hundred and Thirteen and 76-100 Dollars ($313.76), whereby the said Construction Company owed said bank the said sum of money; that the Trust Company, through its officers and agents, unlawfully and fraudulently caused the Suburban Company to take up and pay said overdraft in said sum on the 7th day of May, 1890, and said sum is wholly omitted in the pre-492 tended statement of account submitted, and the Belt Company should be and is entitled to be credited with interest thereon from the day of payment thereof.

(2) Your orators further show that upon the organization of the various companies above named, to-wit, the Suburban Company, the Consolidated Company, the Union Company, the Air Line and the Northern Connecting Company, the Trust Company as above set forth caused these companies respectively to issue stocks and bonds, and thereupon the Trust Company undertook the disposition of said stocks and bonds, in some instances going through the form of purchasing said stocks and bonds itself and in other cases disposing of said stocks and bonds to others, and in connection therewith made large and exorbitant charges to the Belt Company under the guise of commissions for so doing.

(a) In the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company there are the following charges to the Belt Company under the guise of commissions in connection with the Belt Company:

Aug. 8, 1890	$15,000.00
Dec. 22, 1894	4,000.00
Oct. 10, 1894	1,250.00
July 29, 1897	1.58

Your orators further show that as above set forth the Trust Company, at all times while it was handling the stocks and bonds of the companies mentioned, absolutely dominated and controlled said companies and was using them, and each of them, as its own instrumentality or dummy for its own benefit and profit; that the Trust Company occupied a fiduciary relation to said companies and that any contract or contracts made or claimed to have been made between the Trust Company and said companies respectively, 496 providing for commissions, donations or services were unlawful, inequitable and oppressive, and neither said contracts nor the charges above made were ever submitted to or approved by the parties in interest in said companies; that the said charges and exactions made under the guise of commissions or services were not only exorbitant, but by reason of the relationship between the Trust Company and the said companies the Trust Company did not have the right in law to charge the said companies any commissions whatsoever for the sale or handling of said securities or for anything done or services performed on account of which said charges were made; that the charges for said commissions contained in said pretended statement should be eliminated and the Belt Company should be credited upon said account with interest on said charges from the dates when they were made; and in respect to the charges for commissions not appearing upon said pretended statement, the Belt Company should be and is entitled to a credit from the Trust Company with interest from the date of the payment thereof; and the value of the stocks and bonds so appropriated by the Trust Company as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the dates respectively of such appropriation, should be credited to the Belt Company upon said statement.

charges under the name of trustee's fees, which your orators allege are wrongful and unlawful charges, for the reasons hereinbefore and hereinafter set forth, said charges being as follows:

(a) In the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company there are the following charges to the Belt Company under the guise of trustee's fees in connection with the Union Company, as follows:

Sept. 12, 1892, 1 share of the value of $33.00.

Your orators further show that, as hereinbefore set forth, the Trust Company at all times while it was handling the stocks and bonds of the companies mentioned absolutely dominated and controlled said companies and was using them and each of them as its own instrumentality or dummy for its own benefit and profit; that the Trust Company occupied a fiduciary relation to said companies and that any contract or contracts made, or claimed to have been made, between the Trust Company and said companies respectively, providing for trustee's fees, were unlawful, inequitable and oppressive, and neither said contracts nor the charges above made were ever submitted to or approved by the parties in interest in said companies; that the said charges and exactions made under the guise of trustee's fees were not only exorbitant, but, by reason of the relationship between the Trust Company and the said companies, the Trust Company did not have the right in law to charge the said companies any trustee's fees whatsoever in connection with the sale or handling of said securities or for anything done or services performed, on account of which said charges were made;

498 that the charges for said trustee's fees contained in said pretended statement should be eliminated and the Belt Company should be credited upon said account, with interest on said charges from the date when they were made and in respect to the charges for trustee's fees not appearing upon said pretended statement of the Trust Company, the Belt Company should be and is entitled to a credit from the Trust Company with interest from the date of payment thereof; and the value of the stocks so appropriated by the Trust Company as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the date of such appropriation, should be credited to the Belt Company upon said statement.

4. Your orators further show that upon the organization of the various companies above named, to-wit, the Suburban Company and the Consolidated Company, the Union Company, the Air Line and the Northern Connecting Company, the Trust Company as above set forth caused these companies respectively to issue stocks and bonds, and thereupon the Trust Company undertook the handling and disposition of said stocks and bonds and appropriated and converted to its own use large amounts of the stock of said companies under the pretense that said stock was taken by the Trust Company as a bonus.

Your orators further show that as hereinbefore set forth the Trust Company at all times while it was handling the stocks and bonds of the companies mentioned, absolutely dominated and controlled said companies, using them and each of them as its instrumentality or dummy for its own benefit and profit; that the Trust Company occupied a fiduciary relation to said companies and was the promoter and organizer of each and all of them; that there was no consideration whatever for the above mentioned stocks and bonds so taken by the Trust Company as between the Trust Company and the Belt Company, but that said stocks and bonds were so taken by the Trust Company solely by virtue of its domination and control over it; that in equity and good conscience the Trust Company should account to the Belt Company for the value of all of said stocks and bonds so unlawfully taken by it from the Belt Company, and the Belt Company is entitled to credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company for the value of said stocks and bonds so unlawfully appropriated as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the dates respectively of such appropriations.

5. Your orators further show that upon the organization of the various companies above named, to-wit: The Suburban Company, the Consolidated Company, the Union Company, the Air Line, and the Northern Connecting Company, the Trust Company began the practice of loaning money to the said companies, taking the 500 promissory notes of the company to which the money was so loaned, and charging such loan to the Belt Company; that from time to time moneys were advanced by the Trust Company to or for said companies, and the same were charged to the Belt Company in open account and from time to time the securities, consisting of stocks and bonds of said companies, were bought by the Trust Company from said companies, or sold by the Trust Compay, for them, and the proceeds credited in open account to the Belt Company; that in this manner there were from time to time many notes of large amounts given by the Belt Company upon which the Trust Company charged the Belt Company with interest and discount in large sums; that interest on daily balances upon said open accounts was also computed, usually at the close of each month, and if the balance was in favor of the Belt Company an allowance was made of interest on the average daily balance for such month at the rate of two per cent per annum, but if the balance was in favor of the Trust Company, interest upon the average daily balance for such month was allowed at the rate of from seven per cent to ten per cent, and the amount of such interest charged to the Belt Company in open account, and the interest so charged to the Belt Company in open account was included in the daily balances for subsequent months, and also in the promissory notes of the Belt Company taken from time to time, and in that manner the interest exacted by the Trust Company was compounded monthly upon daily balances, and at stated periods upon the said promissory notes.

Your orators further show that in the pretended statement of account presented by the Trust Company there are unlawful charges of interest and discount as follows:

(a) Between the dates of June 14, 1890, and June 4, 1900, there is charged in open account by the Trust Company against the Belt Company various items of interest on daily balances at the per cent. above stated, which, after the deduction of interest allowed the Belt Company on daily balances, amounts to the sum of $16,105.45, an itemized statement of which, showing the dates upon which said charges were made upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, and the amount of each charge is set forth in a statement under the heading "Interest on Daily Balances," hereto attached and made a part hereof as Exhibit "2."

(h) In addition to the amounts appearing upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company between the dates September 15, 1896, and June 4, 1900, there were charged by the Trust Company against the Belt Company by reason of the Belt Company constructing the railroad of the Connecting Com-
503 pany, various items of interest on daily balances at the per cent above stated, which after deduction of interest allowed the Belt Company on daily balances amount to the sum of Twenty-Eight Thousand Three Hundred Thirty and 1-100 Dollars ($28,330.01), an itemized statement of which showing the amount of each charge, is set forth in the statement, under the heading "Interest on Daily Balance," hereto attached and made a part hereof as Exhibit "3;" the items shown on the exhibit in red represent the amount of interest on daily balances where the same are in favor

Your orators further show that as hereinbefore stated, the Trust Company at all times, covering the period of the charges aforesaid, absolutely dominated and controlled the said companies and was using them, and each of them, as its own instrumentality or dummy for its own benefit and profit; that the Trust Company, as the promoter of said companies, and by reason of its control and domination over them, at all times occupied a fiduciary relation to 504 said companies and was not entitled in equity and good conscience to make said excessive and unreasonable charges and exactions; that by reason of the relationship between the Trust Company and the said companies as hereinbefore stated, the Trust Company did not have the right to charge the said companies any interest whatever upon daily balances, or otherwise, and that the charges for said items of interest contained in said pretended statement should be eliminated, and the Belt Company should be credited upon said account with interest on said charges from the dates when they were made, and there should be credited upon said account also the amount of compound interest and the interest which the Belt Company was caused to pay from its own funds to the Trust Company, together with interest on said payments from the time when they were made respectively, and credit for the items of interest shown as paid and omitted from the pretended statement of the Trust Company, should be allowed upon said pretended statement with interest from the date of payment thereof.

6. Your orators further show that the Trust Company during the period beginning with the year 1892 down to the year 1900, maintained what it called its "Building Department," which consisted of a limited number of employes, whose duty it was to make contracts for such building or construction work as the Trust Company might desire to have done in carrying out its various enterprises in connection with its auxiliary companies, including the Belt Com-any, the Consolidated Company, the Union Company, the Air Line, the Elevator Company and Amusement Company; that all of the work done for said companies could, and should, have been done by said companies, respectively, but the Trust Company contrived the scheme of its Building Department in order that work of that character might be done by the Trust Company and large and exorbitant charges made therefor, from which the Trust Company might reap a large profit by causing the Belt Company to pay, not only the cost of such work and materials, but also large sums in addition thereto under the guise of superintendence; that the aforesaid plan was carried out to the extent that a large amount of work was done by the said Building Department, for the companies above named, and the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to pay not only the cost thereof, but from ten per cent, to fifteen per cent, additional under the guise of superintendence; that the amount of said superintendence so charged by the Trust Company to the Belt Company, together with the dates on which said charges were made, and the amount of each charge, is shown under the heading of "Superintendence," on Exhibit "2," hereto attached, and aggregates the sum of 505 Forty Thousand Four Hundred Fifty-Six and 32-100 Dollars ($40,456.32); that of said sum fifty (50) per cent. was clear profit to the Trust Company; that the Trust Company charged to the Belt Company the said sum of $40,456.32, and the same appears upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company; that the Trust Company by reason or its relation to the said companies did not have the right in law to charge the said companies any sum whatsoever as superintendence in excess of the actual cost thereof, and did not have the right to profit out of said transactions; that the said profits of the Trust Company arising from said transactions should be eliminated from said pretended statement, and the Belt Company should be credited upon said account with interest on the amounts so eliminated from the dates when the said charges were made.

7. Your orators further show to the court that in the year 1895 the Trust Company, under the pretense of increasing the earnings of the Air Line, caused by the incorporation of the Fairmount Amusement Company, and the establishment and exploitation of Fairmount Park, and in so doing the Trust Company caused to be expended by the Air Line and by the Belt Company large sums of money in the acquisition of a large tract of land near the railroad of the Air Line between Kansas City and Independence, and the construction of buidings thereon and the adaptation of said grounds for the purpose of a public park; that the moneys so furnished by the Air Line as aforesaid were afterward, by the direction of the Trust Company, charged to and assumed by the Belt Company so that ultimately all of the expenses in connection with the exploitation of Fairmount Park were charged to the Belt Company, and the various items making the aggregate thereof appear as debits to the Belt Company upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company; that the result of the organization and operation of Fairmount Park was a net loss of Two Hundred Ninety-Three Thousand Three Hundred three and 68-100 Dollars ($293,303.68), all of which the Belt Company was required by the Trust Company to stand; that the scheme of Fairmount Park was a financial failure and the Trust Company knew, or should have known, that it would be such failure, and the conduct of the Trust Company in causing the Belt Company to organize and carry on said enterprise and to stand the loss arising therefrom was and is inequitable, unjust and oppressive, and the Trust Company should in equity and good conscience be required to stand said loss itself, and the amount of said loss should be eliminated from the charges against the Belt Company upon the pretended statement produced by the Trust Company, or if that is impossible by reason of inability to identify the various items going to make 506 the deficiency, then the amount of said loss, together with interest thereon, should be credited upon said pretended statement.

8. Your orators further show to the court that the Trust Company caused the incorporation of the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company on or about January 4, 1892, and after its incorporation the Trust Company caused to be constructed for it by the building department of the Trust Company three elevators, and caused the Elevator Company to operate said elevators and to execute upon its corporate property mortgages in large amounts to pay the purchase price of its properties.

(a) The operation of said elevator by the Elevator Company resulted in a loss, which was represented in part by a charge upon the books of the Trust Company against the Elevator Company in the amount of Three Hundred Ninety-One and 17-100 Dollars ($391.17); that the Trust Company on or about the 29th day of April, 1893, found that the Elevator Company was hopelessly insolvent and unable to pay said amount, and thereupon it charged said amount so due it from the Elevator Company, together with other items alleged to be due from the Elevator Company, to the Trust Company, amounting in all to the sum of Fifteen Thousand Two Hundred Ninety-Six and 68-100 Dollars ($15,296.68) to the Belt Company, and said charge of $15,296.68 now appears in the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company as a charge against the Belt Company; that the action of the Trust Company in so charging against the Belt Company the debt of the Elevator Company was wrongful, and said charge was without consideration, and the said charge should be eliminated from the said pretended statement.

(b) On or about June, 1893, and while the Trust Company, then holding all of the stock of the Elevator Company in its name and in the names of its directors and officers and their wives, knew that the Elevator Company was hopelessly involved and could not be made a success, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to go through the form of an agreement with the Elevator Company, by the terms of which the Belt Company was to acquire and take title to all of the elevators and other properties of the Elevator Company, except one thousand four hundred and sixty-one (1461) shares of stock of the Belt Company theretofore exchanged by the Trust Company and its directors, officers and their wives, for Elevator stock, and in consideration thereof the Belt Company was to issue to the Elevator Company 146.1 shares of the capital stock of the Belt Company and to assume the liabilities of the Elevator, all of which were then owing by the Elevator Company to the Trust Com-507 pany; that said shares of stock were duly issued by the Belt Company and delivered to the Elevator Company and the liabilities of the Elevator Company were charged to the Belt Company, but the contract was never carried out in any other respect. The said 146.1 shares, upon being so received by the Elevator Company, together with the shares of the Belt Stock above referred to, were caused by the Trust Company to be delivered to it and its directors and officers and their wives, so that the Belt Company never at any time received any consideration for said 146.1 shares of Belt stock, of the reasonable value of Four Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy Dollars ($4,770.00), which said amount should be allowed as a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, together with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum from said 8th day of June, 1893.

(c) From September, 1892, to September, 1894, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to pay out from its own treasury to the Trust Company for the completion of the property of the Elevator Company the sum of Fourteen Thousand One Hundred Eighty-Five and 4-100 Dollars ($14,185.04), for which the Belt Company received no consideration. The said sum of $14,185.04 was paid out of funds of the Belt Company advanced to it by the Trust Company, and charged in the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, and, therefore, said sum with interest thereon should be credited to the Belt Company on said statement.

(d) On or about September 1, 1894, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to go through the form of an agreement with the Elevator Company, by the terms of which the Elevator Company was to reacquire and take title to all the property of the Elevator Company that had been received by the Belt Company by reason of the pretended agreement of June, 1893, above mentioned, together with all improvements and additions made upon and to the said elevators and property by the Belt Company, amounting in value to the sum of Fourteen Thousand One Hundred Eighty-Five and 4-100 Dollars ($14,185.04), and in consideration thereof, the Elevator Company was to issue and did issue to the Belt Company 425 shares of the Elevator Company's stock, and was to re-assume and did re-assume Thirty-Two Thousand Dollars ($32,000.00) of the liabilities of the Elevator Company that had been assumed by the Belt Company by reason of the said agreement of June, 1893; and the Belt Company, in addition to the transfer of said property to the Elevator Company, was to continue its assumption of the balance of the liabilities of the Elevator Company, amounting to Fifteen Thousand Two Hundred Ninety-Six and 68-100 Dol-508 lars ($15,296.68), that had been assumed by the Belt Company by reason of said agreement of June, 1893. The stock of the Elevator Company so received by the Belt Company was worthless, as the Trust Company well knew, and the said $32,000 of liabilities re-assumed by the Elevator Company was evidenced by certain promissory notes of the Elevator Company secured by certain deeds of trust upon the elevators and properties of the said Elevator Company.

Between Sept. 1, 1894, and June 1, 1900, the excess of expenditures occasioned by the operation of the properties and elevators of the Elevator Company over the receipts therefrom amounted to Seventeen Thousand Eight Hundred Seventy-Seven and 92-100 Dollars ($17,877.92), and this loss to the Elevator Company, the Trust Company, solely by reason of its coercion, domination and control over the Belt Company, unlawfully caused to be charged to and paid by the Belt Company without any consideration therefor; the act of the Trust Company in having said charge made and paid was inequitable and oppressive and the Belt Company is entitled to a credit upon the pretended statement of the Trust Company for ($17,877.92), with interest thereon, from the date of payment thereof.

(e) In addition to the charges appearing upon the pretended statement, the Trust Company unlawfully caused the Belt Company to pay to it, without consideration therefor, between December, 1894 and June 1899, as interest upon the said $32,000 of notes of the Elevator Company all of which were the obligations of said Elevator Company, the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00); of this amount so paid Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) appear as charges against the Belt Company upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company; and the Belt Company was caused by the Trust Company to pay the balance, Eight Thousand Dollars ($8,000.00), to it from funds in its treasury; all of said payments were made solely by reason of the coercion, domination and control of the Trust Company and said payments are inequitable and oppressive; the Belt Company is entitled to a credit upon the said pretended statement for the said Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) with interest thereon from the date of payment thereof; and the Belt Company is further entitled to a credit from the Trust Company for the said $8,000.00 with interest thereon from the date of payment thereof.

9. Your orators further state that in the year 1895, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, called the "Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company," herein referred to as the

souri, in order to connect with the railroads at that time running eastwardly to Chicago, Illinois, and northwardly to Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Afterwards, and in the same year, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to enter into a contract with the Connecting Company, by the terms of which the Belt Company undertook to acquire the right-of-way and to construct the railroad of the Connecting Company between the points aforesaid, in consideration of which the Connecting Company agreed in said contract to execute, issue and deliver to the Belt Company, bonds and stocks of the Connecting Company; that the Belt Company was caused by the Trust Company to enter upon the execution of said contract and to construct the said railroad, and the Belt Company did secure the right-of-way and construct the railroad of the Connecting Company between Kansas City and Pattonsburg. In so doing the Belt Company was caused to expend large sums of money for right-of-way, material and for construction, and the stocks and bonds of the Connecting Company were wholly inadequate in value to reimburse the Belt Company for the money so expended, so that there resulted a large loss to the Belt Company in the matter of said contract, amounting to the sum of One Hundred Sixteen Thousand Six Hundred Forty-Four and 53-100 Dollars ($116,644.53), all of which of said deficiency was by the Trust Company charged to the Belt Company and the various items going to make the said deficiency appear upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company as charges against the Belt Company.

Your orators further state that the action of the Trust Company in so requiring the Belt Company to enter into said contract and construct said railroad, resulting in said loss, was wrongful, oppressive and was done solely for the benefit of the Trust Company that it might profit from the handling of the securities of the Connecting Company, which, under said contract, would be received nominally by the Belt Company, but in reality by the Trust Company; that the Trust Company knew and should have known that said venture would result in a large loss to the Belt Company, and the amount of said loss in equity and good conscience ought not to be charged to and borne by the Belt Company, and the same should be eliminated from the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, together with interest thereon; or, if the same cannot be identified, then that credit be given for the amount thereof with interest.

510 10. Your orators further show that on January 1, 1897, July 1, 1897, January 1, 1898, and July 1, 1898, there fell due certain coupons upon bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, outstanding in the hands of various holders; that said coupons were the obligations of said Connecting Company, and were not in any manner obligations, either direct or contingent on the part of the Belt Company.

(a) When the said coupons became due on said dates respectively, the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company was without funds to pay the same, and the Trust Company in order to bolster up and protect the credit of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Company, and to prevent a default on its part in the payment of its interest, did take up and pay said coupons in the amounts and on or about the dates hereinafter stated, to-wit:

Jan. 18, 1897	Interest allowed to Jan. 1, 1897, on $100,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. bonds.	$2,500.00

	Interest on $1,234,000.00 K. C. & N. C. R. R. 5 per cent bonds, due July 1, 1898	30,850.00
	Total	$56,025.67

511 (b) Your orators further show that the Trust Company by virtue of its domination and control over the Belt Company did cause the Belt Company to pay, and it did pay from the funds in its treasury, the interest upon certain bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, falling due as aforesaid at or about the said dates, to the persons and in the amounts following, to-wit:

Oct. 14, 1897.	John H. Carr, interest on $4,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. 5 per cent bonds, due July 1, 1897	$100.00
Oct. 13, 1897.	Estate of P. C. Hollis, interest on $5,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. 5 per cent bonds, due July 1, 1897	125.00
Oct. —, 1897.	F. B. Hubbell, interest on $1,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. bonds, due July 1, 1897	25.00
Oct. —, 1897.	Mrs. Frances A. Weeks, interest on $1,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. bonds, due July 1, 1897	25.00
Oct. —, 1897.	Wm. H. Nicholson, interest on $5,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. 5 per cent bonds, due July 1, 1897	125.00
Oct. —, 1897.	Wells-Fargo Company, interest on $100,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. 5 per cent bonds, due July 1, 1897	2,500.00
— —, 1897.	N. Norton, Asst. Secretary, account various parties, interest on $249,000 K. C. & N. C. R. R. 5 per cent bonds, due Jan. 1, 1898	6,225.00
	Total	$9,125.00

The amount of these payments does not appear on the pretended statement furnished by the Trust Company.

(c) Your orators further show that all of the foregoing payments made by the Trust Company are charged to the Belt Company in the pretended statement of account except the item of $9,125.00 in the amounts and at the dates above set forth and there is also charged to the Belt Company in said statement interest upon the said payment of $30,850.00, amounting to $167.95, and also the amount of $77.13 as commission or brokerage for paying said coupons.

The said charges made by the Trust Company against the Belt Company and entered on said pretended statement, including the item of Nine Thousand One Hundred Twenty-five Dollars ($9,125.00) are unlawful, inequitable and were caused to be paid by the Belt Company or made arbitrarily by the Trust Company without reason or excuse, but for the pretended reason that the claim of the Trust Company arising out of its payments of said interest could not be collected from the Kansas City & Northern Connecting, because of its financial inability to make said payment, and that the Belt Company being in better financial standing could be made to pay same by charging it to the account of the Belt Company; and your orators are entitled to have said items so appearing in said pretended account eliminated as charges against the Belt Company. The aforesaid payments made by the Belt Company on account of said interest coupons were unlawful and inequitably made by the Belt Company as a result of the coercion and domination of the Trust Company, and not by reason of any liability therefor on the part of the Belt Company, and the Belt

Company is in equity and good conscience entitled to be credited with the amount thereof, together with interest thereon from the dates of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum.

(d) Your orators further show that on or about July 31, 1898, the Belt Company was the owner of the first mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Company, and also the owner of Three Hundred and Fourteen (314) coupons attached thereto, which said coupons were then due; that said coupons were the direct obligation of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, due and payable to the Belt Company, said bonds being at that time in the control of the Trust Company. The Trust Company on or about said date, did wrongfully cause the said coupons, amounting in value to the sum of Seven Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($7,850.00) to be taken from said bonds and cancelled as having been paid, and denied and still denies to the Belt Company the right to said coupons or the interest thereon; that said act of the Trust Company was wrongful and inequitable and operated to deprive the Belt Company of said sum of Seven Thousand Eighty Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($7,850.00) and interest thereon at six per cent from said date, for which in equity and good conscience the Trust Company should account to the Belt Company and said sum has been omitted by the Trust Company from its pretended statement.

(e) Your orators further state that in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company in connection with the Belt Company the following charges appear:

Sept.	1, 1893	$700.00
Feb.	26, 1894	6,800.00
Mar.	1, 1894	700.00
Aug.	30, 1894	6,800.00
Sept.	1, 1894	700.00
Feb.	26, 1895	6,800.00

Dec.	20, 1895	700.00
Feb.	27, 1896	6,800.00
Mar.	2, 1896	700.00
Aug.	27, 1896	6,800.00
Sept.	1, 1896	700.00
	Feb. 26, 1897	6,800.00
513	Feb. 27, 1897	700.00
	Aug. 26, 1897	6,800.00
Aug.	28, 1897	700.00
Feb.	26, 1898	6,450.00
Mar.	1, 1898	1,050.00
Aug.	29, 1898	6,450.00
Aug.	31, 1898	1,050.00
Mar.	1, 1899	6,450.00
Mar.	1, 1899	1,050.00

That all of said charges were made against the Belt Company on account of interest on first mortgage bonds of the Air Line which were alleged by the Trust Company to have been paid by it to the holders of the coupons evidencing the same including the Trust Company; that the Belt Company had not assumed or become liable to pay the interest on said Air Line bonds and was not in any way liable therefor; that the action of the Trust Company in making said charges to the Belt Company was not warranted and unlawful and was solely by reason of its power and domination over the Belt Company and said charges should be eliminated from the said pretended account, and the Belt Company should be credited with interest on said amounts respectively at six per cent from the dates respectively when the said charges were made.

11. Your orators further state that on or about September 25, 1893, the Belt Company was the owner of Two Hundred second mortgage bonds of the par value of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, issued by the Kansas City & Independence Air Line and secured by a mortgage upon the property of that company. The Belt Company on that day was also the owner of Twenty-five Hundred (2,500) shares of stock of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) each, issued by the Union Company. On said 25th day of September, 1893, a contract in writing was entered into between the Belt Company and the Trust Company, which recited that the Belt Company was the owner of the entire issue of the second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, which issue consisted of Two Hundred (200) bonds of the par value of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) each, subject to the interest which the Trust Company had as trustee in thirty (30) of said bonds, numbered from one seventy-one (171) to two hundred (200), both inclusive, aggregating the principal sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000.00), and held in trust by the Trust Company under the mortgage or deed of trust, given by the Kansas City & Independence Air Line of date March 1, 1893, and also reciting that the Belt Company was the owner of Twenty-Five Hundred (2,500) shares of the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company, of the par value of One Hundred Dol-
514 lars ($100.00) each; and further reciting that the Belt Company was desirous of selling and disposing of the entire issue of said second mortgage bonds and the said 2,500 shares of stock for the purpose of raising money and means to properly extend, equip, repair, maintain and operate its road and to meet its obligations then and thereafter incurred, and that the Trust Company had agreed to purchase said bonds and stock at and for the price and sum thereafter stated in said contract. It was, therefore, mutually agreed in said written contract, that the Belt Company should sell and deliver and that the Trust Company should purchase and receive and pay for the entire issue of the second mortgage bonds of the Kansas City & Independence Air Line, aggregating the principal sum of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00), and also Two Thousand Five Hundred (2,500) shares of the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company, of the par value of Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000.00) at and for the price of the earned interest on said bonds, at the time of their delivery to the Trust Company, and the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($150,000.00), to be paid upon the terms and at the times thereinafter stated; that is to say that the Belt Company should deliver to the Trust Company the said 2,500 shares of the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company upon the execution of said contract, and whenever the Belt Company should demand the Trust Company should take in amounts of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), par value or multiples thereof, so many of said second mortgage bonds as the Belt Company might deliver; and the Trust Company agreed to pay the Belt Company therefor upon said contract all of the earned interest on the bonds so delivered to it and seventy-five per cent (75) of the face value of the principal sum thereof. It was further agreed in said written contract that said second mortgage bonds, numbered from one (1) to one hundred and seventy (170) both inclusive, aggregating the principal sum of One Hundred and Seventy Thousand Dollars ($170,000.00), should be delivered and paid for on or before eighteen (18) months from the date of said contract, and that so many of said bonds, numbered from one hundred and seventy-one (171) to two hundred (200), both inclusive, aggregating the principal sum of Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000.00), as should remain unsold by the Trust Company as trustees, under and by virtue of the terms of said mortgage or deed of trust, securing said bonds, on the first day of March, 1898, should be delivered and paid for within six months from said March 1, 1898.

515 Company the entire issue of said second mortgage bonds, being two hundred (200) bonds, of the par value of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) each, and the Trust Company gave to the Belt Company credit for one hundred and thirty (130) of said bonds at the sum or price of Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($750.00) each, — follows:

Oct., 1893,	100	bonds at 75.....	$75,000.00
Mar., 1894,	6	bonds at 75.....	4,500.00
Jan., 1895,	6	bonds at 75.....	4,500.00
Mar., 1895,	6	bonds at 75.....	4,500.00
Dec., 1895,	6	bonds at 75.....	4,500.00
Mar., 1896,	6	bonds at 75.....	4,500.00
			$97,500.00

Your orators further state that the Trust Company failed, neglected and refused within the time limited in said contract, or at any time thereafter, to purchase and pay for the remaining seventy (70) second mortgage Air Line bonds, of the par or face value of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) each, as specified in said contract; but on the contrary, the Trust Company afterwards discovered that the said second mortgage bonds could not be sold upon the market, and were worthless, and it thereupon devised a plan or scheme to re-sell and unload the same upon the Belt Company; and accordingly to carry out said plan it caused the Belt Company to enter into a pretended agreement rescinding said contract of September 25, 1893, and attempting to release the Trust Company from its obligation to take the remaining seventy (70) of said bonds, all of which was inequitable and against good conscience and the same is not binding upon your orators.

(b) In further consummation of said fraudulent plan the said Trust Company caused entries to be made upon its books and upon the books of the Belt Company charging the Belt Company as and for a return of said 130 bonds so purchased by the Trust Company at Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($750.00) each as aforesaid, as follows:

	$97,500.00

(c) Your orators further show that the Trust Company in equity and good conscience should be held to account and pay to the Belt Company the contract price of the said seventy second mortgage bonds, being the amount of Fifty-Two Thousand Five Hun-
516 dred Dollars ($52,500.00), together with interest thereon at 6 per cent from the 25th day of March, 1895.

(d) Your orators further show unto the court that the 2,500 shares of the Union Company stock, so delivered to the Trust Company under said contract as aforesaid, were appropriated by the Trust Company to its own uses and for its own benefit and that it never at any time returned said stock to the Belt Company or accounted for the proceeds thereof. On or about May, 1894, the Trust Company exchanged said stock with the Belt Company for 2,500 shares of the par value of $100.00 each of the capital stock of the Belt Company, which was worth at that time Sixty-Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($62,500.00); that the Trust Company received and thereafter disposed of the said stock of the Belt Company and has never accounted to your orators therefor, as in equity and good conscience it is bound to do, together with interest thereon at six per cent per annum from the 25th day of March, 1895.

Your orators are entitled to have allowed to them upon the pretended account presented by the Trust Company a credit represented by the contract price of said seventy bonds, to-wit, the sum of Fifty-Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($52,500.00) with interest thereon, or if the court should find that said contract was duly rescinded, then your orators are entitled to a credit, represented by the value of said 2,500 shares of stock, to-wit, the sum of Sixty-Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($62,500.00) and interest thereon.

Your orators further show that the act of the Trust Company in charging back to the Belt Company the said One Hundred and thirty (130) bonds at Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($750.00) per bond was unlawful and inequitable for the reason that said bonds were then worthless, as the Trust Company well knew, and that in equity and good conscience said charges should be eliminated from said pretended account.

12. Your orators further show that the Trust Company caused to be constructed the railroad of the Air Line and used for that purpose a corporation previously created by it, called the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company.

The Trust Company caused the Air Line to enter into a contract with said Construction Company for the construction, equipment and completion of the railroad of the Air Line; under the terms of said contract the Construction Company was to receive the stocks and bonds of the Air Line in certain amounts fixed in said contract.

The Construction Company entered upon the construction of 517 said railroad, but before the same was fully completed, the Trust Company caused the Air Line and the said Construction Company to go through the form of an agreement by the terms of which the Air Line was to accept the then partially completed railroad as and for full compliance with said contract and was to turn over to the Construction Company the securities provided in said contract to be turned over, upon its final completion.

And it was further provided that the Air Line should assume all the liabilities of the Construction Company and should succeed to and take over all of its assets. This plan was carried out and the uncompleted railroad was turned over to the Air Line, the securities were delivered to the Trust Company and the Air Line assumed the liabilities and took over the assets of the Construction Company.

(a) Among the assets of the Construction Company was the subscription made by the Trust Company in the name of A. E. Stilwell, trustee, to the capital stock of the Construction Company in the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00), which had been duly subscribed by the Trust Company, but upon which nothing had ever been paid. In the disposition of of the securities received by the Construction Company as aforesaid, this unpaid subscription on the part of the Trust Company was treated as paid, and a proportionate amount of the securities of the Air Line, to-wit: One Hundred and Ninety-Five (195) shares of stock, Twenty-Four and 375-1000 bonds (24.375) of the then aggregate value of Twenty-Six Thousand Dollars ($26,000.00) was turned over to and received and retained by the Trust Company but the Trust Company notwithstanding refused, and has ever since refused to pay such subscription, or any part thereof, but caused entries to be made upon its books and upon the books of the Air Line, cancelling said stock subscription by a fictitious charge. Your orators show, therefore, that by reason of the premises the Trust Company ought in equity and good conscience to account for and pay over to the Belt Company the amount of said subscription, to-wit: Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00) with interest thereon from the date that same was made, to-wit: March 30th, 1891, at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum to date, or that the Trust Company should account for and pay over to the Belt Company the reasonable value of the securities so wrongfully received by the Trust Company as aforesaid, together with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum from the date of such delivery to-wit: the 18th day of March, 1892, and that your orators are entitled to a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company in the amount of said subscription, with interest, or in the amount of the value of said securities with interest, as your orators may elect.

Your orators further show that if it should be claimed by the Trust Company and made to appear that the subscription mentioned in the preceding paragraph as hav- been made by A. E. Stilwell, trustee, was not in fact and in law the subscription of the Trust Company, then your orators show that the said charge made by the Trust Company against the Air Line for the sum of Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00), some two years after the transactions mentioned in the preceding paragraph, was an unlawful and fictitious charge and fraudulent as against the Belt Company; that the reason assigned by the Trust Company for making said charge was that it was for services, when as a matter of fact, no services were rendered by the Trust Company, and the charge was merely an unlawful method adopted by the Trust Company to get rid of its liability on said stock subscriptions.

(b) Your orators further state that on or about May 17, 1892, when the Air Line and Construction Company undertook, as above stated, to declare the contract between them for the construction of said Air Line road duly performed in all respects, the said Construction Company had an overdraft of $2,436.08, and owed the Trust Company in open account the sum of $13,436.08; the Trust Company, through its officers and agents, unlawfully and fraudulently caused the said overdraft of $2,436.08 and $600.00 of said open account to be charged in open account upon the books of the Trust Company against the Air Line; and $10,400.00 of said open account that was paid by the Air Line to the Trust Company does not appear on the pretended statement; and charges afterwards, by the consolidation of accounts, becoming a charge against the Belt Company; the said $600.00 and $2,436.08 items appear as debit charges against the Belt Company in the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company, and the Belt Company should be and is entitled to a credit for the said items on the pretended statement, including the item of $10,400.00, with interest thereon from the date of payment thereof.

(c) Your orators further show that by reason of the failure of the Trust Company and its agents to fully complete said contract for constructing, equipping and completing the Air Line, the Air Line was compelled to and did expend large sums of money to complete the construction and equipment of said railroad, all of which should have been provided by the Trust Company, or by its agent, the Construction Company, under said contract, and which should have been so furnished but for the unlawful action of the Trust Company in causing the Air Line to accept the partial compliance with said contract as and for the full performance thereof. A partial list of the sums of money so expended by the Air Line are as follows:

January, 1892, For cross-ties	$20.75
January, 1893, For Cross-ties	38.25
April, 1892, For completion of Air Line Depot at Independence, Missouri	2,512.48

All of the above sums were paid in cash to the Trust Company and do not appear upon the pretended statement of the Trust Company.

March 21, 1892, Partial payment for 2 Air Line Engines $5,000.00

The preceding item appears as a charge to the Air Line upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

1892 to 1895, for balance purchase price paid by Air Line to Burnham & Williams upon said engines	$10,000.00
1892 to 1893, for right of way grading and completion of Air Line	25,000.00

The preceding two items do not appear upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

That your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to a credit upon the pretended account produced by the Trust Company for each and all of the amounts above set forth, omitted from said pretended statement of the Trust Company, and interest thereon at 6 per cent per annum from the date when said payments were made; and the above items set forth appearing on said pretended statement should be eliminated and a credit should be given upon said account with interest upon said charges from the date when made, all of which have been improperly and unlawfully omitted from said pretended account by the Trust Company.

13. Your orators further show that in December, 1891, a contract was entered into between the West Kansas City Land Company and the Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, under the terms of which the Land Company agreed to sell to the Consolidated Company a strip of land twenty-eight (28) feet in width over and across certain land in Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, for a consideration of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) of which amount Four Thousand Dollars ($4,000.00) was to be paid upon the delivery of a warranty deed and the balance three years thereafter; while the contract was in the name of the Consolidated Company, it was for the benefit of the Belt Company and the said payment of $4,000.00 was made by the Belt Company. The Belt Company in November, 1892, gave its note to the West Kansas City Land Company for Five Thousand Six Hundred Dollars ($5,600.00), being the balance of the purchase price of said land, and the Trust Company guaranteed the payment of said note and interest to the West Kansas City Land

Company and took from the Belt Company the sum of $5,600.00 in cash and retained the same as a special deposit to cover its liability on said note and agreed to pay interest thereon at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum; that afterwards such proceedings were had that your orators, by the judgment and decree of the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, affirmed by the judgment of the Supreme Court of the state, were adjudged to pay and did pay said note and interest on June 13, 1901, amounting to Seven Thousand Nine Hundred Ten and 32-100 Dollars, ($7,910.32); and thereupon the Trust Company became in duty bound to return and refund to your orators the said sum of Five Thousand and Six Hundred Dollars ($5,600.00), and interest thereon; but the Trust Company has failed and refused and ever since has failed and refused to pay said sum to your orators, and the Trust Company has failed in its pretended account to give your orators credit therefor, to which in equity and good conscience, it is entitled; that the same appears upon the pretended account submitted by the Trust Company as a charge against the Belt Company under date of November 28, 1892, which said charge is unlawful and should be expunged; and the interest thereon should be credited to the Belt Company.

14. Your orators further state that on or about November, 1899, a judgment in the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) was rendered against the Belt Company in the suit of one Zumwalt to recover for personal injuries sustained by him. That the Belt Company thereupon appealed said case to the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri, and gave an appeal bond as by law required; that the Trust Company signed said appeal bond as surety and required the Belt Company to deposit with it the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) to cover its liability as surety on said bond; that such proceedings were had that the judgment in said case of Zumwalt was on or about the 19th day of May, 1903, reversed without being remanded and thereupon the liability of the trust Company, as such surety, ceased, but notwith-
521 standing such release from liability the Trust Company has refused and still refuses to account for or pay over to your orators the said sum of $5,000.00, together with interest thereon, to which your orators in equity and good conscience are entitled; and the Trust Company has failed and omitted to credit your orators on its said pretended statement of account with said sum of $5,000.00 to which, with interest thereon from said 29th day of November, 1899, your orators are entitled.

15. Your orators further show to the court that it was the habit and practice of the Trust Company in the disposition of bonds and stocks of the Belt Company, the Consolidated Company, the Air Line and the Union Company, or other stock or bonds belonging to said railroads, to make sales of said bonds and stocks at such prices as the Trust Company should decide upon, and then when such sales had been made, to credit the Belt Company with a less amount, representing to the Belt Company that the sale so made by the Trust Company as aforesaid, had been made at and for a much less price than the amount or rate at which the sale had actually been made. In other instances the Trust Company would have an opportunity to make an advantageous sale of stock or bonds, and with such sale in view would cause the Belt Company to go through the form of selling such stocks or bonds to the Trust Company, and the latter would then, or within a short time thereafter, consummate the sale in contemplation; or the Trust Company in other instances would cause the Belt Company to go through the form of selling said stock or bonds to the Trust Company at a price much less than their value, shortly thereafter the Trust Company would sell such stock and bonds at a greater price than was allowed by the Trust Company to the Belt Company for said stock or bonds. In this manner, the Trust Company derived large profits from the transactions in addition to all the charges for commissions and services hereinbefore mentioned, the said profits consisting of the difference between the amounts at which the sales would be made by the Trust Company and the amounts reported by it to the Belt Company as the amount of the sale, and for which the Belt Company received credit, or the amount of the pretended purchase by the Trust Company; that the amount of said profits is to your orators unknown, but your orators are informed and believe, and so charge upon their information and belief, that the profits so received by the Trust Company, and unlawfully retained by it, exceed the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000.00); that the Trust Company has never at any time accounted to the Belt Company for such profits so unlawfully retained by it, and your orators are entitled to have said profit 522 ascertained and determined and the amount thereof, with interest thereon, credited upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

16. Your orators further show that on the 24th day of August, 1893, the Belt Company was insolvent, as its directors, who were made up of the officers and directors of the Trust Company, then well knew; that nothwithstanding such insolvency the said directors were caused by the Trust Company to go through the form of declaring a dividend payable in the capital stock of the Company and, accordingly the Belt Company acting under the domination and control of the Trust Company and being coerced into such action, did declare a stock dividend and did deliver to its various stockholders its capital stock of the par value of Fifty-One Thousand Two Hundred Sixty-Two and 20-100 ($51,262.20) Dollars and of the reasonable market value of Seventeen Thousand Eighty-seven and 40-100 Dollars ($17,087.40), all of which was unlawful and fraudulent as against the Belt Company and amounting to an appropriation by the Trust Company of the capital stock of the Belt Company in said amount; that of the said stock dividend so paid the Trust Company received as a holder of the capital stock of the Belt Company its stock of the par value of Four Thousand Six Hundred Eighteen and 20-100 Dollars ($4,618.20) and of the market value of One Thousand Five Hundred Thirty-Nine and 40-100 Dollars ($1,539.40); your orators show, therefore, that in equity and good conscience they are entitled to a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company in the sum of $17,087.40 with interest thereon at six (6) per cent from the 1st day of November, 1893.

17. Your orators further show, that on the 7th day of April, 1894, the Belt Company was insolvent, as its directors who were made up of the officers and directors of the Trust Company then well knew; that notwithstanding such insolvency the said directors were caused by the Trust Company to go through the form of declaring a dividend payable in the capital stock of the Company, and, accordingly, the Belt Company, acting under the domination and control of the Trust Company and being coerced into such action, did declare a stock dividend and did deliver to its various stockholders its capital stock of the par value of Seventy-eight Thousand Six Hundred Fifteen and 86-100 Dollars ($78,615.86) and of the reasonable market value of Twenty-six Thousand Two Hundred Five and 28-100 Dollars ($26,205.28), all of which was unlawful and fraudulent as against the Belt Company and amounting to an appropriation by the Trust Company of the capital stock of the Belt Company in said amount; that of the said stock dividend so paid the Trust Company received as a holder of the 523 capital stock of the Belt Company, stock of the par value of Sixteen Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-eight and 20-100 Dollars ($16,338.20) and of the market value of Five Thousand Four Hundred Forty-six and 6-100 Dollars ($5,446.06); your orators show, therefore, that in equity and good conscience they are entitled to a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company in the sum of Twenty-six Thousand Two Hundred Five and 28-100 Dollars ($26,205.28) with interest thereon at six (6) per cent from the 1st day of May, 1894.

18. Your orators further show that in November, 1897, the Belt Company was wholly insolvent as the Trust Company then well knew, but notwithstanding that fact the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to go through the form of declaring a dividend of one and one-half per cent upon all outstanding stock and a resolution was accordingly adopted by the directors of the Belt Company declaring such dividend; that thereafter the Belt Company so acting under the coercion and control of the Trust Company, as aforesaid, did pay out as and for such dividend the sum of Seventy-one Thousand Two Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($71,250.00), of which said amount the Trust Company, as a stockholder of the Belt Company, received a large amount. That the action of the Trust Company in so requiring said dividend to be paid was unlawful, wrongful and the amount so caused to be paid out by the Belt Company together with interest thereon should in equity and good conscience be allowed as a credit upon the pretended statement by the Trust Company.

19. Your orators further show that after the incorporation of the Union Terminal Railroad Company the Trust Company caused it to execute its bonds in the sum of Two Million Dollars, and in order to secure the same to execute a mortgage upon all of its corporate property, then or thereafter acquired; that it was provided in said mortgage that the proceeds of all of the bonds, except one hundred and fifty (150) reserved for interest-paying purposes, should be used in the construction and equipment of the railroad of said company; that after said railroad had been constructed the Trust Company caused the Union Company to deliver to the Belt Company and caused the Belt Company to deliver to the Trust Company one thousand one hundred and sixty (1,160) Union Company bonds of the par value of One Million One Hundred and Sixty Thousand Dollars ($1,160,000.00) and the cash value of One Million, Forty-four Thousand Dollars ($1,044,000.00); that although the Trust Company was the Trustee in said mortgage and knew of the authorized 524 purpose for which said bonds could be used as aforesaid, it wrongfully sold said bonds to various investors and used the proceeds thereof to credit the account of the Belt Company, the debit side of which had been greatly augmented in amount by the fraudulent conduct on the part of the Trust Company in making to the Belt Company excessive and exorbitant charges for services, interest and commissions and upon other pretexts in the manner hereinbefore set forth; that the said bonds so wrongfully put afloat by the Trust Company by their terms drew interest at the rate of five (5) per cent per annum and the Belt Company which had theretofore been required by the Trust Company to guarantee said bonds was thereafter required and compelled by the Trust Company to pay interest in large amounts upon said bonds in the amount of Four Hundred and Thirty-two Thousand Dollars ($432,000.00); that the conduct of the Trust Company in the premises was wrongful and in violation of its trust and resulted in imposing upon the Belt Company the unnecessary burden of said interest payments which appear as charges to the Belt Company in the pretended statement by the Trust Company. That your orators are entitled in equity and good conscience to have said charges of interest eliminated from said statements or if the said charges in respect to the particular bonds cannot be identified with certainty in said account, then to have said account credited with the amount so paid by the Belt Company, together with interest thereon from the respective dates of payment.

20. Your orators further show that on or about April 28th, 1892, the Trust Company sold to one Caroline A. Perkins three Consolidated Company bonds for twenty-five hundred and fifty dollars ($2,550.00); that said bonds were the property of the Belt Company, but that the Trust Company fraudulently and wrongfully refused and neglected and has ever since refused and neglected to pay said proceeds of said bonds to the Belt Company, or to in any way account for them, and the Belt Company is entitled to credit for said sum as of said date, together with interest thereon.

21. Your orators further state that on or about the 12th day of December, 1895, the Trust Company charged against the Belt Company the sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00) and credited the same to "Arkansas Lands;" that your orators are informed and believe that said charge was fictitious and fraudulent and that in truth and in fact said sum of Five Thousand Dollars was not then nor at any time advanced by the Trust Company to or for the Belt Company, and that the Belt Company received no benefit or consideration therefrom and that the said charge of Five Thousand Dollars in equity and good conscience ought to be eliminated from the 525 pretended statement presented by the Trust Company and that the Belt Company should be credited with interest on said amount from the time when said charge was made.

(b) Your orators further state that the inpretended account presented by the Trust Company in connection with the Belt Company, the following charges and credits appear.

Sept. 30, 1899.	To payment to National Bank of Commerce for draft on New York remitting for coupon interest	$40,000.00

Leaving a net charge against the Belt Company of $40,895.10; that the Trust Company did not furnish to the Belt Company said sums or any part thereof for the purpose of paying or taking up coupons of the Union Terminal bonds due August 1st, 1899, or for any other purpose or purposes; that said charges and credits and the resulting net charge against the Belt, were made arbitrarily by the Trust Company against the Belt Company and without consideration to the Belt Company and do not represent money advanced or paid out to or for the Belt Company or at its instance or request, and said charges and credits should be eliminated from the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

(c) Your orators further state that in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company, in connection with the Belt Company, there are the following charges made by the Trust Company against the Belt Company as follows:

Sept. 7, 1899.	Draft, W. S. Taylor to pay 40 coupons Union Terminal Ry., due August 1, 1899.....	1,000
Sept. 7, 1899.	Draft, W. S. Taylor to pay 120 coupons Union Terminal Ry. Co., due Aug. 1, 1899	3,000

Sept. 21, 1899.	Draft, W. S. Taylor to pay 40 coupons Union Terminal Ry. Co., due August 1, 1899..	1,000
Sept. 25, 1899.	To payment draft W. S. Taylor dated Sept. 23rd, 1899, for payment of 20 coupons Union Terminal Ry. due August 1, 1899.	500

Oct. 11, 1899.	To funds deposited with Drexel & Co. for payment of coupons of Union Ter. Ry. and Consolidated Ter. Ry. Co.....	1,000

And that said charges represent payments made by the Trust Company to itself or others on account of 450 Union Terminal Coupons due August 1st, 1899, owned or claimed to be owned by the Trust Company; that the amount of said coupons have heretofore been again paid in cash to the Trust Company so that the Trust Company has received payment twice in respect to said coupons and that the aforesaid charges are therefore unauthorized and invalid, and should be eliminated from the said pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

(d) Your orators further state that in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company in connection with the Belt Company there are the following charges:

Premium paid on bond in replevin suit		$300.00
September 26, 1900.	Commission paid A. G. Hay	.....
	343 1940-2240 tons of rails at 25	85.96
	16 1712-200 tons fasteners at 25	4.21
	Loading cars	17.85
	Demurrage on cars	194.00
	Switching	81.25
	Expenses of A. J. Singer from Chicago to St. Louis account sale	87.50

527 And that said charges and outlays were not made at the instance or the request of said Belt Company and were not authorized by it, and the Belt Company received no consideration for said charges and the same were not properly payable by the Belt Company and hence they should be eliminated from the pretended account by the Trust Company.

22. Your orators further show to the court that about the year 1892, the Trust Company caused the incorporation of the Fruit Auction and Cold Storage Company under the laws of the State of Missouri; that the incorporators of said company were Arthur E. Stilwell, Arthur A. Mosher, Edward L. Martin and William S. Taylor; that the articles of incorporation of said company recited that one-half of the capital stock thereof, to-wit, Seventy-five Thousand Dollars ($75,000.00) had been paid up in lawful money of the United States, when in truth and in fact no part of said capital stock had been paid up; that the Trust Company caused said Cold Storage Company to engage in the business of the sale of fresh fruits in Kansas City, Missouri, and after said business had been conducted for a few months it went out of business owing the Trust Company a large sum of money; that thereupon and on or about the 13th day of February, 1894, the Trust Company, in order to recoup its losses sustained in the matter of said Fruit Auction & Cold Storage Company, appropriated to its own use two hundred and eighty-six (286) shares of the stock of the Union Company belonging to the Belt Company of the value of Six Thousand Two Hundred Ninety-two Dollars ($6,292.00) and used the same to wipe out the debt owing by the said Cold Storage Company to the Trust Company; that the taking of said stock and its appropriation to wipe out the debt of said Cold Storage Company on the books of the Trust Company was fraudulent and wrongful as against the Belt Company as was without any consideration whatsoever given to it; the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company does not contain any credit for the value of said stock but your orators show that a credit for such amount with interest thereon should be allowed.

23. Your orators further state that in the pretended account presented by the Trust Company, there is, under date of September 13, 1898, a charge against the Belt Company of Two Thousand and Five Hundred Dollars ($2,500.00) for moneys represented to be paid by the Trust Company in unlawful stock transactions in the stock of the St. Joseph & Grand Island Railroad Company purchased as a speculation on margins alleged to have been carried on the account of the Belt Company; and in the same account, under date of 528 September 15, 1898, there appears a charge of Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) and on the 9th day of December, 1898, a charge of Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000.00) for similar unlawful transactions in margins in stock of the St. Joseph & Grand Island Railroad Company alleged to have been for the account of the Belt Company; that said transactions were unlawful and beyond the corporate power of either the Trust Company or the Belt Company and it is inequitable and unfair that the said transactions and the loss resulting therefrom in the sum of Five Thousand Nine Hundred Eighty-nine and 50,100 Dollars ($5,989.50) should be charged against the Belt Company and said entries therefor- are incorrect and should be expunged from the alleged account, and credit allowed for interest thereon.

24. Your orators further show that, in addition to the stock of the Belt Company taken and appropriated by the Trust Company as above set forth, the Trust Company did on or about September, 1890, take, appropriate and convert to its own use Four Hundred and Ninety-nine Thousand Dollars ($499,000) par value of the capital stock of the Belt Company, of the actual value of that time of One Hundred Sixty-six Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-three and thirty-three one-hundredths Dollars ($166,333.33) for which the Trust Company has failed and refused to account upon its pretended statement, or otherwise; and your orators are entitled to be credited upon the said pretended statement with the value of said stock as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the date when the same was so appropriated.

25. Your orators further show that on or about the year 1892, the Trust Company took, appropriated and converted to own use 2,455 shares of the capital stock of the Union Company of the par value of Two Hundred Forty-five Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($245,500.00) and of the actual value of Forty-nine Thousand One Hundred Dollars ($49,100.00), for which the Trust Company has failed, neglected and refused to account on its pretended statement, and your orators are therefore entitled to credit on said statement for said sum of Forty-nine Thousand One Hundred Dollars ($49,100.00) with interest thereon from said date.

26. Your orators further show that the Trust Company caused to be constructed the railroad of the Air Line and used for that purpose a corporation previously created by it called the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, as set forth in paragraph twelve herein; that the Trust Company caused the Air Line to enter into a contract with the said Construction Company for the construc-
529 tion and completion of the railroad of the Air Line; under the terms of said contract the Construction Company was to receive Two Hundred Thousand Dollars par value of the stock and Two Hundred fifty Thousand Dollars par value of the first mortgage bonds of the Air Line. The Construction Company entered upon the Construction of said railroad, but before the same was fully completed the Trust Company caused the Air Line and the said Construction Company to go through the form of an agreement by the terms of which the Air Line was to accept the then partially completed railroad as and for a full compliance with said contract and was to turn over to the Construction Company the securities provided in said contract to be turned over upon its final completion as aforesaid, and thereupon the said railroad was turned over to the Air Line and the said securities above mentioned, which had at all times remained in the custody of the Trust Company, were by the Trust Company appropriated to its own use; that the actual cost to the Trust Company of the construction of said Air Line was the sum of One Hundred Seventy Thousand Seven Hundred Forty-seven and twenty-nine one-hundredths Dollars ($170,747.29), and the Trust Company realized from said transaction a profit of One Tundred Twenty-nine Thousand Two Hundred Fifty-two and seventy-one one-hundredths Dollars ($129,252.71); that, by reason of the relation of the parties as hereinbefore more specifically set out, it is unjust and inequitable that the Trust Company should retain said profits or any of them, but it should be required to account to the Belt Company therefor and the same should be allowed as a credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company together with interest thereon.

27. Your orators further show that in connection with the contract between the Belt Company and the Connecting Company aforesaid, and as a part of the obligation assumed by the Belt Company to procure the right of way for the railroad of the Connecting Company, the Belt Company was caused by the Trust Company to purchase and acquire certain lands along the line of said railroad in addition to the right of way and take the title thereto in a corporation which the Trust Company caused to be organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, called the Northern Townsite Company, hereinafter referred to as the Townsite Company, one of the defendants herein, which corporation was at all times officered by the officers and employes of the Trust Company and at all times dominated and controlled by the Trust Company.

a. The Trust Company caused the Belt Company to advance to the Townsite Company and also to advance in the purchase of 530 lands which were conveyed to the Townsite Company a large sum of money, to-wit, the sum of $46,463.75; that all the lands now held by the Townsite Company were purchased with money so caused to be furnished by the Belt Company and the greater portion of said lands still stand in the name of the Townsite Company; but certain lands heretofore standing in the name of the Townsite Company have been sold and the proceeds thereof are now held by your orators, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, as Receivers of the Townsite Company heretofore appointed by this court. That the Trust Company furnished to the Townsite Company the sum of $6,288.57 and no more. Your orators show, therefore, that by reason of the premises they are entitled to have the properties now standing in the name of the Townsite Company conveyed to them as and for the property rightfully belonging to the Belt Company and also to have the said moneys arising from the sale of said lands and also from the rentals thereof, transferred to them in like manner, together with any other assets of the Townsite Company arising or growing out of the moneys so furnished by the Belt Company as aforesaid; or at the option of your orators they are entitled to credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company with the amount of moneys so furnished by the Belt Company as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the dates when said moneys were so furnished.

(b) The Trust Company in connection with the affairs of the Townsite Company charged and collected a commission of 10 per cent on moneys handled or land sold for it and these charges made between July, 1896, and 1901, amounting to Ten Hundred and Eighty-five Dollars ($1,085.00) are unlawful and improper charges by reason of the relations of the companies to each other and should be eliminated from the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

28. Your orators further show that in the pretended statement submitted by the Trust Company under date of April 20th, 1891, there is a charge against the Belt Company in the sum of Three Thousand Eight Hundred Thirty-five and 50-100 Dollars ($3,835.50) and afterwards under date of November 19, 1891, a credit against the same charge of One Thousand Seven Hundred Eighty-one Dollars ($1,781.00), leaving a net charge against the Belt Company of Two Thousand and Fifty-four and 50-100 Dollars ($2,054.50), purporting to be charged for rent of engines Numbers 51 and 52 from January 20, 1891, to Oct. 31, 1891, 284 days, at $7.0 $1,988.00; also rental of engine No. 51, October 31st to November 19th, 19 days, at $3.50, $66.50; total $2,054.50. This charge of $2,054.50
531 should be eliminated from the pretended statement and credit allowed thereon as of date November 19, 1891, for the following reasons: In January, 1891, the Belt Company had a large credit balance with the Trust Company in excess of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00), upon which it was receiving no interest from the Trust Company and such credit balance extended for many months thereafter. In January, 1891, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to purchase two engines, being locomotives Nos. 51 and 52, and instead of permitting the Belt Company to pay for the same as it should have done, the Trust Company in April, 1891, gave to the vendors of the locomotives its own note and charged said note and the interest on said note to the Belt Company, and afterwards, in November of the same year, the Trust Company caused entries to be made so as to show that it had purchased said engines in order that it might sell the same to the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company and the Consolidated Company, and thereupon unlawfully and oppressively charged to the Belt Company said sum of $2,054.50, pretending that the same was rental upon said engines at the rate of $3.50 each per day; that said charge of rental covers the period during which the engines were as shown by the books of the Trust Company and also the books of the Belt Company, the property of the Belt Company. Your orators, therefore, claim that said charge should be eliminated from the pretended statement and that credit with interest should be allowed the Belt Company for said amount from the date when said charge was made.

29. Your orators further show that on or about July 1, 1898, the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to lease from the Second Street Improvement Company parts of lots 12, 13, 14 and 15 in block 10, King & Bouton's Re-survey, in Kansas City, Missouri, comprising a piece of land 25 by 75.4 feet, the rental named in said lease being at the rate of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) per month, and the Second Street Improvement Company, by the terms of said lease, reserved the privilege of cancelling the same upon thirty days' written notice; on the same day the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to lease all of said land to Wells, Fargo Express Company for Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per month, the Belt Company reserving the right to cancel said lease upon thirty days' written notice, provided, however, that if such notice should be given within two years from the date of the lease the Belt Company should pay to the Express Company the Sum of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00). Your orators further show that said land was not necessary for a right of way or for the operation of the Belt Company, but the Trust Company caused it to be leased to the Belt Company and by 532 the latter sub-leased to the Express Company for the purpose of aiding the Second Street Improvement Company to the extent of Seventy-five Dollars ($75.00) per month, the Improvement Company being at that time one of the auxiliary companies of the Trust Company and dominated and controlled by it and officered by the officers and employees of the Trust Company.

Your orators further show that the act of the Trust Company in causing the said lease to be made, was wrongful and oppressive and imposed an unnecessary charge of $75.00 per month on the Belt Company; that between the dates of July, 1898, and December, 1899, the Belt Company was caused to pay to the said Improvement Company the sum of Eighteen Hundred Dollars ($1,800.00), and during the same period it collected from the Express Company under said lease the sum of Four Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($450.00), leaving a net expenditure as a result of the making of said lease in the sum of Thirteen Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($1,350.00), for which, with interest thereon from the dates of the payments made, your orators are entitled to credit upon the pretended statement presented by the Trust Company.

In consideration whereof and for as much as your orators are remediless in the premises except in a court of equity, your orators therefore pray the aid of this court:

(a) That an accounting be taken of the various transactions and dealings between the Trust Company and the Belt Company; or by the Trust Company for the use and benefit of and as trustee and agent for the Belt Company, and that the Trust Company be required to pay the balance found to be due by it, if any, upon such accounting; that in taking such accounting all claims and demands alleged to be held by the Trust Company against the Belt Company in Kansas and Missouri, where the Trust Company used the Belt Company simply as an instrumentality and agency for its own use and benefit, be charged against the Trust Company and it be held liable for all losses incurred or claimed to have been incurred by the Belt Company about the same.

(b) That the said notes hereinabove described may be found and decreed by this court to have been executed in the fraudulent manner and for the fraudulent purposes above set forth and without consideration; and that said notes may be by this court directed to be surrendered up and cancelled, and that each and all of the stocks, bonds and other securities, including the assigned account above mentioned, fraudulently delivered to the Trust Company by its officers and employes in the manner hereinabove set forth, may be ordered by this court surrendered and delivered up or reassigned to the Belt Company.

533 (c) That each and all of the property purchased with the money of the Belt Company and belonging in equity to it, the legal title to which is held in the name of any of the companies hereinbefore set forth, may be required by the decree of this honorable court to be conveyed to the Belt Company, or to its receiver for it.

And your orators pray for a continuance of the writ of injunction herein against the Guardian Trust Company, its agents, servants and employes, restraining and enjoining them and each of them from selling, transferring or in any wise disposing of the said notes above mentioned and so executed by the Belt Company to the Trust Company; and from selling, transferring or in any wise disposing of the said bonds and stocks and other property hereinabove described, delivered to said Trust Company as collateral security for said notes.

And may it please your honors to grant unto your orators the subpœna of the United States of America issuing out of and under the seal of this Honorable court directed to the Guardian Trust Company, the Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, the Fairmount Amusement Company, the Central Improvement Company and Thomas T. Crittenden, its receivers, the Northern Townsite Company, and the Cambria Steel Company, the defendants herein respectively therein and thereby commanding them on a day certain therein to be named and under a certain penalty to be and appear before this honorable court then and there to answer (but not under oath, an answer under oath being hereby expressly waived), all and singular the premises, and to stand and perform and abide by such orders, directions or decrees as may be made in the premises, and as shall seem meet and agreeable to equity and good conscience.

And your orators will ever pray.

CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY, GUARDIAN TRUST COMPANY, MISSOURI Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company and T. T. Crittenden, Its Receiver; Northern Townsite Company and Fairmount Amusement Company, Defendants.

Ancillary Bill.

Answer and Pleas of the Guardian Trust Company to the Second Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint.

Now comes the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, and now and at all times hereafter saving and reserving to itself all benefit and advantage of exceptions, which can or may be taken to the many errors, uncertainties and other imperfections in the said bill contained, for its separate answer and pleas thereto, or to so 535 so much thereof and such portions thereof as this defendant is advised it is necessary or essential for it to answer or plead unto, and answering and pleading, says:

1. That as and for its answer and pleas to the second amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, this defendant adopts its answer and pleas filed in this court and cause on the 1st day of June, 1905, to the first or original supplemental ancillary bill of complaint herein, as fully and to the same extent as if the same were set out herein in full (See foot note).*

2. Further answering said second amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, defendant admits that since the filing of the original ancillary bill herein, Stuart R. Knott has resigned as receiver of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and that Edward F. Swinney has been continued as such receiver herein, and defendant denies that at any time it, in any wise, dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company and its constituent railroad companies, and defendant denies that it at any time charged the Air Line with any items of interest on notes and over drafts of the Air Line due to this defendant, except such as this defendant was lawfully entitled to receive, and avers that any and all interest paid to this defendant by the Air Line was paid to it voluntarily, openly, in the ordinary course of business, and with the full knowledge of the officers, directors and stockholders of the Air Line, who have at all times acquiesced in the same, and the said Air Line and Belt Company are now estopped from questioning the same; denies that defendant made any charges against the Belt Company on account of interest accruing on first mortgage bonds of the Air Line except such as this defendant was lawfully entitled to make; avers that all payments of interest made by this defendant on first mortgage bonds of the Air Line, charged to the Belt Company, were paid at the special instance and request of the Belt Company and for its benefit, and with its full knowledge and consent; that the said Belt Company at all times during which any such charges were made was the owner of all of the outstanding capital stock of the Air Line and hence was the beneficial owner thereof, and the said Air Line was at all said times operated by the said Belt Company as part of its own system and the Belt Company collected and received the revenues derived from such operation; defendant denies that it at any time caused the Belt Company to go through the form
536 of selling any stocks or bonds to defendant at a price less than their value, but on the contrary states that all of said sales were actual bona fide sales, made in the usual and ordinary course of business, and for full value and that all of such transactions were fully known to and were acquiesced in and ratified by the officers, directors and stockholders of the Belt Company and of all its constituent railroad companies with which any such transactions were had; defendant admits that certain charges and credits set out in subdivision B, paragraph 21, of said second amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint appear on the open account due from the said Belt Company to this defendant and states that said credits and charges are correct and properly made, denies that said credits or charges were arbitrarily or unlawfully made, but on the contrary states that, as fully appears from said account, the net charge due to defendant from said Belt Company on account of the transactions therein set forth, represent money actually paid out by this defendant in payment of certain bills of exchange, drawn by said Belt Company, for its own benefit, which bills of exchange the said Belt Company was unwilling or unable to pay, and which this defendant by reason of its endorsement of said bills of exchange, was obliged to pay and defendant denies that the items charged by it against the Belt Company, set forth in sub-division C, of paragraph 21, of said second amended ancillary bill, have at any time been paid to this defendant; and defendant again states that all the charges made by it in its open account against the said Belt Company were fairly and justly made for full consideration received by the Belt Company, and that the said Belt Company is liable therefor.

3. And by way of addition to paragraph 54 of its answer to the amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, herein adopted by defendant as its answer to the second amended supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, in relation to the Central Improvement Company, hereinafter called the Improvement Company, defendant states that said Improvement Company was a corporation organized and managed just as any other corporation is organized and managed; that it had its own treasury, collected and disbursed its own income; that the said Improvement Company and the Belt Company treated all real estate standing in the name of the Improvement Company as the property of the Improvement Company and not as the property of the Belt Company or any other of the stockholders of the Improvement Company; that all rentals or other income received by the Improvement Company went into its treasury
537 and was disbursed out of said common fund for the general corporate purposes of the Improvement Company; that as and when the said Improvement Company raised capital for its operations it issued to the person or corporation furnishing such capital its shares of stock covering dollar for dollar the amount of the capital so furnished; that said capital was used not only for the purpose of buying real estate but also for the expense of management and other legitimate expenses of the said Improvement Company; that it was not intended by the Belt Company that it should own or have any interest in any parcel of real estate owned by the said Improvement Company, but on the contrary it was intended by the Belt Company that its sole interest in the Improvement Company should be represented by stock of the Improvement Company purchased by the Belt Company from time to time as aforesaid.

4. And by way of supplement to the averments set forth in paragraph 90 of defendant's answer to the said first amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, this defendant states: That the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, hereinafter called the Southern Company, is a railroad corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, on or about March 19, 1900, and still exists as such; that on or about March 19, 1900, and ever since, the said Southern Company was and is the owner and holder of substantially all of the capital stock and substantially all of the mortgage bonds issued by the Belt and its constituent companies, which securities had been acquired by the said Southern Company through and by the Reorganization Committee mentioned in said paragraph 90, pursuant to and in conformity with the reorganization plan referred to in said paragraph 90, which reorganization plan had been introduced in evidence before the master to whom the issues herein have been referred and for greater definiteness defendant prays leave to refer to said plan, and defendant states that all of said stock and all of said bonds were acquired by said committee for said Southern Company under and by virtue of certain reorganization agreements, made pursuant to said plan, in writing, with all of the stockholders and all of the bondholders of the Belt and its constituent companies, that all of said reorganization agreements are of the same tenor and effect, and that a true and correct copy of said reorganization agreement has been introduced in evidence before the said master and for greater definiteness defendant prays leave to refer thereto; and defendant states that on the 6th day of September, 1900, the said Southern Company, as the owner of all of the mortgage bonds issued by the said Belt and its constituent companies, through the said committee, caused to be filed in this 538 court by the Provident Life and Trust Company, which was trustee in the said mortgages, securing the said bonds, four separate bills of foreclosure against the Belt Company, Union Terminal Company, The Consolidated Terminal Company and The Air Line Company, respectively, and that, afterward, said causes, were, by order of this court, consolidated, and that such proceedings were had in said causes that on the 6th day of November, 1901, a decree of foreclosure and sale was rendered in said causes, and thereafter, to-wit: on or about December 31, 1901, there was conveyed to the said Southern Company under the terms of said decree by the special master appointed to make sale in the said foreclosure suits, all of the property of the said Belt Company and its constituent companies, including all and singular the rents, tolls, income, issues and profits of the said railroad premises and properties, and all of the estate, right, title and interest, legal and equitable, and present and future, of the said Belt Company, in and to the same and every part thereof, also all the corporate and other rights, privileges, liberties and franchises of the said Belt Company connected with or pertaining to the said railroad or the construction, acquisition, maintenance or use thereof, as well those thereafter acquired as those then held.

And defendant states that at the time said committee settled and compromised with J. De Goeijen, Jr., his claim of about three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000.00), against the Gulf Company as in said paragraph 90 set forth, the said committee, pursuant to authority conferred on it by the said reorganization agreement made with the stockholders and bond holders of the Belt Company as aforesaid, was engaged in adjusting the floating indebtedness of the Belt Company and the Gulf Company, and that at the time the said committee settled and compromised the said claim with said De Goeijen, as in said paragraph 90 set forth, the said Southern Company was a party to said settlement and compromise; that said Southern Company then and there, and at all times prior thereto, claimed that said De Goeijen owed the Belt Company said sum of $89,333.33, being the balance due on account of the securities by him bought as in said paragraph 90 set forth, and being also the exact amount due on said depot mortgages in said paragraph 90 referred to, and said Southern Company further claimed and asserted that being the owner of all of the stocks and bonds of the Belt Company, and that having acquired all of the property and rights of the Belt Company, at foreclosure, as hereinabove set forth, it, the said Southern Company, was entitled to collect and receive the said sum of $89,333.33, from said De Goeijen; and thereupon a 539 general settlement and compromise was had of all controversies of all kinds then pending between the said Southern Company, the said committee, the Gulf Company, and the Belt Company, on the one hand, and the said De Goeijen on the other hand, and the said committee and the said Southern Company and the said Provident Life and Trust Company, the then holders of the said depot mortgages, and each of them, did on June 16th, 1902, execute releases under seal unto the said De Goeijen, forever discharging him from any further claim or claims on account of any matter or thing arising or resulting from their reorganization or ownership of the property, rights and franchises of the Belt Company including said claim of $89,333.33, and arising out of every other matter or thing or transaction whatsoever; and defendant states that said settlement and compromise was made and the said releases were executed by the said committee, and the said Southern Company with the full knowledge and consent of complainants Knott and Swinney, the then receivers of the Belt Company; that the said Knott, at the time said settlement was made, and the said releases were executed, was the president of the said Southern Company and its managing officer, and that the said releases were drawn and executed under the supervision of one Max Pam, counsel for the said receivers; that the claim and assertion made by the Southern Company that it was lawfully entitled to collect and receive from said De Goeijen, said sum of $89,333.33 was made with the full knowledge and consent of said complainants, and their said counsel, and they fully acquiesced in said claim; and so defendant says that the said committee, and the said Southern Company, it being through its ownership of all of the stocks and bonds issued by the Belt Company and of all the rights and property of the Belt Company the beneficial owner of said Belt Company, having with the full knowledge and approval of complainants once collected said claim of $89,333.33 from said De Goeijen, as aforesaid, the said Belt Company and its said receiver, ought not now be permitted to come into a court of equity and assert the same claim against defendant; for greater certainty defendant prays leave to refer to the said instruments of release passing between said De Goeijen, said committee and the said Southern Company, which are dated June 16th, 1902, and have been offered in evidence herein, before the master before whom the testimony has been taken on the issues herein; defendant states that by inadvertence and mistake it is averred by this defendant in said paragraph 90 of its said answer that the receivers of the said Belt Company paid to the Provident Life and Trust Company the real estate mortgage notes aggregating eighty-nine thou-540 sand, three hundred thirty-three and thirty-three one-hundredths ($89,333.33) dollars, therein referred to; defendant states that it is not true that said real estate mortgage notes have been paid by the Belt Company or its receivers, but on the contrary states that the said Belt Company and its receivers have at no time paid the said notes and defendant further states that said notes after the said settlement between the Kansas City Southern Railway Company and De Goeijen were fully paid and satisfied by said Kansas City Southern Railway Company, as it was in duty bound to do, and said notes are not now an outstanding lien on any real estate now or at any time owned by the Belt Company.

5. And by way of supplement to defendant's answer to the said first amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, defendant states that on March 27, 1905, it paid to the First National Bank of Kansas City, Missouri, the sum of $34,061.46, in satisfaction of a certain judgment rendered by the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, in cause No. 1604, entitled The First National Bank of Kansas City, Missouri, vs. The Guardian Trust Company, and affirmed by the Supreme Court of Missouri, on March 16, 1905, which said judgment was entered against this defendant on a certain promissory note made by the said Belt Company on March 26, 1900, in favor of said Bank for $25,000.00, due sixty days after date, with interest after maturity at the rate of seven per cent per annum until paid, which said note was endorsed by this defendant, solely for the accommodation of said Belt Company, the full proceeds of said note having been paid by said Bank to said Belt Company which derived the sole benefit thereof and this defendant prays that it may have judgment against the said Belt Company and its receivers for the said sum of $34,061.46, with interest thereon at the legal rate from said March 27th, 1905.

6. All of which matters and things hereinbefore stated this defendant is ready to aver, maintain and prove as this Honorable Court may direct, and hereby prays that judgment may be rendered by this Honorable Court against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railway Company and the said Swinney, as its receiver, in favor of this defendant for the amount of each and all of the promissory notes together with interest thereon, mentioned and set forth in its answer aforesaid, for the amount of the open book account mentioned and set forth as "Exhibit A" of said answer with interest thereon from the first day of April, 1900, and that this defendant may have judgment against the said Belt Company and its receiver for any and all further sums or amounts that may be found due this defendant; that the court may by proper order protect and 541 enforce the interests of this defendant in and to the stocks, bonds, accounts and property deposited with and held by this defendant as collateral and its said receiver may be ordered and directed to pay to this defendant whatever sums of money this defendant may be found entitled to herein, and this defendant have also judgment for its reasonable costs, charges and expenses in this behalf most wrongfully expended and sustained, and for such other and further relief as to the court shall seem meet and just in the premises.

B. Cone, in Detroit, Michigan, and the depositions of Herman Seilcken, William V. Rowe, McDougal Hawkes and Thomas L. Chadbourne, in the City of New York, and it appears from the depositions of said William V. Rowe and said Herman Seilcken, that the Guardian Trust Company offered in evidence certain documents which were identified by the respective notaries taking said depositions, and which are referred to in said depositions, and it further appears that said Notaries failed to attach to the said depositions either the original or a copy of said documents so referred to as exhibits.

Now, Therefore, it is accordingly stipulated:

1. That the paper hereto attached, marked "Exhibit 1" is a true copy of the paper referred to on page 15 of said Seilcken's deposition as "Exhibit No. 1," therein, as Trial Balance prepared by former Auditor Neal S. Doran.

2. That the paper set forth at page 30385 in Volume 50, as Heynecker's Exhibit "12" in the testimony heretofore taken in this cause before S. C. Douglass, Esquire, Special Master, is a true and correct copy of the paper referred to on page 26 of said Seilcken's deposition, as a certified copy of Report of Minutes of the Reorganization Committee of its meeting held July 10, 1900.

543 3. That the paper set forth at page 30411 in Volume 50 as Heynecker's "Exhibit 15" in said testimony taken before the master is a true and correct copy of the paper referred to as "Exhibit

6. That the papers hereinbefore referred to are true copies of the papers referred to and shown as offered in evidence on pages 12 and 13 of the said deposition of William V. Rowe.

7. The signature of said McDougal Hawkes to his deposition aforesaid may be and is waived.

8. That said papers hereinbefore referred to may be considered as in evidence as fully and to the same extent as if the same had been actually attached by the respective Notaries to the said depositions, and that all informalities in the certification by the respective Notaries of any of the depositions aforesaid and in the return thereof to and filing thereof with the Clerk of said court are hereby waived.

III.

Any party to this cause shall have the right, upon the hearing of this case to refer to any part of the record in the four consolidated causes of the Provident Life and Trust Company v. The Kansas Suburban Belt Railroad Company et al., Nos. 2464, 2465, 2466, and 2467, filed September 6th, 1900, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, or in the cause of the State Trust Company v. Also a like number of copies of instrument entitled Supplemental indenture, conveying terminal properties at Kansas City, executed by the Kansas City Southern Railway Company to the Mercantile Trust Company et al., trustees, dated January 15, 1902, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of Jackson County, Missouri.

V.

Without prejudice to the right to object thereto for incompetency, irrelevancy or immateriality, the objections heretofore offered to the following documents offered in evidence before the master by the Guardian Trust Company, on the ground that same did not constitute the best evidence, and have not been proved to be correct copies of the originals, are hereby withdrawn.

(a) A certain statement in writing made to the Committee on stock list of the New York Stock Exchange on or about the 14th day of August, 1900, and signed by A. W. Supplemental Bill.

Supplemental Bill of Edward F. Swinney, Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and the Kansas City Southern Railway Company against the Guardian Trust Company.

To the Judges of the United States Circuit Court for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, sitting in Equity.

1. Your orators, Edward F. Swinney as Receiver of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, with leave of court, brings this supplemental bill of complaint against the Guardian Trust Company; each and all of 553 which said corporations, both complainant and defendant, are corporations organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the state of Missouri and citizens and residents of said state and each of them being an inhabitant of the Western Division of the Western District there*to*.

(a) Your orators state that the original complainant in this action, the Cambria Steel Company, on September 6, 1900, exhibited to this Honorable Court its bill of complaint against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Union Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City and Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company and Northern Townsite Company, in and by which said bill of complaint said Cambria Steel Company as such complainant set up the recovery of a judgment by it against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company in the sum of One Hundred Thousand Nine Hundred Sixty Two and 91/100ths Dollars ($100,962.91) and the issuance and delivery and return unsatisfied of an execution thereon, and in and by said bill of complaint sought to subject to the payment and satisfaction of said judgment certain rights, properties and assets belonging to the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the other defendants above named.

(b) The bill of the Cambria Steel Company was in the nature of a creditor's bill in which it was sought to reach certain assets and property of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company (hereinafter for convenience referred to as the "Belt Company") and to subject them to the payment of the said judgment in favor of the Cambria Steel Company. It was alleged in said bill that the defendant, Guardian Trust Company (hereinafter for convenience referred to as the "Trust Company"), caused to be organized and incorporated all of its co-defendants, to-wit: the Belt Company, Union Terminal Railroad Company (hereinafter for convenience referred to as the "Terminal Company"), Kansas City and Indepedence Air Line (hereinafter for convenience referred to as the "Air Line"), Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company (hereinafter for convenience referred to as the "Elevator Company"), Central Improvement Company (hereinafter for convenience referred to as the "Central Company"), Second Street Improvement Company (hereinafter for convenience referred to as the "Second Street Company"), Fairmount Amusement Company (hereinafter for convenience referred to as the "Amusement Company"), and the Northern Townsite Company (hereinafter for convenience referred 554 to as the "Townsite Company"); that the Trust Company caused each and all of said companies so incorporated and organized by it to issue large amounts of stocks and bonds, as follows: That it caused the Terminal Company to execute mortgage bonds in the amount of Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00) and capital stock in an equal amount; the Belt Company to issue bonds to the amount of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00) and stock in the amount of Two Million Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($2,750,000.00); the Consolidated Terminal Company to issue bonds in the amount of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars

($750,000.00) and stock in an equal amount; the Air Line to issue stock in the sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($500,000.00) and bonds in the sum of Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($300,000.00); the Central Company to issue stock in the sum of One Hundred Forty-One Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($141,500.00); the Elevator Company to issue stock in the sum of Forty-Two Thousand Dollars ($42,00-.00); the Amusement Company to issue stock in the sum of Twenty-Five Hundred Dollars ($2,500.00); that the Trust Company at all times dominated and controlled each and all of said companies by the election of its own officers and directors to the positions of officers and directors of said other companies and caused them to execute their official duties in the interest and for the benefit of the Trust Company; that the Trust Company caused all of said stocks and bonds so issued as aforesaid to be transferred to it and it proceeded to use said stocks and bond nominally for the benefit and profit of the companies issuing them, but in reality for its own benefit and profit, and that it refused at all times to render any true or correct statement of account and to account to the said corporations and each of them for the disposition made of said stocks and bonds or the proceeds thereof. The said bill of complaint further alleged that, in various other and sundry ways, the Trust Company mismanaged the property and affairs of the said corporations and that at various times amounts were charged by the Trust Company to the Belt Company purporting to represent indebtedness from the other defendant companies to the Trust Company, and that, as a result of said transactions, there was a pretended indebtedness shown upon the books of the Belt Company and of the Trust Company in favor of the latter and against the former in a large amount, and that in 1899 it became apparent that the Belt Company and the other companies were about to become bankrupt and the Trust Company caused the officers of the Belt Company, who were also officers and interested in the Trust Company, to cause to be pledged to the Trust Company all of the bonds, stocks and other property or evidence of indebtedness possessed by the Belt Company and subject to pledge or hypothecation.

555 The promissory notes so alleged in said bill to have been executed by the Belt Company are more specifically described as follows:

Note dated March 31, 1899, payable on July 2, 1899, for $50,000, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum.

Note dated July 26, 1899, payable on demand with 6 per cent interest for $203,900.

Note dated Sept. 21, 1899, payable on demand, with 8 per cent interest for $23,056.48.

Note dated Oct. 23, 1899, payable on demand, with 8 per cent interest, for $7,162.40.

Note dated November 7, 1899, due January 9, 1900, with 8 per cent interest, for $50,000.00.

Note dated January 25, 1900, due May 25, 1900, with 6 per cent interest for $25,000.

Note dated February 8, 1900, due May 12, 1900, with 6 per cent interest for $109,500.00.

Note dated February 9, 1900, due June 11, 1900, with 8 per cent interest, for $10,400.

The said bill of the Cambria Company further alleged that the stocks and bonds and other property which the Trust Company fraudulently caused its own officers and employes as officers and directors of the Belt Company to turn over to it for the purpose of securing the payment of the said pretended notes are as follows:

338 first mortgage, 30 year 5 per cent gold bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company of the denomination of $1,000, dated January 1, 1897, being bonds numbered 1467, 1769 to 1703, both inclusive; 1799 to 1818, both inclusive; 1324 to 1331, both inclusive; 1756 to 1768, both inclusive; 1184 to 1216, both inclusive; 1466, 1369 to 1400, both inclusive; 1431 to 1440, both inclusive; 1609 to 1658, both inclusive; 1659 to 1708, both inclusive; 1819 to 1851, both inclusive; 1774 to 1798, both inclusive; 1301 to 1323, both inclusive, and 76 of said bonds the numbers of which are not known to your orators; also 50 of said bonds numbered 1129 to 1178, both inclusive.

67 and 9-10 second mortgage, 30 year 5 per cent income bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, of the denom-nation of $1,000 each, dated January 1st, 1897, being bonds numbered 1064 to 1098, both inclusive; 1149 to 1157,
556 both inclusive; 1162 to 1173, both inclusive; 1192 to 1202, both inclusive.

Certificate No. 227, entitling the holder to 250-1,000 of said mortgage income bonds.

Certificate No. 229, entitling the holder to 250-1,000 of said second mortgage income bonds.

Certificate No. 220, entitling the holder to 150-1,000 of said second mortgage income bonds.

25 shares of the capital stock of the Fairmount Amu-ement Company of the par value of $100 each, as evidenced by certificates Nos. 9, 6, 5 and 4.

1,120 shares of the capital stock of the Central Improvement Company of the par value of $100 each, as evidenced by certificate Nos. 148, 149 and 147.

439 shares of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company of the par value of $100 each, as evidenced by certificate No. 11.

425 shares of the capital stock of the Missouri Elevator and Terminal Company of the par value of $100 each, as evidenced by certain certificates Nos. 36, 34, 37, 40 and 38.

19,997 shares of the 20,000 shares constituting the capital stock of the Union Terminal Railroad Company.

4,994 shares of the capital stock of the Kansas City and Independence Air Line.

15 Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company's second mortgage income bonds.

About 600 tons of new steel rails, theretofore purchased by, and then belonging to said Belt Company, and being stored in its yards.

It is further alleged that at or about the same time of the pretended pledging of the above security the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to assign to it an open account against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company in an amount of One Hundred Thirty-Three Thousand Fifty-Eight and 4-100ths Dollars ($133,058.04) to secure said alleged indebtedness.

Said bill of the Cambria Steel Company prayed that an accounting might be had between the Trust Company and the other defendants and that upon a true accounting it would be found that nothing would be justly due from the Belt Company to the 557 Trust Company, but that on the other hand a large sum would be found to be due from the Trust Company to the Belt Company, and the Cambria Company prayed that the collateral above mentioned should be decreed to be released from the alleged pledge and subject to the payment of complainant's judgment; that the assets of the Belt Company be marshalled for distribution in accordance with the practice of courts of equity and for an injunction against the Trust Company and all persons claiming through, by or under it, or each of them, enjoining and restraining it from in any manner directly or indirectly selling, transferring, assigning or pledging, or otherwise disposing of or parting with the possession of or control of any of the property, assets, notes, stocks, bonds and claims and demands above mentioned and also any of the notes above mentioned.

(c). Upon the filing of said bill and on September 6, 1900, this court made an order appointing Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, Receivers, generally of all the assets, property, rights, titles and interests, legal or equitable, of the Belt Company; and the court further ordered that the Trust Company and all persons claiming by, through or under it and each of them, and their several and respective officers, agents, employes and representatives, be restrained until the further order of the court from in any manner directly or indirectly selling, transferring, assigning, pledging or otherwise disposing of or parting with the possession or control of any of the property, assets, notes, stocks, bonds, claims and demands mentioned and referred to in the bill of complaint above set forth, and any of the said notes, bonds or other collateral above described. The Elevator Company, the Townsite Company, the Amusement Company, the Central Company, the Second Street Company and each of them, were restrained and enjoined from in any manner directly or indirectly selling, encumbrancing, pledging, transferring or assigning, or otherwise disposing of or parting with the possession or control of any part of the assets, property, moneys or demands of said companies respectively.

(d). Afterwards, and on the 8th day of November 1900, this court appointed a receiver for the Elevator Company, Central Company and Townsite Company; afterwards by order of this court the Elevator Company was turned over to the Trust Company as the mortgagees of its property for the purpose of the administration of the same; that the receivership of the Central Company has been continued and T. T. Crittenden is now the Receiver thereof and is in charge of and is operating the property of that company; that the Receiver of the Townsite Company has been continued and com-558 plainant Edward F. Swinney, is now the Receiver of said Company and in control of and in the administration of the assets of said company.

(e). All the defendants named in the bill of the Cambria Company filed their answers thereto and the issues have long since been made up and testimony taken as hereinafter stated.

(f) Your orators pray leave to refer to the bill of the Cambria Company and order appearing receivers thereunder to answers of the defendants to said bill, the reports of the receivers from time to time and the other orders made therein to the same extent and with like effect as if herein set forth at length.

2. Your orators further state that — the 20th day of November, 1901, your orator, Edward F. Swinney, together with Stuart Knott, the latter being at the time a co-receiver with your said orator, but since discharged of his trust, together with the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company acting under the authority of their appointment as receivers of the Belt Company as set forth in the foregoing paragraph, filed their ancillary bill of complaint against the Cambria Steel Company, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, and T. T. Crittenden its Receiver, Northern Townsite Company and the Fairmount Amusement Company; and afterwards, on the 26th day of March, 1905, filed their first amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, and afterwards, on July 2, 1905, filed their second amended and supplemental and ancillary bill of complaint.

(a). In the original, as well as in the first and second amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, the complainants therein averred that the Trust Company caused the organization and incorporation of the companies for the purposes and in the manner stated in the foregoing paragraph 1, sub paragraph "b"; also the execution by said companies of the bonds and stock as therein alleged; and domination and control by the Trust Company of each and all of said companies and the appropriation by the Trust Company of all of said stocks and bonds to its own benefit and profit and its refusal to render any true or correct statement of account and to account to said corporations and each of them for the disposition of said bonds and stocks or the proceeds thereof; that the Trust Company in various other and sundry ways mismanaged the property and affairs of said corporation and that at various times amounts were charged by the Trust Company to the Belt Company purporting to represent indebtedness from the other defendant companies to the Trust Com-
559 pany and that as a result of said transactions there was a pretended indebtedness shown upon the books of the Belt Company and of the Trust Company in favor of the latter and against the former in a large amount; that in 1899 it became apparent to the Trust Company that the Belt Company and other companies were about to become bankrupt and the Trust Company caused the officers of the Belt Company, who were also officers and interested in the Trust Company, to cause to be pledged to the Trust Company all of the bonds, stocks and other property or evidence of indebtedness possessed by the Belt Company and subject to pledge or hypothecation; that the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to execute the promissory notes specifically described in said paragraph 1, sub paragraph "b", and that the Trust Company fraudulently and unlawfully caused its own officers and employes, as officers and directors of the Belt Company, to turn over to the Trust Company for the purpose of securing the payment of the pretended notes, the stocks and bonds specifically described in said paragraph 1, sub-paragraph "b", and to assign the account therein specifically set forth.

It is further alleged in the said amended and ancillary bill of complaint that the Trust Company caused to be organized the Central Improvement — a corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, with a capital stock of $200,000.00, of which $141,500.00 par value has been issued; that said company was organized for the purpose of holding the title to various pieces of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, and elsewhere, purchased for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, and other of the companies above mentioned so organized, dominated and controlled by the Trust Company; that the officers and employes of the Central Improvement Company, all of whom were officers, servants or employes of the Trust Company continued nominally in office and to control and to manage such company until about the month of April, 1900; that certain pieces of real estate of vital importance to the Belt Company are held in the name of the Central Improvement Company; that the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of purchasing the said pieces of property and using for that purpose funds of the Belt Company; that various sums of money were, during the period above mentioned, paid out by the Belt Company to the Trust Company for the purpose of purchasing such pieces of real estate; that the Trust Company has never truly accounted to the Belt Company, though often requested so to do, for the sums of money so received by it and the disposition made by it of such sums of money, and it has never accounted at all therefor, except as hereafter stated; that a large amount of property was purchased 560 with money advanced by the Belt Company, the title to which property, however, was taken in the name of the Improvement Company; that all of said property in truth and in fact belong to the Belt Company, and that the Belt Company has never been reimbursed for the money so advanced as aforesaid; that on the eighth day of November, 1900, a receiver was appointed for the Improvement Company and that T. T. Crittenden is now the duly qualified and acting receiver thereof; that another company organized by the Trust Company was the Northern Townsite Company, a Missouri corporation, with an authorized capital of $100,000.00, of which $92,800.00 has been issued; that said company was organized by the Trust Company in connection with the Construction of the Kansas City Northern Connecting Railroad for the purpose of acquiring property at or near townsites along the line of said road; that the Trust Company, in the same manner as it dominated the other corporations above named, caused its own servants and employes to be elected and maintained as officers and directors of said Townsite Company, and at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of said Townsite Company; and the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to advance to it upwards of $47,000.00, which it used in the purchase of property which was taken in the name of the Townsite Company; that the Trust Company furnished the Townsite Company the sum of $6,288.57 and no more; that the property standing in the name of the Townsite Company and the proceeds realized from the sale of such of the townsite properties as have been sold should be conveyed and turned over to the Belt Company.

The complainants in said amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint then proceed to specify a large number of particular instances wherein it is claimed that, by reason of the domination and control by the Trust Company over the Belt Company and the other companies above described and allied with it, the Trust Company caused improper charges to be made against the Belt Company and refused to allow credits which should have been allowed to it, so that if said accounts were properly sifted and adjusted the Belt Company would be entitled to a credit in excess of $1,500,000.00 and that said pretended notes would be entirely wiped out and the Belt Company would be entitled to a judgment for a large amount against the Trust Company. The prayer is as follows:

That an accounting be taken of the various transactions and dealings between the Trust Company and the Belt Company; or by the Trust Company for the use and benefit of and as trustee and agent for the Belt Company, and that the Trust Company be required to pay the balance found to be due by it, if any, upon such ac-
561 counting; that in taking such accounting all claims and demands alleged to be held by the Trust Company against the Belt Company in Kansas and Missouri, where the Trust Company used the Belt Company simply as an instrumentality and agency for its own use and benefit, be charged against the Trust Company and it be held liable for all losses incurred or claimed to have been incurred by the Belt Company about the same.

That the said notes hereinabove described may be found and decreed by this court to have been executed in the fraudulent manner and for the fraudulent purposes above set forth and without consideration; and that said notes may be by this court directed to be surrendered up and cancelled, and that each and all of the stocks, bonds and other securities, including the assigned account above mentioned, fraudulently delivered to the Trust Company by its officers and employes in the manner hereinabove set forth, may be ordered by this court surrendered and delivered up or reassigned to the Belt Company.

That each and all of the property purchased with the money of the Belt Company and belonging in equity to it, the legal title to which is held in the name of any of the companies hereinbefore set forth, may be required by the decree of this honorable court to be conveyed to the Belt Company, or to its receiver for it.

And your orators pray for a continuance of the writ of injunction herein against the Guardian Trust Company, its agents, servants and employes, restraining and enjoining them and each of them from selling, transferring or in any wise disposing of the said notes above mentioned and so executed by the Belt Company to the Trust Company; and from selling, transferring or in any wise disposing of the said bonds and stocks and other property hereinabove described, delivered to said Trust Company as collateral security for said notes.

(b) The Trust Company duly answered the said amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint and by various allegations sought to justify the statement of accounts made between it and the Belt Company, averred the execution by the Belt Company of the promissory notes above described and the pledging and transfer to it of the account and collateral security above mentioned; averred that it had sold certain of said collateral security, and that as to the remaining collateral security it had been temporarily enjoined at the suit of the Cambria Steel Company from the selling or otherwise subjecting certain of the above named stocks and bonds to the payment of the alleged indebtedness of the Belt Company to it;
562 but that certain of said collateral security has under the order of this court been sold by the Trust Company and the proceeds of certain sales are now held by the Trust Company in accordance with the order of this court to await the final determination of this cause; that as to the claim and account of the Belt Company against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company it was averred that said account had been assigned to and was held by the Trust Company as collateral security and that the Trust Company had filed said statement of account by intervening petition in the suit of the State Trust Company, complainant, against the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company and others, defendants, in this court, and that said intervention is still pending and undetermined; and the Trust Company prayed that judgment might be rendered by this court against the Belt Company and the complainants in said amended and supplemental ancillary bill in favor of the Trust Company for the amount of each and all of the said promissory notes, together with interest thereon, and for the amount of an open book account, with interest thereon, from April 1, 1900; that the court by proper order should protect and enforce the interest of the Trust Company in and to the stocks, bonds, accounts and property so held by the Trust Company as collateral security as aforesaid. The other defendants in said amended and supplemental ancillary bill filed their answers and the issues have long since been made up.

(c) The properties of the Central Improvement Company consist in a general way of parcels and tracts of land in and about Kansas City of the value of approximately $200,000.00; that nearly all of said lands were purchased with funds supplied by the Belt Company and the title thereto was taken in the Central Improvement Company as a matter of convenience; that T. T. Crittenden is now the duly qualified and acting receiver in charge of and administering said properties; that numerous orders have been heretofore made by this court respecting the properties of the Central Improvement Company.

(d) The properties of the Northern Townsite Company are still in the hands of Edward F. Swinney, Receiver, appointed by this court, and consist in a general way of a large number of town lots, except such as have been sold, in which event the proceeds are in the hands of the said Receiver awaiting disposition by this court. A number of orders have been made by this court directing the administration of said property and providing for such sales as have been made.

(e) In November, 1901, this court made an order in the case of Bierce vs. Guardian Trust Company upon the application of 563 the Trust Company and its Receiver, providing for the sale of ninety nine (99) bonds of the Kansas City & Northern Connecting Railroad Company, being a part of the collateral above named, together with coupons thereto attached, and the same were sold and the proceeds aggregating $40,000.00 were, in pursuance of said order of this court, received by the Guardian Trust Company and by its receiver to take the place of said bonds and held by them separate and apart from the other funds subject to any claim thereto which might therafter be established by the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the Cambria Steel Company.

(f) All of the bills, answers, orders, reports and other proceedings mentioned in this paragraph are a part of the record in this case and your orators pray leave to refer to the same at any hearing of the same effect as though they were duly incorporated herein.

3. Your orators further state that on the 27th day of February, 1905, your orator The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, by leave of court and by stipulation of the parties, filed its intervening petition in this cause, in which it claimed certain of the collateral above described in paragraph one (1) and the proceeds of the same where any part thereof had been sold; the general nature of the claim of said intervenor is as follows:

(a) The intervenor, it was alleged in said intervening petition, was the purchaser at foreclosure sale in 1900 of the railroad properties of the Kansas City Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, and in 1902 of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and Kansas City and Independence Air Line. That each of said sales was made in the foreclosure proceeding to foreclose mortgages upon each of said properties; that said mortgages not only covered the specific railroad properties in existence at the time they were made, but also carried a broad after-acquired property clause sufficient in equity to include and embrace all other property acquired for railway purposes after the execution of said mortgages.

Intervenor then alleged the incorporation of the said Central Improvement Company for the purpose of holding the legal title to real estate that might be needed and required for right of way and other purposes necessary for and in connection with the operation of said various railroad companies; that all of the moneys used by said Improvement Company were contributed by the Belt Company; the Air Line and by the Gulf Company for the purchase of right of way and terminal properties necessary for the use and operation of said railways respectively; that the amount contributed 564 by the Belt Company was $129,673.00; by the Air Line, $16,101.00, and by the Gulf Company $23,673.00; that as a matter of convenience when funds were provided by said companies, or any of them, for the purchase of right of way which such company might need for railroad purposes, that amount of stock subsantially equivalent thereto was issued by the Improvement Company to the railway company supplying the funds; that in this way 1407 shares of stock of the Improvement Company were issued and not otherwise, and said stock was appropriated by the Trust Company in 1899 for the fraudulent purpose of securing the pretended indebtedness aforesaid; that the Trust Company was a Trustee in each of said mortgages and actually and by operation of law charged with a notice that all of said properties in equity belonged to the various railway companies for which they were purchased and that the after-acquired property clause of the mortgages respectively attached to said properties, so that in equity they were covered by said mortgages and upon a foreclo-use sale the title thereto passed to and vested in said intervenor.

(b.) The intervenor further alleged that the steel rails which the Trust Company took possession of on or about February 1, 1900, being approximately 600 tons, more or less, as aforesaid, were charged with a lien of said after-acquired property in said mortgage of the Belt Company and that thereby the intervenor acquired title thereto at foreclosure sale and was entitled to recover the same or their proceeds from the Trust Company.

(c.) The intervenor further claims that the account of the Belt Company against the Gulf Company in the sum of $133,000.00 fraudulently transferred to the Trust Company as aforesaid, was likewise covered by the after-acquired property clause of the mortgage of the Belt Company so that the intervenor upon foreclosure sale became entitled thereto and entitled to have the pretended assignment thereof to the Trust Company cancelled.

(d.) The intervenor further claimed that the other collateral, consisting of stocks and bonds above described, were charged with a lien by virtue of said after-acquired property clause, and that the intervenor as purchaser at foreclosure sale became entitled to the same or to its proceeds where the same had been sold.

(e.) The prayer of the intervenor is as follows:

a. For the judgment, order and decree of this court requiring the Central Improvement Company and its Receiver to convey to 565 your intervenor all the real estate or other property standing in its name and to turn over to your intervenor all the moneys held by the Central Improvement Company, or its Receiver, or owing to it, or them, arising from the sale or the proceeds of said property.

b. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to your intervenor the value of the steel rails and fastenings mentioned in paragraph seven (7), together with interest thereon.

c. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to the intervenor the value of the five thousand

(5,000) shares of Union Terminal stock, together [woth] the value of four thousand nine hundred and ninety-four (4,994) shares of the capital stock of the Air Line and also the value of the fourteen thousand nine hundred and ninety-seven (14,997) shares of the capital stock of the Terminal Company, together with interest thereon.

d. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to account for and pay to your intervenor the value of the bonds of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting Railroad Company mentioned in the preceding paragraph nine.

e. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to assign to your intervenor the account of the Belt Company against the Gulf Company mentioned in the foregoing paragraph ten.

f. That the defendant, Guardian Trust Company, be required to release to your intervenor all of the capital stock of the Northern Townsite Company and that said Northern Townsite Company and its receivers be required to convey to your intervenor all of the property held by said Northern Townsite Company and its receivers, together with all the moneys in their possession or owing to them as the proceeds of the property formerly held by said Townsite Company upon repayment to the Trust Company for such sum as the court may find was contributed by said Trust Company for the purchase of property taken in the name of the Townsite Company.

g. That the defendant Guardian Trust Company be required to account for and pay to the intervenor the amount of the proceeds of the bonds of the Union Company diverted by it from the purposes for which said bonds were issued, as set forth in paragraph thirteen.

(e.) The Trust Company filed its answer to the intervening petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company in 566 which in a general way it denied that the properties mentioned in the intervening petition were covered by said after-acquired property clause and denied that it was liable to The Kansas City Southern Railway Company for any of the matters therein charged; the Trust Company in its answer referred to the said promissory notes above set forth as having been executed by the Belt Company and to its open account, and alleged that the intervenor The Kansas City Southern Railway Company by reason of the reorganization plan under which the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, the Belt Company, Air Line Company, and other companies, were re-organized, all of the floating debt of the Belt Company or other of the foreclosed companies have been assumed by The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, its allegations in that respect being as follows:

This respondent, the Guardian Trust Company, further shows that on or about the 14th day of June, A. D. 1899, William F. Harrity, B. M. Baker, August Hecksher, Edward Wagner, Samuel R. Shipley, Silas W. Pettit and Winthrop Smith entered into an agreement for the reorganization of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, Kansas City Suburban Railroad Company, and the Port Arthur Channel and Dock Company and their so-called subsidiary or auxiliary companies, including said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Union Terminal Railroad Company, Consolidated Terminal Railroad Company, and Kansas City and Independence Air Line Railroad Company; that said persons calling themselves a reorganization committee formed a so-called "plan of reorganization," which was promulgated under date of November 7, 1899, and invited all holders of bonds and stocks of said several companies above named, to deposit the same with said reorganization committee under said plan of re-organization which proposed to organize a new corporation to be known as the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which should acquire the properties of all said above named corporations, and issue in payment therefor the bonds and stocks of said re-organized or new corporation in the proportions and on the terms and in the manner set out in the said plan of re-organization, which is hereby referred to and read to be produced upon the hearing of this cause.

That after the promulgation of said plan on November 7, 1899, there was deposited with said re-organization committee the proportion of bonds and stock required by said plan to make the same operative; and on the 20th day of December, 1899, said plan 567 was declared operative; that thereafter said committee caused to be organized and incorporated the Kansas City Southern Railway Company under the statutes of the State of Missouri for the purpose of acquiring title to the properties of said corporations named in the foregoing paragraph, and the stocks and bonds of said new corporation were thereafter exchanged for the stocks and bonds of said several corporations in the proportion and manner set out in said organization plan; that by means of said exchange said Kansas City Southern Railway Company came to be the owner of practically all the bonds and stocks of said corporations above mentioned, and particularly of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and said corporation caused to be elected directors and officers of said Belt Railroad Company, who conducted the same and managed and operated it in the interests of and as a component part of the railroad system of said Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

This respondent further shows that the organization of said Kansas City Southern Railway Company and exchange of its stocks and bonds above alleged for the stocks and bonds of said Belt Railroad Company, and the other steps taken in pursuance of said re-organization plan; effected a consolidation of said Kansas City Southern Railway Company and said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company under the statutes of the State of Missouri; or a consolidation de facto, and that said Kansas City Southern Company is estopped to deny such consolidation, or to claim that the same was not legally complete; and that said Kansas City Southern Railway Company thereby became and is liable for all the debts incurred by said Belt Railroad Company to the same extent as said last mentioned company, including the debts of this respondent heretofore mentioned and alleged in this answer.

Further answering this respondent shows that said re-organization committee, when working out said plant of re-organization expressly represented to this respondent that, in consideration of the debt due and owing from said Belt Company to this respondent, said committee would provide for the payment of all debts and obligations due to this respondent from all of said corporations proposed to be included in said re-organization plan, and particularly said Belt Railroad Company, and expressly promised this respondent that said committee would pay or cause to be paid all debts of every character due to this respondent from said several corporations proposed to be consolidated, and particularly from said 568 Belt Railroad Company; and that the said new and reorganized company would pay such debts; that certain members of said reorganization committee constituting a so-called purchasing committee, purchased at the foreclosure sale of said Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company all its assets, right-of-way, rolling stock, etc., and thereafter assigned said bid to said Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which said company entered into a contract, with said reorganization committee, wherein and whereby it assumed and agreed to complete and carry out all the obligations undertaken and assumed by said re-organization committee; that under and by reason of said agreement and contract said Kansas City Southern became liable and agreed to pay all the obligations of said Belt Railroad Company to this respondent, and is still so liable.

That said Kansas City Southern was at the time of the foreclosure and sale of the Belt Company's assets the holder and owner of practically all the bonds and stock of said Belt Company; that, in order to obtain and control the stock of said Belt Company, said Kansas City Southern Railway Company exchanged its stock in the proportions and in the manner specified in said plan of re-organization, which is hereby referred to, for the stock of said Belt Company, and thereupon proceeded to secure a foreclosure of said bonds of said Belt Company; that said scheme of re-organization and exchange of stocks aforesaid resulted in the stockholders of the Belt Railroad Company securing a large amount of stock of said Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which was at that time and is yet very valuable, and was at that time and is yet of much greater market value than the total claims of this respondent against said Belt Railroad Company; that said scheme legally implied the payment by said Southern Company of all the claims of this respondent against said Belt Company.

This respondent therefore alleges and shows that if said scheme of re-organization and exchange of securities was intended by said re-organization committee and by said Kansas City Southern Railway Company and its officers to deprive this respondent of all security and opportunity of collecting its said claims against the Belt Railroad Company, while preserving and securing to the stockholders of said company said advantage and valuable interests through said scheme of transfer of stocks, that said foreclosure of said properties of said belt Company, would have been a fraudulent scheme, and in that case should be held void and invalid, so far as this relator is concerned, and the property thereby trans-
569 ferred to said Kansas City Southern Railway Company should be held subject to the debts and claims of this respondent and subjected to their payment, even if it should be held by the court that a legal consolidation, or actual or de facto consolidation, was not brought about as hereinabove alleged, whereby said Kansas City Southern Railway Company became legally obligated to pay the claims of this respondent against said Belt Railroad Company.

The issues so made by said intervening petition and the answer thereto have long since been made up.

(f). The intervening petition, answer thereto and other orders and proceedings made are a part of the record of this cause and your orators pray that they may be referred to and considered of the same effect as though actually incorporated herein.

4. The issues made by the various pleadings above recited were, by order of this court, referred to Honorable Shannon C. Douglass, and in 1903 the taking of testimony before him began and was continued until 1906. Testimony was taken by complainants in the bill of the Cambria Company, by complainants in the amended and supplemental ancillary bill of the Belt Company and its receivers, by the intervening petitioner, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company and by the Guardian Trust Company. The testimony covering all of the manifold issues in the case, involving a thorough investigation and sifting of all the accounts between the Trust Company and the Belt Company and the other corporations mentioned extending over a period of, in some cases, as much as ten years. All of the accounts, vouchers and other records of the parties are in evidence, as well as the oral testimony of every witness able to throw any light upon the subject of the controversy; the record of this testimony so taken before the Special Master, contains over thirty-four thousand (34,000) pages. Your orators further state that, in taking said testimony and preparing this cause for trial, they have expended in counsel fees, witness fees and court costs, more than $50,000.00. In the summer of 1906 the case was finally submitted to the Master by all parties and argued at length for many days. The complainants in the amended and supplemental ancillary bill, referred to in the foregoing paragraph numbered "2," and complainant in the intervening petition referred to in paragraph "3," have filed with the Master carefully prepared abstracts of testimony and also a brief of the facts, taking up each allegation in the bills mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs "2" and "3", with reference to the pages of the record where the testimony in support of such allegations are to be found. Both parties have filed elaborate 570 briefs with the Master; even since the hearing, additional printed briefs have been filed by the parties including the Trust Company; but the Trust Company has thus far failed and refused to prepare and file with the Special Master any abstract whatever of the testimony, or to aid the Special Master in any way in reaching a conclusion upon the matters of fact involved in the litigation.

5. Your orators further state that the ancillary bill of complaint and the supplemental and ancillary bills and the subsequent amendments thereto referred to in paragraph "2" hereof, were filed by agreement with the Trust Company in accordance with written stipulation which provided that there should be an accounting between the Trust Company and the Belt Company in this cause. Said stipulation, omitting the caption, is as follows:

It is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, complainants in the cross bill in the above entitled cause, and the defendants the Guardian Trust Company and Francis M. Black, its Receiver, Second Street Improvement Company and Cambria Steel Company, as follows:

First. That the said complainants shall withdraw or dismiss their cross bill heretofore filed herein and shall file an amended cross bill, in the nature of an ancillary bill in this cause, making The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company a co-plaintiff with them in said amended ancillary cross bill, and also making the Cambria Steel Company, the complainant in the original bill herein, a defendant in said amended ancillary cross bill, and that said amended ancillary cross bill shall be filed on or before the 15th day of November, 1901, and that the defendants, the Guardian Trust Company and its receiver, and the Second Street Improvement Company and the Cambria Steel Company, shall have leave to plead or answer to said amended ancillary cross-bill, on or before the first Monday in December, 1901.

Second. That the accounting between the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its receivers, and the Guardian Trust Company, and its receiver, sought by the said amended ancillary cross bill, shall be expedited by all of the parties hereto, and whatever balance, if any, that may be found due to the said Guardian Trust Company or its receiver, from the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company or its receivers shall be entered up in this cause as a judgment in favor of the said Trust Company and 571 its receiver and against the Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its receivers, without the necessity of presenting any claim therefor by way of cross bill; or other affirmative pleading; and whatever balance, if any, that may be found due to the said Suburban Belt Railroad Company, or its receivers, from said Guardian Trust Company, or its receivers shall be entered up in this cause as a judgment in favor of the said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and its receivers and against the Guardian Trust Company and its receiver.

Dated this — day of November, 1901.

Receivers of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company.

CAMBRIA STEEL COMPANY,

By —— ——, Its Solicitors.

I consent and agree to the foregoing stipulation with the the understanding that it shall in no wise prejudice the right, if any, which the Cambria Steel Company has to subject any property debt found to be due from the Guardian Trust Company or to subject any property or collateral or proceeds thereof heretofore or now in the hands of the Guardian Trust Company or its receiver, or its or his assigns; and all the testimony introduced by any party herein shall be with the understanding that the Cambria Steel Company can, if it so desires, use the same upon final hearing of its bill in the case above entitled.

FRANK HAGERMAN,
Solicitor for Cambria Steel Company.

The intervening petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company was filed pursuant to a stipulation between that company and the Trust Company in this cause, which is as follows:

572 It is agreed between the parties to the intervening petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company that it may file its amended intervening petition setting up, in addition to the matters now contained in its intervening petition on file, its claim against the Guardian Trust Company for alleged breach of trust as trustee in the mortgage made by the Union Terminal Railroad Company alleged to be accruing to it as the owner of all the bonds issued by the Union Terminal Railroad Company; and the Guardian Trust Company consents that the issues so made shall be referred to Shannon C. Douglass, Special Master, and waives any objection it might make to said intervening petition on the ground of multifariousness or other formal matters; and the Guardian Trust Company further agrees to answer the said intervening petition within fifteen days from filing petition.

6. Your orators further state that notwithstanding the issues made and testimony taken in this cause and its final argument and submission to the Special Master, the Trust Company is now insisting upon trial in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, of certain actions which it has there pending against the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which said actions it has caused to be set down for hearing on December 2, 1907; and the Trust Company, unless restrained by order of this court, is threatening to proceed and will proceed to force a hearing of said causes, which are as follows:

(a) The petition of the Guardian Trust Company — filed in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, on March 15, 1905, containing thirty-three (33) counts, thirty-one (31) of which are insisted upon, the last two (2) having been abandoned. The petition purports to set forth several causes of action, each one of which is stated in three different forms or three (3) separate counts. The petition is hereto attached and made a part hereof as Exhibit "A." The action is one at law, triable by a jury; in it the Trust Company seeks to recover against the Kansas City Southern Railway Company upon the notes set forth and described in paragraph one (1) hereof and also upon an open account. Inasmuch as the Allegations in reference to each note and the account are substantially the same, the allegations in reference to the first note, consisting of three counts, are herein set forth and is as follows:

First Count.

1. Plaintiff states that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Belt Company, is and was 573 at all times a railroad corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri; that the said Belt Company on the 25th day of January, 1900, by its negotiable promissory note of that date, by it duly executed, promised, for value received, to pay to plaintiff four months after said date, the sum of Twenty-five Thousand — ($25,000.00) a duly certified copy of which said note is herewith filed and marked Exhibit "A"; that said note has long since matured and no part thereof, except the interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum to September 1, 1901, has been paid, although payment of said note was demanded at the maturity thereof.

2. That on and prior to April 1, 1899, the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Gulf Company was a railroad corporation, organized under the laws of the state of Missouri; that the Gulf Company owned or controlled a line of railroad extending from Port Arthur, Texas, to Grandview, in Jackson County, Missouri, and had trackage rights over the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway from said Grandview to a point in Jackson County, Missouri, called Belt Junction; that the said Belt Company owned and operated a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, extending from a point in Kansas City on the State Line between Missouri and Kansas near the confluence of the Missouri and Kansas Rivers, thence east along the south bank of the Missouri River about five miles, thence southwest to said Belt Junction, so that when connected, the line of the Belt Company and the line of the Gulf Company formed in the main one continuous line of railroad running in the same general direction from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri; that on April 1, 1899, said Gulf Company made default in the payment of interest due on that date on its funded debt, and upon complaint filed by the Trustee named in the mortgage securing said debt, such proceedings were had that the property and affairs of said Gulf Company on or about said date passed into the hands of receivers appointed by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, which receivers assumed for the time being, the operation and control of said Gulf Road under the orders of said court; that shortly thereafter a committee, styled a "Reorganization Committee", was formed for the purpose of readjusting the funded debt of said Gulf Company and for other purposes, fully set forth in a prospectus published by said Committee called a "Reorganization Plan"; that said Gulf Company had no terminal facilities in Kansas City except such as it had by contract with said Belt Company and it became evident to said committee that it would be advantageous for said Gulf Company, when reorganized, to acquire the property of said Belt Company by consolidation or otherwise; that the expressed ob-574 ject of said reorganization plan, as set forth in said prospectus, was to consolidate and unify the property of said Gulf Company with the property of the said Belt Company and to manage and control the same as one; that with this end in view said committee, under date of November 7, 1899, put forth and published a certain prospectus called a "Reorganization Plan", and circulated the same among the creditors, bondholders, and stockholders of said Belt Company, including plaintiff; that attached to said prospectus was a certain agreement which all the stockholders of the Belt — were invited to execute in favor of said committee; that it was provided in said published plan that same should be deemed a part of said agreement to the same extent as if copied in full therein; that a copy of said plan and agreement is hereto attached and marked exhibit No. 1; that all of the originals thereof are in defendant's posse-sion or under its control; that in and by said published plan said committee made the following offer to all the stockholders of the Belt Company, that is to say, that it, the said Committee, would cause a new or successive corporation to be formed in which should be vested the title to all and singular the property and franchises of the Gulf Company, when acquired by said committee at such judicial sale thereof as might thereafter be had in said receivership proceedings; that to all such stockholders of the Belt Company as would deposit their stock with said committee under the terms of said written agreement, attached to and made a part of said prospectus, the said committee would cause to be issued a like amount of stock of equal par value by such new corporation to be formed as aforesaid, so that upon the consummation of said plan the stockholders would have the same amount of stock in such new corporation as they then held respectively in the Belt Company, and it was made a condition to participation in said scheme that all persons who should deposit their stock with said committee should enter into a binding agreement that said stock when issued should be vested irrevocably for a term of five years in certain trustees, who should have absolute power to vote the same and exercise all the prerogatives and franchises of the owners of said stock in the control and management of said new corporation to be formed as aforesaid; that all stockholders of said Gulf Company were required, as a condition to participation in said plan, to pay said committee the sum of $10.00 for each share of Gulf stock, deposited with said committee under said plan, which payment entitled them to one share of stock of the new company, but no such condition was imposed on stockholders of the Belt Company; that said prospectus was so contrived and framed as to lead, and did lead, plaintiff and such other corporations and per-575 sons, who or which dealt with said committee on the faith thereof, to believe that the floating debt of the Belt Company, including said note, would be paid by said committee or by said successor corporation; that induced by the proposals made in said prospectus, the persons holding more than ninety-nine per cent of the total issue of the stock of the Belt Company then outstanding a total of 47,500 shares, deposited the same with the said committee, to be held and used by said committee in the execution of said scheme as aforesaid; that afterwards such proceedings were had in the said Circuit Court of the United States that the said Gulf Road was on or about March 19, 1900, sold at foreclosure sale and was bid in by certain persons on behalf of said committee, and on March 19, 1900, said committee, pursuant to said scheme of reorganization caused defendant to be incorporated as a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, and caused all the property and franchises of said Gulf Road to be conveyed to defendant and caused defendant to issue its shares of stock to said stockholders of the Belt Company, who then and there received in stock of defendant a like number of shares as they had before held in the Belt Company, respectively, and of equal par value as said Belt shares; that said scheme, as set forth in said prospectus, was carried into full force and effect and defendant then and there entered into possession and control and acquired unto itself all of the property and franchises of the Belt Company and still has the same; all with the result that after said scheme was carried out the said stockholders of the Belt Company had and still have the same interest in defendant, as they had before had in the Belt Company, and defendant has all of the property and assets of said Belt Company and is using the same for its own benefit and behoof; that pursuant to said plan the said stockholders of the Belt Company did enter into trust agreements with certain persons designated in said prospectus, as voting trustees, whereby the legal title to all of said new stock issued by defendant as aforesaid to the said stockholders of the Belt Company became and was vested in the said voting trustees for a period of five years, beginning on April 1, 1900, and ending April 1, 1905, and whereby the said voting trustees were vested with all and singular the rights, privileges and franchises of the owners of said stock, with full power to vote the same, and said stock has ever since been vested in the said voting trustees; and the said voting trustees have ever since elected the directors of defendant and of the said Belt Company, and have had sole control and management of the property and affairs of defendant; that it was provided in and by the terms of said Reorganization prospectus and the agreement 576 thereto attached, that the said committee should have the right to pay or obligate the said successor company to pay any debt in the nature of unsecured or floating debt, owing by the said Belt Company, or to settle or compromise such debt, and to negotiate with the creditors of said Belt Company for their assent to the carrying out of said plan, and also to make such contracts and arrangements with any and all persons and corporations, which in the judgment of said committee would tend to prevent or avoid opposition to or interference with the execution of said plan. It was further provided in and by said plan and agreement that of the new stocks and bonds to be issued by said successor company, three millions of dollars in bonds and three millions of dollars in preferred stock were to be sold by said committee, and that the said committee should have power to use the proceeds thereof in whole or in part in paying the floating or unsecured debt of the said Belt Company, or in paying any other liabilities which the said committee might incur in and about the premises, and that said committee should have the right and power to liquidate and pay said floating debt; it was further thereby provided that said committee should cause defendant to issue its stocks and bonds to an extent greatly in excess of the amount needed for distribution among the stockholders of the old companies in conformity with this plan, all of which bonds were to be secured by defendant's mortgage on all the property of the Belt Company as well as other property, and that defendant should cause such excess of new securities to be sold to provide fresh capital for defendant and that as to all such securities as should not be distributed by said committee to depositors of old securities or as should not be sold by the committee as aforesaid, should be delivered by said committee to defendant to be held in its treasury and sold as and when defendant desired to use the same; that the said committee, pursuant to said plan, did sell bonds issued by defendant of the par value of $3,000,000, and its preferred stock of the par value of $3,000,000, and realized thereon over $3,000,000 in money; that out of the proceeds of said sale said committee paid such floating debt of the Belt Company as it chose to pay and made such disbursements as it saw fit to make, and paid over the balance to defendant, said balance amounting to several million dollars and being greatly in excess of the entire floating or unsecured debt of the Belt Company; and said committee did raise for defendant and pay over to it several millions of dollars of fresh capital through the sale of stocks and bonds issued by defendant under said plan not distributed among those who had deposited their securities with said committee, 577 and that several millions of dollars of stocks and bonds not distributed or sold by the committee were reserved in defendant's treasury for its future requirements; that all of said bonds issued by defendant and used by said committee and defendant as aforesaid, were and are secured by all the property and assets of the Belt Company; that said plan further provided that said committee should settle its accounts with the board of directors of said successor company within one year after the consummation of said plan and on the — day of October, 1900, this was done, said committee turning over to defendant the cash remaining on hand after making the disbursements aforesaid, the amount of which was greatly in excess of the entire floating or unsecured debt of the Belt Company, and defendant did then and there in writing ratify all the acts and doings of said committee in and about the premises and did in writing assume and agree to pay all obligations incurred by said committee in and about the promulgation and execution of said plan. Plaintiff states that the originals of all the writings herein above mentioned are in the defendant's possession and plaintiff is unable to more definitely plead the same.

3. Plaintiff states that by reason of the premises defendant became and is liable to pay the said note.

4. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment for the sum of Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000) with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum from September 1, 1901, together with its costs.

Second Count.

Plaintiff for a second and further cause of action states that to avoid unnecessary repetition it adopts as part of this count of its petition all of the averments by it made in the first count thereof to the same extent as if set out in full herein, and plaintiff states that said reorganization committee, both before and after defendant acquired the possession of the property and assets of the Belt Co-pany as aforesaid, expressly promised and agreed to and with plaintiff that it or defendant would pay any and all indebtedness owing to plaintiff by the Belt Company, which indebtedness included said note.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in the first count of this petition.

Third Count.

1. Plaintiff for third and further cause of action states that to avoid repetition it adopts all the averments of paragraph 1 of the first count of this petition, as to the execution of the note therein mentioned by the Belt Company, to the same extent as if set out in full herein.

578 2. Plaintiff further states that on or about the 20th day of March, 1900, defendant was the owner of a line of railroad extending from Port Arthur, Texas, to Grandview, in Jackson County, Missouri, and had acquired lease hold rights from the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway from said Grandview to Belt Junction in said Jackson County, and that on said date the said Belt Company owned and operated a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, beginning at a point in Kansas City, on the State Line between Kansas and Missouri, near the confluence of the Kaw and Missouri rivers, extending east along the south bank of the Missouri river to a point near the confluence of the Missouri and Blue rivers, thence south and west to a point about ten miles south, of Kansas City, called Belt Junction, where the said Belt Company connected with the said St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Company; that the said line of railroad of the Belt Company and of defendant formed, when connected in the whole or in the main, one continuous line of railroad from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri; that defendant afterward, and the said Belt Company, with the written approval of the persons or parties holding and representing a majority of the stock of the said Belt Company, and of defendant, became consolidated under name of defendant, the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and formed one company, and defendant acquired and took into possession all of the property of said Belt Company of every kind and description and has thereafter owned and controlled the same as one continuous line of railroad, running in the whole or in the main, in the same general direction, from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City Missouri, as aforesaid; that the contracts and leases and agreements by which said consolidation was effected, and under which defendant now operates and owns all of said railroad, are exclusively within the possession and control of defendant, and that plaintiff cannot more definitely prove the same; that by reason of such consolidation defendant became and is liable to pay the said note of said Belt Company.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in its said first count.

(b) The Trust Company also, on March 15, 1905, filed its suit in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, against The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, a copy of which is hereto attached, made a part hereof as Exhibit "B." In this action the Trust Company seeks to recover against the Kansas City Southern Railway Company the amount of a judgment obtained by the Trust Company against the Belt Company; the petition is in three 579 counts and, in its allegations is in substance the same as the three counts above set forth in the preceding sub paragraph.

(c) On the 2nd day of July, 1906, the Trust Company brought a third suit against The Kansas City Southern Railway Company in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, a copy of which is hereto attached and made a part hereof as Exhibit "C." In this suit the Trust Company seeks to recover from The Kansas City Southern Railway Company on account of two notes, one for Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), the other for Twelve Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($12,500.00) executed by the Kansas City Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, the predecessor in name to the Guardian Trust Company, and also upon an alleged open account from the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company to the said Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, showing an alleged balance of Seven Thousand Five Hundred and Forty Dollars ($7,548.00). The allegations with respect to the alleged liability of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company for the debts and obligations of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company are similar to the allegations above set forth in sub paragraph.

7. Your orators further state that by reason of the prior institution of this action and the filing of the various bills, answers and proceedings therein, and by the stipulation of counsel heretofore set forth, this court has acquired a prior and superior equitable jurisdiction over all the parties to the proceeding and of all the issues herein involved and its decree will be a final adjudication and determination of all the relations between the parties in accordance with the maxim of equity that where a court of equity has once acquired complete jurisdiction of the parties on the subject matter, it will retain the case and settle and adjust the rights of all parties before it. This court by its injunction heretofore issued, as well as by its subsequent proceedings, has taken possession of and impounded the notes set forth in paragraph one hereof, and has impliedly restrained and restricted the Trust Company to the assertion of any rights it may have under said notes to its proceedings in that behalf taken in this cause. This court has assumed possession and jurisdiction over the stocks, bonds, assigned account and other property heretofore enumerated held by the Trust Company as collateral security to its pretended indebtedness against the Belt Company, and such property is within the exclusive jurisdiction and control of this court. This court has also, by the appointment of a receiver and the continuance of such receivers assumed an exclusive jurisdiction 580 over the properties of the Central Improvement Company and of the Northern Townsite Company, the final disposition of whose properties are involved in this action. The said actions brought by the Trust Company in the state court are actions at law triable by a jury, to which The Kansas City Southern Railway Company is the sole defendant. Those actions involve an accounting between the Trust Company and the Belt Company and its allied corporations, which accounts are extremely complicated, difficult and intricate, and which in turn involve the disposition of the said collateral security consisting of bonds, stocks, notes, assigned account, etc., a disposition of the property and assets of the Central Improvement Company and a disposition of the property and assets of the Northern Townsite Company, as well (if your orator's claim is sustained) the cancellation of the said notes and account. In order that the suits in the state court may proceed, it is necessary that The Kansas City Southern Railway Company should file its answer or crossbill setting up substantially the same set of facts as are set up in the amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint referred to in paragraph two herein and the facts set forth in the supplemental petition of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company set forth in paragraph three hereof making parties to such answer and crossbill all of the parties to this proceeding, including the Cambria Steel Company, which is a non-resident of the State of Missouri and cannot be [or] served with process herein, and including the receivers appointed by this court for the Northern Townsite Company and Central Improvement Company, who cannot be sued except by the express consent of this court. Even if such an answer and crossbill could be filed and the parties thereto brought within the jurisdiction of this court, it would be necessary to retake at great expense the testimony already taken in this proceeding, and thus duplicate the vast and enormous amount of work that has already been done. Furthermore the Trust Company is now and has been for several years in process of liquidation and its assets have been almost entirely realized upon and distributed to its stockholders. If the charges of your orators against the Trust Company should be sustained to any substantial extent the Trust Company will be unable to respond to them and for such purposes it is to be regarded as insolvent. If the claims of the Belt Company and its receiver as set forth in paragraph two are sustained, then they are entitled to an order cancelling the notes and accounts sued upon and to a return of the collateral, neither of which can be done by the state court inasmuch as this court has assumed jurisdiction and control over them. If their claims or the claims of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company are sustained as to the Central Improve-are under the jurisdiction and control of this court. The state court is likewise powerless to apply said collateral or its proceeds to a reduction of the account of the Trust Company against the Belt Company or The Kansas City Southern Railway Company if that account should be sustained in whole or in part. The only issues raised in the state court in these proceedings are: first, the liability of the Belt Company to the Trust Company upon the notes, account and the judgment, the liability of the Gulf Company to the Trust Company; and, secondly, the question whether The Kansas City Southern Railway Company is responsible for the floating debt of the mortgagor companies. These issues are all raised in the proceedings in this case except the question of the liability of the Gulf Company to the Trust Company and that question the Trust Company can raise if it so desires.

8. In consideration whereof, and for as much as your orators are remediless in the premises at and by the strict rules of the common law, and are only relievable in a court of equity, where matters of this kind are properly cognizable, your orators therefore pray the aid of this Honorable Court that the said Guardian Trust Company may be restrained and enjoined from further prosecuting its said actions above named and that it may be directed to dismiss said actions; and that, pending a determination of this case, a temporary injunction may issue against the said Guardian Trust Company restraining and enjoining it, its agents and attorneys from prosecuting or continuing the said actions, and each of them, and that upon final hearing the said injunction be made perpetual.

And may it please your Honors a writ of subpœna to issue directed to the said Guardian Trust Company requiring and commanding it on a day certain therein to be named and under a certain penalty to appear herein and answer, but not under oath (an answer under oath being hereby expressly waived) to the several allegations in this supplemental bill; and to stand to, perform and abide by such orders, direction or decree as may be made against them in the premises and as shall seem meet and agreeable in equity and good conscience. And your orators as in duty bound will ever pray.

EXHIBIT "A."

In the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, at Kansas City, for the April Term, 1905.

No. —.

GUARDIAN TRUST COMPANY, Plaintiff,
vs.
THE KANSAS CITY SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY, Defendant.

Petition.

Plaintiff, Guardian Trust Company, which is and was at all times herein mentioned a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, brings this action against the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, organized on March 19, 1900, as a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri and still existing as such, and for its causes of action against said defendant states:

First Count.

1. Plaintiff states that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Belt Company, is and was at all times a railroad corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri; that the said Belt Company on the 25th day of January, 1900, by its negotiable promissory note of that date, by it duly executed, promised, for value received, to pay to plaintiff four months after said date, the sum of Twenty-five Thousand ($25,000.00) a duly certified copy of which said note is herewith filed and marked Exhibit "A"; that said note has long since matured and no part thereof, except the interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum to September 1, 1901, has been paid, although payment of said note was demanded at the maturity thereof.

583 2. That on and prior to April 1, 1899, the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Gulf Company, was a railroad corporation, organized under the laws of the State of Missouri; that the Gulf Company owned and controlled a line of railroad extending from Port Arthur, Texas, to Grandview, in Jackson County, Missouri, and had trackage rights over the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway from said Grandview to a point in Jackson County, Missouri, called Belt Junction; that the said Belt Company owned and operated a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, extending from a point in Kansas City on the State

Line between Missouri and Kansas near the confluence of the Missouri and Kansas Rivers, thence east along the south bank of the Missouri River about five miles, thence southwest to said Belt Junction, so that when connected, the line of the Belt Company and the line of the Gulf Company formed in the main one continuous line of railroad running in the same general direction from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri; that on April 1, 1889, said Gulf Company made default in the payment of interest due on that date on its funded debt, and upon complaint filed by the Trustee named in the mortgage securing said debt, such proceedings were had that the property and affairs of said Gulf Company on or about said date passed into the hands of receivers appointed by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, which receivers assumed for the time being, the operation and control of said Gulf Road under the orders of said court; that shortly thereafter a committee, styled a "Reorganization Committee", was formed for the purpose of readjusting the funded debt of said Gulf Company and for other purposes, fully set forth in a prospectus published by said committee called a "Reorganization Plan"; that said Gulf Company had no terminal facilities in Kansas City except such as it had by contract with said Belt Company and it became evident to said committee that it would be advantageous for said Gulf Company, when reorganized, to acquire the property of said Belt Company by consolidation or otherwise, that the expressed object of said reorganization plan, as set forth in said prospectus, was to consolidate and unify the property of said Gulf Company, with the property of the said Belt Company and to manage and control the same as one; that with this end in view said committee, under date of November 7, 1899, put forth and published a certain prospectus called a "Reorganization Plan" and circulated the same among the 584 creditors, bondholders and stockholders of said Belt Company, including plaintiff; that attached to said prospectus was a certain agreement which all the stockholders of the Belt were invited to execute in favor of said committee; that it was provided in said published plan that same should be deemed a part of said agreement to the same extent as if copied in full therein; that a copy of said plan and agreement is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 1; that all of the originals thereof are in defendant's possession or under its control; that in and by said published plan said committee made the following offer to all the stockholders of the Belt Company, that is to say, that it, the said Committee would cause a new or successive corporation to be formed in which should be vested the title to all and singular the property and franchises of the Gulf Company, when acquired by said committee at such judicial sale thereof as might thereafter be had in said receivership proceedings; that to all such stockholders of the Belt Company as would deposit their stock with said committee under the terms of said written agreement, attached to and made a part of said prospectus, the said committee would cause to be issued a like amount of stock of equal par value by such new corporation to be formed as aforesaid, so that upon the consummation of said plan the stockholders would have the same amount of stock in such new corporation as they then held respectively in the Belt Company and it was made a condition to participation in said scheme that all persons who should deposit their stock with said committee should enter into a binding agreement that said stock when issued should be vested irrevocably for a term of five years in certain trustees, who should have absolute power to vote the same and exercise all the prerogatives and franchises of the owners of said stock in the control and management of said new corporation to be formed as aforesaid; that all stockholders of said Gulf Company were required, as a condition to participation in said plan, to pay said committee the sum of $10.00 for each share of Gulf Stock, deposited with said committee under said plan, which payment entitled them to one share of stock of the new company, but no such condition was imposed on stockholders of the Belt Company; that said prospectus was so contrived and framed as to lead, and did lead, plaintiff and such other corporations and persons, who or which dealt with said committee on the faith thereof, to believe that the floating debt of the Belt Company, including said note, would be paid by said committee or by said successor corporation; that induced by the proposals made in said prospectus, the persons holding more than ninety-nine per cent of the total issue of the stock of the Belt Company then outstanding, a total of 47,500 shares, deposited the same with the said committee, to be held and used by said committee in the execution of said 585 scheme as aforesaid; that afterwards such proceedings were had in the said Circuit Court of the United States that the said Gulf Road was on or about March 19, 1900, sold at foreclosure sale and was bid in by certain persons on behalf of said committee, and on March 19, 1900, said committee pursuant to said scheme of reorganization caused defendant to be incorporated as a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, and caused all the property and franchises of said Gulf Road to be conveyed to defendant and caused defendant to issue its shares of stock to said stockholders of the Belt Company who then and there received in stock of defendant a like number of shares as they had before held in the Belt Company, respectively and of equal par value as said Belt shares; that said scheme as set forth in said prospectus, was carried into full force and effect and defendant then and there entered into possession and control and acquired unto itself all of the property and franchises of the Belt Company and still has the same; all with the result that after said scheme was carried out the said stockholders of the Belt Company had and still have the same interest in defendant, as they had before had in the Belt Company, and defendant has all of the property and assets of said Belt Company and is using the same for its own benefit and behoof; that pursuant to said plan the said stockholders of the Belt Company did enter into trust agreements with certain persons designated in said prospectus, as voting trustees, whereby the legal title to all of said new stock issued by defendant as aforesaid to the said stockholders of the Belt Company became and was vested in the said voting trustees for a period of five years, beginning on April 1, 1900, and ending April 1, 1905, and whereby the said voting trustees were vested with all and singular the rights, privileges and franchises of the owners of said stock, with full power to vote the same, and said stock has ever since been vested in the said voting trustees; and the said voting trustees have ever since elected the directors of defendant and of the said Belt Company, and have had sole control and management of the property and affairs of defendant; that it was provided in and by the terms of said Reorganization prospectus and the agreement thereto attached, that the said committee should have the right to pay or obligate the said successor company to pay any debt in the nature of unsecured or floating debt, owing by the said Belt Company, or to settle or compromise such debt, and to negotiate with the creditors of said Belt Company for their assent to the carrying out of said plan, and also to make such contracts and arrangements with any and all persons and corporations which in the judgment of said committee would tend to prevent or avoid opposition to or interference with the execution of said plan.

586 It was further provided in and by said plan and agreement that of the new stocks and bonds to be issued by said successor company, three millions of dollars in bonds and three millions of dollars in preferred stock were to be sold by said committee, and that the said committee should have power to use the proceeds thereof in whole or in part in paying the floating or unsecured debt of the said Belt Company, or in paying any other liabilities which the said committee might incur in and about the premises, and that said committee should have the right and power to liquidate and pay said floating debt; it was further thereby provided that said committee should cause defendant to issue its stocks and bonds to an extent greatly in excess of the amount needed for distribution among the stockholders of the old companies in conformity with this plan, all of which bonds were to be secured by defendant's mortgage on all the property of the Belt Company as well as other property and that defendant should cause such excess of new securities to be sold to provide fresh capital for defendant and that as to all such securities as should not be distributed by said committee to depositors of old securities or as should not be sold by the committee as aforesaid, should be delivered by said committee to defendant to be held in its treasury and sold as and when defendant desired to use the same; that the said committee, pursuant to said plan, did sell bonds issued by defendant of the par value of $3,000,000 and its preferred stock of the par value of $3,000,000 and realize thereon over $3,000,000 in money; that out of the proceeds of said sale said committee paid such floating debt of the Belt Company as it chose to pay and made such disbursements as it saw fit to make, and paid over the balance to defendant said balance amounting to several million dollars and being greatly in excess of the entire floating or unsecured debt of the Belt Company; and said committee did raise for defendant and pay over to it several millions of dollars of fresh capital through the sale of stocks and bonds issued by defendant under said plan not distributed among those who had deposited their securities with said committee, and that several millions of dollars of stocks and bonds not distributed or sold by the committee were reserved in defendant's treasury for its future requirements; that all of said bonds issued by defendant and used by said committee and defendant as aforesaid, were and are secured by all the property and assets of the Belt Company; that said plan further provided that said committee should settle its accounts with the Board of Directors of said successor company within one year after the consummation of said plan and on the — day of October, 1900, this was done, said commitee turning over to defendant 587 the cash remaining on hand after making the disbursements aforesaid, the amount of which was greatly in excess of the entire floating or unsecured debt of the Belt Company, and defendant did then and there in writing ratify all the acts and doings of said committee in and about the premises and did in writing assume and agree to pay all obligations incurred by said committee in and about the promulgation and execution of said plan. Plaintiff states that the originals of all the writings herein above mentioned are in the defendant's possession and plaintiff is unable to more definitely plead the same.

3. Plaintiff states that by reason of the premises defendant became and is liable to pay the said note.

4. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment for the sum of Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000) with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum from September 1, 1901, together with its costs.

Second Count.

Plaintiff for a second and further cause of action states that to avoid unnecessary repetition it adopts as part of this count of its petition all the averments by it made in the first count thereof to the same extent as if set out in full herein, and plaintiff states that said Reorganization Committee, both before and after defendant acquired the possession of the property and assets of the Belt Company as aforesaid, expressly promised and agreed to and with plaintiff that it or defendant would pay any and all indebtedness owing to plaintiff by the Belt Company, which indebtedness included said note.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in the first count of this petition.

Third Count.

1. Plaintiff for third and further cause of action states that to avoid repetition it adopts all the averments of paragraph 1 of the first count of this petition, as to the execution of the note therein mentioned by the Belt Company, to the same extent as if set out in full herein.

2. Plaintiff further states that on or about the 20th day of March, 1900, defendant was the owner of a line of railroad extending from Port Arthur, Texas, to Grandview, in Jackson County, Missouri, and had acquired lease hold rights from the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway from said Grandview to Belt Junction in said Jackson County, and that on said date the said Belt Company owned and operated a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, 588 beginning at a point in Kansas City, on the State Line between Kansas and Missouri, near the confluence of the Kaw and Missouri Rivers, extending east along the south bank of the Missouri River to a point near the confluence of the Missouri and Blue Rivers, thence south and west to a point about ten miles south of Kansas City, called Belt Junction, where the said Belt Company connected with the said St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Company; that the said line of railroad of the Belt Company and of defendant formed when connected in the whole or in the main, one continuous line of railroad from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri; that defendant afterward, and the said Belt Company, with the written approval of the persons or parties holding and representing a majority of the stock of the said Belt Company and of defendant, became consolidated under the name of defendant, the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and formed one company, and defendant acquired and took into possession all of the property of said Belt Company of every kind and description, and has thereafter owned and controlled the same as one continuous line of railroad, running in the whole or in the main, in the same general direction, from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri, as aforesaid; that the contracts and leases and agreements by which said consolidation was effected, and under which defendant now operates and owns all of said railroad, are exclusively within the possession and control of defendant, and that plaintiff cannot more definitely prove the same; that by reason of such consolidation defendant became and is liable to pay the said note of said Belt Company.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in its said first count.

Fourth Count.

1. Plaintiff states that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Belt Company, is and was at all times herein mentioned, a railroad corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri; that the said Belt Company on the 21st day of September, 1899, by its negotiable promissory note of that date by it duly executed, promised for value received to pay to plaintiff on demand, the sum of Twenty-three Thousand and Fifty-six Dollars and forty-eight cents ($23,056.48) with interest at the rate of eight per cent (8%) per annum; a duly verified copy of said note is herewith filed and marked Exhibit "B" Payment of said note has long since been demanded and no part thereof, principal or interest has been paid.

That on and prior to April 1, 1899, the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf Railroad Company hereinafter called the Gulf Company was a railroad corporation, organized under the laws of the State of Missouri; that the Gulf Company owned or controlled a line of railroad extending from Port Arthur, Texas, to Grandview, in Jackson County, Missouri, and had trackage rights over the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway from said Grandview to a point in Jackson County, Missouri, called Belt Junction; that the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Belt Company, owned and operated a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, extending from a point in Kansas City on the State line between Missouri and Kansas near the confluence of the Missouri and Kansas Rivers, thence East along the South bank of the Missouri River about five miles, thence Southwest to said Belt Junction, so that when connected the line of the Belt Company and the line of the Gulf Company formed in the main one continuous line of railroad running in the same general direction from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri; that the Dock Company at all times herein mentioned owned and operated docks, wharves and warehouses at Port Arthur, Texas, and a certain ship canal leading from Port Arthur, via Sabine pass, to the tidewater of the Gulf of Mexico; that at said Port Arthur the tracks of the Gulf Company connected with the railroad tracks owned by the Dock Company and leading to said wharves
603 and elevators so that when connected said ship canal and the line of the Gulf Company formed one continuous transportation line running from Kansas City, Missouri, to the sea; that on April 1, 1889, said Gulf Company made default in the payment of interest due on that date on its funded debt, and upon complaint filed by the Trustee named in the mortgage securing said debt, such proceedings were had that the property and affairs of said Gulf Company on said date passed into the hands of receivers appointed by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri; which receivers assumed for the time being the operation and control of said Gulf road under the orders of said court; that shortly thereafter a committee, styled a "Reorganization Committee" was formed for the purpose of readjusting the funded debt of said Gulf Company and for other purposes, fully set forth in a prospectus published by said committee called a "Reorganization Plan"; that the said Gulf Company had no terminal facilities in Kansas City, except such as it had by contract with the said Belt Company and it became evident to said committee that it would be advantageous for said Gulf Company when reorganized to acquire the property of said Belt and said Dock

Companies by consolidation or otherwise; that the Gulf Company had no means of reaching tidewater except by means of said ship canal under such contract rights as it had acquired from the Dock Company; that the expressed object of said reorganization plan, as set forth in said prospectus was to consolidate and unify the property of the said Gulf Company with the property of said Belt Company and said Dock Company and to manage, own and control the same as one; that with this end in view said committee under date November 7, 1899, put forth and published a certain prospectus called a "Reorganization Plan" and circulated the same among the creditors, bondholders and stockholders of the said Belt Company, and of said Dock Company, including plaintiff; that attached to said prospectus was a certain agreement which all the stockholders of the Belt were invited to execute in favor of said committee; that it was provided in said published plan that same should be deemed a part of said agreement to the same extent as if copied in full herein; that a copy of said plan and agreement is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 1; that all of the originals thereof are in defendant's possession or under its control; that in and by said published plan said committee made the following offer to all the stockholders of the Dock Company, that is to say, that it, the said Committee, would cause a new or successor corporation to be formed in which should be vested the title to all and singular the property and franchises of the Gulf Company, when acquired by said Committee at such judicial sale thereof as might thereafter be had in said receivership proceedings, that to all such stockholders of the Dock Company as would deposit their stock with said committee under the terms of said written agreement attached to and made a part of said prospectus the said committee for each One Hundred Dollars ($100) share of Dock stock deposited with it would cause to be issued three-fourths (¾) of a share of new stock of equal par value to be used by such new corporation to be formed as aforesaid, so that upon the consummation of said plan the Dock Company's stockholders would have three-fourths (¾) as much stock in said new corporation as they then held respectively in the Dock Company, and it was made a condition to participation in said scheme that all persons who should deposit their stock with said committee should enter into a binding agreement that said new stock when issued should be vested irrevocably for a term of five years in certain trustees, who should have absolute power to vote the same and exercise all the prerogatives and franchises of the owners of said stock in the control and management of said new corporation to be formed as aforesaid; that all stockholders of said Gulf Company were required as a condition to participation in said plan, to any said committee the sum of $10.00 for each share of Gulf stock, deposited with said committee under said plan, which payment entitled them to one share of stock of the new company, but no such condition was imposed on stockholders of the Dock Company; that said prospectus was so contrived and framed as to lead, and did lead, plaintiff and such other corporations and persons, who or which dealt with said committee on the faith thereof to believe that the floating debt of the Dock Company, including said note, would be paid by said committee or by said successor corporation; that induced by the proposals made in said prospectus the persons holding substantially all of the total issue of the stock of the Dock Company then outstanding, a total of sixteen thousand (16,000) shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) each, deposited the same with said committee, to be held and used by said committee in the execution of said scheme as aforesaid; that afterward such proceedings were had in the said Circuit Court of the United States that the said Gulf Road was on or about March 19, 1900, sold at foreclosure sale and was bid in by certain persons on behalf of said committee, and on March 19,1900, said committee, pursuant to said scheme of reorganization, caused defendant to be incorporated as a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, and caused all the property and franchises of said Gulf Road to be conveyed to defendant and caused defendant to issue its shares of stock to said stockholders of the Dock Company who then and there received in exchange therefor respectively, stock of defendant in accordance with said plan as 605 above set forth; that said scheme, as set forth in said prospectus, was carried into full force and effect and defendant then and there entered into possession and control, and acquired unto itself all of the property and franchises of the Dock Company and still has the same; all with the result that after said scheme was carried out the said stockholders of the Dock Company had and still have a large and substantial interest in defendant and defendant has all of the property and assets of said Dock Company and is using the same for its own benefit and behoof; that pursuant to said plan the said stockholders of the Dock Company did enter into a trust agreement with certain persons designated in said prospectus, as voting trustees, whereby the legal title to all of said new stock issued by defendant as aforesaid to the said stockholders of the Dock Company became and was vested in the said voting trustees for a period of five years, beginning on April 1, 1905, and whereby the said voting trustees were vested with all and singular, the rights privileges and franchises of the owners of said stock, with full power to vote the same, and said stock has ever since been vested in the said voting trustees; and the said voting trustees have ever since elected the directors of defendant and of the said Dock Company, and have had sole control and management of the property and affairs of defendant; that as part and parcel of the same scheme by which defendant acquired the property and assets of the Dock Company, defendant also in substantially the same manner acquired the property and assets of the Belt Company as set out in paragraph 2 of the first count of this petition; that it was provided in and by the terms of said Reorganization prospectus and the agreement thereto attached, that the said committee should have the right to pay or obligate the said successor company to pay any debt in the nature of unsecured or floating debt, owing by the said Belt Company, or the Dock Company, or to settle or compromise such debt, and to negotiate with the creditors of said Belt and Dock Companies for their assent to the carrying out of said plan, and also to make such contracts and arrangements with any and all persons and corporations, which in the judgment of said committee would tend to prevent or avoid opposition to or interfere with the execution of said plan. It was further provided in and by said plan and agreement that of the new stock and bonds to be issued by said successor company, three millions of dollars in bonds and three millions of dollars in preferred stock were to be sold by said committee, and that the said committee should have power to use the proceeds thereof in whole or in part in paying the floating or unsecured debt of the said Belt and Dock Companies or in paying any other liabilities which the said

606 committee might incur in and about the premises, and that said committee should have the right and power to liquidate and pay said floating debt; it was further thereby provided that said committee should cause defendant to issue its stocks and bonds to an extent greatly in excess of the amount needed for distribution among the stockholders of the old companies in conformity with said plan, all of which bonds were to be secured by defendant's mortgage on all the property of the Belt and Dock Companies as well as other property, and that defendant should cause such excess of new securities to be sold to provide fresh capital for defendant and that as to all such securities as should not be distributed by said committee to depositors of old securities or as should not be sold by the committee as aforesaid should be delivered by said committee to defendant to be held in its treasury and sold as and when defendant desired to use the same; that the said committee, pursuant to said plan did sell bonds issued by defendant of the par value of $3,000,000, and its preferred stock of the par value of $3,000,000, and realized thereon over $3,000,000 in money; that out of the proceeds of said sales said committee paid such floating debt of the Belt and Dock Companies as it chose to pay and made such disbursements as it saw fit to make and paid over the balance to defendant, said balance amounting to several million dollars and being greatly in excess of the entire floating and unsecured debt of the Belt and Dock Companies; and said committee did raise for defendant and pay over to it several millions of dollars of fresh capital through the sale of stocks and bonds issued by defendant under said plan not distributed among those who had deposited their securities with said committee, and that several millions of dollars of stocks and bonds not distributed or sold by the committee were reserved in defendant's treasury for its future requirements; that all of said bonds issued by defendant and used by said committee and defendant as aforesaid, were and are secured by all the property and assets of the Belt and Dock Companies; that said plan further provided that said committee should settle its accounts with the Board of Directors of said successor company within one year after the consummation of said plan and on the — day of October, 1900, this was done, said committee turning over to defendant the cash remaining on hand after making the disbursements aforesaid, the amount of which was greatly in excess of the entire floating or unsecured debt of the Belt and Dock Companies and defendant did then and there in writing ratify all the acts and doings of said committee in and about the premises and did in writing assume and agree to pay all obligations incurred by said committee in and about the promulgation and execution of said plan. Plaintiff states that the origi-607 nals of all the writings hereinabove mentioned are in defendant's possession and plaintiff is unable to more definitely plead the same.

3. Plaintiff states that by reason of the premises defendant became and is liable to pay the said note.

4. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment for the sum of Twenty-five Thousand Eight Hundred and Two Dollars and sixteen cents ($25,802.16) the balance due on said note with interest thereon at the rate of eight (8) per cent per annum from September 26th, 1900, and for its costs.

Thirty-third Count.

Plaintiff for a thirty-third and further cause of action states that it adopts as part of this count all of the averments made by it in the thirty second count of this petition to the same extent as if said averments were set out in full herein, and states that the said Reorganization Committee expressly promised and agreed to and with plaintiff before and after settling its account with defendant as aforesaid, that it or defendant would pay any and all indebtedness owing to plaintiff by said Dock Company which indebtedness included said note.

Wherefore plaintiff prays judgment as in the thirty second count of this petition.

EXHIBIT B.

In the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, at Kansas City, for the April, 1905, Term.

No. —.

GUARDIAN TRUST COMPANY, Plaintiff,
vs.
THE KANSAS CITY SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY, Defendant.

Petition.

Plaintiff, Guardian Trust Company, which is and was at all times herein mentioned a corporation, organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, brings this action against The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, organized on March 19, 1900, as a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, and still existing as such, and for its causes of action against this defendant states:

First Count.

1. Plaintiff states that The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Belt Company, is and was at all times herein mentioned a railroad corporation, organized under the laws of the State of Missouri; that on September 22, 1899, plaintiff and said Belt Company made and delivered to First National Bank of Kansas City Missouri, hereinafter called the Bank, their promissory note in writing, whereby they promised to pay to said Bank or to its order Ninety days after the date of said note Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000.00), together with interest thereon from the maturity thereof at the rate of eight (8) per cent per annum; that thereafter and on December 23, 1899, for the purpose of renewing said last named note, plaintiff and said Belt Company made and delivered to said Bank their certain other promissory note in writing, whereby they promised to pay to said Bank or to its order Ninety days after the date of said last named note Twenty-five Thousand Dol-612 lars ($25,000), together with interest thereon from the maturity thereof at the rate of eight (8) per cent per annum; that thereafter and on the 26th day of March, 1900, for the purpose of renewing said last named note, plaintiff and said Belt Company made and delivered to said Bank their certain other promissory note in writing, whereby they promised to pay to said Bank or to its order Ninety days after the date of said last named note Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000), together with interest thereon from the maturity thereof at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum; that at the time said first above note was made as aforesaid, to-wit, on September 22, 1889, said Belt Company received from the Bank in consideration therefor a valuable consideration, to-wit, the sum of Twenty-five Thousand Dollars ($25,000); that plaintiff made said notes and each of them at the special instance and request, and for the sole benefit of said Belt Company, and plaintiff received no consideration for making said notes or any of them; that by reason of the premises said Belt Company was in law bound to pay said notes and each of them as and when they became due respectively, but to pay the same or any part thereof the said Belt Company failed and refused to do; that thereafter, to-wit, on September 19, 1900, an action on said note, dated March 26, 1900, was brought by said Bank against plaintiff in the Circuit Court in and for Jackson County, Missouri; that thereafter such proceedings were had and taken in said action that on the 23rd day of November, 1901, a judgment was rendered in said Circuit Court in favor of said Bank and against Plaintiff for the sum of Twenty-seven Thousand Six Hundred Dollars ($27,600), together with interest thereon from the date of said judgment at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum, and also for the costs of said suit; that on the 27th day of March, 1905, plaintiff was compelled to pay and did pay the sum of Thirty-four Thousand and Eighty-nine 66/100 Dollars ($34,089. 66/100) in satisfaction of any judgment, interest and costs as aforesaid.

2. That on and prior to April 1, 1899, the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Gulf Company, was a railroad corporation, organized under the laws of the State of Missouri; that the Gulf Company owned or controlled a line of railroad extending from Port Arthur, Texas, to Grandview, in Jackson County, Missouri, and had trackage rights over the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway from said Grandview to a point in Jackson County, Missouri, called Belt Junction; that the said Belt Company owned and operated a railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, extending from a point in Kansas City on the State line between 613 Missouri and Kansas near the confluence of the Missouri and Kansas Rivers, thence east along the south bank of the Missouri River about five miles, thence southwest to said Belt Junction, so that when connected with the line of the Belt Company and the line of the Gulf Company formed in the main one continuous line of railroad running in the same general direction from Port Arthur, to Kansas City, Missouri; that on April 1, 1899, said Gulf Company made default in the payment of interest due on that date on its funded debt, and upon complaint filed by the Trustee named in the mortgage securing said debt, such proceedings were had that the property and affairs of said Gulf Company on or about said date passed into the hands of receivers appointed by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of the Western District of Missouri, Which receivers assumed for the time being the operation and control of said Gulf Road under the orders of said court; that shortly thereafter a committee, styled a "Reorganization Committee", was formed for the purpose of readjusting the funded debt of said Gulf Company and for other purposes, fully set forth in a prospectus published by said committee called a "Reorganization Plan"; that said Gulf Company had no terminal facilities in Kansas City, except such as it had by contract with the said Belt Company and it became evident to said committee that it would be advantageous for said Gulf Company, when reorganized to acquire the property of said Belt Company by consolidation or otherwise; that the expressed object of said reorganization plan, as set forth in said prospectus, was to consolidate and unify the property of said Gulf Company with the property of the said Belt Company and to manage and control the same as one; that with this end in view said committee, under date of November 7, 1889, jut forth and published a certain prospectus called a "Reorganization Plan", and circulated the same among the creditors, bondholders and stockholders of said Belt Company, including plaintiff; that attached to said prospectus was a certain agreement which all the stockholders of the Belt were invited to execute in favor of said committee; that it was provided in said published plan that same should be deemed a part of said agreement to the same extent as if copied in full therein; that a copy of said plan and agreement is hereto attached and marked Exhibit No. 1; that all of the originals thereof are in defendant's possession or under its control; that in and by said published plan said committee made the following offer to all the stockholders of the Belt Company, that is to say, that it, the said Committee, would cause a new or successor corporation to be formed in which should be vested the title to all and singular the property and franchises of the Gulf Company, when 614 acquired by said committee at such judicial sale thereof as might thereafter be had in said receivership proceedings; that to all such stockholders of the Belt Company as would deposit their stock with said committee under the terms of said written agreement, attached to and made a part of said prospectus, the said committee would cause to be issued a like amount of stock of equal par value by such new corporation to be formed as aforesaid, so that upon the consummation of said plan the stockholders would have the same amount of stock in such new corporation as they then held respectively in the Belt Company, and it was made a condition to participation in said scheme that all persons who should deposit their stock with said committee should enter into a binding contract that said stock when issued should be vested irrevocably for a term of five years in certain trustees, who should have absolute power to vote the same and exercise all the prerogatives and franchises of the owners of said stock in the control and management of said new corporation to be formed as aforesaid; that all stockholders of said Gulf Company were required, as a condition to participation in said plan, to pay said committee the sum of $10.00 for each share of Gulf stock, deposited with said committee under said plan, which payment entitled them to one share of stock of the new company, but no such condition was imposed on stockholders of the Belt Company; that said prospectus was so contrived and framed as to lead, and did lead, plaintiff and such other corporations and persons, who or which dealt with said committee on the faith thereof, to believe that the floating debt of the Belt Company including said note, dated September 26, 1899, as well as any renewal thereof and judgment thereon, would be paid by said committee or by said successor corporation; that induced by the proposals made in said prospectus, the persons holding more than ninety-nine per cent of the total issue of stock of the Belt Company then outstanding, a total of 47,500 shares, deposited the same with the said committee to be held and used by said committee in the execution of said scheme as aforesaid; that afterward such proceedings were had in the said Circuit Court of the United States that the said Gulf Road was on or about March 19, 1900, sold at foreclosure sale and was bid in by certain persons on behalf of said committee, and on March 19, 1900, said committee, pursuant to said scheme of reorganization, caused defendant to be incorporated as a railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, and caused all the property and franchises of said Gulf Road to be conveyed to defendant and caused defendant to issue its shares of stock to said stockholders of the Belt Company, who then and there received in 615 stock of defendant a like number of shares as they had before held in the Belt Company, respectively, and of equal par value as said Belt shares; that said scheme, as set forth in said prospectus, was carried into full force and effect and defendant then and there entered into possession and control, and acquired unto itself all of the property and franchises of the Belt Company and still has the same, all with the result that after said scheme was carried out the said stockholders of the Belt Company had and still have the same interest in defendant, as they had before had in the Belt Company, and defendant has all of the property and assets of said Belt Company and is using the same for its own benefit and behoof; that pursuant to said plan the said stockholders of the Belt Company did enter into trust agreements with certain persons designated in said prospectus, as voting trustees, whereby the legal title to all of said new stock issued by defendant as aforesaid to the said stockholders of the Belt Company became and was vested in the said voting trustees for a period of five years, beginning on April 1, 1900, and ending on April 1, 1905, and whereby the said voting trustees were vested with all and singular the rights, privileges and franchises of the owners of said stock, with full power to vote the same, and said stock has ever since been vested in the said voting trustees; and the said voting trustees have ever since elected the directors of defendant and of the said Belt Company, and have had sole control and management of the property and affairs of defendant; that it was provided in and by the terms of said Reorganization prospectus and the agreement thereto attached, that the said committee should have the right to pay or obligate the said successor company to pay any debt in the nature of unsecured or floating debt, owing by the said Belt Company, or to settle or compromise such debt, and to negotiate with the creditors of said Belt Company for their assent to the carrying out of said plan, and also to make such contracts and arrangements with any and all persons and corporations, which in the judgment of said committee would tend to prevent or avoid opposition to or interference with the execution of said plan. It was further provided in and by said plan and agreement that of the new stocks and bonds to be issued by said successor company, three millions of dollars in bonds and three millions of dollars in preferred stock were to be sold by said committee, and that the said committee should have power to use the proceeds thereof in whole or in part in paying the floating or unsecured debt of the said Belt Company, or in paying any other liabilities which the 616 said committee might incur in and about the premises, and that said committee should have the right and power to liquidate and pay said floating debt; it was further thereby provided that said committee should cause defendant to issue its stocks and bonds to an extent greatly in excess of the amount needed for distribution among the stockholders of the old companies in conformity with said plan, all of which bonds were to be secured by defendant's mortgage on all the property of the Belt Company as well as other property, and that defendant should cause such excess of new securities to be sold to provide fresh capital for defendant and that as to all such securities as should not be distributed by said committee to depositors of old securities or as should not be sold by the committee as aforesaid, should be delivered by said committee to defendant to be held in its treasury and sold as and when defendant desired to use the same; that the said committee, pursuant to said plan, did sell bonds issued by defendant of the par value of $3,000,000, and its preferred stock of the par value of $3,000,000, and realized thereon over $3,000,000 in money; that out of the proceeds of said sales said committee paid such floating debt of the Belt Company as it chose to pay and made such disbursements as it saw fit to make, and paid over the balance to defendant, said balance amounting to several million dollars and being greatly in excess of the entire floating or unsecured debt of the Belt Company, and said committee did raise for defendant and pay over to it several millions of dollars of fresh capital through the sale of stocks and bonds issued by defendant under said plan not distributed among those who had deposited their securities with said committee, and that several millions of dollars of stocks and bonds not distributed or sold by the committee were reserved in defendant's treasury for its future requirements; that all of said bonds issued by defendant and used by said committee and defendant as aforesaid, were and are secured by all the property and assets of the Belt Company; that said plan further provided that said committee should settle its account with the Board of Directors of said successor within one year after the consummation of said plan and on the — day of October, 1900, this was done, said committee turning over to defendant the cash remaining on hand after making the disbursements aforesaid, the amount of which was greatly in excess of the entire floating or unsecured debt of the Belt Company, and defendant did then and there in writing ratify all the acts and doings of said committee in and about the premises and did in writing assume and agree to pay all obligations incurred by said committee in and about the promulgation and execution of said plan.

617 Plaintiff states that the originals of all the writings herein above mentioned are in defendant's possession and plaintiff is unable to more definitely plead the same.

3. Plaintiff states that by reason of the premises defendant became and is liable to pay said sum of Thirty-four Thousand and Eighty-nine 66-100 Dollars ($34,089 66-100), paid by plaintiff as aforesaid to satisfy said judgment, and that although plaintiff has requested defendant to pay said sum so due, defendant refuses to pay the same or any part thereof.

4. Wherefore plaintiff prays judgment for the sum of Thirty--our Thousand and Eighty-nine 66-100 Dollars ($34,089 66-100), with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum from March 27th 1905, together with its costs.

Second Count.

Plaintiff for a second and further cause of action states that to avoid unnecessary repetition it adopts as part of this count of its petition all the averments made by it, in the first count thereof, to the same extent as if set out in full herein, and plaintiff states that said Reorganization Committee, both before and after defendant acquired the possession of the property and assets of the Belt Company as aforesaid, expressly promised and agreed to and with plaintiff that either said Reorganization Committee or defendant would pay any and all indebtedness owing by the Belt Company, and which as between plaintiff and any third person plaintiff was bound to pay, which indebtedness included the debt evidenced successively by said notes and judgment.

Wherefore plaintiff prays judgment as in the first count of this petition.

Third Count.

1. Plaintiff for a third and further cause of action states that to avoid repetition it adopts all the averments of paragraph 1 of the first count of this petition, to the same extent as if set out in full herein.

2. Plaintiff further states that on or about the 20th day of March, 1900, defendant was the owner of a line of railroad extending from Port Arthur, Texas, to Grandview, in Jackson County, Missouri, and had acquired lease hold rights from the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway from said Grandview to Belt Junction, in said Jackson County, and that on said date the said Belt Company owned and operated a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, beginning at a point in Kansas City on the State line between Kansas and Missouri, near the confluence of the Kaw and Missouri Rivers, extending east along the south bank of the Missouri river to 618 a point near the confluence of the Missouri and Blue Rivers, thence south and west to a point about ten miles south of Kansas City, called Belt Junction, where the said Belt Company connected with the said St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad Company; that the said line of railroad of the Belt Company and of defendant formed, when connected in the whole or in the main, one continuous line of railroad from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri; that defendant afterward, and the said Belt Company, with the written approval of the persons or parties holding and representing a majority of the stock of the said Belt Company and of defendant, became consolidated under the name of defendant, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and formed one company, and defendant acquired and took into possession all of the property of said Belt Company of every kind and description and has thereafter owned and controlled the same as one continuous line of railroad, running in the whole or in the main, in the same general direction, from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri, as aforesaid; that the contracts and leases and agreements by which said consolidation was effected, and under which defendant now operates and owns all of said railroad, are exclusively within the possession and control of defendant; and that plaintiff cannot more definitely prove the same; that by reason of such consolidation defendant became and is liable to pay the said sum of Thirty-four Thousand and Eighty-nine 66-100 Dollars ($34,089 66-100), paid by plaintiff as aforesaid to satisfy said judgment, and that although plaintiff has requested defendant to pay said sum so due, defendant refuses to pay the same or any part thereof.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in its first count aforesaid.

Exhibit C.

In the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, at Kansas City, for the October, 1906, Term.

Guardian Trust Company, Plaintiff,
vs.
The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, Defendant.

Petition.

Plaintiff, Guardian Trust Company, which is and was at all times herein mentioned, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, brings this action against The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, organized on March 19th, 1900, as a 619 railroad corporation under the laws of the State of Missouri, and still existing as such, and for its causes of action against said defendant, states:

First Count.

1. Plaintiff states that the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, hereinafter called the Gulf Company a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, did, on the 14th day of January, 1899, by its negotiable, promissory note of that date, by it duly executed, promise, for value received, to pay to plaintiff, or to its order, on demand, the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), with interest after date of said note at the rate of eight per cent (8%) per annum, until paid, a duly verified copy of which said note is herewith filed and marked "Exhibit 1." That payment of said note has long since been demanded and no part thereof has been paid. On the date of said note the name of plaintiff was Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust Company, and said note is made payable to plaintiff, or its order, by the latter name. Afterward, the name of plaintiff was changed, in accordance with law to Guardian Trust Company.

2. For several years prior and up to March, 1900, the Gulf Company owned and operated a railroad from Grand View, in Jackson County, Missouri, to Mena, Arkansas, and by means of the ownership of the stock and bonds thereof, controlled and operated the Texarkana and Ft. Smith Railroad, and the Shreveport and Gulf Railroad, which, in connection with the said line of road owned by the said Gulf Company, formed a continuous line of railroad from the said town of Grand View, in Jackson County, Missouri, to Port Arthur, in Jefferson County, Texas. The Gulf Company had outstanding Twenty-three million dollars ($23,000,000) of stock, divided into shares of the par value of One hundred dollars ($100) each, and Twenty-three million dollars, ($23,000,000) of its first mortgage bonds, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum, which bonds were of the d-omination of One thousand dollars ($1,000) each, and which interest was payable semi-annually on the first day of April, and the first day of October, in each year.

3. For several years prior and up to March, 1900, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, a Missouri corporation, hereinafter called the Belt Company, owned and operated a belt and terminal railroad from a point called Belt Junction, Southeast of Kansas City, Jackson County, Missouri, to its depots and terminal yards at Second and Wyandotte Streets, in said Kansas City, and on to a point on the State Line between Kansas and Missouri, in what is known as the West Bottoms of Kansas City, near the Mis-
620 souri River, and by virtue of leases and stock ownership, operated and controlled the Union Terminal Railroad, which extended from said point on the State Line to Argentine, Kansas, and also another line called the Kansas City and Independence Air Line, running from a point in what is known as the East Bottoms in Kansas City, to the City of Independence, Missouri, which said lines so owned, leased, controlled and operated by the Belt Company, are, for the sake of brevity, hereinafter referred to and called the Kansas City Terminals.

4. The Belt Company, prior to March, 1900, had outstanding, capital stock to the amount of Four Million seven hundred and fifty-thousand dollars ($4,750,000), divided into shares of the par value of One hundred Dollars ($100) each, and the said Kansas City Terminals had outstanding, prior to March, 1900, first mortgage bonds to the aggregate principal amount of Four million and Fifty thousand dollars ($4,050,000).

5. The said town of Port Arthur, in Jefferson County, Texas, which was the Southern terminus of the line of road owned and controlled by the Gulf Company, prior to March, 1900, as aforesaid, was a small village of, say, eight hundred or a thousand inhabitants, and was of no commercial importance, situated inland about ten miles from the deep waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

6. For several years prior and up to March, 1900, the Port Arthur Channel and Dock Company, hereinafter called the Dock Company, a Texas corporation, owned and operated a large, deep-water, ship canal, extending from the town of Port Arthur to the deep waters of the Gulf of Mexico, through which canal, ocean steamers and other sea-going vessels passed to and fro from Port Arthur to the open sea, and also owned and operated wharves, docks, and warehouses, and a grain elevator at the Northern end of its said canal at Port Arthur, and also owned and operated railroad tracks and yards which extended from its said wharves, docks, warehouses and grain elevator, to and connected with the tracks of the railroad so operated by the Gulf Company at Port Arthur, as aforesaid.

7. The said Dock Company, prior to March, 1900, had outstanding, one million five hundred seventy-five thousand dollars ($1,575,000) of its capital stock, divided into shares of the par value of One hundred dollars ($100) each, and its first mortgage five per cent (5%) bonds to the amount of One million six hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars ($1,655,000).

8. The Gulf Company did not own or have the control of any terminal facilities in or near Kansas City, Missouri, its 621 Northern terminus being at Grand View, Missouri, as aforesaid, some twenty miles away, and from said Grand View, Missouri, it had trackage rights over a part of the line of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad Company to said Belt Junction, at which point it connected with the tracks of said Belt Company. Neither did said Gulf Company own or control any tracks or other facilities for getting nearer to the waters of the Gulf of Mexico, than the town of Port Arthur, which was some ten miles away, but by virtue of certain contracts and traffic arrangements, it had the right to use the Kansas City Terminals as a means of entering into Kansas City, together with their yards, depots and repair shops, and the right to use the said ship canal of the Dock Company, as a means of receiving and sending its passengers and freight from and to the sea, for all of which the Gulf Company was obliged to pay such rentals, charges and tolls as were found to be burdensome and beyond its ability to earn and pay.

9. The persons who owned and held the bulk of the stocks and bonds of the Belt Company and the Dock Company, were, in the main, persons who also owned nearly all of the capital stock and bonds of the Gulf Company.

10. In the latter part of 1898, and in the fore part of 1899, it was shown and became known to the said stockholders and bondholders of the various companies hereinbefore referred to, that by reason of the excessive expenses of operation and the heavy interest charges of the Gulf Company, it, the said Gulf Company, would not be able to further pay the interest on its said bonds and that it would necessarily make default in the payment of the installment of interest which would mature on April 1st, 1899, and that the ownership of said Gulf Company would consequently pass into other hands, unless some steps should be taken to reorganize the property and reduce the oprating expenses and interest, and other fixed charges. And it was recognized that on account of the said Gulf Company owning no terminal facilities at Kansas City, or at Port Arthur, its northern and southern termini, the success of any reorganization of the Gulf Company would be impossible, or at least, doubtful, unless said Dock Company and said Kansas City Terminals could be included in such reorganization. Afterward, in the year 1899, a committee, styled a "Reorganization Committee" was formed for the purpose of unifying and consolidating all of the said companies and their properties, namely: The companies owning the Kansas City Terminals, the Gulf Company and the Dock Company, into one new company or 622 corporation, so that said new company would own, control and operate, under its sole corporate management, the whole system from Kansas City to the shipside at Port Arthur, and to readjust the capital and fixed charges of all of said companies, so that, when said properties were so consolidated and unified, the fixed expenses for rentals, terminal charges, and other expenses, incident to the separate management of the various properties, would be avoided, and the interest charges so diminished that the operating expenses and the interest would be brought clearly within and below the earning capacity of the system when so consolidated, unified and placed under one corporate management and control.

11. With this end in view, said Committee, under date of November 7th, 1899, put forth and published a certain document or prospectus, called a "Reorganization Plan," and circulated the same among the creditors, bondholders and stockholders of said Companies, including plaintiff; attached to said prospectus and made a part thereof was a ce-tain "Reorganization Agreement" which each of the holders of stocks and bonds of said companies were invited to execute. In and by said published plan of reorganization said Committee made the following offer to all the stockholders of said Companies, that is to say, that it, the said Committee, would cause a new or successor corporation to be formed in which should be vested the title to all and singular of the property and franchises of said Companies when acquired by said Committee, and that to all such stockholders of said Companies, as would deposit their stock with said Committee under the terms of said written agreement and plan, said plan being a part of the agreement, the said Committee would cause the stock of such new or successor corporation to be issued in the proportions and to the amounts specified in said plan and agreement.

12. Said plan was so drawn and contrived as to lead the stockholders, bondholders and creditors of said companies, including plaintiff, to believe that the floating debt of the said Companies, including said note, would be paid by the said Committee or by said successor corporation and that such payment would result from the consummation of said scheme and was one of the purposes thereof; and plaintiff, so believing and relying thereon, did assist and cooperate with said Committee in carrying said plan into effect. Induced by the proposals made in said plan, the holders of substantially all of the stock and all of the bonds issued by said Companies, became parties to said scheme of reorganization and severally executed said reorganization agreement of which said plan was expressly made a part thereof, and pursuant to said agreement deposited with the said Committee, substantially all of the stocks and bonds
623 issued by the said Companies, to be held and used by said Committee in the execution of said scheme aforesaid.

13. The stockholders and bondholders of all of the said Companies, acting by and through their agents, the said Committee, for the purpose of carrying out the said agreement for consolidation and reorganization, did, on the 19th day of March, 1900, cause the said new company to be incorporated under the laws of the state of Missouri, under the name of The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, which is the defendant in this suit. The persons who were so incorporated as the Kansas City Southern Railway Company were either members of the said Companies, their attorneys, or employees.

14. Pursuant to said plan and agreement, the stockholders and bondholders of said old companies, through their agents, the said Committee, caused the defendant, as soon as it was incorporated, to authorize the issuance of its fifty year, three per cent. gold bonds, to the aggregate amount of Thirty Million dollars ($30,000,000), divided into Thirty thousand bonds of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, and to secure said bonds, to execute and deliver a deed of trust in the nature of a mortgage conveying, and intended to convey, and which is now a first lien upon all of the property and assets of all of the said old or constituent companies.

15. Afterwards to-wit: On the — day of March, 1900, said stockholders and bondholders of the said old companies, acting by and through their agents, the said Committee, in the further execution of said Reorganization Plan, caused all of the railroad, property, assets and franchises of the Gulf Company to be duly conveyed by deed or deeds to defendant, who has ever since held, and still holds, the title thereto, and afterward caused the railroads, property, assets and franchises of all of the other old or constituent companies to be duly conveyed to defendant, who now holds, and for a long time has held, title to all of the property of all the said old companies, and their constituent companies, subject to the lien of the said mortgage of defendant, and has been and still is in possession thereof and operating the same as one consolidated line or system of railroad, and the defendant, in part payment for the said property, did issue to the holders of the bonds of said old companies, new bonds of defendant to the amount specified in said plan, and did issue and deliver to the stockholders of the said old companies, in exchange for their said stock, new stock of the new company of the defendant to the amounts and in the proportions specified in said plan.

624 The stock of defendant delivered to the stockholders of the Gulf Company in exchange for their stock of the Gulf Company was of great value and of value in excess of the amount of the entire floating or unsecured debt of the Gulf Company, all with the result that after the said scheme was carried out, the said stockholders of the Gulf Company had new stock of the defendant, and the defendant had all of the property and assets of the Gulf Company and still has the same and is using the same for its own benefit and behoof.

16. It was provided in and by the terms of said Reorganization Plan and the agreements aforesaid, of which it formed a part, that the said Committee should have the right to pay or obligate the defendant to pay any debt in the nature of unsecured or floating debt, owing by the said old Companies, and that said Committee should have the right and power to liquidate and pay said floating debt. On or about the — day of October, 1900, said Committee settled its accounts with defendant and defendant did then and there, in writing, ratify all the acts and doings of said Committee in and about the premises, and did, then and there, for and in consideration of the delivery by said Committee to defendant of substantially all of the stocks and bonds issued by the old companies aforesaid, and which had been acquired by said Committee pursuant to and under the terms and conditions of said Plan, and in consideration of the delivery by said Committee to defendant of all the monies, securities and property then in the hands of the Committee, except certain sums reserved by said Committee for certain purposes therein specified, and for other good and valuable considerations received by defendant it (defendant) did agree in writing that it did and would assume and agree to pay all obligations incurred by said Committee in the performance and execution of the powers upon it conferred by said stockholders and bondholders, and in and about the premises. The originals of said Agreement and the Originals of all the said Reorganization Agreements are in the possession or under the control of defendant, and plaintiff is unable to more specifically plead the same.

17. The Gulf Company is wholly insolvent and has no property subject to execution out of which the debt arising from the promissory note aforesaid, or any part thereof, could be collected.

18. By reason of the premises defendant became and is liable to pay the said note.

19. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment in the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent (8%), per annum, from January 4th, 1899, together with its costs.

Second Count.

1. For a second and further cause of action against defendant, plaintiff states that to avoid unnecessary repetition and for the sake of brevity it adopts, as a part of this count of its petition, all the averments made by it in the first count thereof, to the same extent as if the same were set out in full herein.

2. That it was expressly provided and promised, in and by the said Reorganization Plan and Agreement that the floating debt of the Gulf Company would be paid.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in the first count of this petition.

Third Count.

1. For a third and further cause of action against defendant, plaintiff states that it adopts, as a part of this count of its petition, all of the averments made by it in the first count thereof, to the same extent as if the same were set out in full herein.

2. Said Committee, in and about the execution of its said Plan of consolidation and unification of said properties, at various times expressly promised to pay the said note, and that it, the said Committee, or defendant, would pay said notes.

At the request of said Committee plaintiff furnished the said Committee with a statement of all the indebtedness due plaintiff from the Gulf Company, including said note, and said Committee, then and there, and from time to time thereafter, promised and agreed to pay the same, or that defendant would pay the same. By arrangement with plaintiff the Committee appointed a special expert or auditor, to go over all the accounts and transactions between plaintiff and the Gulf Company and examine the entire book accounts existing between them. Plaintiff placed at the disposal of the said auditor or expert, its books and correspondence, and files and data in connection with said transactions. The same were thoroughly examined by said auditor or expert and a report was made by him to said Committee; that said report was to the effect that the book accounts between the said Companies were correct and that the amount due plaintiff as shown by said note was in fact due the plaintiff. The Committee thereupon fixed a day for the payment of said note to plaintiff, but a few days before the time fixed for said payment, to-wit: On the — day of July, 1900, the said Committee repudiated said promise and refused to pay said note.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in its first count.

626 Fourth Count.

1. Plaintiff, for a third and further cause of action states that, to avoid repetition, it adopts all of the averments of paragraph No. 1 of the first count of this petition, to the same extent as if set out in full herein.

2. Plaintiff further states that prior to the 20th day of March, 1900, the Gulf Company was the owner of a line of railroad extending from Port Arthur, Texas, to Grandview, in Jackson County, Missouri, and had acquired leasehold rights over the St. Louis and San Francisco Railway from said Grandview to Belt Junction, in said Jackson County, and that prior to the 20th day of March, 1900, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, a Missouri corporation, hereinafter called the Belt Company, owned and operated a line of railroad in Jackson County, Missouri, beginning at a point in Kansas City, on the State line between Kansas and Missouri, near the confluence of the Kaw and Missouri Rivers, extending East along the South bank of the Missouri River, to a point near the confluence of the Missouri and Blue Rivers, thence South and West to a point about ten miles South of Kansas City, called Belt Junction, where the Belt Company connected with the said St. Louis and San Francisco Railway Company. That prior to March 20th, 1900, the said Dock Company owned and operated a line of railroad in Jefferson County, Texas, at Port Arthur, in said County, to a connection with the line of said Gulf Company. That said line of railroad of the Belt Company and of the Dock Company and of the Gulf Company, aforesaid, when connected, formed, in the whole or in the main, one continuous line of railroad from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri. That on or about March 20th, 1900, the said Gulf, Dock and Belt Companies, with the written approval of the persons or parties holding and representing a majority of the stock of all of the said companies, and of defendant, became consolidated under the name of defendant, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and formed one company, and defendant acquired and took into its possession, all of the railroads, properties and assets of the said Belt, Gulf and Dock Companies, of every kind and description, and has owned and controlled the same as one continuous line of railroad, running, in the whole or in the main, in the same general direction, from Port Arthur, Texas, to Kansas City, Missouri, as aforesaid. That the contracts and leases and agreements by which said consolidation was effected and under which defendant now operates, and owns, all of said railroads, are exclusively within the possession and control of defendant and plaintiff cannot more definitely plead the same. That by reason of such consolidation, defendant became and is liable to pay unto plaintiff the said note of the said Gulf Company.

627 3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in its said first count.

Fifth Count.

1. For a fifth and further cause of action against defendant, plaintiff states that the Kansas City Pittsburg and Gulf Railway Company, hereinafter called the Gulf Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Missouri, did, on the 16th day of January, 1899, by its negotiable promissory note of that date, by it duly executed, promise for value received, to pay to plaintiff, or to its order, on demand, the sum of Twelve Thousand, five hundred dollars ($12,500) with interest after date of said note at the rate of eight per cent (8%) per annum, until paid, a duly verified copy of which said note is herewith attached and marked "Exhibit 2." Said Gulf Company paid on said note on the 20th day of February, 1899, the sum of Eleven Thousand dollars ($11,000), leaving a balance due on said note on the date of said payment of the sum of One thousand five hundred and ninety-five dollars and eighty-nine cents ($1,595.89), no part of which said balance has since been paid. Said note was made payable to plaintiff under its then corporate name, Missouri, Kansas and Texas Trust Comp-ny. Afterward the corporate name of plaintiff was changed, in accordance with law, to its present name of Guardian Trust Company.

2. Plaintiff, for the sake of brevity, adopts as part of this count of its petition, all of the averments by it made in paragraphs numbered 2 to 18, inclusive, of the first count of this petition, as fully and to the same extent as if set out in full herein.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant in the sum of One thousand five hundred and ninety-five dollars and eighty-nine cents ($1,595.89), with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent (8%) per annum from February 20th, 1899, together with its costs.

Sixth Count.

1. For a sixth and further cause of action against defendant, plaintiff, for the sake of brevity, adopts as a part of this count of its petition, all the averments made by it in paragraph No. 1 of the Fifth count hereof, to the same extent as if copied in full herein.

2. Plaintiff adopts as part of this count of its petition, all of the averments made by it in paragraph- 2 to 18 inclusive of the first count of this petition.

628 3. That it was expressly provided and promised, in and by the said Reorganization Plan and Agreement that the floating debt of the Gulf Company would be paid.

4. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in the Fifth Count of this petition.

Seventh Count.

1. For a seventh and further cause of action against defendant, plaintiff, for the sake of brevity, adopts as a part of this count of its petition, all the averments made by it in paragraph No. 1 of the Fifth count hereof, to the same extent as if copied in full herein.

2. Plaintiff adopts as part of this count of its petition, all of the averments made by it in paragraph 2 to 18 inclusive of the first count of this petition.

3. Plaintiff adopts paragraph No. 2 of the Third count of this petition as fully and to the same extent as if set out in full herein.

4. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in the Fifth Count of this petition.

Eighth Count.

1. Plaintiff for an eighth and further cause of action states that to avoid repetition it adopts all of the averments of paragraph No. 1 of the Fifth Count of this petition, to the same extent as if set out in full herein.

2. Plaintiff further adopts as part of this count of its petition, all of the averments made by it in paragraph No. 2 of the Fourth Count of this petition, to the same extent as if copied in full herein.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in its said Fifth Count of this petition.

Ninth Count.

1. Plaintiff for a ninth and further cause of action against defendant states that at the special instance and request of the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company, a Missouri corporation, hereinafter called the Gulf Company, plaintiff advanced certain monies to said Gulf Company and rendered certain services to said Gulf Company and made certain other charges against said Gulf Company, all in open account, the items of which charges, as well as the date when the same were made and all the particulars thereof, appear on the Bill of Items hereto attached and marked "Exhibit 3."

That the aggregate amount of said charges is the sum of 629 Forty-three thousand six dollars and twelve cents ($43,006.12). That there were paid on the said account at divers and sundry times by said Gulf Company various sums of money, the said credits aggregating Thirty-five thousand four hundred and fifty-eight dollars and four cents ($35,458.04). Said credits and the dates when entered and the particulars thereof being set out on the said Bill of Items hereinabove mentioned. That the balance due on said open account unto plaintiff, after allowing said Gulf Company and defendant, all just credits and setoffs, is the sum of Seven Thousand five hundred and forty-eight dollars and eight cents ($7,548.08), which balance remains wholly due and unpaid. That the said charges appearing on said Bill of Items are true and correct and said Gulf Company has frequently promised and agreed to pay the said balance, but though often requested, it and defendant have refused and still fail and refuse to pay the said balance or any part thereof. Plaintiff states that it made demand for payment of said account of said Gulf Company on the 19th day of April, 1899, and on each date on which any charge appearing on said Bill of Items was entered.

2. Plaintiff states that it adopts as a part of this count of its petition all of the averments made by it in paragraphs numbered 2 to 18, inclusive, of the First count of this petition, to the same extent as if said averments were set out in full herein.

3. That by reason of the premises defendant became and is liable to pay the said balance due on said account.

4. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant for the sum of Seven Thousand Five hundred and forty-eight dollars and eight cents ($7,548.08), with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent (6%) per annum from April 19th, 1899, and for its costs in this behalf expended.

Tenth Count.

1. For a Tenth and further cause of action against defendant, plaintiff states that it adopts as part of this count of its petition, all of the averments by it made in paragraph No. 1 of the Ninth Count of this petition, and all of the averments of paragraphs numbered 2 to 18 inclusive, of the First Count of its petition, to the same extent as if the said averments were set out in full herein.

2. That it was expressly provided and promised, in and by the said Reorganization Plan and Agreement that the floating debt of the Gulf Company would be paid.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in the Ninth Count of this petition.

630 Eleventh Count.

1. For an Eleventh and further cause of action against defendant, plaintiff states that it adopts as part of this count of its petition, all of the averments by it made in paragraph No. 1 of the Ninth Count of this petition, and all of the averments of paragraphs numbered 2 to 18 inclusive, of the First Count of its petition, to the same extent as if the said averments were set out in full herein.

2. Said Committee, in and about the execution of its said Plan of consolidation and unification of said properties at various times expressly promised to pay the said account, and that it, the said Committee, or defendant, would pay said account. At the request of said Committee, plaintiff furnished the said Committee with a statement of all the indebtedness due plaintiff from the Gulf Company, including said account, and said Committee, then and there, and from time to time thereafter, promised and agreed to pay the same, or that defendant would pay the same. By arrangement with plaintiff the Committee appointed a special expert or auditor to go over all the accounts and transactions between plaintiff and the Gulf Company and examine the entire book accounts existing between them. Plaintiff placed at the disposal of the said auditor or expert, its books and correspondence, and files and data, in connection with said transactions. The same were thoroughly examined by said auditor or expert and a report was made by him to said Committee; that said report was to the effect that the book accounts between the said Companies were correct and that the amount due plaintiff as shown by said account was in fact due the plaintiff. The Committee thereupon fixed a day for the payment of said note to plaintiff, but a few days before the time fixed for said payment, to-wit: On the — day of July, 1900, the said Committee repudiated said promise and refused to pay said account.

3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in its Ninth Count of this petition.

Twelfth Count.

1. Plaintiff for a Twelfth and further cause of action states that it adopts all of the averments of paragraph No. 1 of the Ninth Count of this petition, to the same extent as if the same were set out in full herein.

2. Plaintiff further adopts as part of this count of its petition, all of the averments made by it in paragraph No. 2 of the Fourth count of this petition, to the same extent as if copied in full herein.

631 3. Wherefore, plaintiff prays judgment as in its said Ninth Count of this petition.

vs.

Ancillary Bill.

EDWARD F. SWINNEY, as Receiver of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company; The Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, The Kansas City Southern Railway Company, Complainants,

vs.

GUARDIAN TRUST COMPANY, Defendant.

Supplemental Bill.

Upon reading the verified bill of Edward F. Swinney, as Receiver of the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and The Kansas
638 City Southern Railway Company, it is ordered that until the further order of this court the defendant in said bill, the Guardian Trust Company, its agents and attorneys be and the same are hereby restrained from further prosecuting or attempting to prosecute or try the three actions and each of them filed by the Guardian Trust Company and now pending in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, two of said actions having been filed in the said court on March 15, 1905, and the other of said actions having been filed on July 2, 1906. Each of said three actions being in the name of the Guardian Trust Company, plaintiff and against the The Kansas City Southern Railway Company. And that the defendant Guardian Trust Company be and appear before the Judge of this Court at Chambers at ten o'clock A. M. on the 16th day of December, 1907, to show cause, if any there be, why a temporary injunction should not issue against it.

(Signed) SMITH McPHERSON, Judge.

Afterwards, to-wit, on the 16th day of December, 1907, an Answer of the Guardian Trust Company on Rule to Show Cause was filed. Said Answer is in words and figures as follows:

In the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western Division of Western District of Missouri.

In Equity.

CAMBRIA STEEL CO.
vs.
KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT R. R. CO., GUARDIAN TRUST CO., et al.

Bill.

KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT R. R. CO.
vs.
GUARDIAN TRUST COMPANY et al.; KANSAS CITY SOUTHERN RAILWAY CO., Intervenor.

Ancillary Bill.

KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILWAY CO. and KANSAS CITY SOUTHERN RAILWAY CO.
vs.
GUARDIAN TRUST CO.

Supplemental Bill.

Answer of Guardian Trust Co. on Rule to Show Cause.

And now comes the Guardian Trust Company and protesting against the jurisdiction of this court in the premises, in answer to the rule to show cause why a temporary injunction should not issue against it, restraining it from prosecuting three certain suits at law now pending in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, and without prejudice to its demurrer on file herein and in response only to said rule to show cause hereby showeth cause and avers as follows:

639 1. This court is without jurisdiction to entertain the supplemental bill and to issue the said restraining order or to issue the said temporary injunction prayed for.

1. (a) Leave was improvidently granted by this court to file said supplemental bill without any notice whatsoever to this defendant and contrary to the rules and practice of this court, as prescribed by Equity Rule #57, and said Bill should be dismissed for this reason alone.

1. (b) Leave to file said supplemental bill was improvidently given by this court because on its face said bill discloses that the matters therein complained of are not in any case the proper subject of a supplemental bill, but are matters which were necessarily within the knowledge of the complainants at the time they filed their last amended intervening petition and their amended ancillary bill, respectively, in this cause, and were necessarily known to them before this cause was finally submitted to the Master, and hence said matter should have been introduced into this cause, if at all, before that time, and it is too late to do so now.

2. No notice of the application for the restraining order entered herein was given by the said complainants to this defendant and no sufficient reason given for not doing so; although it is a local company and the office of one of its counsel is but a block or two distant from the office of the counsel for the complainants. The court should therefore, for this reason alone, restore the status quo, dissolve the restraining order and discharge the rule to show cause.

3. It appears from the face of the supplemental bill that no case is stated entitling the said complainants therein to any such relief as is thereby sought or prayed for from or against this defendant.

4. As to the third and last of the three cases pending in the said Circuit Court of Jackson County, commenced July 2, 1906, the subject-matter of said suit is not only personal in its nature, but is not even in anywise involved in this cause or causes, but the same is entirely foreign to and independent of the issues herein; and in addition thereto the Belt Company, a joint complainant here, can have no interest of any kind therein.

5. The Belt Company and the Southern Company claim to be independent corporations and such as cannot join in a bill for an injunction of the nature of said supplemental bill. If they are independent corporations, their alleged rights are distinct; while 640 if the Southern Company is a consolidation of the Belt Company, the state suits are of necessity well brought. The interests of each of said joint complainants in the said ancillary cause are each hostile and adverse to the other.

6. The Belt Company is no party to the said state court cases, and therefore cannot validly join in such a supplemental bill, and hence such bill by reason alone of the Belt Company being a joint complainant is bad. While,

7. As to the Southern Company, the other joint complainant, it is barred and estopped from maintaining any such supplemental bill upon the following grounds and for the following reasons, viz:

(a) Because it obtained a prior injunction against this defendant in the month of August, 1905, restraining the prosecution of the first two of said suits, which injunctionary order was upon appeal by this defendant reversed by the United States Court of Appeals in and for this district in June, 1906, and the said order was set aside, the said Court of Appeals finding that there was no right upon the part of the said Southern Company to enjoin the prosecution of said suits at law. Said subject-matter is now res adjudicata and the Southern Company is now estopped and precluded from obtaining any further injunction to the same end. Said decision of said Court of Appeals is reported in 146 Federal Reporter, page 337, to which defendant hereby refers.

(b) The said Southern Company filed a demurrer and tendered an issue in said state court suits.

(c) After the reversal of the said injunctionary order the said Southern Company withdrew its demurrer in said state court suits, and filed answers therein, to which answers replications were filed by this defendant about June 1, 1907.

(d) Afterwards and in June, 1906, said Southern Company filed in said three causes in said state court a motion for a stay of proceedings therein, which motion the court heard in each instance, and the said motions were on or about June —, 1907, formally denied by that court.

(e) After the said motions were denied this defendant gave formal notice to the said Southern Company that it would move the said state court for an early setting of said causes for trial before the summer vacation, and said motion was made and heard and denied; the said court, however giving notice to the counsel for the Southern Company that the said causes should be tried early in the fall of the present year.

641 In September this defendant gave notice to the said Southern Company to have the court set said causes for an early date, and upon the protest of the said Southern Company against an earlier trial the said causes were set for trial as late as December 2, 1907.

The said Southern Company has therefore not sought its relief at the earliest, or even an early opportunity, and has also waived any alleged right to enjoin the due prosecution of said state court suits.

8. Between this cause or causes and the said state court cases there is (a) No identity of parties.

(b) No identity of the cause of action.

(c) No identity in the relief sought.

(d) No identity of the jurisdiction in which said causes are pending.

9. The said state court actions are each and all actions in personam, and do not involve any tangible property, or the title thereto, which is under the control or in the custody of this court; nor do said suits or the due prosecution thereof constitute any interference with the present suits in this court or the due prosecution thereof.

Nor has this court the possession of the said notes and open account held by the Trust Company against the Belt Company; nor has it impounded the same or any part thereof; and this appears also upon the face of said supplemental bill.

10. Complainants have been guilty of laches in applying for relief from the prosecution of said state court cases.

11. The said stocks, bonds and other property which defendant holds as collateral to said notes and open accounts were on September 6, 1900, of the reasonable value of over $300,000, and are now of the reasonable value of over $400,000; while the bond given by said Cambria Company, being the only bond given therefor, was in the penal sum of but $10,000. The said complainants have already unjustly interfered with defendant's prosecution of its claims and a realization thereon. And the issuance of said injunction order being, as defendant asserts, unwarranted in law, cannot validly be made the basis or excuse for a further interference with the Trust Company's legal right.

12. As to the original cause herein, in which the Cambria Steel Company is complainant, 642 (a) It is a bill to wind up the said Belt Company, and various other Missouri companies, each of which is independent of the other. The bill is not merely multifarious, but it and the proceedings taken under it, amount to an attempt to join in one cause a series of administration of estates, and such estates being those of independent corporations. The court is without jurisdiction in the premises, and the said proceedings ought not only be stayed, they ought not be and cannot validly be the basis for any further appeals for equity interference.

(b) Said Cambria bill is bad also for want of any equitable cause of action or right to relief appearing on the face thereof, against any of the defendants thereto, and particularly as against this defendant.

13. There is no valid cause of action against this defendant set up in the said ancillary bill of complaint; no actual fraud is charged therein and said bill presents a legally meaningless theory and an impossible case.

14. There is no valid cause of action or basis of complaint set forth in said intervening petition of the Southern Company; and the same has nothing whatever to do with the personal liability of the Southern Company on which said state court suits are based.

15. It appears from the face of each of said pleadings, viz., the Cambria Company's bill of complaint, the ancillary bill and said intervening petition, that the alleged causes of action are and each of them is barred by limitations and laches appearing on the face thereof, and the same are in fact so barred.

16. If the said original bill, ancillary bill and intervening petition are each without equity and show no cause of action, as defendant avers is the fact, there can be no valid ground for injunction revealed by an attempt to join all three of said causes in such supplemental bill and said application for injunction.

17. As to the said alleged stipulation set out in said bill of complaint,—

(a) The same was not a consent to an accounting; in it there is expressly reserved the right to plead or answer said bill and thus to deny the right of complainants to any accounting in respect to the subject-matter of said ancillary bill;

(b) The answer filed subsequent thereto contained express denials of the right of complainants to any accounting in the way of pleas of accounts stated and settled, laches and limitations, and said pleas have never been withdrawn;

643 (c) Even if said stipulation could be treated as any consent to an accounting, it could only have supported the filing of a bill which set forth a legal and practical basis for an accounting; there is no intelligent basis of account tendered by the ancillary bill and the stipulation so far as it pertains to an account is functus officio and useless.

(d) This defendant has repeatedly and formally protested against the making of the abnormal record in the above causes, and denied and repudiated any such construction of said stipulation by its motions to have the testimony closed and to have the ancillary bill and intervening petition held to be without equity and dismissed.

(e) The said stipulation even if treated as a consent to an accounting, has been grossly abused by the complainants creating the abnormal record in said cause or causes, and the same cannot equitably be made the basis for any appeal upon the part of Complainants for further attacks upon this Trust Company.

(f) Said stipulation could not in any event be treated as extending beyond the scope of said accounting case, or as giving any pretense for enjoining the prosecution of defendant's legal rights which were outside of the scope of said accounting case.

18. There is no sufficient showing that the Trust Company is insolvent; and the reverse is true, as it has over $600,000 of net assets, exclusive of its claims against the Southern and Belt Companies and the collateral thereto.

19. On the other hand the Belt Company appears from the record in said cause to be totally insolvent, and to have lost all its tangible property upon foreclosure sale to the Southern Company as purchaser thereof.

19. It appears from the record in this cause that the complainants have oppressed, annoyed and heavily damaged this defendant by making the abnormal record in this case, and in its dilatory steps taken therein and in soliciting and obtaining the former injunction against the prosecution of two of said State Court suits; and complainants do not come into court with their present application with clean hands.

Wherefore defendant Guardian Trust Company prays that the restraining order heretofore issued herein be dissolved forthwith; that the rule to show cause why a temporary injunction should not issue herein be discharged, and the application for the same denied, and that the said supplemental bill shall be dismissed; and 644 that the costs, expenses, outlays and attorney's fees incurred by this defendant in resisting such application shall be adjudicated upon the final hearing of said cause or causes.

Supplemental Bill of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, and Edward F. Swinney, its Receiver, in the matter of the actions at law of the Guardian Trust Company vs. the Kansas City Southern Railway Company in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri.

Bond.

Know all men by These Presents: That we, the Guardian Trust Company as principal, and the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, of Baltimore, Md., as surety, are held and firmly bound unto the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and Edward F. Swinney, its Receiver, in the full and just sum of One Thousand ($1000.00)

Dollars, to be paid to them, their successors or assigns, to which payment well and truly to be made, we bind ourselves, our successors and assigns jointly and severally by these presents, sealed with our seals, dated at Kansas City, Mo., the 10th day of March, 1908.

Whereas, lately on the 22nd day of February, 1908, in the above entitled cause, an order was made granting the prayer of the supplemental bill of the said Kansas City Southern Railway Com-653 pany, the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company and Edward F. Swinney, its Receiver, for a temporary injunction against the Guardian Trust Company, restraining and enjoining it from prosecuting certain actions at law against the Kansas City Southern Railway Company in the Circuit Court of Jackson County, Missouri, and the said Guardian Trust Company has obtained an order allowing an appeal from the said order granting said temporary injunction, and has obtained a citation, directed to the said complainants in the said supplemental bill, citing and admonishing them to be and appear in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit at the City of St. Paul, Minnesota, sixty days from and after the date of said citation.

Now, the condition of the above obligation is such that if the said Guardian Trust Company shall prosecute said appeal to effect and answer all costs if it fail to make good its plea, then the above obligation to be void; otherwise, to remain in full force and virtue.

In Witness Whereof, the said Guardian Trust Company and the said The United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company have caused these presents to be signed by their proper officers, and their corporate seals to be hereunto affixed.

Afterwards, to-wit, on the 14th day of March, 1908, a copy of a letter to Guardian Trust Co. was filed. Said copy of letter and the Affidavit of Thomas J. Bales attached thereto is in words and figures as follows:

March 5, 1908.

Guardian Trust Company, First National Bank Building, City.

GENTLEMEN: Referring to what is known as the Guardian Trust litigation, there are, as you know, three suits pending in 654 the State Court at Kansas City, in which the Guardian Trust Company is plaintiff and The Kansas City Southern Railway Company is defendant, and one equity case pending in the Federal Court here, which involves an accounting between the Suburban Belt Railroad Company and the Trust Company, and also involves the disposition of certain collateral security held by the Trust Company.

It seems to me that it is a waste of substance and energy to have this litigation pending in both courts. Inasmuch as all of the testimony has been taken in the case in the Federal Court upon every issue that can possible arise between the parties, and inasmuch as no testimony has yet been taken in the cases in the State Court, it seems to me that it is to the interest of all parties concerned to have all matters of difference determined in the Federal Court case. All that will be necessary would be for you to file your cross-bill in the Federal Court setting up against the Kansas City Southern your claim that it is liable to you for the debts of the Suburban Belt and of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf. As before stated, all of the evidence upon this issue has been taken, and I do not apprehend that any further testimony will be required, altho- if you should look at the matter differently, I should be willing to cover that by stipulation.

This is to notify you, therefore, that if you desire to affirmatively set up your claims against the Kansas City Southern in the equity suit now pending in the Federal Court at Kansas City, I will agree that you may do so, and give you a stipulation to that effect, so that every matter of difference between your Company and those that I represent may be settled by one comprehensive decree.

One of your suits pending in the State Court is against the Kansas City Southern on account of [and] alleged indebtedness of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf. If this arrangement above outlined is satisfactory to you, I think we can stipulate as to the amount of the indebtedness from the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf to you, so that it will not be necessary to take any testimony upon that point.

I have made suggestions along this line to your attorneys heretofore, but have thought it proper to make this formal offer to you, so that there may hereafter be no misunderstanding upon the subject.

Yours truly,

S.W.—M. S. W. MOORE.

STATE OF MISSOURI,

Thomas J. Bales, of lawful age, being first duly sworn upon his oath states that he enclosed the original of this letter in 655 an envelope addressed to John A. Prescott, First National Bank Building, Kansas City, Missouri, and deposited the same with the necessary postage in the United States mail on March 5th, 1908.

THOMAS J. BALES.

Afterwards, to-wit, on the 21st day of June, 1909, a Mandate from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals Eighth Circuit, was filed. Said Mandate is in words and figures as follows:

It is further ordered that this cause be, and the same is hereby remanded to the said Circuit Court with directions to dismiss the supplemental bill of complaint for want of equity.

It is further ordered that a mandate be issued in this cause to the said Circuit Court in ten days from and after this date.

No. 2468.

vs.
KANSAS CITY SUBURBAN BELT RAILROAD COMPANY et al.

Order.

This cause came on for hearing this 19th day of June, 1909. Complainants suggested the death of Thomas T. Crittenden, Receiver of the Central Improvement Company. Ancillary Bill.

Report of Shannon C. Douglass, Special Master, on the Second Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint, and Intervening Petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company.

Comes now Shannon C. Douglass, heretofore appointed Special Master in the above entitled causes, and respectfully represents to the Court that, pursuant to the various orders of reference herein made at different times, during the pendency of this hearing before him, in respect to the original and ancillary bills of complaint, and the intervening petition of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, he took, from time to time, as requested by counsel for the parties interested, all the testimony offered by them as to the large number of issues involved under the pleadings and stipulations in these causes, and which taking of testimony in shorthand continued through several years, and when transcribed into typewritten pages, resulted in the accumulation of the phenomenal record of approximately 36,000 pages.

There have been numerous ocurrences, all more or less unavoidable, during the progress of this hearing, which have operated to materially delay the conclusion and filing of the Master's report. There was an entire change of counsel for complainants and respondents in January, 1905, when hardly one-fourth of the record had been made, and thereby properly necessitating additional time for the new counsel to familiarize themselves with the pleadings and complicated state of facts presented by the evidence in the cause, and, then again, in 1909, there was another change of counsel for respondent, the Guardian Trust Company, which occasioned additional briefs and suggestions. For the past three years, the Master has given a large part of his time to the examination and consideration of this lengthy record in connection with the arguments and brief of the learned counsel for complainants and defendants, and the intervenor.

It is estimated that the items involved, first and last, in this accounting, will aggregate, 10,000 to 12,000, and hence, it will be readily seen that it has been impossible, within the compass of this report, to do more than group together the different classes of items which characterize the issues in this cause.

663 In the Matter of the Complaints or Charges in the Second Amended and Supplemental Ancillary Bill of Complaint.

I.

General Statement.

1. The original bill of complaint in this cause was filed in this court by the complainant, Cambria Steel Company, on September 6, 1900, against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company, Union Terminal Railroad Company, Kansas City & Independence Air Line, Guardian Trust Company, Missouri Elevator & Terminal Company, Central Improvement Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Fairmount Amusement Company, and Northern Townsite Company, defendants, and, in and by which bill of complaint, the Cambria Steel Company set up the recovery of a judgment by it against the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company for the sum of $100,962.91, and the issuance, and delivery, and return unsatisfied, of an execution thereon, and it was sought to subject to the payment and satisfaction of said judgment, certain assets, rights and properties belonging to said Belt Company, and the other above named defendants (Rec. 36-19253-'55).

The original ancillary bill of the Belt Company and its receivers, Stuart R. Knott and Edward F. Swinney, was filed in this cause on November 20, 1901. On March 5, 1905, an amended and supplemental ancillary bill by the same complainants was filed and the Trust Company's answer thereto was filed on June 1, 1905.

On July 2, 1906, their second amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint was filed by the Belt Company and Edward F. Swinney, as sole receiver, and, on the same day, the Trust Company filed its answer thereto, which adopted, as part thereof, its answer theretofore filed on June 1, 1905, to the first amended ancillary bill. The second amended and supplemental ancillary bill of complaint, hereinafter referred to as the second ancillary bill, was brought by the complainants therein, against the Cambria Company, Trust Company, Elevator Company, Central Company, and Thomas T. Crittenden, its receiver, Townsite Company, and Amusement —, the Southern Company subsequently becoming an intervenor in the cause. Each and all of the defendant cor-665 porations, except the Cambria Company, are organized and existing under the laws of the State of Missouri, having their offices and places of business at Kansas City, Missouri, and are citizens and residents of this state. The Cambria Company is a Pennsylvania corporation, existing under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, and is a non-resident of Missouri (Rec. 36-19254).

On October 19th, 1906, the answers of the Elevator Company, Townsite Company, Amusement Company, Central Company and its receiver, were filed to said second ancillary bill of complaint and, replications in the usual form were afterwards filed by complainants.

In the cause entitled W. W. Bierce, et al., against the Trust Company, brought and still pending in this division of this Circuit Court, one Francis M. Black was, on November 30, 1900, appointed receiver of the defendant Trust Company, and, at the time of the filing of the ancillary bill herein, was the duly qualified and acting receiver of such company, until his death in May, 1902; that he was succeeded as receiver by Wash Adams, who continued to act as such receiver until he was discharged by order of this Court, made on or about November 1, 1902, and, that thereafter, the Trust Company has been continuously, and is now, in the possession of all its corporate property, and is continuing to wind up its own business affairs in connection therewith (Rec. 21-11313-'14).

In said Bierce action, the said Wash Adams was, on November 8, 1900, appointed receiver of the Elevator Company, but thereafter, the assets and property of that company have, since the filing of the original ancillary bill of complaint, been turned over to the trustee, the mortgagee in certain mortgages covering the property of the Elevator Company (Rec. 21-11311-'14, 11315-'20, and Vol. 36-19254).

At the time the original ancillary bill was filed, Wash Adams was the duly qualified and acting receiver of the Central Company, having been, in this Cambria case, appointed such receiver on November 8, 1900 (see admissions Vol. 21-11311). Adams afterwards resigned, and T. T. Crittenden, a resident and citizen of Missouri, was appointed his successor on or about June 27, 1902 (Vol. 21-11321).

Prior to the filing of the original bill of complaint by the Cambria Company, four certain other bills of complaint were filed in this Court by the Provident Company of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, two of these bills being against the Belt Company, a Missouri corporation, as sole defendant, the third being against the Union 666 Company, a Kansas corporation, and the Belt Company, as defendants, and the fourth being against the Air Line and Belt Company, Missouri corporations. Each of said bills sought the foreclosure of the first mortgage upon the railroad and other properties, real and personal, described in the respective mortgages and bills of complaint, and all of which several described properties had been operated by the Belt Company as a continuous and allied system, the Belt Company being also the beneficial owner thereof, by reason of owning the capital stock of the several companies. Upon the same day that said bills of complaint were filed, an application was made for the appointment of a receiver for the property of the Belt, Union and Air Line, and, on September 6, 1900, an order was duly entered of record in this Court, in all of said causes, as well as in the above entitled Cambria cause, appointing Edward F. Swinney and Stuart R. Knott as receivers of the Belt, Union and Air Line Companies, and vesting in them, as such receivers, all the right, title, interest, estate and property of said companies, and authorizing and directing them, as such receivers, to take such steps and institute such proceedings as might be necessary, to make restoration to the Belt Company, and its said receivers, of any property rights belonging to it, and to compel an accounting from any and all persons, firms or corporations, from whom the Belt Company might be entitled to such accounting, and Knott and Swinney were authorized to appear in any and all suits theretofore or thereafter instituted against the Belt — in its name, or in the names of the receivers, and to defend any and all suits (pages 3 and 4, paragraph 4, Trust Company's answer to the amended and supplemental ancillary bill; and the orders of appointment of receivers in the four foreclosure causes, Rec. 56-34416 to 34440).

Knott and Swinney, as such receivers, appeared and filed an answer to the Cambria bill, and, since the filing of the original ancillary bill herein, Stuart R. Knott resigned as receiver, his resignation being accepted on July 5, 1905, and Edward F. Swinney was continued as sole receiver.

Immediately after their appointment as receivers, and pursuant to the orders appointing them, they took possession of each and all of the properties of the Belt, Air Line, and Union Companies, and thereafter continuously operated all these railroad properties, until the foreclosure sales, which vested in the Southern Company the title to all the railroad properties comprising the Belt System.

667 On November 6, 1901, in said four foreclosure causes, decrees of foreclosure and sale were rendered, directing the sale of the railroad properties of the Belt, Air Line, Consolidated, and Union Companies, covered by mortgages upon said railroads and properties, respectively, and, on December 31, 1901, the properties so covered by said mortgages, were, in pursuance of said decree of foreclosure and sale, duly sold and conveyed to the purchaser, the Kansas City Southern Railway Company (see paragraph 4, page 4, Trust Company's answer to amended supplemental ancillary bill of complaint; also, certified copies of decrees of sale, Vol. 44-28775 to 28808, and, orders and decrees confirming said foreclosure, pp. 28810-'14, and commissioners' deeds pp. 28867 and 28877).

The Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company was incorporated under the laws of Missouri, February 14, 1889 (Rec. 11-5680) and so continued until July 17, 1899, when, by the proper statutory proceedings, its name was changed to Guardian Trust Company (Rec. 11-5680).

2. Before taking up, for consideration, the various "items", or complaints, contained in the second ancillary bill, the Master has thought best to make a somewhat extended reference to the controlling question in this cause, that is, the alleged Domination and Control by the Trust Company of, and over, the Belt Company, and its constituent companies, which complainants contend to have existed throughout the whole period, covered by the transactions, complained of in said bill.

It will be manifest to the Court, from a careful reading of this second ancillary bill, that it is grounded upon the proposition that the Trust Company so dominated and controlled these other companies, that their directors and officers were merely agents of the Trust Company to execute the wishes of A. E. Stilwell and others dominant in the control of Trust Company affairs. If, however, under the proofs in the record and the law applicable thereto, it shall be determined that these corporations, as legal entities, were not so dominated or controlled by the Trust Company or its officers, as to destroy or impair their reasonable freedom of corporate action along lines beneficial to themselves, then it follows that the very basis of the bill will be gone, and, that all other questions, affecting the legality or validity of the various complaints in the bill, may be disposed of according to their individual or respective merits, without regard to any alleged domination. The substance of the particular paragraphs of the second ancillary bill, necessary to show, in a general way, the contentions of complainants, in respect to such 668 alleged domination and control, are next hereinafter stated, though continuously throughout the bill, similar allegations are made as to such dominations of the Trust Company, respecting the thousands of items involved in the various accountings, sought by complainants in this cause.

The general nature of the Bill and particularly of the charge in respect to the Trust Company's Domination and Control over the Belt and other companies, will be shown in the following averments in the Second Ancillary Bill:

(a) That the Cambria Company filed its bill of complaint against the Belt Company and the other defendants, setting up the recovery of a judgment by it against the Belt Company for the sum of $100,962.91, and the issuance and delivery, and return unsatisfied, of an execution thereon, and, thereupon, the Cambria Company sought to subject to the payment of said judgment certain rights, properties and assets belonging to said Belt Company, and the other defendants.

(b) That, prior to the filing of the Cambria bill of Complaint, four certain other bills of complaint had been theretofore filed in this Court by the Provident Life & Trust Company of Philadelphia, two of which being against the Belt Company, as the sole defendant, the third bill being against the Union Company, a Kansas corporation, and the Belt Company, as defendants, and the fourth bill being against the Air Line, and the Belt Company. Each of said bills sought the foreclosure of a first mortgage upon the certain railroad properties, described in the respective bills of complaint, and, all of which railroad properties had been for some time prior theretofore operated by the Belt Company as a continuous and allied system, the Belt Company being also alleged to be the beneficial owner of said properties, by reason of its owning the capital stock of said companies; that, upon the same day said bills of complaint were filed, an application was made for the appointment of a receiver of all the properties of the Belt Company, and thereupon, on September 6, 1900, an order was duly entered of record, in each of said causes, appointing Edward F. Swinney and Stuart R. Knott as such receivers, and vesting them with all the rights, property and interest of said Belt Company, and authorizing and directing them to take such steps and institute such proceedings, legal or otherwise, as might be necessary to compel a restoration to said Belt Company, and to said receivers, of any property rights belonging to it, and, also, to compel an accounting from [from] all persons, firms or corporations; and, they were further authorized to appear in and defend any and all suits theretofore or thereafter instituted against said Belt Company.

669 (c) That, under the authority so vested in them, the receivers, for and on behalf of said Belt Company, appeared and filed their answers to all said bills of complaint, and, thereupon they brought their ancillary bill of complaint herein against the defendants, and, the said Stuart R. Knott having resigned as receiver, the said Edward F. Swinney as its sole receiver, has brought a second ancillary bill against the defendants; that, immediately upon their appointment, the receivers took possession of all the Belt properties and operated the same until the foreclosure sales hereinafter mentioned; and that, on November 6, 1901, in the four foreclosure causes, decrees of foreclosure and sale were duly rendered, directing the sale of the railroads, and properties, of the Belt, Air Line, Consolidated and Union Companies, which were covered by the mortgages executed by said respective companies, and, on December 31, 1901, the said railroads and properties so mortgaged were, pursuant to said decrees of foreclosure, sold and duly conveyed to the purchaser thereof, the Southern Company.

(d) That the matters and things set forth in this second ancillary bill of complaint are ancillary to said foreclosure suits pending in this Court, and are properly cognizable in this Court, which has possession of all the property of the Belt Company, excepting such as was covered by its mortgage and has been conveyed, as stated, to the Southern Company.

(e) That the Trust Company was incorporated, according to law, in 1883, and, until the month of June, 1899, its name was the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, but at a later date was changed to the Guardian Trust Company.

(f) That, on or about the 1st day of January, 1887, the Suburban Company was organized for the purpose of building a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas, and was either organized by the Trust Company, or the control thereof passed to the Trust Company shortly after its incorporation, so that the servants and employees of the Trust Company were elected as officers and directors of the Suburban Company, which was at all the times mentioned in the bill, dominated and controlled by the Trust Company; that, by reason of the Trust Company's dominating and controlling the Suburban Company, by virtue of holding possession of the officers of its board of directors and officers, it caused the Suburban Company to issue and deliver all its capital stock to the Trust Company, and, also, caused the Suburban Company to execute its bonds, aggregating $1,000,000.00, 670 and secured by a first mortgage upon all of its corporate properties then held, and to be thereafter acquired; and, that said bonds, in like manner, by virtue of such domination and control of the Trust Company, were delivered to it, and the Trust Company thereupon proceeded to sell and otherwise dispose of said bonds and stock and to apply the proceeds thereof, as claimed by it, for the corporate purposes of the Suburban Company, in the construction and operation of its railroad, but the Trust Company, although often requested so to do, has not, at any time, truly accounted to the Suburban Company for the proceeds, realized by it from the sales of said bonds and stock, and has never accounted for the proceeds, or the manner in which it expended the same, except as stated in the bill.

(g) That the Trust Company caused to be incorporated, under the laws of Missouri, a corporation known as the Consolidated Company, for the purpose of building a line of road to connect with that constructed, or proposed to be constructed, by the Suburban Company, although it is alleged that the latter had full power, under its charter, to have itself constructed said road; and that the Trust Company caused the Consolidated Company to issue and deliver to it its entire capital stock, and, also, caused it to issue a first mortgage upon all its corporate property, to secure bonds aggregating the sum of $750,000.00, which it is alleged were, by reason of said domination of the Trust Company, delivered to it, and it thereupon sold and disposed of said stock and bonds, but has never truly accounted to the Consolidated Company for the disposition thereof, nor for the proceeds of the sales.

(h) That, thereafter, on or about July 25, 1892, the Consolidated Company and the Suburban Company, as authorized by the statutes of the State of Missouri, entered into articles of consolidation, whereby the two companies became one consolidated corporation, known as the Belt Company, and of which the said Swinney and Knott were appointed receivers, as above stated, and, by reason of which consolidation, the Belt Company and the receivers have succeeded to all the rights of the Consolidated and Suburban Companies; and that, at the time of the consolidation of these two companies, as aforesaid, the Trust Company caused its officers and employees to be elected to the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company, so formed by said consolidation, and continued such persons in such respective positions, continuously, until about April, 1900, and whereby the Trust Company completely dominated and controlled the actions of the Belt Company.

671 (i) That, on or about December 30, 1891, and prior to said consolidation, it was found advisable, in the course of the construction of the line of road of the Suburban Company, to have a corporation formed under the laws of Kansas, for the purpose of building and holding the title to that portion of the line of road of the Suburban Company, lying within the State of Kansas, and, for that purpose, the Trust Company caused the Union Company to be incorporated and its own officers and employees to be elected as the officers and directors of the Union Company; that the Trust Company caused all the stock of the Union Company to be issued to the Suburban or Belt Company, and, also caused the Union Company to execute its first mortgage bonds in the sum of $2,000,000.00, secured upon all corporate properties then owned and thereafter to be acquired, and that all of said bonds were issued and delivered to the Trust Company, for the use and benefit of the Suburban or Belt Company, and were disposed of by the Trust Company, but that the latter, though liable to account to the Belt Company for the proceeds and disposition of said stocks and bonds, has failed and refused to truly do so.

(j) That, on January 23, 1891, the Trust Company caused to be incorporated a Missouri corporation, known as the Air Line, for the purpose of building a line of railroad connecting the line of the Suburban Company and the City of Independence, Missouri, the capital stock of such company being $500,000.00; that the Trust Company caused its officers and employees to be elected directors and officers of the Air Line Company, which was caused by the Trust Company to issue its first mortgage bonds in the amount of $300,000.00, and to secure the same by a mortgage on all its corporate property, then owned, and thereafter to be acquired; that through the officers and directors of the Air Line, elected as above stated, the Trust Company at all times dominated and controlled the Air Line until the month of April, 1900; that, thereafter, the Trust Company acquired all the stocks and bonds of the Air Line, in consideration for building its railroad, and disposed of the same for corporate purposes, but, though often requested to do so, it has never truly accounted to the Belt Company for the disposition of said stocks and bonds, or their proceeds, except as hereinafter stated.

(k) "That the Trust Company, at all times, up to, and about the month of April, 1900, absolutely and completely dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt Company, by reason of the fact that the officers and employees of the Trust Company were 672 elected officers and directors of the Belt, at the behest of the Trust Company, and were simply dummies, acting as the agents of the Trust Company;" that the Trust Company disbursed all the moneys realized from the sale of bonds and stocks of the several companies hereinbefore named and attended to the disbursement of all moneys used in the building of the lines of railroads of said companies, and that the total cost of said railroads did not exceed the sum of $2,000,000.00, but that there was actually delivered to and disposed — by the Trust Company, the aforesaid stocks and bonds, aggregating more than $5,000,000.00, and for which the Trust Company has never accounted to the Belt Company, except as hereinbefore stated.

(l) That, on or about June 30, 1896, the Trust Company either in its own name, or in the name of some of its officers, or some corporation controlled by it, had entered into a contract, whereby it was obliged to construct a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pattonsburg, Missouri, for the purpose of connecting at that point with the Omaha & St. Louis Railroad Company, and the Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern Railroad Company; that the Trust Company thereupon caused the incorporation of the Connecting Company, and certain of its officers and employees to be elected officers and employees of the Connecting Company, and, by virtue thereof, at all times dominated and controlled the affairs of the Connecting Company; that the Trust Company, being under obligations to construct said road, and, in order to avoid all liability, or the possibility of loss in such construction, conceived the idea of having the Belt Company undertake the construction, in consideration of the issuance and delivery to it of the stocks and bonds of the Connecting Company, and by virtue of its domination and control over the affairs of both the Belt and Connecting Companies, the Trust Company caused a contract to be entered into between the Belt and Connecting Companies, whereby the Belt Company agreed to construct, and did construct, said line of railroad for the Connecting Company, in consideration of the issuance to the Belt Company of certain first and second mortgage bonds and stock of the Connecting Company, fully specified in said contract, and set up in Exhibit "A" to the answer of the Trust Company filed in this case; that said line of railroad, so built as aforesaid, was constructed for the sole use and benefit of the Trust Company, and for the purpose of enabling it to comply with its obligations to furnish said railroad, which was not and never has been of any value whatever to the Belt Company; that the construction of said road by the Belt Company was the result of the Trust Company's domination and control of the Belt Com-673 pany, and, all of the moneys paid out by the Belt Company, in the construction of the railroad of said Connecting Company, passed through the hands of the Trust Company, and all the stocks and bonds, which were to have been delivered to the Belt Company under terms of said contract, likewise passed through the hands of the Trust Company, which sold or otherwise disposed of the same, and has never accounted to the Belt therefor, except as hereinafter stated; and it is alleged by complainants that, in so using the Belt Company in the construction of said road, the Trust Company is chargeable, in law and in equity, with the amount of the loss claimed by the Trust Company to have resulted to the Belt, and should be held accountable therefor.

(m) That, during the time it [do] dominated and controlled the affairs of the Belt, Consolidated, Union and Air Line Companies, the Trust Company, at various times, had said last named companies advanced to it, or take out of their earnings, and assets, large sums of money, which it pretended to expend on account of and for said companies, respectively; that, on account of the fact that the Trust Company at all time so dominated and controlled the affairs of said other named companies, the complainants are unable to state the amount of money so appropriated by it, but charge that the same aggregates upwards of $500,000.00, and for which the Trust Company has never truly accounted for, in any manner whatever, except as hereinafter stated.

(n) That, during the times hereinafter mentioned, the Trust Company took upon itself the business of paying out practically all the moneys, which were paid out for the benefit of the Belt Company, and of buying for the Belt Company practically all the properties, which the latter needed to acquire in its business of operating its said railroad, and used the moneys of the Belt Company for that purpose, but, instead of taking title of the properties so purchased in the name of the Belt Company, the Trust Company caused other corporations to be formed for the purpose of holding the naked legal title to said respective properties, and caused the capital stock of said corporations, so organized, to be issued to the Belt Company, and then turned over to the Trust Company, or to be issued to the Trust Company direct, in trust for the use and benefit of the Belt Company; and the Trust Company caused its own servants and agents and employees to be elected and continued as the officers and directors of said companies, respectively, so that the Trust Company, in the same manner that it controlled the affairs of the Belt Company, also dominated and controlled the affairs of the said subsidiary companies; that, among the companies so 674 organized by the Trust Company, in the manner aforesaid, was the Elevator Company, with a capital stock of $100,000.00, of which $42,500.00 has been issued; that said Elevator Company owns two certain elevators in Kansas City, Missouri, along the line of the Belt Company, the construction of which was caused by the Trust Company, and, also, another elevator built with the money of the Belt Company upon the request of the Trust Company, and which elevator was destroyed; that no true accounting has been had between the Trust Company and the Belt Company, as to the amount of money which it actually expended for the construction of said elevators, or the manner in which it disposed of the funds received by it from the Belt Company, although requests for such accountings has frequently been made upon the officers of the Trust Company; that the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to assume all the outstanding debts and liabilities of the Elevator Company, and upon the same the Belt Company paid large sums of money, for which it has never been reimbursed; that, since November 8, 1900, the Court made an order in this cause, turning over to the Trust Company the said properties of the Elevator Company for the collection of rents therefrom, and the application of said rents upon the mortgages or encumbrances held by the Trust Company.

(o) That the Trust Company caused to be organized the Central Company, a Missouri corporation, with a capital stock of $200,000.00 of which $141,500.00, par value, has been issued, and which company was organized for the purpose of holding the title to various pieces of real estate in Kansas City, Missouri, and elsewhere, purchased for the use and benefit of the Belt Company, the Gulf Company, and others of the above named companies, so organized, dominated and controlled by the Trust Company; that the officers and employees of the Central Company were officers and employees of the Trust Company, and continued in control and management until April, 1900; that certain pieces of real estate, of vital importance to the Belt Company, are held in the name of the Central Company, and which real estate the Trust Company caused to be purchased with the Belt funds; that the Trust Company has never truly accounted to the Belt Company, although often requested to do so, for the many sums of money paid out by the Belt to the Trust Company, in purchasing such real estate; that certain shares of stock of the Central Company, though belonging to the Belt Company, were issued to the Trust Company, which disposed of the same, and never truly accounted therefor to the Belt Company; that a large amount of property was purchased with money advanced by the Belt Company, and was really Belt property, though 675 the title thereto was taken in the name of the Central Company, and for the moneys so advanced by the Belt Company, it has never been reimbursed, unless the title to such properties has passed from the Central Company by virtue of the foreclosure sale of the properties covered by its mortgage.

(p) That another subsidiary company organized by the Trust Company was the Amusement Company, with a capital stock of $2,500.00, all of which belonged to the Belt Company; that said Amusement Company was dominated and controlled by the Trust Company in the same manner as the other corporations herein set forth, and all the moneys expended by it were supplied either by the Belt Company, or by the Trust Company, and charged to the Belt Company; that the Trust Company took upon itself the duty of disbursing all of said funds, and large sums of money were paid by the Belt Company to the Trust Company for that purpose, but the latter has never at any time truly accounted to the Belt Company for said moneys so received, or for the manner in which they were expended; that said Amusement Company was organized for the purpose of operating Fairmount Park, along the line of the Air Line road, and, during the time it so dominated and controlled the Belt Company, the Trust Company caused it to advance large sums of money for the purpose of fitting up Fairmount Park, and aggregating nearly $350,000.00, and for which the Trust Company, though often requested so to do, has never, at any time, truly accounted to the Belt — for the manner in which it expended such money, except as hereinafter stated.

(q) That the Trust Company also caused the incorporation of the Townsite Company, a Missouri corporation, with an authorized capitalization of $100,000.00, of which $92,800.00 has been issued, said company having been organized in connection with the construction of the railroad of the Connecting Company, for the purpose of acquiring property at or near townsites along the line of said road; that the Trust Company, in the same manner that it dominated the other corporations above named, caused its own servants and employees to be elected and maintained as officers and directors of the Townsite Company and did cause the Belt Company to advance to the Townsite Company upwards of $47,000.00, which it used in the purchase of property, and was taken in the name of the Townsite Company; that substantially all the money with which the property of the Townsite Company was acquired, was advanced by the Belt Company, and that the Trust Company, instead of issuing to the Belt Company all the capital stock of the Townsite Company, issued large portions of it to itself or to other persons, for its use and benefit, or otherwise disposed of the same, 676 and that the Trust Company, though requested so to do, has never truly accounted to the Belt Company for the moneys so received by it for the Townsite Company, or the manner in which it was expended except as hereinafter stated.

(r) That the Trust Company also caused the incorporation of the Gulf Company, for the purpose of constructing a line of railroad from Kansas City, Missouri, to the Gulf of Mexico, and in order to acquire the funds, with which to construct such railroad, it caused the railroad company to issue its first mortgage to secure an issue of bonds, the amount of which outstanding on April 1, 1899, was $23,000,000.00, at which time a default was made in the payment of interest on the bonds, and a bill was forthwith filed for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and receivers were appointed, and proceedings had, resulting in the sale of said railroad under the foreclosure and decree.

(s) That the Belt Company, the Union Company and the Air Line, were largely dependent upon the Gulf Company for their earnings so that it was well known to the Trust Company that, if the Gulf Company went into the hands of receivers, it would necessarily result in the insolvency of the Belt and the other companies named, and would, ultimately, necessitate their being also placed in the hands of receivers, and the foreclosure of the mortgages upon the property; that the Trust Company, by reason of its domination and control over the affairs of the Gulf Company, well knew, prior to the 1st day of March, 1899, that the Gulf — would make default in the payment of the installment of interest due on that date, and that such default would result in the filing of a bill to foreclose the mortgage, and for the appointment of receivers for the road, and that thereupon, the Trust Company set about to contrive a scheme whereby it might appropriate to itself, before the Belt Company passed beyond its control, all of the remaining property and assets of the Belt Company, which were in such shape that they could be transferred to the Trust Company; that the Trust Company caused to be exhibited to its own officers and employees who were holding positions as officers and directors of the Belt Company, various claims and demands which it alleged were due and owing by the Belt Company to it, and caused such officers to pass upon and approve said claims and demands, and thereupon caused such officers and directors of the Belt Company, between March 31, 1899, and February 9, 1900, to execute to the Trust Company various pretended promissory notes and other negotiable instruments, for the alleged purpose of securing to the Trust Company

the payment of the same pretended claims, which it held 677 against the Belt Company, and, also, caused its own officers and employees to cause to be delivered or transferred to it various stocks, bonds, and accounts and other personal property belonging to the Belt Company, as collateral security for the pretended indebtedness of the Belt Company to the Trust Company: that the notes so fraudulently caused to be made by the Belt Company to the Trust Company, and the stocks and bonds held as collateral security therefor, are fully stated on pages 19, 20 and 21 of the second amended and supplemental ancillary bill.

(t) That said notes were executed, and said properties turned over as collateral security, solely by virtue of the domination and control of the Trust Company over the Belt Company, in the manner hereinbefore stated; that the Trust Company continued to keep its own officers, servants and employees filling the positions of officers and directors of the Belt Company, until about the month of April, 1900, and that at no time was there any true accounting had between the Trust and the Belt Companies, for or by reason of the matters hereinabove set forth, except such an accounting as the officers and employees of the Trust Company, so holding like positions of the Belt Company, pretended to make in looking over and going through the form of approving the accounts and statements rendered to the Trust Company by the Belt Company; that, since the filing of the original ancillary bill herein, the Trust Company has prepared and submitted a statement of account which it pretends and claims to be a full and complete statement as to all matters and transactions had between it and the Belt Company, and the other companies aforesaid, covering the matters hereinbefore set forth, but the complainant charges that the said account is insufficient, untrue, and does not properly or truly account for the stocks and bonds and other properties received by the Trust Company from or on account of the Belt Company and the other companies named; that many of the charges against the Belt and other companies are untrue, illegal, unauthorized, and ought not in law or equity be permitted to stand as charges against the Belt and other companies; that the Trust Company, in making said account, had omitted therefrom a large number of credits to which the Belt and other companies are entitled.

3. The answer of the Trust Company in effect admits the incorporation of the various companies hereinbefore mentioned, but denies that it dominated or controlled such corporations in the manner stated in the Bill, or in any other way, or that it caused said companies, or any of them, to do any of the things 678 alleged by the complainants to have been done by them, at the direction or instigation of the Trust Company, and it further denies that complainants are entitled to have any accounting in this cause.

Statement of Witnesses Cone, Woods, Telfer, Wilcox, McCarty, Howe, Nolthenius, Pickering, and Martin.

4. In support of their claim that the Belt and other companies were dominated and controlled by the Trust Company, the complainants rely, principally, upon the statements in the record made by witnesses Cone, Woods, Telfer, Wilcox, McCarty, Howe, Nolthenius, Pickering and Martin, all of whom were intimately connected with one or more of the companies involved in this cause.

(a) Robert B. Cone testified, in substance, that he was connected with the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company when organized, February 14, 1889, and, prior to that, with the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Real Estate Trust Company, a Kansas corporation, and occupied every position with the Trust Company from office boy to secretary; that, in November, 1889, he was elected cashier, in May, 1890, assistant secretary and cashier, in January, 1892, assistant treasurer, in March, 1892, secretary, and in May 1896, severed his connection with the Trust Company and moved to Boston (Rec. 57-34777 to 34781); that, during the time he was with the Trust Company, it engaged in the business of organizing companies, and acting as their financial agent in the sale of stocks and bonds; that the Belt Company was the Trust Company's first proposition of that kind, and, continuously thereafter, its principal business was in the promotion line; that the Trust Company also, organized and promoted the Air Line, Consolidated and Union Companies, and some other companies, and its profits consisted largely in selling, marketing and trading in the stocks and bonds of these companies, and it did little outside business; that A. E. Stilwell was connected with the Old Kansas corporation, and was the organizer and leading figure in it, and continued to be the leading figure in the Trust Company (Rec. 57-34788 to 34790); that he (witness) attended principally to the minute books of the Trust Company, and the Gulf Company; that, as to Stilwell being the dominating and controlling figure in these companies, he was the president of the Trust Company, and the leading officer of the other companies, which were referred to as the Stilwell companies (Rec. 57-34794 to 34795); that the Trust Company issued prospectuses of the new companies and sent them around and invited investments (Rec. 57-34802).

679 (b) W. S. Woods testified, in substance, that he was a stockholder and director in the Trust Company, had general and special knowledge of its railroad affairs, and that it had been engaged in promoting the Union, Belt, Air Line, Connecting, and Consolidated Companies, as well as other enterprises, and as the promoter of such enterprises, it was necessary for the Trust Company to market their securities; that in the building of the Belt Railroad, the Trust Company organized the Construction Company; that he regarded all these railroads as Trust Company enterprises, and the Trust Company as their promoter, and this would include the Air Line, Consolidated, Belt, Union and Northern Connecting roads, and it was the general understanding among the directors of the Trust Company that it was the promoter of these railroads (Rec. 53-31742-'44).

(c) John C. Telfer testified, in substance, that in 1890, he became auditor of the Belt, also of the Air Line, when constructed kept the books of the Construction Company, had supervision of the accounts of the Union Terminal and Consolidated Terminal, was also auditor of the Kansas City, Nevada & Fort Smith, and continued as such from May, 1890, until June, 1893, when he became assistant general auditor of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad Company in St. Louis, but prior to that, for three weeks, he was general auditor of the Trust Company. At the time he was acting as auditor of the Trust Company, Stilwell gave him a list of 28 subsidiary companies, for which he was to arrange the form and system to be used by these different companies in keeping their accounts, and, Stilwell gave him to understand that he was to have oversight of the accounting of these companies, stating that he wanted the Trust Company officials to handle, take charge of, and care for, the accounts of these various companies, which were to account to witness. At that time he had severed his connection with the subsidiary companies, though he was an official of the Trust Company. Up to that time, there had been no general auditor of the Trust Company (Rec. 17-8685-'91). The officers of the Belt, Kansas City Nevada & Fort Smith, and other companies, were in the same building, and on the same floor as the Trust Company offices, and the officials of the Belt and Trust Companies were "like one family of officers and clerks." Howe, who was cashier of the Belt, also acted as cashier of the other subsidiary companies. Dobson & Trimble, later Trimble & Braley, represented the Trust Company, as well as the Belt, Consolidated, Air Line and Union Companies, and all of the 28 companies a list of which had been handed to witness by Stilwell (Rec. 17-8692 to 8700.)

680 Stilwell, president of the Trust Company, received as vice president of the Construction Company, from July, 1889, to November, 1889, $50 a month, and subsequently, from December 1889, to July, 1900, $100 per month and he also received from the Belt Company from May 1, 1890, a salary of $100 per month. W. S. Taylor (one of Belt Company's officers), received a salary from the Construction Company of $50 per month from August 1, 1889, to November 30, 1889, and from December 1, 1889, to April 1, 1890, $100 per month, and he also received compensation from the Belt from May, 1890, or $100 per month (Rec. 17-8706). From the time of witness' connection with the Belt Company, until he left the Trust Company, the bulk of the latter's business was that of promoter of railroads and other subsidiary companies, the Trust Company having organized and incorporated various companies in its office, and used its clerks and others as incorporators, and for the first board of directors. At the time he became connected with the Belt Company, A. L. Howe was its cashier, and also the cashier of the Missouri Coal & Construction Company, which was then constructing the Kansas City, Nevada & Fort Smith Railroad (afterwards called the Pittsburg & Gulf) and both of which companies were being promoted by the Trust Company and Taylor, as manager of the Trust Company, indicated to Howe what payments should be made, and what moneys should be paid out to these companies (Rec. 17-8945-'46). The Trust Company had in its charge, and kept in its vaults, all the securities owned by the Belt and these various subsidiary companies, in which it was interested. The minute book, stock books, ledgers and bond ledgers, were kept in the trust Company's vaults for safe keeping. The Belt Company had a vault of its own in the Trust Company building, but nothing was kept there except books of accounts, cash books, ledgers and journals. Cone and Wilcox were the custodians of the securities of the Belt, Union, Consolidated and Air Line, and kept them with the minute books, in the vaults of the Trust Company (Rec. 17-8947-'49).

As to the relations between the Belt Company and the Trust Company, and the control exercised by the Trust Company over the financial affairs of the Belt, witness stated that he had a great many conversations with Stilwell at various times, and was given to understand that the relations between the Belt and Trust Companies were very close, and that he should take his instructions from Stilwell, or his confidential clerk, Cone, in regard to entries of financial transactions. Witness stated "I cannot definitely point out any particular conversation, but it was a matter of daily occurrence in my intercourse with Mr. Stilwell, that I came to understand that 681 I must do so and so in regard to such transactions, and, if I did not do as I was told, I would simply be discharged."

These conversations were held in the Trust Company office, and witness would consult with him as president of the Trust Company, "because in those dealings he was all powerful." In other matters, witness would go to Martin, as president of the Belt. The conversations between Stilwell and the witness apply to matters between the Trust Company, Union Company, Consolidated Company, and Air Line, and witness was never permitted to question any of the Trust Company's charges made for fees and commissions as against any of the railroads. Stilwell instructed him to take instructions from Cone, his confidential clerk and secretary, and, throughout the books of the Belt Company and other companies will be found such notations "as per advice of R. B. Cone" or "as per advice of F. B. Wilcox", and these entries mean that advice was received from Cone or Wilcox. As auditor of the Belt, Union, Consolidated and Air Line, witness had power to originate charges, and make entries between these companies and other companies, but not as between these companies and the Trust Company. As to all charges growing out of the transactions between the Trust Company building department and these railroad companies, such charges were originated upon bills of H. C. Lindsay, and witness was not allowed to enter into the merits or demerits of the bills sent to him by Lindsay, and he was required to make entries of those charges and place them upon the books without investigation. At times, the Trust Company would direct him, as auditor of the Belt, to open on the Belt books, certain accounts (Rec. 17-8963-'70). In the organization of the Union Air Line and Consolidated, Stilwell, among the officers of the Trust Company, was the moving spirit, and most active in that respect (Rec. 17-8977). The conditions existing between the Trust Company and the Kansas City, Nevada & Fort Smith Railroad Company, afterwards the Pittsburg & Gulf, were much the same as those existing between the Trust Company and the Belt, and the other subsidiary companies (Rec. 17-8981). Later on, the Construction Company undertook the construction of the Air Line, and issued its stock for the purpose of raising money to build the road, and a clerk of the Trust Company made the entries in the general journal of the Construction Company, the entries appearing on pages 51, 52 and 53 of the journal, being in the handwriting of E. J. Davison, clerk of the Construction Company, and were on that journal when the books were turned over to the witness by the Trust Company (Rec. 17-9010 to 9016.) On page 18, of the Consolidated Company minute book, the recital that the 682 witness was elected auditor of the Consolidated Terminal is in the handwriting of J. T. Nolthenius, who at that time was connected with the Trust Company (Rec. 17-9057). At the time that Stilwell appointed witness general auditor of the Trust Company, he stated what the salary would be. That it is usual and customary, when a railroad executes its notes, to have them pass through the hands of the auditor for original entry, but that none of the notes of the Belt Company payable to the Trust Company passed through his hands in that manner (Rec. 17-9058 to 9061.) In building the first division of the Belt Company by the Construction Company, he compiled the Construction Company's books from data furnished him and when completed, he would turn them back to the Trust Company (Rec. 17-9064-65). Stilwell as well as others connected with the Trust Company, referred to these companies as subsidiary, and he indicated to witness that he wanted a man connected with the Trust Company to prescribe the method of the accounting of these various companies (Rec. 16-9068-69). The officers of the Trust Company and the other companies were in the same building "and the Trust Company was the overshadowing organization in all these matters and things that came up and the officers of the Trust Company were in constant communication with him, and he thought very little of them but as officers of the Trust Company."

When Stilwell handed to witness, as auditor of the Trust Company, the list of 28 companies, it was his recollection that Stilwell said in substance, to him, that these subsidiary companies were creatures of the Trust Company, and managed by it (Rec. 17-9125-26).

(d) Frank B. Wilcox testified, in substance, that he was assistant treasurer of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, in April 1892, and remained with the Trust Company until 1900, and, during that time, had general supervision of the Trust Company books, it being his duty to see that the accounts were correctly kept. W. S. Taylor was nominally treasurer of the company, but his office was in Philadelphia, though the Trust Company books and bulk of the securities were kept in Kansas City. The active management, supervision and control of these books was in the witness. Later on, Mr. Willey became auditor, and after that, he, witness, did not give much attention to the books, except in a supervisory way. In the fall of 1899, he became manager of the Trust Company at Kansas City, after the main office had been moved to Chicago, and he had a great deal to do making or having made entries upon the Trust Company books (Rec. 34-17991-94). The 683 offices of the Trust Company were at 7th and Wyandotte streets, Kansas City, Missouri, in the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Building, and in which were located the offices of the surety department, and building department, of the Trust Company, and the entire building was, in fact, occupied by the Trust Company, and the companies in which it was interested. The surety department provided bonds for these different railroads, and the building department did construction work for them (Rec. 34-17995-'98). The men actively engaged in the Trust Company, and also some of the investors who were directors therein, developed the policy of extending the Belt system of Kansas City, and, in carrying out such purposes, many other companies were incorporated for the purpose of developing the natural resources, locating town sites, and creating business enterprises along the roads; and, in the organization of these companies, the same men, who were acting as officers of the Trust Company, were selected as the officers of the various companies promoted by it, and these men directed the development and operation of the subsidiary companies. There were 40 of these corporations so organized by the Trust Company, and among the number were the Belt, Consolidated, Air Line, Connecting and Gulf Companies, and the Elevator, Central, Amusement, and Townsite Companies; also, the Arkansas Construction Company, Philadelphia Construction Company, Shreveport & Gulf Terminal Company, Port Arthur Land Company, Port Arthur Townsite Company, Port Arthur Rice & Irrigation Company, Missouri Irrigation & Pine Land Company, Pine Land Manufacturing Company, Plymouth Pine Land Company, Central Coal & Coke Company, Randolph Land & Improvement Company, State Realty Company, Second Street Improvement Company, Oronoke Mining Company, Victoria Zinc Mining Company, Chicago Zinc Mining Company, United States & British Columbia Mining Company, Liberty Bell Gold Mining Company, Janssen Place Land Company, Exchange Building Company, Port Arthur Channel & Dock Company, Pittsburg Land Company, Missouri Water & Light Company, Southwest Missouri Light Company, Nevada Light Company, American Incandescent Land Company, Stilwell Curtain Fixture Company, Stilwell Automatic Shade Company, National Surety Company, Missouri, Kansas & Texas Building Company, Horse Show Monthly Publishing Company, Ozark Orchard Company, and Ozark Stone & Lime Company.

When witness resigned and left the Trust Company, he resigned either as president, vice-president, secretary, assistant secretary, treasurer, assistant treasurer, or director from 43 of this class

versity of the business, represented in the different companies promoted, contemplated railroad construction, railroad operating, land and townsite handling, building of elevators, erection and operation of light and water companies, building of warehouses, docks, hotels, ship canals, development of fruit orchards, buying and selling of timber land, and development of mines, stone quarries, building of houses, etc. Whenever a project was contemplated by any officer of the Trust Company, usually Stilwell, Martin, Mosher, Trimble, Braley and Taylor, would suggest the organization of the company for that purpose, and the incorporation papers would then be prepared and the expenses of incorporation were usually paid by the Trust Company, and included fees of the Secretary of State, attorneys' fees, the cost of stock books, ledgers and seals, though the Trust Company would be reimbursed therefor later on by the companies so organized by it. The men named would usually decide at a conference held in the Trust Company office, who would be selected as officers of the newly incorporated company, but Stillwell's views as to this were more often accepted, "he being a very influential man among this group of men, and as the years rolled by became more so, and his desires became more and more deferred to by the others, he being the man who obtained most of the capital for the purpose of nearly all the companies. Stilwell's influence grew in power, and his desires, during the later years, were generally complied with, as he became the ruling spirit of the entire crowd; and by 'ruling spirit' I mean the ruling spirit of the Trust Company. If Stilwell wanted some certain men elected as a director of any of these companies, he would express it, and have him elected." (Rec. 34-17998 to 18006).

After these companies were organized, the officers of the Trust Company would go ahead and acquire property for the companies, and arrange, when necessary, for the Trust Company to furnish the money for such purposes. The conclusions as to what properties should be acquired, and as to shaping the business policies of these companies, were generally reached in the Trust Company offices, and most of the participants were the officers of the Trust Company, and its attorneys and directors, and these persons would generally select the officers of each particular company from the employees, officers or directors of the Trust Company, and also determined how the capital stock should be issued. After these new companies had been incorporated, these same men would direct the issuance of its securities, and the Trust Company would take an active part 685 in marketing them. In the early stage of these new companies, the Trust Company would dispose of the new securities, and before their sale would, when necessary, advance the money to those companies for these expenses, sometimes taking the securities and paying for them, and at other times arranging with such companies in respect to the price to be paid for such securities, when sold by the Trust Company, and also as to the commissions, trustees' fees, or bonuses to be allowed by those companies for the services rendered by the Trust Company; in other words, the Trust Company undertook the general financing and managing of those companies, and, in view of their relations with the Trust Company, they were usually operated in a manner following the policy desired by the Trust Company, the books of the majority of the companies being kept in the office of the Trust Company, and by its clerks.

This specially applies to the books of the Elevator Company, Fruit Auction Company, Central Company, and the State Realty Company, and, also, in respect to the Union, Air Line, Consolidated, Belt and Connecting Companies, as to their bond and stock ledgers, stock certificate books and minute books, which were kept in the Trust Company vaults. The Trust Company offices were also the general offices of those companies organized to do business outside of Kansas City, and the clerical work was done here. The securities of the Belt, Union, Consolidated, Air Line and Connecting Companies, were kept in the Trust Company vaults until they were disposed of. The Trust Company, through its officers, was the custodian of the stock and bond ledgers and minute books of these various companies and Cone was the Trust Company officer, so delegated to look after the stock certificates and other books and to keep custody of these securities. When any of the securities were sold, a report would be made to the witness, who would get them out of the boxes and have them delivered to the purchaser and collect the proceeds. The Trust Company had foreign offices and agencies in London, Amsterdam, Berlin and Paris. The Philadelphia office was more of a retail department for these securities, and the Kansas City office was in the nature of a wholesale department, the Philadelphia office being a branch of the Kansas City office. Stilwell sold the bulk of the bonds and securities of these various companies, when he was away from Kansas City, and reports would be made, indicating the prices for which they were sold, and, also, the price to be allowed to these companies for their securities so sold, which would be indicated or fixed by Stilwell; sometimes there was a regular price allowed the 686 companies for their securities, and, if there was any doubt as to the amount, he would go to Stilwell for information, and Stilwell would indicate the price that should be allowed for the securities sold, the railroad companies usually being credited at a price lower than the price obtained by the Trust Company; the range of difference would vary from one per cent to ten per cent. Sometimes the Trust Company would buy the securities direct from those companies, on which a commission would be charged, in addition to a stock bonus, and, in re-selling, the Trust Company might give the subsequent purchaser the same proportion of stock as a bonus with the bonds, or re-sell the bonds and keep the balance of the stock in its own treasury as a part of the profits of the transaction. In some cases, where Stilwell would sell the securities at certain prices, he would instruct the witness to credit the Belt at a lesser price. There were many instances of that kind. As to the amount of the bonus or commission, or trustee's fees, to be charged by the Trust Company for the promotion of those companies, or for services rendered by it in the sale of the securities, it would rest largely with Stilwell to regulate the same (Rec. 34-18007 to 18021).

The officers and directors of those companies, being usually the same men holding the position of officers and directors in the Trust Company, the decision as to what the Trust Company would take for its services, would be determined by the same men who had planned and arranged for the organization and policy of the different companies. For a long time, the securities belonging to the railroad companies, and in the custody of the Trust Company, were kept in the same boxes that the securities of the Trust Company were, then afterwards receipts were given to the railroad companies for such securities (Rec. 34-18025-'27).

Originally, the business of the Trust Company was that of building houses and making loans upon real estate, but, subsequently it developed broadly into the general promotion business; the profits of the Trust Company being through the acquirement of securities for its services, and on account of the securities bought by it, and resold, and, also, through the commissions, bonuses, earnings or profits on securities it might sell for the subsidiary companies. The bulk of the Trust Company's business arose out of its original promotion projects, and the handling of the securities of the companies promoted; but the volume of its business decreased when it became difficult to promote new enterprises, which seriously affected its net income (Rec. 34-18027-'033). As a general thing, the salaries 687 of the officers of the newly incorporated companies would be determined by Stilwell, but in most cases, they were merely nominal, except occasionally to an officer of the subsidiary company, who was active in its management. In many of the companies, the officers received no salary, except what they received from the Trust Company, and were expected to discharge the additional duties without additional salary from the other companies. The directors, officers or clerks of the Trust Company, who were made directors of the subsidiary companies, would resign when indicated to them, so that an investor could be elected to take their place, and such requests for resignations usually came from Stilwell. The journals, cash books and ledgers of the Belt, Consolidated and Union Companies were kept in the vaults of those companies, under the control of the auditor or treasurer, or assistant treasurer of those companies. The term "subsidiary" was generally used when witness was with the Trust Company, to indicate those companies, which had been organized by the Trust Company, and whatever control the Trust Company had in them, with the exception of the Central Coal & Coke Company, continued in spite of the fact that the Trust Company did not own any controlling amount of stock in those companies (Rec. 34-18033-'37). The Central Company is one of the subsidiary companies, and was organized for the purpose of acquiring properties for the railroad corporations, in which the Trust Company was interested (Rec. 34-18038-39). The State Realty Company was organized as a direct subsidiary company to the Trust Company, for the purpose of acquiring, at foreclosure, the properties, upon which the company had made loans, the Trust Company holding all of the stock of the State Realty Company (Rec. 34-18040-'42). Stilwell was a heavy stockholder in the Trust Company, and so were Martin and Taylor, and they retained their holdings largely as permanent investments. They also owned stock, from time to time, in the Belt Company, and other railroad companies promoted by the Trust Company, but these securities would be sold from time to time. Martin was the president of the Belt Company, active in its management, and received a good salary from it. The others were actively engaged in the Trust Company. Stilwell's salary from the Trust Company was $10,000.00 annually, and one year perhaps $20,000.00, but it was not over $100 or $150 a month from the Belt, or any of the companies subsidiary to the Belt, and from some of them no salary at all. The ideas of Stilwell were usually considered important by all of those in charge of the Belt, Union Terminal, or Consolidated Terminal, and as a rule his ideas would predominate and be adopted (Rec. 34-18044-'48).

688 It was a frequent occurrence for Stilwell to inform witness that he had sold certain securities at a certain price, and then direct that a credit be given to the Belt, or these auxiliary companies, at a less price, and, oftentimes, securities would be sold in that way, and then purchased by the Trust Company from the other companies, so as to fill the orders. As to Stilwell having a wide discretion in the sale of securities, witness did not remember of any question ever being raised by any party as to the prices at which he marketed them, nor did he recall that any objection was ever raised by any one in respect to the sale of the securities by him or the Trust Company. In nearly every case where the stock would be sold by Stilwell at one price, and purchased of the Belt at a lower price, the lower figure would be credited to the Belt Company on the Trust Company books. The parties, who had active management of the sale of those securities, and who did the work for the Trust Company in marketing them, were also officers or employees of the Belt Company and drawing a salary from both companies (Rec. 34-18052-'57).

The Fairmount Park proposition was one of Stilwell's ideas. Although witness was president of that company, Stilwell and others, who were not officers of it, negotiated the contract for the electric cars in connection with the Metropolitan system, whereby they were to be running to the Park instead of the Air Line steam cars, and he, witness, had nothing to do except to sign the contract which was prepared for his signature (Rec. 34-18066-'68). There was a contract between the Belt and Connecting Companies for the building of the Connecting Railroad by the Belt, and witness supervised a great many entries on the books of the Trust Company with reference to that contract, the Connecting securities going to the Belt Line from time to time as the work progressed, and the Trust Company having the custody of such securities after they were issued, and when they belonged to the Belt (Rec. 34-18068-69) The attention of witness was called to his letter to Stilwell, attached to the Trust Company journal voucher, appearing in Rec. 10-5394-5, showing a charge against the Belt for $30,850.00 in Connecting Company interest coupons paid by the Trust Company, and, he stated that it was the usual and customary way of securing advices from Stilwell in reference to entries to be made upon the books, that if Stilwell was in the city, witness would consult him, and if he was away, he would write to him in respect to the entries to be made, and which would be made as directed by him on the books of the Trust Company, and then a slip would be sent to the Belt Company, the same entry, in a reverse order, to be made upon its 689 books (Rec. 34-18074-'77). There was nothing unusual about this letter to Stilwell in January, 1899, asking which company he prefered should owe the Trust Company, for Stilwell was in the habit of either directing verbally, or by letter, which company should be charged with each account, and his instructions were carried out, and entries made accordingly, on the books of the Trust Company, and on the Belt Books. The Belt Company never actively opposed any policy that was inaugurated or established by the Trust Company (Rec. 34-18087 to 18094). The Trust Company advanced to the Fruit Auction Company all the money represented by its capital stock, excepting a small amount received as income during its brief existence (Rec. 34-18247-48).

It was the custom of the Trust Company to have the custody of the stocks and bonds of the various allied companies, and to keep them in its possession, and whatever was represented by the books as being the amount of the stocks and bonds in the treasury, was understood to be in the Trust Company's possession (Rec. 34-18415). The stock ledgers, bond ledgers, stock transfer book, and minute books of these various companies, were kept for the convenience of the Trust Company, because the work was being done at the Trust Company's office. The minutes of the meetings were written up in the office of the Trust Company, and it was convenient to have those minutes books close at hand. The Trust Company had specially provided a room for directors' meetings (Rec. 34-18323-24). The Belt offices were in the same building, adjoining the Trust Company's office, from 1894 to 1900, but, prior to that time, they had been at 2nd and Wyandotte Streets, from where they were removed because there was not sufficient office room available at the depot, and it was more convenient to have the auditing offices of the Belt and its allied companies located closer to the Trust Company. The Bond and stock ledgers and transfer books of the Belt, and minute books, were kept in the custody of the Trust Company (Rec. 34-18348-49). The Construction Company, after completing its operations in connection with the Belt road, was dormant five or six years, then was revived, its capital enlarged, and used in the construction of the Gulf Railroad (Rec. 34-18351). The purchase of securities by the Trust Company from these railroads was not always in the shape of a written contract, the arrangement being usually made between the president of the Trust Company and the officers of the Belt. In many cases Stilwell and Martin would agree upon the transaction and, in others, Stilwell would act for both companies; unless the matter was one of great importance, these purchases would not be a matter of general discussion between the officers of the two companies. "It was simply a matter of the Trust sales, and they would be accepted by the Belt, and the usual entries covering them made upon the books. And these men had discretion in the matter or used discretion in the matter." (Rec. 34-18353-54). The Trust Company had the custody of the securities of the Connecting Company, after they were issued to the Belt (Rec. 34-18369). As the Belt constructed the Northern Connecting railroad, for the Connecting Company, the latter issued its securities to the Belt, which turned over to the Trust Company for disposition and sale for its account, and the transaction was treated and regarded by the Trust Company as for the benefit of the Belt. (Rec. 34-18369-70). The Fruit Auction Company was an enterprise started by the Trust Company, whereby daily, or almost daily, auction sales of fruit and produce was inaugurated, and held in the warehouse building at 2nd and Main Streets. It was operated for several months, quite a business being done, but afterwards abandoned (Rec. 34-18396).
690 Company using its best efforts to dispose of securities; and either Mr. Martin, or Stilwell, or Taylor, would effect the

In respect to the statement made by the witness to the effect that these various corporations were operated according to the policy of the Trust Company, he stated that he meant that the officers of the Trust Company had such policies and that the operations of the Trust Company followed these policies (Rec. 34-18416).

The Belt stock, after it was exchanged for the stock of the Air Line and Union Companies, and after the consolidation of the Belt with the Consolidated, was largely held in Europe, and that which was held in this country was held principally in the east: the stockholders were numerous and scattered (Rec. 34-18416).

As to the building of the Northern Connecting Railroad, witness stated that it was his recollection that at the outset the Trust Company intended to construct the road, but afterwards it was decided to have the Belt Company build it. At the time the Connecting Company was incorporated, the securities issued by the Belt and its allied companies had nearly all been sold, and it was thought advisable by the officers of the Trust Company to have the Belt Company construct it, and that the Connecting Company would issue its securities, which would pass from the Belt to the Trust Company, and be marketed by it, and moneys realized therefrom. It was also his recollection that it was considered that the business of the Trust Company would be augmented in a profitable way, by organizing the Connecting Company, and getting its securities and marketing them, and that such was understood to be a con-691 tinuation of the general policy, by which the Trust Company and its allied companies had been operated (Rec. 34-18432-'35).

The meetings of the Belt stockholders were usually arranged to be held about the same time as those of the Trust Company, and there were generally a small number present. The Trust Company would secure proxies from the non-resident shareholders, so as to have a majority present at the meetings, and these proxies would usually run to Stilwell, and he, as such proxy, would vote the stock at these meetings. Cone looked after the matter of obtaining a majority of the proxies, and he was instructed by Stilwell to keep writing to stockholders until he had a majority. The statements usually presented at these stockholders' meetings were balance sheets, showing the assets, liabilities, earnings and expenses and the net result in surplus, but in those statements there would be no specification, showing the amount in detail, the amount of commissions or of interest, or of other charges by the Trust Company, and in the statements sent out to financial publications, or to stockholders, these matters would not appear in detail in any of those statements (Rec. 34-18437-'40).

(e) R. J. McCarty, in substance, testified that for five or six years he was auditor of the Gulf Railroad Company, and its receivers, becoming associated with the company in 1897, and continued while the receivership lasted. He was also auditor of the Connecting railroad, and of the Omaha, Kansas City & St. Louis, and Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City, all of said roads being under the same general management and control (Rec. 25-13147-48). The offices of the Gulf and of the Trust Company were on the same floor of the general main office building of the Trust Company, but in adjoining rooms. He had frequent dealings with the Trust Company officers, who were joint officers of the Trust Company and Gulf Company, but, in their dealings, they did not distinguish themselves as officers of one company from that of the other, so that very often communications from either company would be on the letter-head of the other; and, it was frequently difficult for him to decide whether he was dealing with an officer of the Trust Company or of the railroad company. He knew that Stilwell was the controlling spirit of all these different enterprises, the Trust Company, the Belt Company, the Gulf Company, the Connecting Company, and the other lines, was an organizer and promoter of various enterprises, and whatever he wanted done, or decided, was done.

There were services for switching rendered to the Connecting Company by the Belt and Gulf, from month to month, for 692 which bills were rendered, but unpaid, and notwithstanding that fact these roads continued to render services to the Connecting railroad until the receivers were appointed for the Belt, and witness resigned as auditor for the Connecting Company. After the bills were due and not paid, and prior to appointment of receivers for the Belt, these bills kept piling up right along (Rec. 25-13253-'60).

(f) A. L. Howe, in substance, testified that, early in 1890, he was appointed assistant secretary of the Belt Company, and continued as such until the year 1900, and, during all that time, he was informed and instructed that in all financial transactions any instructions that should be given by Cone or Wilcox, of the Trust Company, should be accepted and followed accordingly; that during the month of July, 1899, Wilcox gave instructions that certain minutes should be placed upon the minute books of the Belt Company, whereby a large number of shares of stock of various railroads and other companies, should be turned over to the Trust Company, and that, in pursuance of such directions, he, witness, signed said minutes, and the stocks were turned over to the Trust Company; that it was a matter of frequent occurrence that the affairs of the Belt, particularly the financial affairs, would follow a course indicated and directed from communications received from Cone or Wilcox, and, in pursuance of such instructions, entries would be placed upon the Belt books, in accordance with instructions (Rec. 49-30245-46).

(g) J. T. Nolthenius, in substance, testified that he entered the employ of the Trust Company in 1891, became assistant treasurer in 1896, and fourth vice-president, and so continued until the year 1899, when he was elected third vice-president of the Trust Company; that, in July, 1899, Wilcox, assistant treasurer of the Trust Company, called upon him as treasurer of the Belt Company, to turn over to the Trust Company a large amount of stocks and bonds of the Union, Consolidated, Air Line, and Connecting, and other companies, belonging to the Belt Company; that, he, witness, objected, but owing to the position then held by the Trust Company in relation to the affairs of the Belt Company, his objection was overruled, and said stocks and bonds were turned over to the Trust Company, in connection with a certain indebtedness then held by it against the Belt; that during all the time he was with the Trust Company, and in the year 1900, the minute books, seals, stock books, stock ledgers and bond ledgers of the Belt Company, Consolidated Company, and the various other companies, were made up by employees of the Trust Company, kept in the vaults of the Trust Company, and in its care and custody, and under its direc-
693 tions and supervision (Rec. 49-30248-49).

(h) James H. Pickering, in substance, testified that he became superintendent of the Belt Company in February, 1892, continuing as such until March, 1899, and his duties also extended over the Consolidated Union and Air Line. Shortly after becoming acquainted with Stilwell in 1890 or 1891, the latter advised him in respect to the terminal facilities of the Belt road, and with reference to extending the Belt into the West Bottoms, and around into Kaw Valley. At that time, neither the Consolidated nor Union had been constructed, nor their franchise obtained. Witness was then interested in a railroad, known as the Kansas Circular Railway, and the franchise for which was granted in Kansas City, Kansas, and he went to Stilwell and Mosher, in the Trust Company's office, and made them a proposition for the purchase of these franchises, and in going to see Stilwell and the others at the office of the Trust Company, he supposed he was dealing with them as officers of that company. The proposition made by Stilwell and others to acquire the franchise of the Kansas Circular Company was rejected, and thereafter, upon the suggestion of witness, a franchise was obtained for the Union Terminal railroad over practically the same ground as that of the Kansas Circular Railway (Rec. 35-18590-'93).

That he was a stockholder and director in the Union Company and attended its annual meetings, but never attended any directors' meetings, other than annual meetings, nor was he ever notified of any such meetings, and he did not know of any such meetings ever having been held (Rec. 35-18601). That the first time he ever heard or saw the contract for the building of the Union Terminal by the Belt (appearing at pp. 7308-'10 of the record), was a few days before he testified, when his attention was called to it by counsel, and, as a director of the Union Company, he never ratified or approved the contract, nor was it ever submitted to him for his inspection or approval (Rec. 35-18603).

He was elected director of the Union Company in 1896, and was in Kansas City all the time, except about two months' absence in England in 1898 (Rec. 35-18606-'06), and, as a director of the Union Company, he never ratified or approved the contract for the extension of the Union Terminal to a connection with the Santa Fe railroad, neither was such contract presented to him for inspection or approval (Rec. 35-18606-'08). As a director of the Union Company the contract appearing in Johnson's exhibit 155, page 7879, for building certain spurs into the packing houses, was never submitted to him for his approval or ratification (Rec. 35-18612). As to the entry appearing at page 3941 of the record, being for 250 Union bonds for extension to the Stock Yards, he was 694 familiar with that extension, but as a director never knew anything about it, and never ratified or approved it (Rec. 35-18625-'26).

The contract, appearing at page 7890 of the record, dated July 6, 1898, providing for certain facilities for the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Company, and the St. Joseph & Grand Island Company, was never submitted to him as a director of the Union Company, for his approval or ratification (Rec. 35-18627); nor, as a director of the Union Company, did he ever ratify or approve giving to the Belt 350 bonds for any purpose, this being the transaction whereby the Belt received from the Union 350 bonds for the purpose of clearing up the floating indebtedness of the Belt (Rec. 35-18641-42).

He was frequently in conversation with officers of the Trust Company, and knew that it financed various other companies, in addition to the railroad companies, and Stilwell would frequently send for him to take prospective purchases of the Company he was promoting, over the Belt Line, so as to explain to them the good features of that system; and he often heard Stilwell call Cone or Wilcox and give them instructions for making charges against the Belt, or this or that road, and tell them to use the money of one company for another company to help it out; that it was a frequent occurrence to hear instructions as to charging one company and crediting another (Rec. 35-18671-73). Later on, it became a custom for the heads of the various departments of the railroad company, and the officers of the Trust Company, to lunch together at the office of the Trust Company, and at that time, the business of the various companies, that is, the Air Line, Union, Gulf, and all the collateral companies, 30 or 40 of them, would be discussed, and at such conferences, Stilwell was the only man who gave any instructions as to the affairs of the Trust Company and the various railroad companies, which he had organized. "Stilwell was always the supreme dictator and issued the instructions, and we obeyed them. We would advise him, and he would take our advice, just as he pleased."

He, Stilwell, always looked after the interest of the Trust Company first, before that of the railroad companies or any of the other companies; that he, witness, had heard Stilwell, while discussing some contemplated railroad enterprise, in connection with these railroads, state that the Trust Company should make so much out of the deal, and he would then outline the plan (Rec. 35-18673-'79). While witness was a Union director, Mosher was vice-president of the Trust Company, and, on one occasion, witness had a 695 conversation with Mosher about the cost of the Union Terminal, and Mosher informed him that it was a matter that did not concern the witness; that at that time he was a director of the Union Company, and making inquiry as to the cost of the road (Rec. 35-18679-'83).

As a director of the Belt Company, he was never consulted in matters that concerned him as a director, and, when present at one of the Belt meetings, he was not asked to pass upon any matters, as the resolutions had already been prepared, and upon being submitted were passed in a very few minutes; nor was he consulted in advance of the meeting as to any such matters (Rec. 35-18683-'88).

Prior to the construction of the railroad of the Connecting Company by the Belt, Stilwell told him that the Belt was to undertake the construction of the road (Rec. 35-18688).

The Fruit Auction Company was organized by the Trust Company, and operated by it, and was used to handle fruit and carload lots of oranges from California, and they maintained a daily auction of fruit for several months (Rec. 35-18767).

The Air Line paid the expenses of running Fairmount Park, the expenditures reaching large proportions. While the Park was being operated, Stilwell frequently sent for witness to take out to the Park prospective investors for the securities of the company. In talking to Mosher, regarding the enormous expenditures at the Park, he told witness [he] was the policy of the Trust Company to make as good showing as possible, in order to show that their enterprises were in a flourishing condition, and that there was a large amount of travel over the Air Line, the intention being to create as good an impression as possible on proposed investors in the securities which the Trust Company was promoting (Rec. 35-18857-'61).

(i) E. L. Martin, testified, in substance, that the Trust Company acted simply in the capacity of a financial agent for the various companies allied with it, and marketed most of their securities. His attention being called to a former statement in his testimony to the effect that the Trust Company was the financial sponsor and backer of the Belt and other railroad companies, and that there was a mutual interest between it and these other companies, he stated that what he meant was that the Trust Company was the source, from which the finances were raised to build all the railroads, constructed by those companies. Generally speaking, the Trust Company sold practically all the securities of such companies, and A. E.
696 Stilwell was the active man, who gave general direction to the sales in this country and in Europe (Rec. 55-33665-'69).

He, Stilwell, did not always fix the prices for the securities. This was frequently done by the companies, respectively interested, or their officers, after consultation on the subject of prices. When Stilwell went east with general authority to do the best he could, he would be authorized to fix the selling price. The securities were sold sometimes at a profit, other times at a loss. There were mutual interests between the Trust Company and the Belt and other Companies, and the Belt was liberal in its dealings with the Trust Company, "did not cut cents in two"; and Stilwell, Taylor and Mosher did everything that was legitimate in being liberal to the Trust Company (Rec. 55-33666 and 33727).

Martin further stated that the Trust Company financed the Gulf road in the same general manner that it financed the other railroads, that investors were brought to Kansas City for the purpose of going over these roads, and make an examination of them; that he was president of the Construction Company which built the Gulf road, that the stock of the Construction Company, after being used to build the roads of the Suburban Company and Air Line, was cancelled and re-issued to take up the construction of the Gulf Company on the south end; that the first construction company organized to build the Gulf was the Missouri Construction Company, then the Philadelphia Construction Company, succeeded the Missouri Coal & Construction Company, and the Arkansas Construction Company succeeded the Philadelphia Construction Company. The Gulf exploitation started about 1890, and continued until 1899, and during that time, the Trust Company was handling the securities of all these various railroads and construction companies, and placed them upon the market, and also handled the securities of the Belt, Union, Consolidated and Air Line, as well as various other companies, in which the Trust Company was interested.

Officers and Directors of the Companies Associated with the Trust Company.

5. Respecting the identity of the different persons, who were incorporators, officers and directors of the various allied companies, associated with the Trust Company up to the year 1900, reference is made to the following records:

Wilcox's testimony, Rec. 34-18263 to 18278, 18408 to 18411, 18424 to 18427, 18448 to 18449.
Telfer's testimony, Rec. 17-8981 to 8988, 8692 to 8697.
Martin's testimony, Rec. 55-33833 to 33850.
Pickering's testimony, Rec. 35-18590 to 18600.

697 For a list of the Trust Company officers and directors for the years 1899 to 1900, see Rec. 11-5694 to 5705; and, for the Trust Company stockholders, at various dates see Rec. 48-28944 to 29069. For a list of the officers and directors of the various other companies, see Rec. 12-6647 to 6677.

Construction Company.—The articles of association of the Construction Company will be found in Rec. 13-6967 to 6971. All the officers and directors of the Construction Company, shown by their minutes (Rec. 13-6966 to 6977), covering the period from its incorporation, and during the time it was building the railroads of the Suburban Belt and the Air Line, were either officers, directors or stockholders of the Trust Company (Rec. 42-22473 to 22581; Rec. 48-28944 to 28069).

It is shown that 2137 shares of the total 3000 shares of the Construction Company stock, issued for the building of the Suburban Company's road, were held by stockholders, or officers or directors of the Trust Company (Rec. 42-22492), and that out of the 2000 shares Construction Company stock to be issued to the Belt and Air Line, 1446 shares stood in the name of the record stockholders or officers of the Trust Company, and in the name of the Trust Company itself (Rec. 12-6652).

Suburban Company.—The articles of association of the Suburban Company are in Rec. 52-30301 to 30305. The names of the incorporators, officers and directors of the Suburban Company up to June 1, 1899, will appear in Rec. Vol. 18-9138-'39; and, by reason of changes made in the names of the officers and directors, between June 1889, and May 9, 1890, the old officers and directors of the Suburban Company, who were not officers and directors of the Construction Company, had been replaced by officers and directors of the Trust Company, and Construction Company, with three exceptions (Rec. 52-31246-'47, 31255-'59; Rec. 11-5694-'95). At page 6661 of Rec. 12, a list is given of the Suburban Company directors and officers up to the time of the consolidation with the Consolidated Company, and all of these Suburban officers and directors were officers and directors of the Trust Company, with the exception of A. L. Howe, who was a brother of a stockholder of the Trust Company.

Consolidation of Suburban Company and Consolidated Company.

The articles of consolidation will appear in Rec. 52-31309 to 31317. All the officers and directors of the Belt Company (being the company occasioned by the consolidation of the Suburban Company and the Consolidated Company), were officers, direc-
698 tors or employees of the Trust Company, except Bowen, Shipley and A. L. Howe. Bowen being a Trust Company shareholder, and Howe a brother of a large Trust Company shareholder and director. The directors and officers of the Belt Company, from the date of the consolidation up to the year 1899, were officers, directors or employees of the Trust Company, (Rec. 12-6662-'65). As shown by the Belt minutes (Rec. 52-31433-'35), the old Belt directors and officers resigned, and new officers and directors of the Belt Company were elected, that had no connection with the Trust Company. In this connection, counsel for complainant called the Master's attention to Belt minutes in Rec. 52-31373 to 31378, 31395 to 31399, 31399 to 31405, 31413 to 31418, and 31432, and showing these pages of the minutes O. K'd by the following initials: "C. W. H." or "E. E. E." or "A. C. R." or R. H. S."; the initials C. W. H.

being those of Charles W. Hastings, and the initials R. H. S. being those of R. H. Stewart, and E. E. D. being the initials of E. E. Dearborn, and A. C. R. being the initials of A. C. Robinson, all being Trust Company employees. These memoranda have naturally suggested the inquiry by complainants' counsel, why should the Belt minutes be O. K'd by Trust Company employees.

Consolidated Company.—The articles of incorporation of the Consolidated Company are in Rec. 52-31305 to 31309. All of the incorporators of the Consolidated Company, except one Whipple, were Trust Company directors, officers or employees, and all of the officers and directors of the Consolidated Company, from its incorporation up to its consolidation with the Suburban Company, were officers, directors or employees of the Trust Company, with a few exceptions (Rec. 12-5669). The Trust Company paid for the incorporation and filing fees of the incorporation articles of this company, and, also for its seals, stock registers, stock certificates, and all of which payments, made by the Trust Company, were charged to the Consolidated Company (Rec. 26-13745-'52).

Air Line.—The articles of incorporation will be found in Rec. 15-8007, and all of the Air Line incorporators were either officers, directors or employees of the Trust Company, except A. L. Howe, who was a brother of a Trust Company shareholder and director, and C. R. Barnhart, who was the superintendent of the Belt Company (Rec. 12-6651-'54). As shown by the Trust Company's account with the Air Line (Rec. 49-29655), the Trust Company paid the legal fees, and other expenses of incorporation and prospectus, amounting to $675.00, which were, in May, 1891, credited by the Trust Company to the Air Line, and charged by the Trust Company against the Construction Company.

699 Union Company.—The articles of incorporation of this company are in Rec. 21-10919; and all of the incorporators of the Union Company were officers and directors of the Trust Company, except J. H. Pickering, who was superintendent of the Belt Company, O. D. Hall and William Thompson, residents of Kansas City, Kansas, and suggested by Pickering, and J. J. Spencer, in the employ of the Belt, as right-of-way agent (Rec. 12-6655 to '68). It is shown that the Trust Company paid out for the Union Company divers sums on account of the incorporation expenses, promotion services, retainer fees, newspaper publications, etc., all of which items were charged by the Trust Company against the Consolidated Company (Rec. 3-628, 655, 667, 683, 718).

Elevator Company.—The articles of incorporation will be found in Rec. 14-7387, and all of the incorporators, officers and directors of the Elevator Company, as shown in Rec. 12-6666-'7, were either officers, employees, stockholders or directors of the Trust Company, except A. L. Howe, a brother of a Trust Company stockholder and director. The Trust Company's account with the Elevator Company (Rec. 45-30059) shows that it paid for the articles of incorporation, and the other expenses incident to the incorporation, all of which were charged by the Trust Company against the Elevator Company. In this connection, attention has been called to the minutes of the Elevator Company in Rec. 43, at pages 22944-45, '48, '49, '50 and '51, which are O. K'd by the following initials. "A. C. R." and "C. W. H.", these being the initials of A. C. Robinson and Charles W. Hastings, who were Trust Company employees.

Central Company.—The articles of incorporation of the Central Company will be found in Rec. 18-9158. A list of the directors and officers of the Company, down to the year 1900, will be found in Vol. 12-6668-69, and they were officers, directors or employees of the Trust Company. The minutes of the Central Company (Rec. 43-22969-71, '76 and '77) were O. K'd by the following initials. "A. C. R." and "C. W. H." being the initials of A. C. Robinson and Charles W. Hastings, who were Trust Company employees. The Trust Company paid the incorporation expenses, and for stock book and seal of the Company, all of which were charged by the Trust Company to the Central Company (Rec. 30-16130).

Amusement Company.—The articles of incorporation will be found in Rec. 16-8343. A list of the incorporators, directors, and officers of the Amusement Company, from its incorporation down to the year 1900, are in Rec. 12-6670-71, and they were officers and employees of the Trust Company, except A. L. Howe, a brother of a Trust Company stockholder, and Neil S. Doran, who was auditor of the Belt. The minutes of the Amusement Company were O. K'd by the initials "C. W. H.", being the initials of Charles W. Hastings, a Trust Company employee (Rec. 43-22989-'94).

Connecting Company.—The articles of incorporation of the Connecting Company are in Rec. 15-8165. A list of incorporators, directors, and officers of the Connecting Company from its incorporation to the year 1899, shows that all of them were either officers, directors or employees of the Trust Company, with a few exceptions (Rec. 12-6672-'75). All the incorporation expenses were paid by the Trust Company, and afterwards charged to the Connection Company.

Townsite Company.—A list of the incorporators and directors of the Townsite Company, from the date of its incorporation to 1900, is shown in Rec. 12-6676, and all of them were officers, directors or employees of the Trust Company, which paid for the incorporation expenses, amounting to $314.82, and charged the same to the Belt Construction. The Townsite Company minutes (Rec. 43-22920-'29) are O. K'd by the initials "C. W. H." and "R. H. S." being the initials of Charles W. Hastings and R. H. Stewart, who were Trust Company employees.

Gulf Company.—The articles of incorporation will be found in Rec. 21-10940. All the incorporators were either officers, directors or employees of the Trust Company, except two, and the directors and officers of the Gulf Company, from its incorporation to the year 1899, at the time of the appointment of the receivers for the Gulf Company, were officers, directors, employees or stockholders of the Trust Company, with a few exceptions, varying from one to five in these different years.

Realty Company.—All of the incorporators, directors and officers of the State Realty Company, from 1892 through 1899, were officers, directors or employees of the Trust Company (Rec. 47-28466). Wilcox states that all the stock of the State Realty Company was owned by the Trust Company.

Improvement Company.—The articles of association will be found in Rec. 21-10935, and show a total capitalization of $300,000.00 divided into 3000 shares. All of the incorporators, officers and directors of the Improvement Company, from its incorporation to the year 1900, were officers, directors, employees or stockholders of the Trust Company (Rec. 12-6647-'50). Wilcox states that no salaries were paid to Improvement Company officers for 1892, and, 701 prior to that time, there was only $300.00 paid out for salaries, and that the books of the company were kept by the employees of the Trust Company (Rec. 47-28203, 28314-15).

Willey, in his testimony (Rec. 47-28221) shows that as early as September, 1892, the Trust Company was a subscriber and paid for 500 shares of the 3000 shares of the Second Street Improvement Company stock; that Martin, in May, 1890, had 200 shares of this same stock, and that Taylor held 60 shares of the same stock. The Trust Company paid $175.00 for filing fee and expenses of the articles of incorporation of the Second Street Improvement Company, which were charged against the Improvement Company (Rec. 12-6475).

Fruit Auction Company.—The articles of incorporation are in Rec. 34-18244, and all of the incorporators, officers and directors were officers and directors of the Trust Company, and the expenses of the incorporation were paid by the Trust Company, and by it charged to the Fruit Auction Company.

II.

The Incorporate Relations of the Trust Company and Belt Company Arising Out of Their Having One or More Common Directors, and, as Affecting the Question of the Alleged Domination and Control of the Trust Company Over the Belt Company.

In the foregoing references to the proofs in the record, respecting the relations between, and the course of business of, these two companies, the Master has endeavored to fairly and fully present, for the consideration of this Court, the more important facts, or combination of facts, which have been relied upon by complainants to support their domination and control theory. Their counsel have, with great industry, compiled, and furnished to the Master, a printed brief of legal authorities, of approximately 500 pages, which exhaustively treats of "Intercorporate Relations", "Liability of Promoters" and "Laches", the three important propositions, specially involved in the determination of the issues raised in the second ancillary bill. The character or nature of the kind of domination and control, which complainants contend that the Trust Company and its dominating officials exercised over the Belt and constituent companies, and their alleged subservient directors, and officials, clearly appears in those portions of the bill hereinbefore mentioned.

Complainants' counsel assert the following propositions of law, as decisive of the issues in this cause.

702 First. All contracts or transactions between two corporations, having one or more common directors, are voidable at the election of either corporation, without the necessity of inquiry as to their fairness, subject to the usual limitations that the right of avoidance must be exercised with reasonable promptness, and that the adverse party must, so far as practicable, be put in statu quo.

Second. A majority stockholder who actually controls the Board of Directors, though not himself a member of the Board of Directors, stands in the same fiduciary relation to the corporation as does its Board of Directors, and contracts or transactions made with him are likewise voidable at the election of the corporation.

The promoters of a corporation stand in a fiduciary relation towards it from the moment they begin its organization, and, if after beginning its organization, they purchase property at one price and turn it over to the corporation at a higher price, the corporation, at least where it has not been provided with an independent and impartial Board of Directors, free from the influence and control of the promoters, or full disclosure of all material facts has not been made to such Board of Directors, may compel them to account to it for the profit so made by them, or may, if it choose, rescind the whole transaction.

Excerpts from the Aforesaid Cases.

Tenth. For the convenience of the Court, the following excerpts are taken from a few of the above mentioned leading authorities cities by complainants:

In Metropolitan, etc., Railway Co. v. Manhattan Railway Co., et al., 11 Daly, 375, the Court say:

706 "The language used by the Court in its opinion in Twin Lock Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. Sup. Ct., 587, seems, certainly, to sustain the views of the learned counsel for the defendant upon this point. The court says 'That a director of a joint-stock corporation occupies one of those fiduciary relations where his dealings with the subject matter of his trust or agency, and with the beneficiary or party whose interest is confided to his care, is viewed with jealousy by the courts, is a doctrine founded on the soundest morality, and which has received the clearest recognition in this court, and in others. Koehler v. Black River Falls Iron Co., 2 Black, 715; Drury v. Cross, 7 Wall., 299; Luxemburg R. R. Co. v. Maquay, 25 Beav., 586; The Cumberland Co. v. Sherman, 30 Barb., 553;; 16 id., 456. The general doctrine, however, in regard to contracts of this class, is, not that they are absolutely void, but that they are voidable at the election of the party whose interest has been so represented by the party claiming under it. We say, this is the general rule; for there may be cases where such contracts would be void ab initio; as when an agent [so] sell buys of himself and by his power of attorney conveys to himself that which he was authorized to sell. But, ever here, acts which amount to a ratification by the principal may validate the sale."

Again:

"I think, therefore, that the undoubted rule of law in this state is, that every contract entered into by a director with his corporation may be avoided by the corporation within a reasonable time, irrespective of the merits of the contract itself.

But we are asked, does this disability extend to the case of a contract between two corporations, some of whose directors hold that office in each corporation?

I can see no difference in principle between the case of a director contracting with his corporation and that of directors of one corporation contracting with themselves as directors of another corporation. The evils to be avoided are the same; the temptations to a breach of trust are the same; the want of independent action exists, and the divided allegiance is just as apparent."

In Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald & Mallory Const. Co., 41 Neb. 374, a part of the syllabus is as follows:

"Where the officers of a corporation responsible for its management, are shown to have abused their trust, to the great damage of such corporation, in the interest of another corporation, of which they were then, and still remain, managing officers, any 707 stockholder of the corporation wronged may bring an action in his own name for the benefit of the wronged corporation against the other corporations above referred to for the redress of such grievance, and for an accounting between said corporations; and for these purposes may properly join both corporations as defendants."

The Court says:

"The trial court found, as we have seen, that since April 6, 1887, the organization of the Denver, Memphis & Atlantic Railroad Company had been under the control of the Missouri Pacific Railway Company, and that its officers and directors had acted in the interests and under the direction of the said Missouri Pacific Railway Company. To complete the responsibility of the Missouri Pacific Railway Company for the unwarranted discount of $500,000 enforced against the Construction Company, it is necessary to note but another finding of the Court, which was that since November 3, 1886, "Three of the Directors of the Construction Company, together with its treasurer (R. J. Cross), have been directly or indirectly interested in the defendant railroad company; have acted in the interest of said railroad company, in all matters concerning the management of said Construction Company where the interests of the railroad company and the Construction Company came in conflict." This finding is, of course, upon conflicting evidence, but it has ample support. It would subserve no useful purpose to fortify these facts as to the domination of the Missouri Pacific Railway Company over the Denver, Memphis & Atlantic Railway Company by an extended analysis of the testimony which would be indispensable for that purpose, but which, while scattered through an immense volume, when gathered and considered, fully sustains the findings made."

Again:

"In argument, it is tenaciously contended, however, that the long acquiescence of the Construction Company effected the same result. There was no finding of such acquiescence by the Court. Indeed, there could not be, consistently, with the finding that the Construction Company was dominated in all things by the officers of the Missouri Pacific Railway Company."

In Rehearing, Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald & Mallory Co., 44 Neb. 463, it was held:

"Persons who are directors of two corporations have no implied authority to bind either by contracts with respect to subjects 708 in which their interests are adverse, and all such agreements, unless subsequently ratified, may be avoided at the suit of non-consenting stockholders."

Again:

"Acquiescence in a fraudulent transaction is, in effect, a new agreement, made consciously with an intent to condone the wrong done, and will not be inferred from doubtful evidence, but should be established like any other material fact by the party asserting it. We are referred to no positive act indicating acquiescence in this instance, the only claim being that it should be inferred from the time intervening between the date of the action complained of, and the institution of the suit, to-wit, 1 year, 10 months and 17 days. Time alone, unaffected by other circumstances, will not bar the right to rescind a voidable transaction, since it is not for a wrong doer to impose extreme vigilance and promptitude as conditions to the exercise of the rights of the injured party. Pol. Cont., 546; Pence v. Langdon, 99 U. S., 581; Montgomery v. Pickering, 116 Mass., 227; Tarkington v. Purvis, 128 Ind., 187, 25 N. E., 879; Moxon v. Payne, 8 Ch. App., 881; Foley v. Hoity, 41 Neb., 563, 59 N. W., 781.

See also Missouri Pacific Ry. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 160 U. S. 556, for report of this case in the Supreme Court of the United States."

In Wardell v. Union Pacific Railroad Company, 103 U. S., 651, the Court say:

"Hence, all arrangements by directors of a railroad company to secure an undue advantage to themselves at its expense by the formation of a new company as an auxiliary to the original one, with the understanding that they, or some of them shall take stock in it and then that valuable contracts shall be given to it, in the profits of which they as stockholders in the new company are to share, are so many unlawful devices to enrich themselves to the detriment of the stockholders and creditors of the original company, and will be condemned whenever properly brought before the courts for consideration. Great Luxembourg Ry. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav., 586; Benson v. Heathorn, 1 Y. & Col. C. C., 326; Flint R. R. Co. v. Dewey, 14 Mich., 477; European Ry. Co. v. Poor, 59 Me., 277; Drury v. Cross, 7 Wall., 299."

In Dickerman v. Northern Trust Co., 176 U. S., 204, the Court say:

"In those cases where the scheme or organization gives the promoters the power of selecting the directors who are to repre-

709 sent the company in the proposed purchase, they are bound to select competent and trustworthy persons who will act honestly in the interests of the shareholders. A purchase made from the promoters under these circumstances will not bind the company unless it was a fair and honest bargain. Morawetz, Priv. Corp., Sec. 546; New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, L. R. 5 Ch. Div., 73; Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y., 349, 25 N. E., 505; Simons v. Vulcan Oil & Min. Co., 61 Pa., 202, 100 Am. Dec., 628; Twycross v. Grant, L. R. 2, C. P. Div., 469, 503; Whaley Bridge Calico Printing Co. v. Green, L. R. 5 Q. B. Div., 111; Thompson, Liability of Officers & Agents, 218, Sec. 20".

In Bridgens v. Savings Bank, 66 Fed. Rep., 9, Judge Philips in that case stated the general rule applicable in equity as follows:

"It is a settled rule of equity jurisprudence that the directors and agents of two companies are disqualified from representing both companies in a transaction where the interest of the two companies are opposed, nor will one corporation be permitted to form a company ancillary to the original one, and contract with it to the disadvantage of the creditors and stockholders of one of the companies. Mor., Priv. Corp., Secs. 529, 530. And a court of equity will, in such case, notwithstanding the apparent legal effect of such transfer and transaction between two such corporations, treat the same according to the real facts and equities of the case. McVicker v. Opera Co., 40 Fed., 861; Interstate Tel. Co. v. Baltimore & O. Tel. Co., 51., Fed., 49; Trust Co. v. Kneeland, 138 U. S., 414, 11 Sup. Ct., 357; Day v. Telegraph Co., (Md.) 7 Atl., 608."

In Meeker v. Winthrop Iron Co., 17 Fed. Rep., 48, the Court says:

"The ownership of a majority of the capital stock of a corporation invests the holders thereof with many and valuable incidental rights. They may legally control the company's business, prescribe its general policy, make themselves its agents, and take reasonable compensation for their services. But, in thus assuming the control, they also take upon themselves the correlative duty of diligence and good faith. They cannot lawfully manipulate the company's business in their own interests to the injury of other corporators. Any contract made by them in behalf of their principal with themselves or with another for their personal gain, would be voidable at the option of the company."

In Thomas v. Peoria & R. I. Ry. Co., 36 Fed. Rep., 808, the Court say:

710 "The court cannot, consistently with any sound principle of equity or of public policy, recognize the contracts between the Western Car Company and the Peoria & Rock Island Railway Company, one dated March 1, 1872, and the other dated October 1, 1873, as the basis of accounting between the parties to this cause. The officers and individuals dominating the Car Company were substantially the same officers and officials that dominated the railroad company. For every purpose of business, the masters of the lessor company were also masters of the lessee company. Those who contrived and directed the making of the leases in question in behalf of the car company must, under the circumstances disclosed by the record, be deemed to have contracted simply with themselves in reference to the monthly rental of its cars, and the terms upon which they were to be used by the railroad company."

In Jackson v. McLean, 36 Fed. Rep., 213, (Circuit Court, Eastern Division, Eastern District of Missouri), the Court say:

"From the foregoing statement of the contents of the bill it appears that the profits of the enterprise, to which the complainant lays claim, and with respect to which he desires to have an account taken, were all realized from a contract made by himself and McLean with the railroad corporation, for the building and equipment of its road, and beyond all question that contract was constructively fraudulent. Complainant himself was one of the directors of the corporation when the contract was executed. The remaining directors were clerks of McLean, who had become directors at his request, merely to represent his interest and execute his orders. They had no personal interest in the corporation or in the enterprise in which it was engaged, and were not even the beneficial owners of the respective shares of stock that stood in their names. According to the showing made by the bill, Jackson and McLean were the real managers and directors of the company, but, notwithstanding that fact, they caused the company to enter into a contract with themselves, or, rather with their representatives, for the building and equipment of the road, by which the company parted with all of its stock, mortgage bonds, and other available assets, for what plainly appears to have been an inadequate consideration. The contract was manifestly an improvident one, so far as the corporation was concerned, but, without reference to that fact it was obviously fraudulent and unlawful, for the reason that both Jackson and McLean, by virtue of their relation to the corporation, were incapable of making an agreement with it. It is hardly necessary to add that the law would lend no sanction to the agreement made by them with the 711 corporation, even though the bargain had not been detrimental to the company".

In Currier v. New York, etc., R. R. Co., 35 Hun. (N. Y.), 355, the Court say:

"If it was the fact that those defendants did control the actions of the railroad company, either through their own acts or those of their associates as directors thereof, it is plain that since they also controlled the Construction Company they were simply contracting with themselves, and that the railroad company was helpless in their hands. It requires no argument to demonstrate that a contract made under such circumstances was presumptively fraudulent." Citing N. Y. Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nat. Protection Ins. Co., 14 N. Y., 85, and other cases.

In Lowenstein v. Diamond etc., Company, 88 N. Y., Supp., 313, in an action by the minority stockholders of the Diamond Company, on behalf of the company, the Court, in granting similar relief, say:

"The facts stated in our other opinion show that the Diamond Company is dominated and controlled by the American Company, a rival corporation engaged in the same line of business. The contracts made and relations established between the Diamond Company and the American Company were made and established by the directors, who were such at the time of the commencement of this action. The relief demanded and awarded is the cancellation of the contracts between the companies, the severance of their relations, and an accounting to the Diamond Company, for the damages sustained by those contracts and relations which the directors made, established or ratified, and the execution and continuance of which they permitted."

In Memphis etc., Railroad Company v. Woods, 88 Ala., 630, 16 Am. St. Rep., 81, the Court say:

"Although, as we have said, directors of a pecuniary corporation may not be trustees in the technical sense of that term, they are under the same restraints, and labor under the same disabilities, which rest on trustees proper, so far as questions raised by the present bill are concerned. When personal interest antagonizes the disinterestedness and impartiality which the law, as well as morality, exacts in the exercise of fiduciary trusts, this is per se, a disqualification, not by reason of any abuse committed, but in fear that weak human nature will yield to temptation. Justice Field, speaking of the conflict between duty and interest, says: 'Constituted as humanity is, in the majority of cases duty would be overborne in the strug-712 gle.' March v. Whitemore, 21 Wall., 178; Nathan v. Thompkins, 82 Ala., 437; Gr. Luxembourg Ry. Co. v. Magnay, 25 Beav., 586."

In Gilman etc., R. R. Co., v. Kelly, 77 Ill., 426, a portion of the syllabus is as follows:

"It is illegal for directors of a railway company to become members of a company with whom they have made a contract to build and equip the road, so as to share in the profits, and if they do, they will, in equity, be compelled to account for profits realized."

Again, the Court say:

"No ratification will estop the principal, unless he has been made aware of all the material facts and circumstances of the transaction that would in any way influence his mind of affect the value of the contract. Hofman Steam Coal Co., v. Cumberland Coal and Iron Co., supra; Cockrell v. Cholmelly, 1 Russ. & Mylne, 418."

In Atalla Iron Ore Company v. Virginia Iron Company, 111 Tenn., 527, 77 S. W., 774, the Court say:

"The principle here announced authorizes the annulment of a contract such as the present one, if seasonably challenged, without regard to whether it is favorable or unfavorable to the complaining principal."

In O'Connor v. Coosa Co., 95 Ala., 614, the Court say:

"If the same persons, as directors of two different companies, represent both companies, in a transaction in which their interests are opposed, such transaction may be avoided by either company, or at the instance of a stockholder in either company, without regard to the question of advantage or detriment to either company. Both the corporations are armed with the right to repudiate such a transaction no matter how fair and open it may be shown to be. Railroad Co. v. Woods, 88 Ala., 630, 641, 7 South. Rep., 108. But the duty which disqualifies the directors from binding the corporation by a transaction in which they have an adverse interest is one owing to the corporation which they represent and to the stockholders thereof."

In Glengary Mining Company v. Boehmer, 28 Colo., 3, 62 Pac. Rep., 839, the syllabus is as follows:

"Where a mining corporation purchases a majority of the stock of another mining corporation, and by so doing is able to elect a directory under its control, and secure a bond and lease of the property of such corporation on its [ocn] terms and conditions, such lease 713 and bond will be set aside at the suit of minority stockholders of the latter corporation, though obtained without any actual fraud."

In Pittsburg etc., Railway Co. v. Dodd, 115 Ky., 176, 72 S. W. Rep., 822, the court say:

"In this case the complaint shows a contract between two corporations having directors in common, both dominated by the same controlling interest, and that one of them has reaped material advantage over the other because of the former's breach of the contract, which the directors of the latter refuse to sue to redress.* * * To close the doors of the courts to a single stockholder in such a case upon the theory that the majority must rule, and that, having embarked in a common enterprise with them, he must abide the judgment of the majority, would be to turn over to a possible wrong doer the adjudication of his own case. In such an unequal struggle between duty and interest, it would more frequently happen that 'duty would be overborne in the conflict.' It is clear to us that upon the allegations in the petition in this case a cause of action was shown against the Pan Handle Company."

In Miner v. Belle Isle Ice Co., 93 Mich., 97, a portion of the syllabus is as follows:

"A ratification of his own act by a majority stockholder and his dummies, who constitute a board of directors, cannot purge it of its fraudulent character."

In Thompson's Commentaries on the Law of Corporations, Vol. 3, Section 4079, the author says:

"A contract between two corporations, where the same persons are directors and officers in both, is probably not bad in law; since by a fiction of law the corporation is a person distinct from the individuals who compose it. But here, as in most other matters in respect of corporations, the weakness of what is called law, in clinging to fiction, is supplied by the strength of that part of the law which is called equity, in cutting through forms and getting at the substance of things."

In Section 4081 the author says:

"A better view is, that such contracts are voidable, although there was a quorum in each board of directors who were not directors in the other. This view is founded upon experience and rests upon the well known opportunities for fraud which exist where all the members of each contracting body are not in a situation to think and act freely for their own constituents without being swayed by any considerations in behalf of the other, and upon the right of 714 those directors who are disinterested to be able to consult with a full board, whose allegiance, like their own, is clear. Accordingly it has been held that a contract between a railroad and a construction company is void, in the sense that it cannot be made the foundation of equitable relief when any of the directors of the railroad company are members of the construction company; and that the fact of long acquiescence on the part of the stockholders of the railroad company makes no difference. Citing Thomas v. Railroad Co., 109 U. S., 522, s. c., 1 McCrary, 392, and 2 Fed., 887; Barr v. New York R. R. Co., 5 N. Y. Supp., 623; s. c., 52 Hun., 555; also Bunnell v. Empire Laundry Co., 24 N. Y. St., 675; s. c., 5 N. Y. Supp., 591."

Section 4082 of the same volume, is as follows:

"Clearly a contract between two corporations is voidable in equity at the suit of either corporation or its representative, where the same persons were directors of both corporations. Citing, Bill v. Western Union Tel. Co., 16 Fed., 14."

In Morawetz Corporations, 2nd Ed., Vol. 1, Sec. 520, the author says:

"It is clear that the directors of a railroad company have no right to make contracts on behalf of the company for the construction or equipment of its road by a construction company in which they are interested as shareholders, and even if they were not interested in the construction company at the time when the contract was entered into they would have no right to become shareholders thereafter and continue to act as directors of the railroad company. Their interest in adding to the profits of the construction company by allowing the railroad to be built cheaply and imperfectly would be opposed to their duty to the railroad company to insist upon a strict performance of the contract and a careful construction of the road."

In Clark & Marshall, Corporations, Vol. 3, Sec. 760, the authors say:

"No principle in the law of corporations, therefore, is founded on sounder reasons, or more surely settled, than the principle that the directors, trustees, or other officers of a corporation, who are intrusted with its interests, and occupy a fiduciary relation towards it, will not be allowed to contract with the corporations, directly or indirectly, or to sell property to it, or purchase property from it, where they act both for the corporation and for themselves. In such a case the transaction is, at the very least, voidable at the op-
715 tion of the corporation; and, it may be voided and set aside, or affirmed and any profits recovered, without proof of actual fraud or of actual injury to the corporation * * * It has also been held in a number of cases that the doctrine applies to a contract or other transaction between two corporations, where the directors or other officers of one of them, or some of the directors or officers of one of them, are also stockholders or directors or officers of the other."

In Dickerman v. Northern Trust Company, 176 U. S., 181, the court say:

"The promoter is the agent of the corporation and subject to the disabilities of an ordinary agent. His acts are scrutinized carefully, and he is precluded from taking a secret advantage of other stockholders. Cook, Stock & Stockholders, Sec. 651." * * *

"In those cases where the scheme of organization gives the promoters the power of selecting the directors who are to represent the company in the proposed purchase they are bound to select competent and trustworthy persons who will act honestly in the interests of the shareholders. A purchase made from the promoters under these circumstances will not bind the company unless it was a fair and honest bargain."

In Yeiser v. U. S. Board & Paper Co., 107 Fed., 340; 46 C. C. A., 567; 52 L. R. A., 724, the opinion by Severens, C. J., Circuit Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit, is in part as follows (p. 344):

"It is a well settled principle of equity that those who participate in bringing about the organization of an incorporated company, and in getting it in condition for transacting the business for which it was organized, assume the obligations of a trust toward the company and those who shall be invited to come into the enterprise as stockholders and share in its fortunes. The latter have the right to rely on the good faith and fair dealing of those who have promoted the company, and to assume that they have not perverted the organization by secret means to the accomplishment of selfish purposes, and the destruction of that equality of right which in the absence of some known modification, all the stockholders are entitled to enjoy. Indeed, some of the decided cases hold a wider doctrine, and declare that whether the promoter becomes a stockholder himself or not, he owes a like duty to those who became such, and cannot, by covert manipulation of the company while it is under his control, and without the faculty of acting for itself, take a personal profit from his dealings with it. The recognition of a fiduciary relation in such circumstances is merely for the application 716 of a familiar principle of equity, which fastens a trust upon one who has such power over another and his affairs as to give the former an opportunity to make personal gains in his dealings with them * * * Of course these observations do not apply to a case where the corporation, having knowledge of the facts and freedom of action, consents to a contract proposed by another, even though he may be a stockholder or director. The corporation could not in such case complain, nor could a stockholder, if there had been no actually fraudulent purpose towards him * * *. When, on August 93, 1896; Browne and Stuart made their proposition to sell the mill to their company, and they and their co-operating associates, acting as the board of directors, accepted it for the company, the company was completely in fetters. While it was made to be a purchaser, it was dominated by the seller. It had no organ for seeing, hearing, or even knowing what was going on.

Its whole constituency was engaged in bringing about the sale for the sellers. We have, on several occasions, held that where one who assumes to act as the agent of another in a given transaction is really acting as the agent of a third person, or in behalf of some scheme of his own, his apparent principal, having no knowledge of such alien purpose, is not bound by such pretended agent's acts, nor by any notice or knowledge of facts which such agent had at the time the transaction was going forward. Thompson-Houston Electric Co. v. Capitol Electric Co., 12 C. C. A., 643, 22 U. S. App., 639, 65 Fed., 341; Wilson v. Pauly, 18 C. C. A., 475, 37 U. S. App., 642, 72 Fed., 129, 134; Louisville Trust Co. v. Louisville N. A. & C. R. Co., 22 C. C. A., 378, 43 U. S. App., 550, 75 Fed., 433, 469."

"The defendants say that they did disclose the fact to the East Tennessee Land Company and they did get the consent of the East Tennessee Land Company to the payment of this $700,000 of stock to them for their remuneration as promoters, and that is not only enough, but it is final. It is true that the vote authorizing the issue of this stock to them as the profits which they were to have out of the organization of the company was voted unanimously by all the incorporators of the East Tennessee Land Company, and all who were then subscribers to its capital stock; that is, by all the persons who then had any interest in that corporation. That is to say, it is true that the fact that the promoters were to receive $700,000 of paid up capital stock as remuneration for their services was disclosed and consented to by all the persons who then had any interest in the corporation. But it is also true that at that 717 time, no person except the promoters had any interest in the corporation, barring one Mason, in whose name some of the options were subsequently taken, and who was plainly a mere nominee of the promoters, and that at that time no capital stock of the corporation had been issued to the public. Payment to promoters or remuneration for their services, is not made valid by a vote passed by the corporation, when the corporation is in the sole control of the promoters, before the capital has been issued to the public. Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, 5 Ch. Div. 73; Erlanger v. Phosphate Co., 3 App. Cas., 1218; In re Olympia, (1898) 2 Ch. Div., 153; in re British Seamless Paper Box Co., 17 Ch. Div., 467, 471, 472. The persons to whom the promoters owe the duty which they owe by reason of their fiduciary relation are the persons who put their money into the enterprise at the invitation of the promoters; that is to say, the future stockholders."

In Morgan et al., v. King, 27 Colo., 539, 63 Pac. Rep., 416, the Court say:

"Conceding, however, that by the exercise of ordinary diligence upon the part of the plaintiff in connection with the affairs of the bank, he could not have acquainted himself with the sale, we are not aware of any rule of law which would require him to take these steps. He certainly was not required to assume that the agents of the bank charged with the management of its affairs would make a wrongful disposition of its assets, nor does the law impose upon him any obligation to examine into the affairs of the bank for this purpose. If, in fact, the defendant directors have been wrongdoers, their relation to the plaintiff and the bank was such that they are not in a position to impose upon the plaintiff any considerable degree of vigilance in ferreting out their wrongs, as a condition precedent to his right to maintain an action against them on account of their wrongful acts. Fitzgerald v. Construction Co., (Neb.) 62 N. W., 899; Jenkins v. Hammerschlag (Sup.) 56 N. Y. Supp., 534; Light Co. v. Lahey (Ala.) 25 South. 1006."

In Bent v. Priest, 86 Mo., 475, the Court say:

"Our statute of limitations applies to equitable, as well as legal causes of action, and we agree with counsel for the defendant that this cause [underation] should be considered in the light of the former equity rules, the place of which, in many respects, at least, it was designed to take. * * * Much, we think, depends upon the fact whether the fraud is a secret or open one. If the sub-718 stantial facts constituting the fraud, in cases like the one under consideration, were open, it is believed, under the equity rules, the statute of limitations would have been applied at once, but if these facts were in their nature secret and were unknown, it is believed the statute would not begin to run until they were discovered, there being no want of diligence on the part of the complainant."

In Bryan v. Kales, 134, U. S., 126, Justice Harlan says:

"If, as contended by the defendants, a court of equity may deny relief because of laches in suing, although the plaintiff commenced his action within the period limited by the statute for actions at law, still the granting or refusing relief, upon that ground, must depend upon the special circumstances of each case."

In Galliher v. Cadwell, 145 U. S., 368, the Court say:

"But it is unnecessary to multiply cases. They all proceed upon the theory that laches is not, like limitation, a mere matter of time; but principally a question of the inequity of permitting the claim to be enforced—an inequity founded upon some change in the condition or relation of the property or the parties."

In Rhinelander v. Barron, 17 Johns, (N. Y.), 538, the Court say:

"The Chancellor, therefore, correctly ordered the special reference to the master as before stated. Numerous cases go to show that accounts have frequently been ordered to be opened after a longer period than the present; where, as in this case, it appeared that undue advantage had been taken of the peculiar situation of the party. In Bosanquet v. Dashwood, (Cases temp., Talbut, 37), usurious agreements were made and repeated from 1710 to 1724. The accounts were ordered to be opened, and the demands reduced to money really lent. So in Vernon v. Vawdy, 2 (Atk., 119), the whole account was opened after a period of 23 years. The same principles governed the decision in a number of cases cited by the respondent's counsel, in the argument of this cause in the court below. (1 Johns, Ch., 555)."

In Ryan et al., v. Leavenworth, 21 Kansas, 270, the Court say:

"It was not necessary to allege that the Missouri River Railroad Company and the Leavenworth, Atchison & Northwestern Railroad Company, or either or them, did not discover the frauds of the defendants until within two years next before the suit was com-719 menced, as the allegations of the petition show satisfactorily that these companies were, and continue to be under the actual potential control of the wrongdoers, who are necessary defendants, and knowledge on the part of the guilty officers and agents of the corporations of the fraudulent acts and conduct of themselves and guilty associates, is no notice to the corporation or its stockholders so as to give the advantage of this notice to such agents and associates."

In O'Brien v. Wheelock, 184 U. S., 450, the Court say (p. 493):

"The doctrine of courts of equity to withhold relief from those who have delayed the assertion of their claims for an unreasonable length of time is thoroughly settled. Its application depends on the circumstances of the particular case. It is not a mere matter of lapse of time, but of change of situation during neglectful repose, rendering it inequitable to afford relief."

In Pomeroy on Equity Jurisprudence, 3rd Ed., Vol. 2, Secs. 917, 965, the author says:

"Sec. 917: Promptness—Delay through ignorance of the fraud.—The most important practical consequence of the two principles above mentioned is the requisite of promptness. The injured party must assert his remedial rights with diligence and without delay, upon becoming aware of the fraud. After he has obtained knowledge of the fraud, or has been informed of facts and circumstances from which such knowledge would be imputed to him, a delay in instituting judicial proceedings for relief, although for a less period than that prescribed by the statute of limitations, may be, and generally will be, a bar to any equitable remedy. To this rule, there is one limitation; it applies only when the fraud is known or ought to have been known. No lapse of time, no delay in bringing a suit however long, will defeat the remedy, provided the injured party was, during all this interval, ignorant of the fraud. The duty to commence proceedings can arise only upon his discovery of the fraud; and the possible effect of his laches will begin to operate only from that time.

Sec. 965: Acquiescence and lapse of time—A second mode by which the remedial right may be destroyed and the transaction rendered unimpeachable, is acquiescence. The term "acquiescence" is sometimes used improperly. It differs from confirmation on the one side; and from mere delay on the other. While confirmation implies a deliberate act, intended to renew and ratify a transaction known to be voidable, acquiescence is some act, not delib-
720 erately intended to ratify a former transaction known to be voidable, but recognizing the transaction as existing, and intending, in some extent at least, to carry it into effect, and to obtain or claim the benefits resulting from it. The theory of the doctrine is, that a party, having thus recognized a contract as existing, and having done something to carry it into effect, and to obtain or claim its benefits, although perhaps only to a partial extent, and having thus taken his chances, cannot afterwards be suffered to repudiate the transaction and allege its voidable nature. It follows that mere delay, mere suffering time to elapse, without doing anything, is not acquiesence is thus a recognition of and consent to the contract or for refusing equitable relief, either affirmative or defensive. As acquiscence is thus a recognition of and consent to the contract or other transaction as existing, the requisites to its being effective as a bar are, knowledge or notice of the transaction itself, knowledge of the party's own rights, absence of all undue influence or restraint, and consequent freedom of action; a conscious intention to ratify the transaction, however, is not an essential element. When a party with full knowledge, or at least with sufficient notice or means of knowledge, of his rights, and of all the material facts, freely does what amounts to a recognition of the transaction as existing, or acts in a manner inconsistent with its repudiation, or lies by for a considerable time and knowingly permits the other party to deal with the subject matter under the belief that the transaction has been recognized, or freely abstains for a considerable length of time from impeaching it, so that the other party is thereby reasonably induced to suppose that it is recognized there is acquiesence, and the transaction, although originally impeachable, becomes unimpeachable in equity. Even where there has been no act or language properly amounting to an acquiesence, a mere delay, a mere suffering time to elapse unreasonably, may of itself be a reason why courts of equity refuse to exercise their jurisdiction in cases of actual and constructive fraud, as well as in other instances. It has always been a principle of equity to discourage stale demands; laches are often a defense wholly independent of the statute of limitations. Promptness in asserting a remedial right against fraud is sometimes required; but no delay will prejudice a defrauded party as long as he was ignorant of the fraud. Each case involving the defense of delay or lapse of time must, to a great extent, depend upon its own circumstances."

Cases cited by Complainant Classified and Distinguished from the Case at Bar.

721 1. There are distinguishing features between the case at bar and that class of complainant's cases in which dissenting minority stockholders sought to prevent, by speedy, seasonable resistance the consummation or execution of an oppressive contract or course of conduct by the majority, by instituting proper proceedings to rescind a contract before its execution and before the status quo has changed, and in nearly all which cases, the prayer was for injunctive relief against offending directors. Of this class are the following cases, cited by complainant.

Met. Ry. Co. v. Manhattan, etc., Co., 11 Daly, 375;
Bridgens v. Bank, 66 Fed., 9;
Bill v. Western Union Tel. Co., 16 Fed., 14;
Meeker v. Winthrop Iron Co., 17 Fed., 48.

Earle v. Seattle R. R. 56 Fed., 909.
Pearson v. Concord, R. R., 62 N. H., 537.
Memphis R. R. v. Woods, 88 Ala., 630.
Glengary Mining Co. v. Boehmer, 28 Cal., 3.
Robothorn v. Prudential Ins. Co., 64 N. J., Eq., 673.
Pacific R. R. v. Mo. Pacific R. R., 111 U. S., 505; and many other cases cited by complainants.

For example, in the case of Bridgens v. Savings Bank, 66 Fed., 9, decided by Phillips, Judge, the transaction challenged occurred on July 17th, 1893, and on the same day a receiver was appointed in insolvency proceedings. Within one month, the receiver demanded a rescission of the transaction which on its face was a gross fraud not only on stockholders but existing creditors. The transaction was a secret one, had never been entered on the books of either company, had never been reported to or ratified by the directors of either corporation, and the offending officer knew at the time of his wrongful act that the concern was on the eve of insolvency.

2. Nor is the case at bar analogous to that class of cases relied upon by complainants and insolving secret and concealed frauds, and to which class belong Wardell v. U. P. R. R., 103 U. S., 651; Attala Iron Co. v. Virginia Iron Co., 111 Tenn., 527; Bridgens v. Bank, 66 Fed., 9, and many other cases cited by complainant's counsel. For example, in Wardell v. U. P. R. R. Co., supra, the contract had been entered into by the Executive Committee of the railroad company, had never been reported to the Board of Directors and had never been approved by them. This feature of that case was made the basis of distinguishment by Mr. Justice Harlan in Jesup v. R. R., 43 Fed., 483.

3. Nor is there any decided similarity between the case at bar and those relied upon by complainant's counsel, wherein the 722 corporation defendant was enabled to keep itself in control of the injured corporation through its ownership of a majority of the shares of the other company, and where the action was instituted by a diligent minority.

In the case at bar, the Trust Company at no time owned voting control of the railroad companies involved in this proceeding. To this class of cases belong Pittsburg R. R. v. Dodd, 115 Ky., 176; Miner v. Belle Isle Ice Co., 93 Mich., 97; Pacific R. R. v. Mo. Pacific Ry., 111 U. S., 505; Hoffman Co. v. Cumberland Co., 16 Md., 456; Farmers Loan & Trust Co. v. N. Y. & N. R. R., 150 N. Y., 410; s. c., 34 L. R. A., 76; McGourkey v. R. R., 146 U. S., 536, and other cases cited by complainant's counsel.

4. It has been strongly contended by counsel for the Trust Company that the class of cases cited by complainants, respecting the "liabilities of promotors", has no application to the case at bar, that such cases are simply declaratory of the well established doctrine that, where promoters buy property at a certain price and afterwards sell it for a greater price to a corporation, organized by them for the purpose of acquiring the property, they are legally bound to disclose to the corporation the price at which they bought; in other words, while such promoters are prohibited from making a secret profit, they are not debarred from making a profit on their sale to the corporation, provided they make proper disclosures to it.

In this case it is questionable whether any of the transactions of the Trust Company with the Belt Company could be even inferentially brought within the application of the "secret profits doctrine", but, later on, further reference will be made to this subject in connection with certain items, which have been designated in the ancillary bill as of a promotion character. As an additional reason against the applicability of the promotion cases to the facts in this case, it is contended by respondent's counsel that no showings were made in those cases as to acquiescence, laches or long lapse of time, such as are proven to exist in the case at bar.

III.

The Master's Conclusions as to Certain Propositions of Law Applicable to the Facts in the Record.

After a careful examination of the cases, submitted by counsel for both parties, the Master has reached the following conclusions, in respect to the principal propositions of law, which have to be determined, preparatory to his findings upon the various questions to be decided in this cause.

723 First. "Rights of Receiver".

The rights of the complainant, as receiver of the Belt Company, being wholly derivative, are neither greater nor less than those of the Belt Company itself, and, hence, if the latter is barred or estopped by reason of the proofs in the record, so likewise is its receiver.

The receiver is authorized to sue in his own name to recover any assets of the company from one, who has wrongfully misappropriated or wasted them with the connivance or assistance of the company's officers, under circumstances, similar to those stated in Alexander v. Relfe, 74 Mo., 495.

Generally speaking, however, and in the absence of an intention to defraud the corporate creditors, a receiver has no right of action for an alleged improper diversion of corporate funds, which was made by and with the consent of the stockholders, or subsequently ratified by them, while the corporation was solvent, and still a going concern. In an action by the receiver on any claim or demand, which is part of the receivership estate, any defense, which might have been set up to an action by the corporation, may be asserted against the receiver.

Kessler v. Ensley Land Co., 148 Fed., 1019.
Graham v. R. R., 102 U. S., 148.
Lawrence v. Greenup, 97 Fed., 906.
Alexander v. Relfe, 74 Mo., 495.

Second. "Common Directors."

Where two corporations enter into a contract, through their respective boards of directors, in which a majority of such directors are common to each board, such contract will not, necessarily, be declared void on that account, regardless of its fairness or of the benefits accruing to both or either of the contracting corporations, nor will the common directors, under such circumstances, necessarily come within the rigid rule of those cases, which hold that one, who acts in a fiduciary capacity, cannot deal with himself in his individual capacity; in other words, the right of two corporations to contract with each other is not absolutely impaired or destroyed by reason of the fact that a portion or a majority of the directors are common to both corporations, and to which corporations such directors owe fidelity. There is a marked distinction between the "want of power" and the "abuse of power".

In Twin Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, supra, the statement is made that, "the property in controversy had been appropriated and used for the production of mineral oil from wells, a species of property which is, more than any other, subject to rapid, frequent and extreme fluctuations in value. The director who bought it committed no actual fraud, and the corporators knew at the time of his purchase all the facts upon which their right to avoid it depended. They refused to join him in it, or to pay the assessments then made on their stock; and it was nearly four years thereafter when the hazard was over, and his skill, energy and money had made his investment profitable, that any claim to, or assertion of right in, the property was made by the corporation, or the stockholders. Held that the court below properly dismissed the bill of complaint of the corporation."

Mr. Justice Miller, delivering the opinion of the Court, says:

"The general doctrine, however, in regard to contracts of this class, is, not that they are absolutely void, but that they are voidable at the election of the party whose interest had been so represented by the party claiming under it. We say, this is the general rule; for there may be cases where such contracts would be void ab initio; as when an agent to sell buys of himself, and by his power of attorney conveys to himself that which he was authorized to sell. But, even here, acts which amount to a ratification by the principal may validate the sale.

725 The present case is not one of that class. While it is true that the defendant, as a director of the corporation, was bound by all these rules of conscientious fairness which courts of equity have imposed as the guides for dealing in such cases, it cannot be maintained that any rule forbids one director among several from loaning money to the corporation when the money is needed, and the transaction is open, and otherwise free from blame. No adjudged case has gone so far as this. Such a doctrine, while it would afford little protection to the corporation against actual fraud or oppression, would deprive it of the aid of those much interested in giving aid judiciously, and best qualified to judge of the necessity of that aid, and of the extent to which it may safely be given.

The authorities to the point of the necessity of the exercise of the right of rescinding or avoiding a contract or transaction as soon as it may reasonably be done, after the party with whom the right is optional is aware of the facts which gave him that option, are numerous and well collected in the brief of appellees' counsel. The more important are as follows: Badger v. Badger, 2 Wall. 87; Harwood v. R. R. Co., 17 id., 78; Marsh v. Whitman, 21 id., 178; Vigers v. Pike, 8 Cl. & Pin., 650; Wentworth v. Lloyd, 32 Beav., 467; Follansbee v. Kilbreth, 17 Ill., 522."

In Jesup v. R. R., supra, a railroad company had leased all of its property to another railroad company, and the question involved was respecting the validity of the lease, which was the only transaction in controversy between the two companies, and not a series of transactions, as in the case at bar. Both of the companies had common directors, and the transaction was attacked on that account.

Mr. Justice Harlan, delivering the opinion of the Court, says:

"But to avoid misapprehension it is well to say that, in the judgment of the court, the lease would not have been void, even if a majority of the directors of the Dubuque Company occupied the same relations to the Cedar Falls Company that Jesup, James, Frost, and Smith did when the lease was made. It would, at most, have been simply voidable at the election of the Dubuque Company, or, in a proper case, at the suit of its stockholders, and that election must have been exercised, or that suit brought, within such time as was reasonable, taking into consideration the facts and circumstances of the case, including the nature of the property that was the subject of the lease."

726 In San Diego, etc., R. R. v. Pacific Beach, etc., R. R., supra, the syllabus, is as follows:

"1. The fact that some, or a majority, of the directors of two corporations, are common to both, does not make a contract between the companies absolutely void or prevent its ratification.

2. Ratification of a contract between corporations having common directors is shown where one company has entirely performed its part of the contract, and the other has performed a part of it and cannot restore anything or place the other party, in whole or in part, in statu quo,—especially when the stockholders have expressly approved the contract.

3. Unanimous consent of all the stockholders is not necessary to the ratification of a voidable contract which a majority of them could have authorized in the first instance."

The Court say:

"The main contention of appellant for a reversal arises out of these facts; The respondent had five directors, and the appellant nine; and at the time the contract was made four of the directors of the appellant were also directors of the respondent, and it is also claimed that, before the completion of the contract, a fifth director of appellant—D. C. Reed—became a director of the respondent. A majority of the directors of both corporations were also stockholders in both, and the contention of appellant is that, because they were common directors of the two corporations as aforesaid, therefore the contract was absolutely void, and incapable of ratification. Respondent contends that upon the facts the contract was, at the most, only voidable, and that the appellant ratified it. Appellant also contends that, even though ratification were possible there was none. In this cause, there is no actual fraud, either alleged or found; and this distinguishes it from many of the cases cited by appellant. The contract seems to have been a fair, open one, and carried into effect before the eyes of all persons interested. Neither is there any question of ultra vires; and he also distinguishes the case from the cases cited by appellant. The court found that appellant's charter expressly gave it the power to make such a contract. See also on this point Vandall v. South San Francisco Dock Co., 40 Cal., 83. The contentions, therefore, at this point of the case, is that the mere fact that there were common directors, as above stated, of the two corporations at the time of the contract, makes it absolutely void; and this contention cannot be maintained.

727 Where two corporations, through their boards of directors, make a contract with each other, the directors who are common to both are not within the rigid rule of the cases which hold that one who acts in a fiduciary capacity cannot deal with himself in his individual capacity, and that any contract thus made will be declared void, without any examination into its fairness, or the benefit derived from it to the cestui que trust. Two corporations have the right, within the scope of their chartered power, to deal with each other; and this right is certainly not destroyed or paralyzed by the fact that some, or a majority, of the directors are common to both. Of course, if such directors should wrongfully and wilfully use their power to the prejudice of one of the corporations, their actions, if not acquiesced in, and if contested at the proper time, could be avoided, as in any other case of actual fraud. But such common directors owe the same fidelity to both corporations, and there is no presumption that they will deal unfairly with the other. Therefore, their acts as such common directors are not void.

In the notes to Section 658, Cook, Stock & Stockholders, 3rd Ed., there are many cases cited on the subject. They are not all in perfect harmony, but they abundantly warrant the statement in the text that 'this class of contracts certainly are not void.' See also Booth v. Robinson, 55 Md., 119; Kitchen v. St. Louis, K. C. & N. R. Co., 69 Mo., 224. The decisions of this court and of other courts, cited by appellant, are mostly in cases where trustees attempted to contract about the trust property directly with themselves, for their individual benefit, and not cases where corporations dealt with each other through common directors; or in case of ultra vires in the strict sense; or in cases where actual fraud was the ground of the alleged invalidity of the contract."

It has been suggestively stated, in Bill v. Western Union Telegraph Company, 16 Fed., 14 (cited by complainants) that the theory that common directors are incompetent to vote on a contract between the two corporations, arises from confounding the distinction between "want of power" and the "abuse of power."

In Leavenworth v. C. R. I. & P. R. R. Co., supra, the cardinal facts were: The Rock Island Company, had guaranteed the bonds of the Southwestern Company, and for a number of years, it, through its officers, owned and voted a majority of the stock in that company, but finally foreclosed the bonded indebtedness on the company's properties, and through a new corporation, organized in its interest, purchased at the foreclosure sale the Southwestern railroad. A bill was filed by a stockholder of the Southwestern 728 to set aside the decree for fraud, mainly upon the grounds that,

(a) One of the trustees in the mortgage was a director in the Rock Island;

(b) The President of the Rock Island was the President of the Southwestern;

(c) A majority of directors in the Southwestern were directors in the Rock Island;

(d) The President of the Rock Island held a majority of the stock of the Southwestern;

(e) The attorney who represented the Southwestern, had been attorney for the Rock Island, and after the foreclosure again represented the Rock Island;

(f) One of the attorneys in the foreclosure was at one time a director in the Southwestern.

The finding of the court was that at times the officers of the Rock Island did control the Southwestern Company for the purpose of making it a feeder for it, "but that this purpose was not necessarily a bad one". At the end of two or three years, it was found that the Southwestern Company owed the Rock Island Company over $1,000,000 for repairs, besides the interest on bonds, paid by it. Mr. Justice Miller, in delivering the opinion of the court, said:

"If it could be shown that the Southwestern Company did not owe this interest, or that the Rock Island had in its hands the means of the Southwestern Company to meet this obligation, and that by reason of collusion between those who controlled both companies, this fact was suppressed or concealed, it would present a strong case for relief. But this would be actual fraud, and one not necessarily growing out of the influence of the Rock Island directory over that of the Southwestern. Notwithstanding this commingling of officers, the corporations were distinct corporations. They had the right to make contracts with each other in their corporate capacities, and they could sue and be sued by each other in regard to the contracts, and the question is not, could they do these things, but, have the relations of the parties—the trust relations, if, indeed such existed—been abused to the serious injury of the Southwestern?"

Relief was denied to the complainant.

It will be observed that in this Leavenworth case, the quotation from the opinion of the United States Supreme Court is in respect to actual fraud, such as collusion between those who controlled both corporations, to suppress or conceal something, and is not 729 intended to apply to the ordinary conditions which necessarily grow out of the influence of either directory upon the other, where two corporations are involved. In fact, the learned Judge recognizes and states that the corporations, being distinct corporate entities, have the right to make contracts with each other in their corporate capacities, and to sue and be sued in respect to such contracts so made, and, it would seem to follow on principle, as the logical result of such authorities, even though the distinction has not been clearly made, that two corporations, having common directors, can make binding contracts with each other, just as two individuals could do, but subject to be avoided in case actual fraud is shown in their mutual transactions; in other words, that the corporate ability to act is complete and binding except only in cases of actual fraud to the detriment of the injured corporation.

In most of the "Common Director" cases, the controversy is between the injured corporation and the director, standing in a fiduciary relation to it and charged to have abused or violated his trust, and is not between two corporations, having such common directors. Complainants insist that there is no substantial difference, as affecting the principle involved, whether the injured corporation deals directly with the director, or through him with another corporation, which he serves to the detriment of the complaining corporation. Cases have been cited sustaining the view of complainant's counsel, and, yet, in the various ramifications of corporate transactions, and the division of the responsibilities cast upon each member of a directory, it does seem that there should be a difference between dealing with an unfaithful director, who has received all the benefits of the particular transaction, and, undertaking to open up and rescind transactions had with another corporation, simply because the two companies happen to have directors which are common to both; but in the determination of the issues in this cause, and the proofs in the record, as they appear to the Master, it is, perhaps, immaterial whether a distinction exists or not, respecting the measure of liability, in either case.

Third.—"Equity Rule." It is a well settled rule of equity jurisprudence that the directors, common to two corporations, are so far disqualified to represent both, when the corporate interests are antagonistic, that they cannot absolutely bind either company, but that a court of equity will, "notwithstanding the apparent legal effect of the transfer and transaction between the two corporations, treat the same according to the real facts and equities of the case;" and, further, that a corporation will not be permitted to form an ancillary company and then contract with it to the advantage of 730 creditors and stockholders interested. Bridgens, v. Savings Bank, 56 Fed. Rep., 9, and cases therein cited.

Fourth.—"Acquiescence of Stockholders". In case a contract between two corporations, having a majority of directors in common, is of such nature that a court of equity would have set it aside, if it had been seasonably contested by non-assenting stockholders, yet if such stockholders either knew of such contract, or having the means of knowledge easily within their reach, "lie supinely by", and take no proper means to prevent its execution, they will be deemed to have acquiesced in the transaction, represented by the contract, and will be held estopped from attacking it. In the language of one of the leading cases, shareholders in such case "are not allowed to speculate at the risk of others on the unauthorized acts of their agents, with the privilege of adopting their acts, if the result prove favorable, and of repudiating responsibility in case of loss".

San Diego, etc., R. R. Co. v. Pacific Beach Co., 112 Cal., 53, 33 L. R. A. 788.

In Jesup v. Illinois Cen. R. R. Co., supra, Mr. Justice Harlan says:

"Now it is said that during the whole period of 20 years while the Cedar Falls Road was controlled by the Illinois Central Railroad Company, Jesup was either president or in control of the Dubuque Company, had possession of its records and papers, and dominated its proceedings, and that it was not until he and the directors whom he controlled resigned in 1887 that the Dubuque Company was in a position or was able, to ascertain the facts, and take such steps as would right the wrong alleged to have been done to it in 1866. * * * "What facts?", the court asks, "It is inconceivable that the fact of the lease of the Cedar Falls road to the Dubuque Company, as well as the terms of the lease, were not known, or could not easily have been known, to every director and stockholder in 731 the Dubuque Company. If directors or stockholders of that company were ignorant for 20 years of the terms of the lease, it was because they were guilty of the grossest negligence in not making inquiry on the subject."

Again:

"The proof satisfactorily shows that this report went to the stockholders of the Dubuque Company. But if there was no proof on the subject, it would be presumed at this late day that it was known to them, or that every stockholder could know, if he tried to know, all the facts. During all that time, the Dubuque Company its offices and stockholders, have remained silent, not only leaving the Illinois Central Railroad Company to treat the lease of September 27, 1866, as valid and binding upon the Dubuque Company, and therefore to be assumed by the former company during its possession of the Cedar Falls road, but inducing, as may be reasonably inferred, the holders of the stock and bonds of the Cedar Falls Company to believe that the rental agreed to be paid by the Dubuque Company could be looked to as a security for the full term of 40 years. This silence and delay upon the part of the Dubuque Company cannot be excused upon the ground suggested in its answer, namely, that so long as the Illinois Central Railroad Company agreed to pay, and paid, the rent of the Cedar Falls road, it was of 'no moment' to the shareholders of the former company what was the amount of such rent. The suggestion assumes that the question of the continuance of the lease concerned only the Dubuque Company. But it was of moment to the Cedar Falls Company, its bondholders and creditors, to say nothing of its stockholders, to know whether that lease was to be carried out according to its terms, and whether the Dubuque Company intended to dispute its binding force. If, at the instance of the latter company, or of its stockholders, the lease had been abrogated shortly after it was executed, it may be that the Cedar Falls Company could have made with the other railroad corporations arrangements quite as favorable as those set forth in the lease.

The Dubuque Company had no right, therefore, to treat it as valid lease, to be respected by the Cedar Falls Company and by the Illinois Central Railroad Company, so long as the latter retained possession of the Dubuque road, but to be repudiated as soon as the Illinois Central Railroad Company ceased to be under obligation to assume it.

The suggestion that the acts entitling the Dubuque Company to a decree cancelling the lease could not have been discovered by it until its own road was turned back to it by the Illinois Central Railroad Company, and until after the election of new di-732 rectors in 1887, has no substantial grounds upon which to rest. Here is a lease of a railroad which was treated as valid, and acted upon by all the parties concerned for more than twenty years. At the expiration of that long period, the lessee company asks a cancellation of the lease because of certain facts which it claims to have just found out, but which its stockholders and directors either knew or could easily have ascertained at any time within the past twenty years * * * Even if such ignorance existed upon the part of some of those who became stockholders of the Dubuque Company after that corporation resumed possession of its road, that circumstance cannot shut out of view that those who were in any wise interested in the Dubuque road, either as directors or stockholders, when the lease of 1866 was made and for 20 years thereafter, knew or could easily have ascertained, all the circumstances attending the execution of that instrument, as well as the nature of its terms and conditions."

Again:

"Seasonable resistance cannot be predicated of a case of a merely voidable contract, where the party complained has not simply been silent for 20 years, but with knowledge of the facts, or with full opportunity to ascertain them, has enjoyed the fruits of the contract, and treated it as valid.

The court is of the opinion that, independently of any question as to the statute of limitations of Iowa, in which state the contract of lease was made, and was to be executed, the Dubuque Company is estopped to dispute the binding force of the lease of September 27, 1866, and, therefore, is not entitled to a decree of cancellation."

In the case of Pneumatic Gas Co. v. Berry & Another, supra., the court said:

"A release by a corporation of its directors of all claims equitable or otherwise, arising out of transactions under a contract between the corporation and the director, made in excess of its corporate powers, is valid, if made in good faith, and without fraud or concealment."

This is a case in which the corporation sought an accounting, not with another corporation (as in the case before us), but with certain directors with whom it had contracted, and afterwards asserted that such contract was void by reason of the fiduciary relation of the directors.

The Court said, again:

"A court of equity does not listen with much satisfaction to the complaints of a company that transactions were illegal which 733 had its approval, which were essential to its protection, and the benefits of which it had fully received. Complaints that its own directors exceeded their authority come with ill grace when the acts complained of alone preserved its existence.

But it is not necessary to rest our judgment of affirmance of the character of those transactions. After seven years' acquiescence in the lease, something more must be shown than that it was executed in excess of the powers of the directors, before the lessee will be required to surrender the profits he has made under it.

The lease expired June 1, 1874; the disposition of the property was settled by the agreement of March 15, 1876; and the release is an answer to all claims for the profits made by the defendants. The release is of itself sufficient to justify the dismissal of the bill. There is no evidence that it was obtained by any fraudulent representations. Nothing was kept from the parties when it was executed. Indeed all the transactions between the defendants and the company, from the time they took from Frost an assignment of the lease, were open and well known. There was no concealment either had or attempted, of anything that was done, and no just reason can be given for disturbing the settlement made."

In San Diego, etc., R. R. Co. v. Pacific Beach Co., supra, the court said:

"The contract, therefore, was not void; and assuming that it was voidable, and might have been avoided by the appellant at the proper time and in the proper manner, it is clear that it was not so avoided, but that it was ratified. In the first place there was no attempt to avoid it, nor any intimation of such intention, until long after the time mentioned in the contract had expired, and respondent had performed all its covenants therein provided, until long after appellant had received all the benefits coming to it from respondent's performance, and until long after it had become impossible to restore anything to respondent, or to put it, in whole or in part, in statu quo. And during this time appellant without objection paid, from time to time, the greater part of the principal and a large part of the interest which by the contract it had promised to pay; thus inducing respondent to perform the whole of its part of the contract in confidence that appellant would do the same. This, we think, under the circumstances of the case, constitutes ratification by acquiescence; for the rule is that a party can-734 not repudiate the burdens of a contract while enjoying its benefits."

Fifth. "Actual Knowledge." Actual knowledge by the stockholders of the transactions in question is not essential, either to convict them of laches, or to conclude them by acquiescence. "Means of knowledge plainly within the reach of stockholders by the exercise of the slightest diligence is in legal effect equivalent to knowledge."

Porter v. R. R., 36 Fed., l. c., 637.
San Diego R. R. v. Pacific Beach, 112 Cal., 53.
Morawetz Priv. Corp., Sec. 630.

Morawetz says, in Sec. 630, of his work on corporations:

"Nor can the shareholders of a corporation avoid responsibility for the unauthorized acts of their agents by abstaining from inquiry into the affairs of the company, or by absenting themselves from the company's meetings, and at the same time reap the benefits of their acts in case of success. If a shareholder fails to take the trouble of inquiring into the affairs of the corporation of which he is a member, or to attend the meetings, it seems no more than just that his supineness should be construed as an acquiescence in the proceedings of the majority."

In Jesup v. Illinois Central R. R. Co., supra, Mr. Justice Harlan makes this statement:

"Taking all the evidence together, the court must proceed upon the ground that means of knowledge, plainly within reach of stockholders by the exercise of the slightest diligence, is in legal effect equivalent to knowledge, and that the fact of the lease, as well as its terms, were fully known to each stockholder and to every officer of the Dubuque Company for 20 years and more prior to this litigation."

Sixth. "Ratification." The contention of counsel for complainant that the transactions challenged could not be ratified except by the unamious consent of all the shareholders of the Belt, cannot be maintained. The corporation may ratify a transaction of its directors "either by the unanimous acquiescence of the shareholders, or by a vote of the majority, if the transaction is of such a character that the majority might have authorized it at the outset."

Kessler & Co. v. Ensley & Co., 123 Fed., 546, s. c., 129 Fed., 397.

In San Diego R. R. Co. v. Pacific Beach Co., supra., the court say: "The contention of appellant that the contract could not be ratified except by the unanimous consent of all the stockholders cannot be maintained. The principle does not apply to acts which might have been authorized by a majority in the first instance. 'The corporation may, however, ratify an unauthorized transaction of its agents, and this may be done either by the unanimous acquiescence of the shareholders, or by vote of the majority if the transaction is of such a character that the majority might have authorized it at the outset.' 1 Morawetz Priv. Corp., 2nd Ed., Sec. 525, and the cases there cited. The rule is that the majority governs, and every stockholder contracts that such shall be the rule.

There is nothing in the contention that the ratifications were made without knowledge of what they meant. In the first place, this is not an action by individual stockholders to set aside a contract made by the corporation. The point is made by the corporation itself in a defense in which it seeks to violate its own obligation; and it would be absurd to say that it did not know what it was doing. But, if we assume in this action the corporation could shield itself between the ignorance of a few of its stockholders, it is clear that the latter knew, or ought to have known, the nature of the contract, and the circumstances attending it."

The counsel for the respondent Trust Company contend that under the authorities, it is not necessary that ratification by the Belt Company should be shown by any particular or peculiar act, but that a course of conduct and the retention of the benefits may be sufficient to make a valid contract by acquiescence; and, further that if a contract is bad for fraud, then it is voidable as a whole and cannot be adopted in part, and repudiated in part, by the Belt Company or its receiver, that they cannot play fast and loose with the rights of the Trust Company. Citing Barr v. R. R. 125 N. Y., 263, and authorities supra; and Sec. 632 of Morawetz on corporations, in which the author says:

"After a corporation has enjoyed the benefit of a contract or other arrangement, made in good faith, with any of its regular agents, it is but fair that every reasonable presumption should be 736 made in order to hold the transaction binding upon the company. Under these circumstances the acquiescence of the shareholders may often be presumed."

Seventh. "Duties of promoters." The foregoing classified contentions of complainants, as to the duties, liabilities and responsibilities of promoters, individual, or corporate, and, especially as to the duty of providing the companies, promoted by them, with independent and impartial boards of directors, free from the control of the promoters, and, also, as to the necessity of making full disclosures of all material facts to such boards, are sustained by the cases hereinbefore cited by complainants, in connection with such propositions.

Eighth. "Domination and Control." The authorities, submitted by complainants, go to support their propositions of law, to the effect that one corporation may, under proper circumstances, dominate and control another corporation through their common directors, and, also, that the dominating influence of a majority stockholder may actually control a board of directors, and, in such case, he stands in a fiduciary relation to the controlled corporation in like manner as does its board of directors.

Other legal questions in respect to the items in dispute, and the accounting generally, will be considered in connection with an examination of such items, and the liability, if anything, therefore, by the Trust Company, as charged in the ancillary bill.

IV.

As to Alleged Trust Company Domination of the Belt Company and other Companies.

The underlying theory, upon which complainants' bill is grounded, is that the Trust Company dominated and controlled the Suburban Company, afterwards the Belt Company, and its constituent companies, and also, the subsidiary companies named in the bill, by virtue of causing the employees, officers and directors of the Trust Company to be elected officers and directors of the Suburban Company, and other corporations, and thereby placing the agents, employees and officers of the Trust Company in charge of such companies, respectively, so that these companies might be dominated and controlled at the behest and in the interest of the Trust Company, and, which complainants allege was done, continuously, through the period of years intervening between the incorporation of these companies and April, 1900, when what was known as the Stilwell management of the Belt and allied companies, lost control, and the Southern Company, and those associated 737 with it, acquired control thereof through the receivership and foreclosure proceedings, mentioned in the bill.

It is charged, in substance, that the Trust Company caused the incorporation of each and all said companies, and, at the outset, caused its own officers and employees to be elected as officers and directors of such companies, and that they became and were merely the agents or dummies of the Trust Company for the purpose of carrying out the objects of that company, and that such condition continued down to April, 1900, as above stated; that, by reason of such domination and control, the Trust Company caused the making and issuance of the stocks and bonds by the corporations, named in the bill, and the delivery thereof to the Trust Company, and their sale and disposition by it, as stated in the bill; and, that, as a result of such domination, the Trust Company itself attended to the disbursement of all moneys which were realized from the sale of these bonds and stocks, including the disbursements in the construction and building of the lines of railroad of these companies, the nature of all of which charges of domination and control will more fully appear in those portions of the bill hereinbefore mentioned; and, further, that all the items contested in this cause are subject to the same infirmity of Trust Company domination and control, and, by reason of which, no proper accounting was ever had between the Trust Company, and the other companies interested, although the forms of accounting were had, from time to time, between them, and hence that, in a court of equity, an inquiry can be made into the merits of such items, and an accounting be had based upon the result thereof.

It will be observed that the allegations as to this domination and control are mostly of a general character, and are somewhat of the nature of conclusions from the proven fact that, generally speaking, the majority of the directors of the corporations involved in this bill, were the agents, officers, or employees of some character, of the Trust Company. It is not disputed that elections were held, from time to time, by the stockholders of these various companies, and that, outside of their first corporate organizations, which were provided for in their articles of incorporation, the new directors were invariably elected by the stockholders in the ordinary way, but, it is claimed that the dominating control of the Trust Company, which began at the very beginning of the corporate life of these companies, continued throughout all their dealings with the Trust Company. It is proven, as hereafter shown, that at no time did the Trust Company, as a stockholder, own or have anything like a majority of the stock of any of the corporations involved 738 in this accounting; hence, its alleged influence and control over these companies were not derived from a majority stock ownership, and if they existed at all, they must be traced to some other cause.

It is difficult to understand how any particular set of directors and officers could continue to act for years for the Belt Company and other companies, if they were in fact under the pernicious domination of the Trust Company, and without a protest from either the majority or the minority stockholders. In this large record, covering a great part of all the transactions between the Trust Company and these other corporations, there is not disclosed a single protest from any stockholder, prior to April, 1900, in respect to any of the dealings of the Trust Company with said corporations, and for that reason, it is difficult now, after the lapse of so many years, and changed conditions, to go back ten or more years prior to 1900 and endeavor to uproot a part or all such Trust Company transactions, when those then interested therein apparently acquiesced in them or expressly ratified them, and that, too, regardless of any Trust Company influence and domination over these corporations.

It has been suggested by counsel that a corporation has no more inherent right to complain that it was caused to be incorporated than a man has to complain that he caused was to be born, the difference between the two being that, while the human product is helpless at birth, and incapable of binding himself by contract, the corporate product is capable of acting on the day of its birth, the same as after many years of existence. The point intended to be made is, so it is claimed, that the bill does not show in what way or manner the Trust Company caused the Belt Company, and other companies, to be incorporated, or to do any of the acts complained of. While the bill may not be specific, perhaps, in respect to the methods used by the Trust Company, a small minority stockholder, and as to the motives that actuated it in so causing the incorporation of the various companies involved herein, yet the obvious meaning of the bill, as gathered from its recitals and the character of the transactions between the Trust, and the Belt, and the other companies, as shown in the record, is that the Trust Company intended, in the organization of these companies, to bring into existence corporations, whose business transactions with it would inevitably lead to the benefit and advantage of the Trust Company, in the sale of their stocks and bonds, and otherwise in the numerous dealings, which are shown to have been entered into between it and these other companies. For the purposes of this cause it may be stated that the Trust Company is shown to have had a sufficient legitimate 739 interest in the future business of each and all of the companies alleged to have been incorporated by it, but which were really organized by friends of the Trust Company in the ordinary way, to have justified its active concern in assisting in their incorporation at the outset, by advancing the necessary expenses thereof, and otherwise endeavoring to place said companies upon a business basis, for all these things had to be done before they could possibly be made useful, either as feeders to the Trust Company or otherwise carrying out the business purposes, designed by their actual incorporators.

The Trust Company was the central and important and controlling corporation of the aggregation, known as the Stilwell companies, and which, in large measure, was influential in bringing into existence all the corporations, whose operations are involved in complainants' Bill, and which were substantially financed by it.

If there was any dominating control exercised in the controverted transactions between the Trust Company and any of these other companies, by reason of the mutuality of the officers and directors representing the companies, so dealing with each other, it is evident from the proofs in the record, that such domination must have been on the part of the Trust Company, and not on the part of the subordinate companies.

From the foregoing statements of the witnesses, Cone and others, it cannot be questioned that A. E. Stilwell was the influential and dominant personage, who, more than any other person connected with it, outlined the polices of the Trust Company, and likewise, with E. L. Martin, and other associates, practically determined those of the railroad companies interested in this accounting.

It was his brain and genius and wonderful promoting and organizing ability, which conceived the idea of changing the original real estate corporation, known as the Real Estate Trust Company, into a great brokerage and commercial company, known as the Guardian Trust Company, for the very purpose of financing the large railroad interests which he saw could and must be built up in Kansas City, and which afterwards culminated in the Gulf and Belt systems. In the nature of things, the commanding influence of such a man must necessarily have been felt in all the enterprises, in which the Trust Company became interested, and his opinions and wishes were very influential whether intended to be of a dominating nature or otherwise, respecting the dealings of such companies with the Trust Company; and, while his opinions and wishes were at all times respected by his business associates, 740 yet, after a through examination of the large and cumbersome record in this cause, the Master is convinced that, in the conduct of the Trust Company, in its dealings with the Belt and other companies, in respect to the items in controversy, the proofs do not show such conditions as should authorize a finding to the effect that the Trust Company has been unfair and oppressive in such transactions, in view of the surrondings of the parties at the time thereof, notwithstanding the fact that [if] may have received, and did, in fact, receive large compensation for its services, in the way of commissions, trustee fees and bonuses. The Trust Company was instrumental in the making of these other companies, financing their enterprises, and thereby materially aiding their business activities by successfully manipulating the sale of their stocks and bonds.

A striking feature, respecting the relations of these companies with the Trust Company, is the fact that they were all, in a sense, more or less inter-dependent upon each other; for example, the Suburban railroad, and other roads, comprising the Belt system, were all built by separate corporations, and each contributed to the importance and earning capacity of the others. The same thing may be said as to the Southern and Belt systems, in their relations to and with each other. The subsidiary companies were likewise organized to serve supposedly useful purposes in connection with the building up of the business of the railroads, which were the more important corporations. Hence, there was a gigantic combination of friendly interests to be cared for, harmonized and made productive of substantial earnings for the stockholders who had made investments in the securities of these different companies. The depreciation of the securities of one company would materially influence or affect the market value of those of one or more of the other companies, and so on through the series of companies, to a greater or lesser degree. Hence, it will be readily seen that the Trust Company, in order to harmonize and preserve the best interests of all these companies, as an aggregation of friendly, and not antagonistic, corporate interests, must necessarily have been more or less influential in the affairs of each and all of them, but it does not follow that, in carrying out the beneficial interests of such companies in a legitimate business way, their respective directories were controlled in the interests of the Trust Company, or were unfaithful to their trust, and authorized or sanctioned the making of contracts with the Trust Company, which were unfair, oppressive or inequitable. It was to the self interest of all such companies to assist and encourage the Trust Company in all proper ways, in its efforts to market their securities, so as 741 to provide the funds necessary for their respective business operations. In the judgment of the Master, that was the intention of all the interested parties, at the time the disputed transactions were conducted, though it is evident from the testimony of E. L. Martin and others, that there was at all times manifested a friendly disposition to deal "liberally" with the Trust Company. In view of the then prevailing financial conditions shown in the record to have existed at the time that the Trust Company financed these companies, by disposing of their stocks and other securities, it is very doubtful whether it would have been possible for these companies, as separate institutions, and wholly disconnected with the combination or union of interests, providing for an entire system of railroad transportation, and known as the Stilwell roads, to have made any substantial headway in selling their securities. As individual roads, standing alone, "commencing nowhere, and going nowhere," as stated by one of the witnesses, the securities of the different roads comprising the Belt system could not reasonably have been sold on the market for as much as they did bring as a part of the entire system. The promotion and financing methods of Stilwell's were unique and pushed so aggressively that foreign, as well as domestic markets were opened up for these securities, and the expenses, attendant upon his successful exploitation of such securities, were exceedingly large, and way beyond the ordinary range of commissions for selling the securities of going and established concerns, as is abundantly shown by the proofs in the record.

A thoughtful consideration of all the facts and circumstances connected with the promotion, construction and operation of the railroads known as the Stilwell system, will reasonably lead to the conclusion that, while the Trust Company was the principal or central institution, around which all the Stilwell enterprises and activities more or less revolved, and was intended to be liberally compensated for its great services financing such enterprises, yet that the stockholders interested in these various companies were satisfied with what was done, and, so far as shown by this record, did not indicate that they had any just ground of complaint against the Trust Company by reason of anything which it had done, or caused to be done, in connection with the promotion or development of any of the enterprises, on account of which the items in controversy have arisen.

The proofs in the record materially distinguished this case from the following line of cases:

742 (a) Where a coterie of men get the controlling interest in a corporation, then elect themselves, or their dummies, or agents, as directors for it, and, with fraudulent intent, cause these companies to enter into contracts or transactions with themselves, or others conniving with them, to the ultimate prejudice of the minority stockholders; or

(b) Where a set of men, having the voting control of two corporations, in one of which they have a larger stockholding interest than the other, cause, with fraudulent intent, such corporations to enter into contracts with each other, which are grossly favorable to the one, in which they are more largely interested, and to the prejudice of the other, and thereby enriching themselves at the expense of such other company and its stockholders; or

(c) Where one company purchases or otherwise controls a majority of stock in another company, and then, through the election of its own agents, directors or officers, as the officers and directors of the other company, and with fraudulent intent on the part of such persons, causes mutual contracts to be executed, and of such nature as to directly result to the advantage of all the stockholders of the one company, and to the prejudice of the minority stockholders of the other company; or

(d) Where a set of men organize a corporation, and having themselves elected as directors of it, cause it to purchase of them certain property at a price which is prejudicial to the rights of other stockholders; in other words, the promoters' class of cases.

In this connection it will be noted that there is no allegation in the bill to the effect that the Trust Company, during the period of its alleged domination, was either a majority stockholder, or even a large stockholder, in the Belt; on the contrary, as will be hereinafter stated, the Trust Company was, comparatively, a small minority stockholder.

It will be readily observed that, in all of these suppositious cases, the power to dominate or control arises from the voting right or power to control the election of the directors and officers of the dominated company, who in turn dominate and control it in the interest of the parties, having such voting control.

When certain persons own the voting control of two corporations, they may dominate both, and cause contracts to be signed, and transactions to take place, between themselves as officers of one corporation, with themselves as officers of the other corporations, to 743 the gross disadvantage of either corporation, and these contracts will ordinarily be binding unless set aside by a court of equity. The corporations themselves were, in fact, the mere instruments of the men committing the wrong, though it seems to be recognized by the authorities that such acts are nevertheless corporate acts, and in that way, one corporation may be said to dominate the other.

It is not alleged in the bill that the Trust Company possessed voting control of the Belt Company, or of any of the corporations involved in this controversy, and, for that reason, its alleged domination and control must have been exercised, if at all, through its influence over its employees, agents or stockholders, who were elected, from year to year, as directors and officers of the Belt and other companies, in which they were likewise stockholders.

It seems then, that, in connection with the proven fact of Stilwell's strong personal influence and following among his business associates and investors (the latter being generally interested, more or less, in the securities of one or more of the other companies, as well as the Trust Company), the chief point relied upon by complainants is the dual capacity in which the directors of the contracting corporation acted, as is so fully stated in the bill.

There are, also, allegations in the bill, which relate to transactions had between two of the other companies, and not between the Trust Company and one of them, and which are to the effect that the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to enter into contracts with the other company, by reason of which loss resulted to the Belt, and for which loss the Trust Company should be held responsible, for the reason that the directors and officers, common to both the Belt and Trust Companies, were also elected directors and officers of such other company.

A Few Controlling Facts.

There either appear on the face of the bill, or are practically undisputed in the proofs, the following facts which serve to materially distinguish the case at bar from any cited by learned counsel in support of the complaints in the bill.

(a) This action is not instituted by one or more stockholders against unfaithful directors, but is against one corporation by the receiver of another corporation, the receiver having been appointed at the instance of a creditor, whose cause of action accrued long after the occurrence of the transactions complained of; nor is 744 there any creditor before the court, whose claim existed at or before such time.

(b) The bil does not attempt to excuse the long delay in seeking an accounting, but is wholly silent upon this subject, though counsel for complainants contend that, so long as the Trust Company domination existed, which they claim continued until April, 1900, the Belt Company could not be legally bound to assert its rights, as it was in "bondage", and not free to act.

(c) No stockholder, has at any time objected to any of the transactions complained of in the bill, as has been heretofore stated.

(d) When this bill was filed, the sole stockholder of the Belt Company was the Southern Company, which had acquired all of the Belt stock in the execution of a plan or reorganization by the usual exchange of new securities for old, the details of which reorganization plan are hereinafter fully stated in this report as to the intervening petition of the Southern Company.

(e) If, at any time, any stockholder of the Belt Company was ignorant of the transactions in question with the Trust Company, and did not participate or acquiesce in, approve them, the name of such stockholder does not appear in the record.

(f) The transactions in dispute were open, not secret or concealed, and were either known to the stockholders, or could have been, if they had been at all diligent in trying to understand such transactions, which are spread with much explanatory detail, not only on the books of the Trust Company, but also on the books of the railway companies (See Wright's compilation in Rec. Vol. 44); and the very nature of the transactions, their magnitude and the long period of time over which they extended, tend thoroughly to negative the idea of ignorance on the part of any stockholders.

(g) The transactions now attacked in the bill, were expressly ratified by the stockholders, as shown by the minutes of the corporate meetings (see Belt minute book, in Rec. Vol. 52); and there was manifested, throughout many years, the most complete acquiesence in these transactions by the shareholders as a body, that is, so far as concerns any formal or open protesting on their part.

(h) The statutory period of limitations has run against the transactions in question, as will be hereinafter shown, unless by 745 reason of the alleged Trust Company domination, the statute has been inoperative.

(i) The transactions in question are executed contracts, closed and consummated years before the original bill was filed, and, as the accounts between the Trust Company and these other companies were settled, from time to time, the Belt Company gave its notes for the balances due, and which notes were also paid off, from time to time.

(j) It is shown by the record that the book-keeping was full, complete and accurate as to all original entries, and otherwise, and that the accounts between the companies were regularly stated and audited each month by formal certificates exchanged by their respective auditors, and that the books tallied to a cent.

(k) The successive and repeated re-elections by the Belt stockholders, under conditions well known to every one, of the same men to the Belt Directory, is in itself the strongest evidence of complete acquiesence on their part in the management, which is now for the first time attacked.

(l) The Belt in the transactions, which are now attacked, received therefrom certain benefits and advantages, which the complainants have never offered to return, and, in the nature of things, cannot return. The status quo cannot be restored, which fact, if true, becomes a most important one in the final determination of the issues involved in the bill, and, especially so, in the absence of fraudulent intent, or actual fraud, on the part of the Trust Company, which is not shown by the proofs in the record.

(m) The legal power to name directors is the power of the majority of the stockholders, and neither the Trust Company, nor the directors in question, at any time, held even a substantial minority of the stock of the Belt Company. The Trust Company at no time owned control of the Belt, and was therefore not in a position to dominate it by reason of any stock ownership (Vol. 53-32395). The mere fact that the majority of the directors of the Belt Company were during most of the period in question, the same persons who were directors of the Trust Company, was not necessarily the result of any controlling power of the Trust Company, but was because the representatives of the majority Belt stockholders, thought it to their interest to maintain the intimate relationship between the Trust Company and the Belt Company, indicated by their common directors.

V.

History of Belt Transactions with the Trust Company and as Explanatory of Their Dealings.

1. In the first paragraph of the second ancillary bill, including the subdivisions thereof, complainants allege, in substance, that the Suburban Company, though organized on or about January 8, 1887, did nothing in the way of constructing its road, or in issuing or selling its securities, until about May 31, 1889; that, prior to that date, A. E. Stilwell, vice-president of the Trust Company, and his associates, among the officers and directors thereof, came into control of the Suburban Company, and through them, the Trust Company undertook to promote and finance the Suburban Company, and to construct, or cause to be constructed, its line of railroad; that the plan adopted by the Trust Company for that purpose, was to cause the Suburban Company to issue a large amount of securities, consisting of stock and bonds, to be used in securing money with which to construct the railroad, and, for that purpose, to organize as its agency, a construction company, which directly, or through some contractor, should construct the line of the Suburban railroad, and take the securities in payment therefor; that it was the intention and purpose of the Trust Company, as a part of such plan, to cause the Suburban Company to issue securities in excess of the value of the work, and to cause such securities to pass through the hands of the Trust Company, which in turn would exact large and exorbitant amounts, under the guise of commissions, for promotion and other services, and also to cause the securities finally to be distributed among the officers and directors of the Construction Company, which itself was organized largely from the officers and directors of the Trust Company, so that the profits arising from the enterprise might inure to the benefit of the Trust Company, its officers, directors, friends and associates, and that, in accordance with the aforesaid plan, the Trust Company caused the Suburban Company, on or about May 31, 1889, to enter into a contract with A. E. Stilwell, dated June 1, 1889, by the terms of which he, or his assigns, agreed to organize a construction Company to be called the Kansas City Terminal Construction, and to cause said company to build the line of the Suburban Railroad from Broadway and Second Streets, in Kansas City, to Cecil Station, near the Blue River, the road to be double track the entire distance, and to be first 747 class in all particulars. It was further alleged that it was provided in said Stilwell contract that the Construction Company should buy such ground as might be necessary for the use of the railroad company, for depot purposes, pay for all rights-of-way remaining unsecured by the railroad company, should build a depot of such dimensions and costs, and locate the same at such point, and equip the road in such manner as might be deemed to be for the best interests of the railroad company, and to pay all the expenses incurred in the building of such road; and that, in consideration for the building of said road, the Suburban Company agreed to issue its first mortgage bonds in the sum of $500,000.00, $450,000.00 thereof to be placed in escrow with the Trust Company, with $900,000.00, face value, of the capital stock of the Suburban Company, both to be delivered by the Trust Company as trustee for Stilwell or his assigns, upon the faithful completion of the road, as provided in the contract.

It was further alleged that, on the date of the execution of said contract, the said Stilwell transferred and assigned the same to the Trust Company, in consideration of the sum of $10,000.00 and the latter, as his assignee, undertook to comply with and perform the terms and conditions of said contract; that, in pursuance of the duty and obligation cast upon it by said contract, the Trust Company organized the Construction Company, which complainants allege was dominated and controlled by the Trust Company in the same manner as the other companies named in the bill, the stockholders of the Construction Company being made up of the stockholders, employees, officers and directors of the Trust Company, and such of their friends as were willing to come in and enjoy the fruits and profits of the plan; that the Construction Company began the construction of the railroad of the Suburban Company between the points above designated, and had only partially completed such construction and the acquisition of the right-of-way, and the performance of the duties required under the terms of said contract, when, on or about May 9, 1890, the officers of the Construction, Suburban and Trust Companies (who were alleged to have been substantially the same persons, and having the same purposes and objects in view), caused the Construction and Suburban Companies to go through the form of an agreement, by which the Suburban Company agreed to receive and accept the uncompleted railroad, then partially constructed by the Construction Company, as a full compliance with the requirements of the Stilwell contract, and to authorize and direct the Trust Company to turn over to the Construction Company the stocks and bonds described therein; and that, accordingly, by virtue of the control and domination so exercised 748 by the Trust Company over the Suburban Company, the latter went through the form of accepting the uncompleted railroad, and directed the Trust Company to release said securities, and the Trust Company did release and turn over to the Construction Company the Suburban bonds in the amount of $400,000.00 face value, and stocks in the Suburban Company in the amount of $600,000.00, face value, retaining for itself and its officers $50,000, par value of the bonds and $300,000.00, par value, of the stock and that said stocks and bonds in the amounts of $600,000.00 and $400,000.00, respectively, were thereupon distributed by the Trust Company and the Construction Company, to the stockholders, employees and officers of the two companies and their friends; and that the action of the Trust Company in so causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance, and in causing said securities to be so issued, was contrary to the best interests of the Suburban Company, and oppressive and inequitable, and, by virtue of such domination and control, ought not to be permitted to stand as against parties interested in the Suburban Company.

The Complainants, in the subdivisions of paragraph 1, have set out, in some detail, the respects in which it is claimed that the Stilwell contract was not complied with by reason of the domination and control of the Trust Company over the Suburban Company, as hereinbefore stated, all of which will more fully appear by reference to the second ancillary bill.

The series of itemized damages, on pages 25 to 43, which are alleged to have occurred to the Belt Company from a failure to complete said construction contract, or from causing the acceptance of the road in its alleged uncompleted condition, may be briefly summarized as follows:

In item (a) it is claimed that the cost of the road was $292,000, or less, and that the value of the securities turned over were worth $480,000.00, leaving a profit of $188,000.00, and for which, with interest, complainants ask a credit on the Trust Company account.

In item (b) it is stated that the total original bond issue was $500,000.00, $400,000.00 of which were, as above stated, turned over to the Construction Company, and that the balance of said bonds to-wit, $100,000.00, was fraudulently, wrongfully and unlawfully taken and appropriated by the Trust Company for its own benefit, and that said $100,000.00 bonds were reasonably worth $90,000.00; that the original stock issue was $1,000,000.00, $600,000.00 of which was turned over to the Construction Company, as above stated, and the balance of $400,000.00 was fraudulently, wrongfully and unlawfully taken by the Trust Company to 749 its own use, and that the value of said $400,000.00 stock was $80,000.00. Wherefore, it was stated that the Trust Company should credit the Belt Company with $170,000.00 (being the $90,000.00 and the $80,000.00), and interest thereon from May 9, 1890.

The other items (c) to (n), pages 26 to 41, relate to actual damages alleged to have resulted to the Belt Company, by reason of various outlays for the completion of the road, which, it is alleged, should have been paid, as provided for under said construction contract, such as contractors' bills, right-of-way, main depot grounds, other depot grounds, switching yards, etc., "and which" it is alleged, "would have been so furnished but for the unlawful action in causing the Suburban Company to accept a partial compliance."

Item (n) relates to the De Goeijen claim of $89,333.33.

In some instances, they were paid by the Suburban Company, such as items (c), (e), (f), (g), (i), (l) and (n); in other instances, payments were made by the Trust Company and charged to the Belt, and admittedly appear on the Trust Company statement of account, as in items (d), (h), (j) and (k).

The general nature of these items, or expenditures, are as follows: (c) for right of way and construction work; (d), (e), (f), and (g), for right of way; (h) and (i) for rental of lands alleged to be necessary for right of way use; (j) for main depot, Second and Wyandotte Streets; (k) for other station depots, platforms, sand house, round house and labor and material furnished; (l), Second Street Improvement Company "right of way and switching yards", and Trust Company "causing" the Improvement Company to execute a lease to the Consolidated Company, yearly rental of $3,000.00, the total alleged rental paid being $26,250.00, and the alleged value of the land (44,125.00). Complainants ask that both said items should be credited to the Belt Company, with interest. (m) for rental to said Improvement Company for other depot grounds (2nd and Wyandotte), total rent paid, $26,733.64, and value of lots, $26,750.00; and credit is asked for the Belt Company for both said items, with interest. As to item (i) $313.76, it is said that the Trust Company caused the Belt Company to pay an overdraft of the Construction Company, amounting to that sum, on May 9, 1890.

All these various items are based upon the theory that the settlement of the Construction contract, May 9, 1890, did not bind the parties, and can be thus collaterally set aside and inquired into after ten years' lapse of time.

Defenses of Trust Company.

2. The defenses are as follows: first, that no cause of action is stated in the bill; that the settlement of the Stilwell contract was binding between the Belt and Construction Companies, and that the Trust Company did not dominate or control such settlement. Second, that the accounts admittedly rendered from time to time, bar consideration of said items which were included therein, and if not so included, they were waived by not having been put into the accounts rendered by the Belt Company, from time to time. Third, laches. Fourth, ten year statute of limitations. Fifth, in the alternative; five year statute of limitations—in case any items are not covered by the ten year statute. Sixth, the Trust Company relies upon the acquiescence of the Belt Company and its stockholders, and an express ratification by them entered into corporate records. Seventh, the defenses to the De Goeijen item will be hereinafter stated.

Record of Facts as to Relation of Suburban Company and Construction Company in Building "First Division of Belt."

3. The Suburban Company was incorporated under the laws of Missouri, on January 8, 1887, the incorporators being E. L. Martin, L. R. Moore, T. B. Bullene, S. F. Scott, George W. McClelland, Conrad Stumpf, Theodor Peltzer and John W. Beebe, all of Kansas City, Missouri, and John Kelly, of Leavenworth, Kansas, and such incorporators were also directors for the first year (Rec. 18-9138-'39).

The articles of association provided that "the railroad of said corporation is to be constructed, maintained and operated from or near the Union Depot in the City of Kansas, Jackson County, Missouri, thence in an easterly direction to Cecil station, near the Blue River, thence in a southwesterly direction, by the most practicable route along said Blue River, and along Brush Creek in said Jackson County, to a point near Westport in Jackson County, thence in a northwesterly direction by the most practicable route to a point at or near said Union Depot.

The object was to build a belt line of railroad to encircle the cities of Kansas City, Missouri, and Kansas City, Kansas, and the number of shares of the capital stock was to be 10,000, of the par value of $100 each (Rec. 52-31301-'05).

At a meeting of the directors of the Suburban Company, January 13, 1887, the following officers were elected: E. L. Martin, president, L. R. Moore, vice-president; George W. McClelland, treasurer, 751 and S. F. Scott, secretary and general manager, and no other officials were elected until June 1, 1889, being a date subsequent to the time that the contract for the building of the First Division of the Suburban Company's railroad was entered into between that company and A. E. Stilwell.

The franchise granted the Suburban Company by Kansas City, Missouri, had been secured on or about October 29, 1887, authorizing the company to maintain and operate a double track railroad upon Second Street from the west line of Broadway to the east line of Harrison Street, and over and across the streets intersecting the same. The franchise further provided that the construction of the railroad should commence within three months after the acceptance of the ordinance, and that the road should be completed and operated within 24 months, barring certain legal delays. The Suburban Company was to plank the tracks with three inch oak planks, and keep the space between the tracks paved, etc. (see copy of ordinance, Vol. 21-10923-'29).

As shown by the testimony of both Martin and Scott, there was prior to May 31, 1889, only a small amount of work done towards the building of the Suburban Company's railroad, just enough to prevent a forfeiture of the franchise, that is, there was some little grading work done, and preliminary surveys made (Martin's testimony, Vol. 53-32708, and Vol. 55-33643; and Scott's testimony, Vol. 18-9136). Nothing was done by the Suburban Company towards the issuance or sale of its securities prior to May 31, 1899 (Suburban Company stock ledger, Vol. 45-25582-'87).

From the testimony of S. F. Scott, it appears that up to June 1, 1889, none of the capital stock of the Suburban Company had been issued, though it had been subscribed for (Vol. 18-9142); and that the first issue of the Suburban Company's bonds was authorized July 24, 1889 (Vol. 52-31241-'44). It also appears from Scott's testimony, that he and Martin, about the time of the organization of the Suburban Company, also organized a railroad known as the Kansas City, Rich Hill & Southern Railroad, and the organization afterwards of the Kansas City, Nevada & Fort Smith Railroad, by change of name called the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf, embraced the idea of Scott and Martin in their contemplated building of the Kansas City, Rich Hill & Southern Railroad (Vol. 18-9135-'6).

Prior to May 1, 1889, Scott and Martin held the majority interest in holdings of the Suburban Company. It also appears from said Scott's testimony that, prior to June 1, 1889, A. E. Stilwell, 752 then vice-president of the Trust Company, acquired all of Scott's interest in the Suburban Company, and in the Kansas City, Rich Hill & Southern, and, in payment therefor, Scott was to receive part cash, and part bonds and stock of the Suburban Company, that were to be issued. By such purchase, the control of the Suburban Company was given to Stilwell and Martin (Vol. 18-8140-'43).

Martin states, in his testimony, that along or about the time of the making of the Stilwell contract, June 1, 1889, Stilwell and himself, and their associates, controlled the majority of the Suburban Company's stock (Vol. 55-33643-'44), A. E. Stilwell being first vice-president, director and member of the executive committee of the Trust Company, and E. L. Martin being second vice-president, director and member of said committee (Vol. 11-5694).

At the time that Scott sold his interest to Stilwell, Moore likewise disposed of his interest to Stilwell on the same basis offered Scott (Vol. 18-9143).

June 1, 1889, the contract for the construction of the Suburban railroad from Second and Broadway to Cecil Station, was entered into between A. E. Stilwell and the Suburban Company, by E. L. Martin, its president. At that time, Stilwell was first vice-president, general manager and member of the executive committee of the Trust Company, and Martin was second vice-president, director and member of the said executive committee. By the terms of the Stilwell contract, Stilwell or his assigns, agreed to organize a company within sixty days from the date of the contract, to be called the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, hereinafter referred to as the Construction Company, and to cause said Construction Company to build a line of railroad for the Suburban Company from Second and Broadway, in Kansas City, Missouri, and along Second Street to Harrison Street; thence in a northeasterly direction along said survey as near as may be, to Cecil Station, near the Blue River; said railroad to be double track the entire distance, of not less than 60 pound steel rails, and to be built in all particulars in a first class manner. It was further provided in said contract that the work should begin not later than the 1st day of September, 1889, and be completed within twelve months from that date; that the Construction Company should buy such grounds as it might deem necessary for the use of said railroad company, for depot purposes, and pay for all rights-of-way remaining unsecured by the railroad company; that the Construction Company should build a depot of such dimensions and cost, and locate the same at such point and equip the road in such manner, as it might deem necessary for the best 753 interests of the railroad company, and to pay every nature of the expense incurred by the building of the road. In consideration for the building of such railroad, the Suburban Company agreed, in said contract to issue its first mortgage bonds upon that portion of its line above described, in the sum of $300,000.00, bearing six per cent interest, the bonds to be of such form and denomination, and to run such length of time, as said Stilwell or his assigns might designate; that of this issue of bonds the Suburban Company should place in escrow with the Trust Company $450,000.00 of the same, face value, along with $900,000.00, face value, of the stock of the company, to be delivered to said A. E. Stilwell, or his assigns, upon the faithful completion of said road, as provided in said contract (see copy of contract, Rec. 14-7124-'26). On the said day that said contract was entered into, Stilwell duly transferred and assigned it to the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Trust Company, the consideration recited in the assignment being $10,000.00 (Rec. 14-7126). According to Martin's testimony, the body of this assignment was in the handwriting of Robert B. Cone, an employee of the Trust Company, and the signature subscribed to said contract, as witness, was the signature of Robert B. Cone, and the signature to the assignment was that of A. E. Stilwell (Rec. 55-33706).

The Trust Company, as the assignee of said Stilwell, thereupon undertook to comply with all the terms of said contract imposed upon said Stilwell (Rec. 53-31743-'44).

Ratification of Stilwell Contract and Authorization of the Bonded Indebtedness of the Suburban Company.

At a Stockholders' meeting of the Suburban Company, held July 4, 1889, the Stilwell contract was reported to the stockholders by Mr. Martin and approved (Rec. 52-31240-'46). At said meeting, E. L. Martin as proxy, held 110 shares of the 155 shares then outstanding (Rec. 45-25416-25451). At said stockholders' meeting, it was provided that the Suburban Company issue its bonds to the extent of $500,000.00, for the purpose of liquidating the floating indebtedness of the company, and for the "purpose of building, completing and equipping its railroad from Second and Broadway to Cecil Station", the bonds to be 1000 in number, of $500.00, par value, each, with six per cent interest from April 1, 1890, first interest payable April 1, 1891, and after that to be payable semi-annually. All the bonds, to bear date July 1, 1889, and payable to bearer on April 1, 1920, and, also, that a mortgage be executed and delivered by the Suburban Company to the Trust Company, as trustee, conveying to the trustee the right-of-way of the Suburban Company from Second and Broadway to Cecil Station, and 754 all the assets of the company then owned, or thereafter to be acquired, for the purpose of securing the payment of said bonds. It was, also, provided that $450,000.00, par value, of said bonds, and $900,000.00, par value, of the capital stock, be delivered to the Trust Company in escrow, to be held until the contract was fully completed or fulfilled, then to be delivered to him or his assigns (Rec. 52-31240-'46).

At a directors' meeting of the Suburban Company, held on May 31, 1889, it was provided that said stocks and bonds of the Suburban Company should be placed in escrow with the Trust Company, and hold by it, and then delivered to Stilwell or his assigns, upon the completion of the railroad under the terms of said contract, and that said stock was to be issued in the name of E. L. Martin, trustee, to be voted by him until the delivery thereof under the terms of said Stilwell contract (See Suburban minutes, Vol. 52-31238-'40). The plan, adopted by the Trust Company in promoting and financing the Suburban Company, was to cause the latter to issue a large amount of securities, consisting of bonds and stocks, to be used in securing money to construct the railroad, and for that purpose to organize as its agency a construction company, which, through the aid of sub-contractors, should construct the railroad of the company, and nominally take the securities of the Suburban Company in payment therefor (Rec. 53-31743-'44).

It is claimed by the complainants that it was a part of the plan of the Trust Company to cause the securities of the Suburban Company to be issued largely in excess in value of the cost of constructing the line of railroad of the Suburban Company, and to cause such securities to pass through the Trust Company (which would exact large amounts for its services, under the guise of commissions), and then to cause such securities to be distributed [dinally] among the stockholders and directors of the Construction Company, which was organized largely from the officers, directors and stockholders of the Trust Company.

For the cost of the road to the Construction Company, see Telfer's testimony, Rec. 17-8715-'18, showing cost not to exceed $292,000.00 paid Construction Company; for securities delivered, see Stilwell contract, Rec. 14-7124-'26.

It is shown by Willey's testimony (Rec. 1-138) that the Construction Company received $400,000.00, par value of Suburban bonds, and $600,000.00, par value, in Suburban Company stock. The rec-755 ord stockholders of the Trust Company, on May 9, 1890, (being the date the Stilwell contract was declared completed) held 1,998 shares of the 3,000 shares of the Construction Company stock, and for which, later on, in 1890, they received the stock and bonds of the Belt Company.

Incorporation of the Kansas City Terminal Construction Co.

In pursuance of the duty and obligation cast upon the Trust Company by the Stilwell Contract, there was organized a corporation, called the Construction Company, for the purpose of building the Suburban Company's railroad (Rec. 53-31743-'44). The articles of association of the Construction Company were filed July 6, 1889, the capital stock being $300,000.00, divided into 3,000 shares of the par value of $100 each. One of the purposes of the incorporation was to build, construct and equip railroads, depots, station houses, machine shops, in the States of Missouri, Kansas and elsewhere, for other corporations, or persons, etc. The names of the incorporators and of the board of directors were largely persons interested in the Trust Company (Rec. 13-6967-'71). All the incorporation fees, including attorneys' fees, and other expenses, were advanced and paid by the Trust Company (Rec. 13-610).

At a meeting of the directors of the Construction Company, on December 2, 1889, "the question of extending the road from the point to which present contract was let to this company, to the junction with the Kansas City, Nevada & Fort Smith R. R. now in process of construction, were discussed, and the decision arrived at to recommend to the stockholders of this company, and to the stockholders of the Suburban Belt R. R. Co. that the bonded indebtedness of the R. R. Co. be increased to $750,000.00, and it is estimated that the additional $250,000.00 will complete the road to a point from which a profitable Suburban business can be secured and important connections made with other roads, particularly the Kansas City, Nevada & Fort Smith, which is dependent upon our road for terminal facilities. The right-of-way to our part of this was reported to have been already secured, and it is very important to push the work as rapidly as possible". (See Construction Company's minutes, Rec. 13-6980-'81.)

The $300,000.00, par value, of the Construction Company's stock, was paid in full by the subscribers to such capital stock (Rec. 53-32714; also Construction Company journal entry, Rec. 14-7179).

The Trust Company opened up subscription books for the stock of the Construction Company, and credited the amount of money so received upon its books with the Construction Company, 756 and which was paid out upon vouchers for various purposes of the Construction Company (Rec. 11-6109, 6116, 6155). The Trust Company's account with the Construction Company shows that it collected from various subscribers to the stock of the Construction Company $287,783.34, and disbursed the same amount (Rec. 45-25249 to 25300, and Vol. 11-6158).

Construction of First Division of Belt by Construction Company.

The Construction Company, shortly after the Stilwell contract had been entered into, began the construction of the Suburban Company's railroad between the points Broadway Street and Cecil Station (Rec. 53-32714). After the Stilwell contract was entered into, there was a change of officers and directors of the Suburban Company. The officers and directors, on June 1, 1889, were, president, E. L. Martin; vice-president, L. R. Moore; treasurer, George W. McClelland, and secretary and general manager, S. F. Scott, and the directors were E. L. Martin, and others, as hereinbefore stated.

At meetings of the Suburban Company directors, held on July 25, 1889, December 2, 1889, and April 10, 1890, a large part of the old directors resigned their [officers] as directors, and their places were filled by officers of the Trust Company. At this time, the officers of the Suburban Company were as follows: E. L. Martin, president; A. E. Stilwell, vice-president; M. C. Curtis, treasurer; W. S. Taylor, Secretary; A. L. Howe, assistant secretary.

At this time, as disclosed by the stock ledger of the Suburban Company (Rec. 45-25588), there was standing in the name of E. L. Martin, trustee, 1,995 shares of Suburban stock, having been transferred to said Martin on May 5, 1890, from an old trustee account (see Rec. 45-25588, for shares on Suburban Company stock ledger).

Alleged Acceptance, in May, 1890, of Uncompleted Suburban Company's First Division and Facts Leading Up to May 9, 1890.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Suburban Company, on April 10, 1890, there were represented 9,009 shares. At this meeting the bonded indebtedness of the Suburban Company was increased from $500,000.00 to $1,000,000.00, and a resolution offered by director John Kelly was duly adopted, which was to the effect that $50,000.00 in bonds, and $84,500.00, par value, of the stock of this company be [—] aside and delivered to L. P. Moore, as 757 trustee, with which to settle all claims of whatsoever nature that were standing against this company at the time the contract was entered into with the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company for the construction of a road from Broadway to Cecil Station (Rec. 52-31250). At the time of the adoption of this resolution, Martin held in his name as trustee, 9,000 shares of the Suburban Company stock, which he was authorized to vote until delivery to Stilwell of the stocks and bonds, called for in the contract with him (Rec. 52-31237 and Rec. 45-25588).

On April 10, 1890, Stilwell had standing in his own name one share of Suburban Company stock (Rec. 45-25582), E. J. Davison, A. L. Howe and N. C. Curtis, the other shareholders present at the meeting, had one share each standing in their names (Rec. 45-25588). This would account for 9004 of the 9009 shares present. The only other stock that could have been outstanding at that time, would be the stock called for in the articles of incorporation in favor of Martin, McClelland, Stumpf, Peltzer and others, a total of 155 shares, and as disclosed by the Suburban Company stock ledger (Rec. 45-25582), the stock issued to those persons were supposed to be cancelled in January, 1890.

At a directors' meeting of the Construction Company on May 9, 1890, there were present Martin, Stilwell, Curtis, Trimble, and Taylor, and Mr. Taylor, theretofore appointed as a committee to negotiate with the Suburban Company for the acceptance by it of the railroad, right-of-way, etc., reported by offering the following resolution:

"Whereas, this company has complied with the spirit of its agreement made with the Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company for the construction of its double track belt railroad from Second and Broadway Streets to Cecil Station, although a portion of said railroad is not fully completed; therefore, be it resolved that the president appoint a committee of one member of this board to submit to said Kansas City Suburban Belt Railroad Company the following proposition, viz:

That this company will now deliver to the said railroad company all the right-of-way procured, road bed, railroad and materials, moneys and assets on hand, in the condition in which they now are, and will release the said railroad company from any liability to this company on account of any and all moneys paid out by this company for it: if the said railroad company will accept such right-of-way, road bed and materials, moneys and assets in the condition in which they now are in full satisfaction and fulfillment of this company's said contract, and will pay to this company the full
758 contract price provided for in said contract; and release this company from any further liability under said contract, and will assume and pay all this company's outstanding liabilities incurred on account of said railroad". (Rec. 13-6990-'91.)

Following said meeting of the directors of the Construction Company, a meeting of the stockholders of the Suburban Company was held on May 9, 1890. There were present Martin, Stilwell, Moore, Curtis, Taylor and Kelly; and at said meeting, Mr. Trimble stated that he was authorized by the Construction Company to make a proposition to the Suburban Company looking to the delivery and acceptance of the railroad, right-of-way, materials, moneys and assets of the Construction Company, to the Suburban Company, upon the terms stated in his proposition, which is embodied in the following resolution, offered by Mr. Stilwell:

"Whereas, the Construction Company has made this company the following proposition, viz: The said Construction Company will now deliver to this company all of the right-of-way now procured by it for this company's railroad, the road bed, the railroad now constructed, or in process of construction, and all material, moneys and assets which it now has on hand, and will release this company from any liability to it for any and all moneys paid out by it for this company; if this company will now accept said right-of-way, road bed, material, railroad, moneys, and assets in the condition in which they now are as and for the fulfillment of said Construction Company's contract with this company, and will pay to said Construction Company the full price and compensation which was agreed to be paid to it upon the fulfillment of said contract, and release said Construction Company from any and all further liability under and by virtue of its said contract; and promise to assume and pay all of the liabilities of said Construction Company incurred on account of the building and equipping of this company's railroad; and, whereas, it appears to be to the best interest of this company to accept said propositions; now, therefore, be it resolved, that the said proposition be and the same is hereby accepted, and that the officers of this board be, and they are hereby authorized and empowered to receive and accept from the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company the right-of-way now procured, the road bed, and the railroad in its present condition, and material and assets and money now on hand, as and for a fulfillment of the contract of said Construction Company, in full satisfaction thereof; and that the officers of this board be, and they are hereby directed and empowered, to pay to the said Construction Company, or its assigns, the full contract price, which this company promised to pay for a fulfillment of this con-759 tract; and the payment to be made in the bonds and stock of this company at the times, in the amount and in the manner promised and contracted to be paid; and to assume, on behalf of this company, and pay all of the outstanding liabilities of said Construction Company incurred in building and equipping this company's railroad; and that the officers of this board be, and they are hereby fully authorized and empowered to take all steps and do all things needful or convenient to carry out the spirit of this resolution and effectuate the acceptance of this proposition, and consummate satisfaction and cancellation of the said construction contract in the manner herein indicated."

The resolution, on motion of Mr. Moore, was unanimously adopted, and thereafter the resignation of George W. McClelland, and Conrad Stumpf were offered and accepted (Rec. 52 31259-761).

It was by these two sets of resolutions, shown in the Construction Company's minutes, and the Suburban Company's minutes, that the Suburban Company's first division was, as contended by complainants, accepted by the Suburban Company in its uncompleted state, in lieu of the complete performance of the Stillwell contract, and at this time, all the officers of the Construction Company, to-wit, Martin, president, Stilwater, vice-president, and Taylor secretary and treasurer, were all stockholders and directors of the Trust Company, and all of the directors of the Construction Company at that time were stockholders of the Trust Company, and were also directors of the Construction Company, excepting two. Of the six directors present at the Suburban Company's meeting, May 9, 1890, that acted upon the proposition of the Construction Company, five of them were either Trust Company directors or officers, or both, and all five were directors and stockholders of the Construction Company (Rec. 45-25248 to 25300, and Rec. 42-22472 to 22581).

A resolution was also adopted by the directors of the Suburban Company (Rec. 52-31255), calling for the setting aside and delivering to L. R. Moore, trustee, $50,000.00 in bonds, and 845 shares of stock, to settle all outstanding claims against the Suburban Company at the time the Stilwell contract was entered into. The acceptance of the Suburban Company's first division by that Company from the Construction Company, was finally consummated at a directors' meeting on August 4, 1890, there being present directors, Martin, Stilwell, Waterall, Lucas, Curtis and Taylor, and Mr. Martin as president, reported "that the railroad company had taken possession of the properties of the Kansas City Terminal Construction Company, as set out in a resolution passed at the meeting held 760 on May 9, 1890, and that he had accepted the same as fulfillment of the construction contract, and had released the Construction Company from any further liability under said contract;" and thereupon his report was ratified and approved.

A resolution was also adopted, requesting the Trust Company to distribute the bonds and stocks of the Suburban Company, which it held in trust for the stockholders of the Construction Company, among those who are entitled to receive the same in proportion to their interest, and further, that the Trust Company requests the stockholders of the Construction Company to transfer and assign their stocks on the books of the company, to A. E. Stilwell, trustee for the Construction Company (Rec. 52-31269).

Of the Suburban Company directors present and ratifying the action of president Martin in releasing the Construction Company from further liability under said Stilwell contract, all of them were directors and stockholders of the Trust Company, and Martin, Stilwell and Curtis were officers of the Trust Company, and members of the executive committee (see list of Trust Company officers and directors, Rec. 11-5695; and list of Trust Company stockholders, Rec. 15-28944 to 29071, inclusive).

All of the Suburban directors present were directors of the Construction Company, and stockholders of the Construction Company, Martin, Stilwell and Taylor constituting the officers of the Construction Company (see construction Company minutes, Rec. 13-6989).

At the time of the adoption of said resolution by the Construction Company and the Suburban Company, the Suburban Company stock was held as follows: Trust Company, 2446 shares; Trust Company, trustee for C. E. Grannis, 554 shares; Trust Company, trustee 4000 shares; E. L. Martin, trustee 1000 shares; and one share each standing in the names of Stilwell, Taylor, Curtis, Howe and Davison, the whole aggregating 10,000 shares, and from which it appears that the Trust Company, for itself, as trustee, held 7000 shares of Suburban Company stock.

In respect to the physical condition of the first division of the Suburban Company's railroad on May 9, 1890, at the time the resolution was adopted, declaring that the Stilwell contract had been complied with, and the road was accepted as and for a full compliance thereof, E. L. Martin stated (Rec. 55-33707-08), that the plan set out in the articles of incorporation of the Suburban Company in general, contemplated the railroad scheme that the Suburban 761 incorporators had; and that the action of the Consolidated, Union and Suburban Companies, in the building of the first and second subdivisions of the Belt road, was in line with such plan, it being the intention of all the parties, including Stilwell and Martin, to eventually extend the Belt road around Kansas City, and that that was the scheme in mind at the time of the Stilwell contract. Martin further stated (Rec. 55-33544 to 33645), that on May 9, 1890, when the Suburban Company's railroad was turned over to that company, it was not completed, and that certain rights-of-way for tracks, lands for sidings and yard purposes, and certain depot work, had to be provided for and done after that date; that one of the reasons why the road was turned over to the Suburban Company by the Construction Company in its incompleted state, was that the Construction Company had run out of funds; and thereafter, the Suburban Company took over the unfinished road and went ahead and completed it.

Witness Telfer stated that the Construction Company had no money in its treasury as early as May 2, 1890, but had an overdraft of $313.00 and that the Construction Company had expended its $300,000.00 of capital stock in building the road (Rec. 17-8708 to 8712, and 8989-'90), and had no other funds with which to complete the work.

As a brief history of the Belt affairs, it may be stated that, at the time E. L. Martin and others conceived the idea of having railroad terminals in the north end of Kansas City, and incorporated the Suburban Belt Company, the incorporators were the only stockholders, and all the property that the company had was its franchise to operate a railroad from Second and Wyandotte Streets to Cecil Station, a distance of six miles. Mr. Martin went east to finance the proposition, but, being unable to raise any money, he thereafter approached A. E. Stilwell, president of the Trust Company, and interested him in organizing a Construction Company, and getting subscribers to its capital stock, for the purpose of building the proposed railroad terminals. At this time, all the stock of the Suburban Company was standing in the name of E. L. Martin as trustee. Stilwell organized the Construction Company, which agreed to build said proposed railroad of six miles, which is known in the record as the "First Division of the Belt", in consideration as above stated, of $450,000.00 of the first mortgage bonds of the Belt Company, and $900,000.00 of the shares of its capital stock. When this contract was made, no director or officer of the Trust Company was a director or officer of the Belt Company, except E. L. Martin. The Construction Company built the first division of the Belt, and at that 762 time, $450,000.00, par value of the $1,000,000.00 bonded indebtedness, had been used in the building or construction, and leaving $550,000.00 of bonds in the treasury. The Construction Company was out of founds, having used, in the construction of the line, everything obtained from its subscribers to the capital stock, and at this juncture, in order that the Belt Company might continue its line six miles further to Brush Creek, the Construction Company bought the remaining $500,000 of bonds at 90c. on the dollar. At this time, in 1889 and 1890, when the Trust Company bought these bonds at 90c. on the dollar, receiving with them a stock bonus of 2178 shares of Belt stock, the second division of the Belt was built with the proceeds of the bond sales. Another corporation, called the Consolidated Company, was organized, with a view of extending the railroad, from Second and Wyandotte Streets, to the packing houses in the west bottoms of Kansas City. It was a separate corporation, issuing its own capital stock and bonds, and all of which were sold to the Trust Company, or through the Trust Company to others, in 1890 and 1891. The Belt Company was still not a paying proposition, and those in control of it conceived the idea of extending its line of railroad so as to reach the stock yards, and the large industries in Kansas City, Kansas, and thereupon, the Union Terminal Railroad Company, a Kansas Corporation, was formed, which also issued its stocks and bonds, and, the Belt Company, pursuant to its statutory authority, contracted to build the Union Terminal line in consideration of its stocks and bonds which were turned over to the Belt, and by it sold to the Trust Company, or through the Trust Company to others. This was just prior to, or about the time, of the financial panic in 1893, and the success of Mr. Stilwell in the floatation of these securities was almost phenomenal. The $500,000.00 of Belt bonds remained in the Trust Company's hands unsold for about two and a half years, notwithstanding the most strenuous efforts on Stilwell's part, to dispose of them in the market, and at a time too, when the road was completed and in operation, and having a fairly good business. The Trust Company maintained offices in Philadelphia, New York, Amsterdam, Berlin and Paris, and almost forced the sale of the Belt securities, from time to time, and thereby furnishing it with the funds to prosecute its railroad building operations. In 1892, Stilwell and a group of capitalists associated with him, projected a trunk line of railroad from Kansas City to Port Arthur, in connection with a ship canal therefrom to the sea. At this time, the Belt had completed its line from Brush Creek to Argentine, and had built a number of spurs and extensions, and was 763 doing a good business. It was thought by the Belt directors that its earnings could be largely increased if some large transcontinental trunk line system could be induced to use the Belt terminals, and, in carrying out such idea, the Belt stockholders, at a stockholders' meeting, authorized the directors and Belt officers to enter into a contract for building the Connecting Company road, for a distance of 80 miles, from Kansas City to Pattonsburg, one of the main objects on the part of the Belt Company being to make the profits which would result to it as a contractor in the building of that road. The contract provided for the construction of the railroad by the Belt Company, in consideration of the stocks and bonds of the Connecting Company.

The original bill was filed September 6, 1900, six months after the Gulf road had been sold at foreclosure sale, and purchased by a committee of bondholders, and conveyed to the Southern Company, which was organized by the reorganization Committee, the plan of which provided for a refunding of the securities of the Belt and its constituent companies, which were to be deposited with the reorganization Committee, to hold as the agent of the Southern Company, which was to surrender its own stocks and bonds in lieu thereof, the details of the reorganization plan are fully discussed in the Master's report on the Southern Company's intervention.

The Cambria Steel Company, a judgment creditor of the Belt brought the original bill against defendants for the benefit of all Belt creditors who might wish to join therein. It was an action at law on a promissory note, dated in January, 1900, and upon which judgment was afterwards rendered against the Belt Company, and from which it appears that the Cambria Company was a subsequent creditor whose debt had arisen long after the dates of the transactions which are complained of in the second ancillary bill; and, so far as this record shows, the only other indebtedness against the Belt Company was on account of the deficiency judgment rendered in favor of the Provident Company, trustee in the Belt mortgage, that is, outside of the claims of the Trust Company against the Belt.

It is contended by respondent Trust Company that none of these transactions in the second ancillary bill can be attacked by a subsequent creditor, and that, inasmuch as the receiver stands in exactly the same attitude as the Belt Company, of which he is receiver, he has no greater rights than that company, and hence, if the Belt Company has by its action or conduct become estopped from seeking any relief, so also is its receiver estopped.

764 In Graham v. Railroad Company, 102 U. S., 149, it was held that where a solvent corporation, with no actual intent to defraud creditors, disposes of its lands for an inadequate consideration, or by a voluntary conveyance, the subsequent creditors cannot question the transaction, and also that where a corporation has waived or omitted its right to institute proceedings to recover lands of which it has been defrauded, such right does not inure to the benefit of subsequent creditors or purchasers, the only exception to the rule so laid down being where the alleged fraudulent transaction was done with the intent to defraud future creditors; that is, if in the case at bar, it could be shown that the Stilwell contract was an arrangement made by the Belt with a view of defrauding some future creditor of the Suburban Company, and that the transaction consummated amounted to a fraud, then a different case would be presented from the one at bar. It is nowhere claimed in the record that the transactions complained of were done for the purpose or with the intent to defraud any creditors; in fact, the theory of the bill is that fraud has been committed by the Trust Company for the purpose of defrauding the Belt, with a view of enriching the Trust Company, and not for the purpose of defrauding any existing or future creditors of the Belt Company.

In the case of Lawrence v. Greenup, 97 Fed., 906, a national bank had become insolvent, and passed into the hands of a receiver, who brought suit against certain stockholders, etc. The court held that, inasmuch as there was not shown any intention of defrauding creditors, and the dividend having been paid in good faith, the receiver could not question the transaction.

The theory of the ancillary bill in this case is predicated upon the alleged domination of the Trust Company over the Belt, that is, to the effect that the Trust Company was in absolute control over the Belt, and caused it to do the different things alleged in the bill.

The testimony of Francis A. Wright, expert accountant, who testified in behalf of the Trust Company, discloses the following facts: (See Rec. Vol. —, p. 32395).

On January 1, 1890, the total outstanding capital stock of the Belt was 9155 shares, of which the Trust Company held none. On January 1, 1892, the total amount of stock issued was 15,000 shares of which the Trust Company held 2068 shares. On January 1, 1894, the total outstanding stock of the Belt Company was 26143 shares, of which the Trust Company held 1114 shares. On January 1, 1896, the total outstanding stock of the Belt Company was 765 47500 shares, of which 3924 shares were owned by the Trust Company, and 34436 shares were owned by the Dutch partnership. On January 1, 1898, the total outstanding stock of the Belt was 47500 shares, of which the Trust Company owned 987 shares, and the Dutch partnership 43574 shares.

The undisputed evidence discloses that as early as 1894, the control of the Belt Company was in the Dutch Syndicate, they owning 43500 out of a total of 47500 shares. During the time that these railroad companies had business transactions with the Trust Company, a vast number of transactions took place between them, and in the statement of the ledger account between the Trust Company and the Belt Company alone, there are over six thousand items, and, taking into consideration all the transactions that were had with the other companies, parties to this accounting, there must have been more than twice that number involved.

These records show that the first meeting of Suburban directors was held on January 15, 1887, at which officers were elected; another meeting on January 22, 1887, at which by-laws were adopted and that at a stockholders' meeting on May 31st, 1889, and the Stilwell contract was authorized all of the stockholders being present in person or by proxy, the object being to consider a resolution adopted by the directors, authorizing the president to enter into a contract with Stilwell for the formation of a construction company for the purpose of building a portion of the line of the Belt Railroad. Minutes of the directors' meetings were approved, and ordered spread upon the record.

Another stockholders' meeting was held July 24, 1889, all stockholders being present. Mr. Martin reported that he had entered into a contract with Mr. Stilwell, on behalf of the construction Company, for the building of the railroad from 2nd and Broadway to Cecil Station, on the terms named in the contract, and his report was accepted, and the contract made by him with Stilwell was approved, and the acts done by Martin in reference thereto were ratified. The directors were authorized to execute bonds to the amount of half a million dollars for the purpose of building and equipping the road, and to execute a mortgage to secure the bonds, and to deposit (450,000.00) of said bonds and 900,000 capital stock, full paid, in escrow with the said M. K. & T. Trust Company, to be held by it until completion of the Stilwell contract, and at which time the Trust Company was authorized to deliver the same 766 to Stilwell or his assignees, the stock to be issued in the name of E. L. Martin, trustee; and further, the directors, through their officers, were directed and authorized to do any and all things which might be needful or convenient for the purpose of carrying out the Stilwell contract.

On July 25, 1889, it was ordered by the directors, in accordance with the resolution of the stockholders, that the company issue one half million in bonds, and its mortgage securing the same, and $900,000 of its capital stock, and deposit the same in escrow as provided in the resolution of the stockholders, and thereafter on December 2, 1889, a stockholders' meeting was called for the purpose of increasing the bonded indebtedness of the company from half a million to one million dollars, for the purpose of extending the railroad from Cecil Station to Brush Creek, and at which meeting 9000 shares of the Belt capital were represented, being all of the stock then outstanding. At a stockholders' meeting April 10, 1890, it was ordered that the company increase its bonded indebtedness to one million dollars, and that the half million in bonds theretofore issued, none of which had at that time been sold, but was still in the possession of the company, be recalled, and the mortgage securing same be released, and a new mortgage executed securing the million dollar issue.

It was at this meeting that $50,000.00 in bonds, and $84,500.00 of the stock of this company were set aside and delivered to L. R. Moore, trustee, with which he was to settle all claims standing against the company at the time the Stilwell contract was entered into with the Construction Company.

It is contended in the record that these $50,000.00 of bonds, and $84,500.00 of stock really went to the promoters of the company, that is, to the original incorporators. It appears in the record that at the time these bonds and stocks were delivered to L. R. Moore, trustee, all of the stockholders were present, and consented to what was done; 900,000 shares had been issued, but were then held in escrow, and could not be voted. On May 9, 1890, at a directors' meeting, Mr. Trimble, on behalf of the Construction Company, made a proposition to the Belt Directory, looking to the delivery and acceptance of the railroad right-of-way, material, moneys and assets of the Construction Company, to this company, upon the terms stated in his proposition, which was embodied in the foregoing resolution offered by Mr. Stilwell.

The next stockholders' meeting was on June 14, 1890, (Rec. p. 31262-265) to increase the capital stock from one million to 767 one and a half million dollars, which was done. On August 5th, 1890, there was a directors' meeting, and on March 31st, 1891, an executive committee's meeting, at which a stockholders' meeting, was called for May 15, 1891, to consider a proposition to sell the railroad to a new corporation, which should issue its bonds to build the proposed extension from 2nd and Wyandotte Streets to the West Bottoms.

The complete minutes of the Suburban Company, as it existed prior to the consolidation with the Consolidated Terminal, the minutes of the Consolidated Terminal, and the minutes of the new consolidated Companies, are found in Vol. 53, constituting one separate volume of the record.

An inspection of these minutes will disclose that at the stockholders' meeting on May 15, 1891, the Suburban stockholders authorized and directed the officers of the railroad to take the necessary steps to consolidate the Suburban Company with the Consolidated Company, and thereafter the minutes are continued in the same record book, under the name of the new corporation the Belt Company which was the result of that consolidation. By an inspection of these minute book records, there are disclosed a series of directors' meetings, and meetings of the executive committee of the Belt, at which were authorized many transactions between the Belt and Trust Company, these transactions being in the nature of authorizing sales of securities to the Trust Company, fixing the rate of compensation, fixing the amount of commission that the Trust Company was to receive for selling the bonds, also covering many transactions, which are the items in this ancillary bill as grounds of complaint, some of them taking place at directors' meetings and some at the stockholders' meeting held July 3, 1894, (Rec. 51-31358-'9), at which were represented 27,268 shares. The secretary was instructed to read to those present the minutes of the meetings of the Board of Directors and the executive committee, as shown by the record books, from July 26, 1892, to the date of the meeting, and which, having been read in compliance with said direction, each and all of the acts of the Board of Directors and executive committee, as shown by the minutes on the books of the company, were ratified and approved by the unanimous vote of all present. There was an express ratification of everything that had taken place at the meetings of the executive committee and the Board of Directors, from July 26, 1892, down to July 3, 1894.

At another meeting of the stockholders, held July 2, 1895, (shown in Vol. 52-31369-'70), the stock represented was 29,322 shares, and at said meeting the records of the proceedings of 768 the executive committee and of the directors of the Belt Company since the date of the last stockholders' annual meeting, were by said stockholders ratified and approved. Similar resolutions were adopted at subsequent stockholders' meetings. It also appears that at another stockholders' meeting, of February 11, 1893 (Rec. 52-31379; and following), the following resolution was adopted:

"On motion it was resolved that Article III of the By-Laws be repealed, and that a new section be enacted in lieu thereof, which provides that the superintendent, having in charge the movement of engines, switching, etc., shall be appointed by a permanent committee created and chosen by the stockholders at this meeting, and the duties of such person shall be defined and fixed by this committee, and shall hold office at the pleasure of the committee. Mr. De Goeijen continued to act as chairman. It was resolved that a permanent committee, composed of the following named five persons be appointed: J. De Goeijen, C. M. Titsingh, Jacques T. Nolthenius, A. E. Stilwell and E. L. Martin, shall have exclusive power for the next thirty years to appoint a person or persons, who shall superintend the actual operations of this company's tracks and property; that, for the purpose of inducing the Connecting Company and the Gulf Company to enter into a long time contract with the Belt for the terminal facilities, all of the capital stock of the Union Company and Air Line, which is now owned and held by the Belt Company, be, and the same is hereby transferred to the members of said permanent committee, with full power to vote the said stock and control the corporate acts of the said U. T. and the said Air Line, for the next thirty years, and that the president of the company be directed to transfer the said stock to the said committee and unto their successors in office, and that the officers of the Belt Company be authorized to enter into long time contracts as per form stated in the resolution, for the use of the Belt terminal facilities, and fixing the compensation for such services; as a part of said contract the Belt Company agrees to keep and maintain for the next thirty years the said permanent committee. It is further resolved that no contract shall be made for the next thirty years between the Belt Company, and any other railroad company for the use of the Belt Company's terminal facilities, except with the approval of said permanent committee. 42-867 votes were cast in favor of said resolution."

The Trust Company, while defendant in this proceeding, is also seeking affirmative relief in this litigation. It is the holder, and was at the time this action was brought, of eight promissory 769 notes, aggregating with accrued interest nearly one half million dollars, and it also holds an open account of the Belt Company, which accrued after the execution of those notes. The Trust Company also holds another account against the Belt, which grew out of the payment by the Trust Company of a judgment, rendered against it in a suit brought by the First National Bank of Kansas City, on a promissory note for about $30,000.00, which the Trust Company had indorsed solely for the accommodation of the Belt Company, in order to provide it with necessary funds, and which judgment the Trust Company afterwards paid to the Bank. In this case, the complainants are seeking to set aside the notes held by the Trust Company, and are proceeding upon the theory that this is an open, unsettled account between the Trust Company and the Belt Company. Complainants seek to be allowed to offset the Trust Company demands by and with the alleged damages, resulting to the Belt Company in the transactions, which transpired long prior to the execution of the notes.

On January 1, 1898, it is proven that the Belt Company owed the Trust Company $526.40, represented by an open account which had been running between the two companies for a series of years, beginning about March 26, 1890. This debit balance of $526.40 was increased by various advances by the Trust Company, largely to the Belt Company, until on March 31, 1899, the Belt was indebted to the Trust Company in the sum of $360,000.00. Of these advancements, the larger part consisted of interest on the funded debt, and the cost of construction of the Connecting Railroad. The Trust Company kept a separate account of the items arising from the construction of the Connecting Railroad, and also separate accounts with its constituent companies. This method of accounting for the Connecting road was used until February 17, 1899, at which time, the Trust Company transferred into the general account of the Belt a debit of $247,481.56, on account of debt due to the Trust Company from the Belt Company for the Construction of the Connecting Railroad, and this item of $247,481.56, constitutes the larger portion of the $360,000.00, which the Belt Company owed the Trust Company on March 31, 1899. The Belt Company, pursuant to authority of its Board of Directors, executed to the Trust Company seven notes—six for the sum of $50,000.00 each, and one for the sum of $50,000.00, or a total of $360,000.00, and the Trust Company gave the Belt Company credit on open account for these seven notes. After the execution of these notes to the Trust Company, all previous transactions were merged into the notes, and the notes now held by the Trust Company represent renewals and readjustments of the seven notes given by the Belt Company to the Trust Company on March 31, 1899, so that on that date the 770 open account was closed, with the exception of a credit balance of $50.83, which was carried in the open account.

On September 21, 1899, the Belt Company executed another note to the Trust Company for the sum of $23,056.49, which closed the open account, the debits and credits balancing one another. The open account commenced again on September 25, 1899, and continued until September 28, 1900, showing a balance due on that date from the Belt to the Trust Company, in open account, of $31,809.49, and to which should be added the amount paid by the Trust Company to the First National Bank on said judgment rendered against the Trust Company on account of the Belt note, indorsed by the Trust Company, for the accommodation of the Belt Company.

On January 1, 1898, the Belt Company was indebted to the Trust Company in the sum of only $526.40, as above stated which was a general ledger balance, and outside of that balance, whatever indebtedness the Belt Company owed the Trust Company was made up solely and exclusively of the transactions of the Belt Company, growing out of the building of the railroad of the Connecting Company, which was kept in a separate account, and none of the indebtedness, which was charged into these notes is represented by any of the transactions of which the complainants complain and ask relief in this case. By reference to the statement prepared by Willey, and known as Willey's exhibit No. 5, contained in Vol. 1 of the record it will be seen that it is a statement of the ledger account between the Trust Company and the Belt Company during the whole course of their business. The Trust Company made various advances to the Belt Company, on account of payrolls, construction work and other legitimate expenses, and, in that way, the Belt would become indebted to the Trust Company, and such indebtedness would be evidenced by a note, which would be credited to the Belt Company in open account. For instance, on page 13 of Willey's Exhibit 5, the following credits are made to the Belt Company: "By note of K. C.

Sub. Belt. R. R. dated Oct. 1, 1891, taken to balance account of Oct. 1, 1891 including charge for interest $513.57, and discount $775.14, $30,149.00." In other words, the Belt Company would give notes in partial payments of its indebtedness to the Trust Company, and in that way balance the account. In this case the complainants are seeking to go behind these notes from the very inception of the dealings between these two companies, and including notes paid and settled many years theretofore, and the question is presented in this case whether these old notes can be attacked in a proceeding of this kind, as well as the notes now existent. The Belt Company
771 had an auditor, so did the Trust Company, both of whom were competent, capable book-keepers. It stands admitted by the bill of complaint and the records in this cause, that these auditors made regular examinations of the accounts and approved and settled them. These exchanges of accounts were made not only monthly, but were made frequently, both daily and monthly. These companies had daily transactions on account of their intimate connections with each other. On the first of each month a charge was made by the Trust Company against the Belt of any interest on daily balances, or if the Belt had a deposit, a credit was given to the Trust Company of interest on daily balances. Whenever a charge was made against the Belt Company, or a credit given to it by the trust company, the Belt was contemporaneously therewith advised of the transaction, and, thereupon, the executive officers of the Belt would have proper entries extended at large upon the Belt books. In the vouchers there will be found on the first day of each and every month during the long period of their transactions, a voucher containing the computation made by the auditors of the two companies of the daily balances. The officers of each company knew at all times how the accounts stood, and on the first day of each month, the auditors would get together and check up the entries and strike a balance. In this way the books of the two companies were kept in accord during the entire comporate like of the Belt Company. Every month a financial statement was taken from the books of the Belt, showing the earnings, expenses, liabilities, assets, etc., and on the first of every quarter, a more detailed statement was made, showing the assets of the company, stocks and bonds, what the company owed, to whom, and all other necessary business information or detail. Annual reports, were also made in still further detail, showing the operations of the company, and the substance of its transactions during the previous year. All these things will fully appear by reference to the statements of the witness Neal S. Doran, for the Trust Company. These statements were put into the hands of the executive officers of the Belt Company, and the proofs show that they were sent to the stockholders or to persons representing the stockholders of the Belt. It is also shown that, as prescribed by the laws of the United States, the Belt Company also prepared annual statements for the Interstate Commerce Commission, which were made upon the prescribed forms, and complied with the Federal Laws. These annual statements may be found on file with the proper officer in Washington, sworn to by the officers of the Belt Company.

When the Construction Company turned over the road to the Belt Company, the transaction was a matter of public concern. At 772 the annual stockholders' meeting, reports were made to Mr. Martin, in more or less detail, though it is urged by the complainants that the reports were so gotten up that they did not contain the information which stockholders should have had in order to understand what had been done by the company.

System of Book Keeping.

In this connection it is important to consider the course of dealing between the Trust Company and these other companies, inasmuch as it is alleged by complainants that the frauds, perpetrated by the Trust Company, were not open, but were rather of a concealed nature.

The record shows that all of those companies employed the voucher system of book keeping. The accounting between the companies appears to have been very accurate and correct, and all of the data and information, upon which the complainants predict the right to an accounting, are shown on the books, both of the Belt Company and Trust Company. For every transaction that took place between those companies, a voucher advising as to the details of such transaction, was given by the Trust Company to the railroad company at the time, with the fullest details. The authority for every entry by the railroad company was in the shape of a letter from an executive officer, attached to a voucher, made up in the railroad company's office. If the Trust Company paid a bill, or a series of bills, for or on account of the railroad companies, the original bill, bearing the receipt of the party who got the money, passed to the railroad company's office and was there fastened to a formal voucher. All the transactions in the record are supported by a voucher, either cash or journal, and, in respect to the journal entries, in cases where the railroad company charged some account of its own, that voucher was made up with unusual fullness, and spread at large upon the books of the railroad company. From the testimony of all the expert accountants for the complainants and defendants, the master is convinced that, instead of their being any concealment on the part of either the Belt or the Trust Company, the entries made by both were unusually full of detail, for book entries, and were such as would either reasonably explain the transactions to others or put them on inquiry to find out what was meant by the entries, and from which it would seem, then, that the charge of concealed fraud could not be sustained by the proofs.

The exhibit in Vol. 44, prepared by accountant F. A. Wright, indicates clearly and explicitly just what the books of the railroad company shows with reference to these transactions, and for each 773 and every entry of charge or credit on the books of the Trust Company there is found on the books of the railroad company a corresponding entry, setting forth the transaction with clearness and fullness. Mr. Willey, in his exhibits from 1 to 5, made a statement, showing in detail each and every item, which had ever been made a matter of open account between the Trust Company and each of the railroad companies, and their allied companies, beginning with the first item on March 18, 1890, and ending with the last item as shown in this account. In other words, in this Vol. 44, Mr. Wright has copied from the books of the railroad company each item and entry, shown in Willey's exhibits, representing the ledger account between the Trust Company and the railroad company, and in Wright's exhibit will be found, side by side, each item appearing on Willey's exhibit, and the corresponding entry on the books of the Belt Company. The object of Wright's exhibit was to show that nothing was concealed from the Belt Company, and that it had in its own office, and amongst its own files complete details of every transaction that took place between the two companies.

Attitude of Belt Stockholders and Bondholders.

The primary investors in the Belt properties, and who were specially active in putting through the organization plan, under which the Southern Company bought the Belt properties at foreclosure sale, were Stotesbury, Shipley, Smith, Merwin and others, who were bankers and bond and stock brokers, and men of affairs. It is evident from the record that all of these original stockholders and bond holders understood the Belt transactions, and there has never been any complaint on the part of any of them as to such transactions.

The complainants all seem to have arisen after the controversy between John W. Gates and associates, as against Stilwell, Martin and their followers, the culmination of such controversy being the institution of the Bierce case, in which a receiver was appointed for the Trust Company, and, about the same time the Cambria bill was filed in this case, the Cambria Steel Company holding the same character of collateral security for the payment of its debts as the collaterals held by the Trust Company.

It is contended by counsel for complainants that, before the stockholders of the Belt Company can be chargeable with laches or acquiescence, they must actually know of the transactions in question. It is answered by counsel for the Trust Company that each and all of the stockholders are not required to know, but it is sufficient as shown by the authorities, if a majority of them understood the 774 transactions. On January 1, 1898, the Dutch Syndicate owned 43500 out of a total of 47500 shares of the Belt stock, and they selected as their representatives J. De Goeijen and C. M. Titsingh, who made frequent trips to Kansas City. De Goeijen was not only here, frequently, but he remained here much of the time, and carefully looked after all Belt transactions. He went into the question of the floating debt of the Belt Company. He was, in fact, the leading and controlling man of the Belt Company. The testimony of Mr. Heynecker, a friend of De Goeijen, is that the latter employed an accountant to check over the books. Heynecker was the confidential agent of De Goeijen in Amsterdam, and familiar with his affairs, and De Goeijen became thoroughly familiar with the Belt affairs, not only from information he got from the books, but also such as he obtained from officers of the company, with whom he was in constant correspondence. He was the largest individual stockholder of Belt securities, and had more of his money invested in the company than any other individual, and, hence, it cannot be assumed that he was a creature of the Trust Company, or that he conspired to rob or defraud his own company. At any rate he was the chosen representative of the Dutch stockholders, who really were the beneficial owners of the Belt road, and there is nothing in this record to show that he was an unworthy representative, but, whether he was or not, he was chosen by them to represent them in this country, and they certainly should be bound by his acts. In this connection, attention is called briefly to these facts: first, the corporate records of the Belt Company, and the authority for most of the transactions complained of, show that such transactions were expressly ratified by the Belt stockholders; second, they show that these transactions were not concealed from the Belt Company, or from its stockholders, and that they can all be found upon the books of the company by any one, who will take the trouble to look for them; and third, they show that, during the entire corporate life of the Belt Company, when dealings were going on between the Belt and Trust Company, not a single dissent was heard by any of the stockholders as to any transaction, old or new; and Fourth, it is shown that, as a matter of fact, the Trust Company did not have the control of the Belt Company, but that it was vested in the stockholders, who lived in Amsterdam and who elected the directors. These transactions, which are complained of, were executed, closed and finished transactions, and long since settled by those interested in them. The accounts between these companies were accurately kept, vouchers were exchanged daily and monthly in the mutual transactions passing between them, and matters of account 775 were settled by notes given from time to time, and the accounts closed up in that way.

If by reason of the community of directorship between the two corporations, the transactions in controversy should be set aside, it could hardly be said that the Belt Company was or [in is] a position to make restoration to the Trust Company for finding a market for its stocks and bonds, and disposing of the same, and otherwise make good the responsibilities incurred by the Trust Company, from time to time, while backing it during the active years of its corporate existence; or in the case of the Construction Company contract, made with the Belt Company, is or would the latter be willing to give back to the Construction Company the railroad which it received under said contract, even though it may be that it was not economically constructed.

It is evident that, if the Belt Company in 1892 had sought to avoid the contract, made with the Construction Company, that the Trust Company could not have gone on making advances to the Belt Company, loaning its money, etc. A party cannot avoid a contract where he has received all the fruits of it, and is unable to restore or replace them. The act of accepting and receiving the fruits, is in itself in the nature of acquiesence or ratification.

4. The foregoing facts abundantly show that the Belt Company was, to all intents and purposes, managed and controlled by the Dutch bondholders, but through Martin and his associates, working in harmony with the Trust Company management, but not dominated and controlled by the Trust Company, as alleged in complainants' bill.

It is an undisputed fact in the case, that De Goeijen was the representative of the Dutch bondholders, and, with them, was largely interested in the Belt securities, as hereinbefore stated. The combined holdings of others in the Belt securities constituted but a small minority. DeGoeijen, in his frequent trips to Kansas City, inspected and kept in touch with the Belt properties and condition of affairs. The Belt was what might be deemed a parent company to the Consolidated, Union, Air Line and Connecting Companies.

In the sequence of facts, the Suburban Company was the beginning of the Belt system, organized, as before stated, by Martin Scott and others, who failing to secure sufficient funds to finance the proposition, invited Stilwell to take charge of their enterprise and which resulted in the making of the Stilwell contract. It is conclusively shown that substantially all of the capital stock of the Con-
776 struction Company was used in building the first division of the Belt, and, when such stock was depleted, arrangements were made through the same Construction Company, to build the second division of the Belt, as has been hereinbefore shown. The various transactions involved in the making of the Stilwell contract, the building of the Suburban road, its acceptance by the Suburban Company, the turning over of the stocks and bonds, and, in fact, all the important details respecting these transactions, received the approval of the stockholders and directors controlling these companies. The claim made by the complainants that the Trust Company so dominated the whole situation that it compelled or caused the Suburban Company to accept the road when it should not have done so, is not sustained by the proofs. Considering the fact that the Suburban Company had nothing but a franchise from Kansas City, and, at that time, with no immediate prospects of additional railroad connections it is not surprising that it had to make sacrifices in connection with the Stilwell contract, and the completion of the first division of the Belt. These were matters, however, solely and entirely within the business judgment of the parties then interested in the promotion and development of the Belt properties, and there is nothing in this record from which the Master feels justified in reaching the conclusion that the transactions of the Trust Company in controversy, in respect to the construction of the first and second divisions of the Belt, were inequitable or oppressive to the extent that they should be set aside.

Conclusions of the Master.

With respect to the series of claims which are predicated upon the contracts for construction made with the Belt and Air Line Companies by the Construction Company, and also in respect to the manner in which those contracts were fulfilled, it is the opinion of the Master that these claims — without substantial merit, for the following, among other reasons.

1. At the time these transactions took place, the sole and only stockholder of the Belt and Air Line Companies was the Construction Company, and the persons to whom it had caused certain shares to be issued for the purpose of qualifying them as directors and it would seem that, as to the manner in which the Construction Company saw fit to divide up its interest in the proprietorship of the company, and to represent it in its shares, considered only the Construction Company and its shareholders, and that, too, notwithstanding the identity of directorships among the companies involved.

Barr v. R. R., 125 N. Y., 263.
U. P. R. R. v. Credit Mobilier, 135 Mass., 367.

2. There was no fraud practiced by the Construction Company on the railroad companies. Adopting the language of one of the cases, it was "practically in this way the promoters of the railroads placed a valuation upon the corporate properties and franchises which the contribution and expenditures of their money created; and the fact that they were created for an expenditure less than the par value of the aggregate issues of stocks and bonds does not affect the question at all."

Barr v. R. R., 125 N. Y., 263.
Robinson v. McCracken, 57 Fed., 375.

3. If, however, the arrangements and practices on the part of the Construction Company with the railroad companies had been corrupt and illegal, then complainants' remedy would have been against such company, or its stockholders, and not against the Trust Company, which was not a party to such arrangements, that is, unless under the proofs and the law of the case, it should be satisfactorily shown that the Trust Company dominated and controlled all these transactions in its own interest, and to the prejudice of the other companies involved.

4. There is nothing illegal or unlawful in a corporation issuing its unpaid shares, as professedly paid up, as a bonus to bondholders in order to market its bonds, or other securities, and, where a corporation cannot sell its bonds at par without giving away an equal amount of its stock, and the value of the bonds is no more than equal to the actual value of the bonds and stocks combined, then the purchaser cannot be compelled by creditors of the corporation, or by its receiver, to pay the principal value of the stock.

Coe v. R. R., 52 Fed., 531.

5. Substantially all of the claims set forth in the second ancillary bill are barred by the Statutes of limitations of Missouri (R. S. Mo., 1899, Section 6773-74-75). These statutes are known as the five and ten years statutes, and defendant invokes both in paragraph 118 of its answer to the ancillary bill, as follows:

778 "As to so much of said amended ancillary bill as seeks an account of the money, property or effects of the said Belt, Union, Air Line, Consolidated, Suburban, Kansas City Terminal Construction, Elevator, Improvement, Townsite or Northern Companies, coming into the hands of this defendant prior to the 6th day of September, 1895, or that seeks a satisfaction for or in respect of any money or property received by this defendant for or on account of any of the matters and things set forth in the said amended ancillary [ail] as having taken place or transpired prior to the said date, this defendant says that all of the said matters and things pretended to have transpired, and all of the said money, property and effects pretended to have been received by this defendant, if any such were received, transpired and were received by this defendant more than five years before the commencement of this action or any action whatsoever, and that if the said complainants in the said amended ancillary bill had any cause of action or suit against this defendant for or concerning any of the said matters, which this defendant does not admit, that such causes of action or suit did not accrue or arise within five(5)years before the the said amended ancillary bill or the said original bill herein was filed or this defendant was served with process, nor did this defendant at any time within five (5) years before the said bills were exhibited or process sued out against this defendant, promise or agree to come to any account or make satisfaction or agree to pay any sum or sums of money for or by reason of any of the said matters, nor was there any occasion for it so to do: and that by a certain act of the General Assembly of the State of Missouri, for the limitation of actions and suits at law, it was enacted as is shown by Sections 6773, 6774, and 6775, of the Revised Statutes of the State of Missouri, for the year 1889, as follows, to-wit:

SEC. 6673. "Civil actions, other than those for the recovery of real property, can only be commenced within the periods prescribed in the following sections, after the causes of action shall have accrued."

SEC. 6774. "Within ten years: First, an action upon any writing, whether sealed or unsealed, for the payment of money or property; second, actions brought on any covenant of warranty contained in any deed of conveyance of land shall be brought within ten years next after there shall have been a final decision against the title of the covenantor in such deed, and actions on any covenant of seizin contained in any such deed shall be brought within ten years

779 after the cause of such action shall accrue; third, actions for relief, not herein provided for."

SEC. 6775. "Within five years: First, all action upon contracts, obligations or liabilities, express or implied, except those mentioned in Section 6774, and except judgments or decrees of a court of record, and except where a different time is herein limited; second, an action upon a liability created by a statute other than a penalty or forfeiture; third, an action for trespass on real estate; fourth, an action for taking, detaining, or injuring any goods or chattels, including actions for recovery of specific personal property, or for any other injury to the person or rights of another, not arising on contract and not herein otherwise enumerated; fifth, an action for relief on the ground of fraud, the cause of action in such case to be deemed not to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party at any time within ten years, of the facts constituting the fraud."

The defendant states that the statutes have been in force during the whole time in which the said matters set forth in said amended ancillary bill are pretended to have transpired and ever since the said pretended cause of action are alleged to have accrued and this defendant pleads the several matters aforesaid in bar to so much of the said complainant's said demands as aforesaid and prays the judgment of this Honorable Court thereon."

The Complainant is not within the saving clause in the fifth subdivision of said section 6775, which provides that in actions for relief on the ground of fraud, the cause of action in such case is to be deemed not to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party, at any time within ten years of the facts constituting the fraud, because,

(a) There is no attempt made by complainants either in the bill or in the proofs, to bring themselves within such clause. Wood v. Carpenter, 101 U. S., 140; Kessler & Co. v. Ensley & Co., 123 Fed., 546:

(b) On the contrary, it is shown that the Belt stockholders knew of, and acquiesced in, the transactions complained of, and that the Belt Company, through which its receiver derives all of his rights, expressly ratified them;

(c) The proofs show that the transactions were not secret or concealed, but were of more or less public character, and full information concerning them with within easy reach of any party in interest. As stated by Judge Black, in Bent v. Priest, 86 Mo., 475,

780 "Much, we think, depends upon the fact whether the fraud is a secret or an open one. If the substantial facts constituting the fraud were open, it is believed under the equity rules the statutes of limitations would have applied at once, but if these facts were in any other nature concealed, and were unknown, it is believed the statutes would not begin to run until they were discovered, there being no want of diligence on the part of complainant."

Mr. Justice Swayne, speaking of the same point, in Wood v. Carpenter, 101 U. S., 140, says:

"Concealment by mere silence is not enough. There must be some trick or contrivance intended to exclude suspicion and prevent inquiry. There must be reasonable diligence, and, the means of knowledge are the same thing in effect as knowledge itself, and the delay which has occurred must be shown to be consistent with the requisite diligence."

Foster v. R. R., 36 Fed., l. c., 637.
Swift v. Smith, 79 Fed. 709.

6. The complainants are not in position to invoke the rule that the statutes of limitations do not run in favor of a trustee against his cestui que trust, and that the Trust Company, in selling the securities issued by the various railroad companies for their account, stood in the relation of a trustee towards the Belt Company, for the following reasons,

(a) The Trust Company was not such a trustee as to prevent the running of the statute of limitations in its favor, in as much as the relationship created by the controverted transactions was that of an implied or constructive trust, and the rule invoked by complainants applies only to express trust.

Young v. Mercantile Trust Co., 140 Fed., 61.
Miles v. Vivian, 79 Fed., 848.
Kane v. Bloodgood, 7 Johns. Ch., 90.
Landés v. Saxton, 105 Mo., 486.
Robinson v. Hook, per Storry, J., 4 Mason, l. c., 152.

In Robinson v. Hook, supra, Judge Storry said:

"But as to cases of merely constructive trusts created by courts of equity, or cases which in a sense are treated for some purpose as implied trusts, to which, however, legal remedies are applicable, the doctrine cannot be admitted that the statute of limitations does not embrace them. If it were otherwise, there is scarcely a single case of bailment, or of moneys received to use, of factorage concerns, of general account, into whose service the doctrine might not be pressed."

781 (b) Even in cases of an express trust, the rule that neither time nor laches will bar the right to enforce the trust is subject to the exception that when the trust is disavowed by the trustee, or the trustee conducts himself in a manner wholly inconsistent with any admission of its further existence or means of knowing this, the case will be brought within the ordinary rules of limitations and laches.

Swift v. Smith, per Sanborn, J., 79 Fed., and cases cited.

In the case at bar, it is proven that the Trust Company rendered regular accounts of all sales of stocks and bonds of the different railroad companies involved in this accounting, and, in the ordinary course of business, proper entries were made upon the books of the railroad companies, as well as the Trust Company, and the usual papers and vouchers were systematically filed in evidence of such transactions. The principle has been stated in many of the authorities that the rendition of such accounts, under such circumstances, is wholly inconsistent with the further recognition of any trust, express or implied, with respect to the securities covered thereby.

28 A. & E. Enc. Law (2nd Ed.,) 1133-1135.

7. It was contended in the argument by complainants' counsel, that the statutes of limitations of Missouri have no application to this case and that courts of equity in the United States are not bound or controlled by the statutes of limitations of the several states in which they sit. The law, however, is to the contrary, the rule being concisely stated by the court in Miles v. Vivian, 79 Fed. l. c., 852, as follows:

"Statutes of limitations are equally obligatory upon the courts of equity and courts of law, in cases in which the jurisdiction is concurrent. In such cases courts of equity do not act so much in analogy to the statutes as in obedience to them. 2 Story Eq. Jur. (13th Ed.) 842. Although the ordinary chancery jurisdiction of the courts of the United States cannot be abridged by state statutes, they recognize those of the state in which the court is sitting, limiting the time for bringing suits, and adopt them, if they do not act in obedience to them. Coulson v. Walton, 9 Pet., 62; Harpending v. Dutch Church, 16 Pet., 455; Badger v. Badger, 2 Wall., 87-94; Clarke v. Boorman, 18 Wall., 493; Carroll v. Green, 92 U. S., 509; Kirby v. Railroad Co., 120 U. S., 130, 7 Sup. Ct., 430. Accordingly they will adjudge in cases over which there is a concurrent jurisdiction 782 by courts of law and equity, that lapse to be a bar in equity which would have constituted a bar if the action had been at law. Norris v. Haggin, 136 U. S., 391, 10 Sup. Ct., 942; Alsop v. Riker, 155 U. S., 448, 15 Sup. Ct., 162. In Boone County v. Burlington & M. R. R. Co., 139 U. S., 684, 11 Sup. Ct., 687, the rule was applied where the state statute barred an action for relief on the ground of fraud unless commenced within four years after the discovery of the fraud. Applying this rule to the present case, the six year statute of limitations, which has been pleaded by the defendant, would seem to bar the action. If it does not, the ten year statute applies. Hubbell v. Medbury, 53 N. Y., 98.

Independently of any statute of limitations, courts of equity uniformly decline to assist a person who has slept upon his rights unreasonably long, and shows no excuse for having done so. Recent applications of the doctrine by the Supreme Court are found in Hanner v. Moulton, 138 U. S., 486, 11 Sup. Ct., 408; Richards v. Mackall, 124 U. S., 183, 8 Sup. Ct., 437; Hammond v. Hopkins, 143 U. S., 224, 12 Sup. Ct., 418; Galliher v. Cadwell, 145 U. S., 385, 12 Sup. Ct., 873; Lane & Bodley Co. v. Locke, 150 U. S., 193, 14 Sup. Ct., 78; Abraham v. Ordway, 158 U. S., 416, 15 Sup. Ct., 894."

8. It has been contended by complainants that the items involved in complainants' bill are saved from the effect of the statutes of limitations by reason of Section 4278, of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1899, which provides as follows:

"In an action brought to recover a balance due on a mutual, open and current account, where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties, the cause of action shall be deemed to have accrued from the time of the last item in the account on the adverse side."

The defendant, however, insists that the contention of complainants in that respect is without merit, for the reason that this is not a suit on a mutual, open and current account, in the statutory sense.

It is true that in its answer, the Trust Company prays judgment, not only upon the promissory notes of the Belt Company, held by it, but also upon an unpaid book account, the first item of which is dated September 25, 1899, and the last item September 25, 1900, the balance due being $31,809.49. This book account commences, then, September 25, 1899. The remainder of the account claimed in this action by the Trust Company, consists exclusively of promissory notes executed by the Belt Company in its favor, and which notes are renewals and readjustments of notes for sundry amounts, executed by the Belt Company on March 31, 1899, and in 783 part by notes executed long prior to that date; said notes being given by the Belt Company to the Trust Company in settlement of the balance shown to be due by the book accounts (Vol. 1-128). The effect of the complainants' contention is to ask the Court to ignore the settlement of these accounts by notes, to treat such notes as mere nullities, and to regard the book showing of the Belt and Trust Companies as opened, unsettled and mutual accounts. It affirmatively appears on the books of both companies (see Willey's exhibit, Vol. 1-238) that from the origin of the dealings between the Belt Company and the Trust Company on March 26, 1890, to the time of the termination of such dealings in 1900, a period of over ten years, there were frequent settlements by the Belt Company of the balances due from it to the Trust Company, either by payments of cash, or by the execution of promissory notes, the entries on their face reciting that the notes were given "to balance account"; and further, that such notes were not only given, but actually paid by the Belt Company at their maturity, in the ordinary course of its business relations with the Trust Company. The complainants, in their bill, seek to disregard not only the notes now held by the Trust Company, but all the notes given long before the present ones were executed, and paid many years ago, in the ordinary business transactions between the Belt and the Trust Company; in other words, the Belt receiver is attempting to get behind these notes given by the Belt Company in settlement of book balances, and long ago satisfactorily adjusted between the Belt and the Trust Company. For example, page 52 of the record (Willey's exhibit) shows that on October 1, 1891, the Belt owed the Trust Company, on open account, $30,149.00, and that on that day the Belt executed its promissory note of that amount to the Trust Company, in settlement of the balance, and that on October 21, 1891, the Trust Company, by entry on its books, gave the Belt credit for that note. When this note became due, it was paid in part, and a renewal note given for the part not paid (see item of January 20, 1892, Rec. p. 54); and afterwards this last note was paid in full in the ordinary course of business. The books of both companies disclose frequent instances of like nature (see Willey's exhibits in Vol. 1-57 et seq., and accountant Wright's literal copy of the book showing of both the Trust Company and the Belt Company set out in parallel columns, comprising Vol. 44 of the record).

The Master is of the opinion that counsel for defendant are right in their suggestion that the statute upon which complainant relies expressly refers solely to actions brought to recover a balance due on a mutual, open and current account, and provides that in 784 such action, the cause of action should be deemed to have accrued from the date of the last item, and, further, that the statute has no application to stated or settled accounts, whether settled by note, cash or otherwise; and that clearly the recovery sought by the Trust Company upon the promissory notes held by it is not an action on a mutual, open and current account. In support of this view, the following authorities are cited:

"An open account is defined to be "One which is continuous or current, uninterrupted or unclosed by settlement or otherwise."

Cyc. of Law & Proc., Vol. 1, 363.

"An account stated is an agreement between persons who have had previous transactions, fixing the amount due in respect of such transactions."

Cyc. of Law & Proc., Vol. 1, 364.

"A settled account is one the balance of which, having been stated, is paid."
